PRAB RECOMMENDS SUPERVISED MINI-BIKE PROGRAM IN PARK

A supervised mini-bike program endorsed by the city was one of the recommendations made last week by the city's Park and Recreation Advisory Board.

The National Park Service has agreed to the use of mini-bikes in the Greenbelt Regional Park provided the program has professional adult supervision and the mini-bikers are organized in a club which could enter into agreements for the enforcement of safety and mechanical requirements.

The NPS said it would reserve three hard-surface roads in the Park for specified afternoon hours, starting May 1. Two of the potential road loops would be more than mile-long circuits.

In its report #3-70, PRAB urged the city to appropriate $250 in the present fiscal year for supervision of the program. It suggested that the city seek cost-sharing from the county, since the program would be open to non-Greenbelters, inasmuch as the Park is a Federal installation.

PRAB also asked the city to provide minimal transportation to and from the Park, the cost of which could be offset, in large part, by the mini-bike club.

PRAB also urged that the city should prohibit the use of mini-bikes in any part of the "old city" of Greenbelt and the Lake Park.

In another report (#1-70), PRAB endorsed the city manager's proposed land acquisition plans. It suggested that the plan be reexamined at a later date when additional material is obtained through use of demographic survey information to determine criteria and priorities. The report agreed to give the Greenbelt Homes, Inc., property next to North End School a lower priority for city parkland acquisition in view of GHI's expressed desire to maintain an equivalent amount of open space on the tract.

Another PRAB report was held up when city manager James Giese indicated that not all the items in the report had been officially approved by the group. The report dealt with the development of the Lake Park and the South Bay plan of Schlafman, Hanses Associates, outside consultants who had been brought in to draw up a plan that would accommodate the persistent demands for play area, for protecting adjoining homeowners from the hazards created by ball games, for improving the appearance of the area and reclaiming some of the area, and for channeling traffic flows.

ANNUAL GREENBELT ARTS FESTIVAL

On Sunday, April 26, at 2 p.m., the Greenbelt Arts Festival will present an Arts Show and Sale, open free to the public.

The show at the Youth Center will feature a ceramic exhibit and throwing on the wheel demonstration by Robert vanKluyve, the potter at Federal City College Art Center. VanKluyve has worked in the tradition of the North Carolina potter. His exhibit will feature useful and functional items, each with its own original design. All items will be on sale in addition to those items he throws on the wheel that day.

There will also be an exhibit and demonstration in crewel design and Christmas decorations. At 3 p.m. there will be a half hour musical presentation.

The Show and Sale, by area artists, will feature sculpture, ceramics, water colors, oils and decoupage. Those artists still interested in this portion of the Arts Festival are asked to contact the Recreation Department 474-6878.

Environmental Threats Discussed by Probe Group

by Joy Cowell

Dr. John Price, theoretical physicist at Goddard Space Center, and Financial Chairman of Citizens for a Better Environment led an exciting discussion at a Probe group on Sunday, April 19 at the Greenbelt Community Church. Probe, planned as a non-denominational discussion group for adults is held following the regular worship service at the church and utilizes people expert in many areas as moderators.

Dr. Price began the discussion by enumerating the threats to the ecology of Greenbelt, both those threatening to the character of the town as a whole, and those specifically related to one area of pollution or destruction. Listed as related to one area of destruction were the school site, the perimeter road, the threat to Greenbelt National Park by the Golden Triangle, and the destruction of the shoreline and development of facilities at Greenbelt Lake.

Of much more interest to the group was the discussion that ensued when the topic of apartments was discussed. Dr. Price suggested that old Greenbelt was comparable to the Ostrich, in that it was hiding its head hoping that all new apartment development would somehow go away. He said that the coverage by the local newspaper of G.H.I. board meetings was a case in point. Although Springhill Lake now has approximately ten thousand people, anyone reading the local news coverage would believe that all of Greenbelt lived in G.H.I. In fact, old Greenbelt is a small insular island in the midst of a rapidly expanding area.

After listening to and participating in the rather heated discussion from the many members of the group, Dr. Price offered some concrete and positive suggestions. He suggested that the G.H.I. Board, the Boxwood Civic Association, the Lakeside and Lakewood Civic associations send representatives to form an advisory board with civic groups from Springhill Lake, Lakeside North and other apartment developments. This board could review further planned development in this area, and advise their membership as to the quality of the plans and also advise them as to whether these plans will disrupt the total ecology and character of the city.

Dr. Price stated that all of the problems relating to pollution and ecology in the Greenbelt area stem from the population growth. The population in Greenbelt has doubled in the last ten years and is expected to top 37,000 people by 1980. He stated that no matter how we may resent it, apartments will go up, schools will have to be built, and roads will encroach. Now is the time for Greenbelt to join together to ensure that they are built where we want them . . .

Greenbelt Presses for Public Hearing on School Location

by Al Skolnik

What started out at last Monday's city council meeting as a short status report on the school site situation turned into a full-blown hour and a half discussion on the city's strategy and tactics for securing a favorable disposition of the crisis. Repeated questioning from an aroused audience made it clear why council had decided at the previous meeting to place the school site matter automatically on its meeting agenda until the issue was resolved.

The status report started with a statement by Mayor Francis W. White that the Governor's office had been in touch with him as to whether the Prince Georges County Board of Education had met with the city council as directed by Joint Resolution SJR-81. This resolution, passed in the closing moments of the 1970 session of the General Assembly, provides for a moratorium on the construction of a senior high school on parcel 2 (land adjacent to the Baltimore-Washington Parkway) until the school board has explored alternate sites with the city council of Greenbelt. The resolution is awaiting the signature of Governor Marvin Mandel, and White urged that the Governor sign the resolution as soon as possible.

Report on school board meeting

The school board, which met with the council on April 7, first decided to grant Greenbelt an open hearing and then reversed itself. City solicitor Emmett Nanna expressed the opinion that the turning point occurred when the question came up of how to title the hearing. School board attorney Paul Nussbaum intimated that if the hearing discussed alternative school sites, it might provide a basis for renewed litigation. When the school board heard that, Nanna said, it decided that it didn't want any part of a hearing.

Councilman Richard Pilski thought that another factor was that the school board had already invested considerable money in architectural services for a school complex on parcel 2. Councilwoman Elizabeth Maffay said that some of the school board members were also influenced by the fact that State aid had been promised for the perimeter road, which was intended to relieve the impact of school traffic on the narrow streets of Greenbelt's core.

Sees No Legal Action

Nanna said that the fear that an open hearing might provide the

NEW OIL LEAKAGE

Evidence of new oil leakage into the inlet streams leading to the lake has been discovered during the past week, City Manager James K. Giese has announced. The city has not yet traced the source, and a search will be made involving climbing into manholes and tracking sewer lines with the aid of a map. As soon as the source is discovered, the owner of the property charged with the leakage, as well as the State, will be notified.

No immediate danger to the lake is involved, Giese pointed out, since the oil traps established on the inlet streams to contain the earlier leakage are still intact. Almost no oil has been able to penetrate beyond these traps.

Another result of oil pollution was also brought to the city's attention — though not on city property. The A. H. Smith Gravel Co., on Greenbelt Rd. between the Beltway Plaza and the railroad tracks, reported heavy pollution, with many resulting dead fish, in a lake on its property. Knowing of the earlier oil leakage into Greenbelt Lake, Smith inquired whether the two bodies of water were connected. The pollution on the Smith property, however, was later traced to Indian Creek and to a source further north in Beltsville.

basis for litigation, in his opinion, was "magnified out of all proportion." He said that the courts are extremely reluctant to interfere with administrative decisions of bodies that derive their authority from the State legislature. Witness, he said, the Maryland Court of Appeals refusal in 1968 to grant an injunction to stop school construction on parcel 2 in a suit brought by Greenbelt Homes, Inc. All the arguments against the school on parcel 2 were contained in that suit, he said, yet the courts didn't even hear the case on its merits.

"Conceding that the school board decision was a bad one," Nanna said, "this will not give you a remedy in court." The city, he opined, cannot do anything legally to change the school site situation. "The remedy lies in a political solution — to try to persuade the new school board members to change their minds." He hoped that the school board would grant a hearing to Greenbelt.

Political solution sought

Stimulated by Nanna's advice, the council adopted a motion introduced by Mrs. Maffay to seek the support of sub-district 1 legislators in securing a meeting of city leaders with Governor Mandel in order to arrange for a public hearing on the school site issue and to obtain help in moving the site.

The audience's thirst for further action, however, was not yet satisfied. A question came up on the impact of the reverter clause in the school property sales contract and whether it was a legally executed document. The reverter clause provides that if parcel 2 land purchased by the school board is not used for school purposes, the former owners would have the first option to buy back the land at cost plus 6 percent interest.

Nanna and the council did not seem to think that the document was too relevant. White observed that the reverter clause should not be a barrier to the school board changing the site since it, in effect, assures the school board that it will get back its purchase price money. After further inquiry by Save our Community Committee representatives, the council decided to ask management to seek a determination as to whether the reverter clause was a legally executed document.

L. R. Batra asked what council was doing in assembling data for an economic and cost analysis of alternate sites. White said that it could be very expensive to do such an analysis until more facts were known as to just what sites were being considered by the Board of Education and how and what kind of school structures would be positioned on any possible site.

Irene Hensel urged that council include a representative of Prince Georges County Civic Federation in any hearing before the school board and White said he would be glad to do so. The Federation recently came out in support of the city's position.

Climactic Charges

The culminating event which decided council that perhaps the discussion had outlasted its usefulness came when Milton Hoffman of the audience charged that the performance of the council in handling the school site-perimeter road issue was "most cynical."

He said that the perimeter road was not needed and that the only explanation that he could see for the council's persistence in pursuing the road issue was to assist the owners of parcel 1 (the land north of the sanitary landfill road between GHI property and the Five members have signified their intention to run for the Greenbelt Homes, Inc., board of directors, it was announced this week by George Adams, chairman of the GHI nominations and elections committee. Six spots are open on the nine-man board. Four openings are for 2-year terms; two are for 1-year terms. The four candidates receiving the highest votes will fill the two-year terms.

The election will be held in conjunction with the annual membership meeting on Wednesday and Thursday, May 20 and 21. The meeting on Wednesday night will be held at the Center School Auditorium, starting at 7:30 p.m. Balloting will begin that night and resume the next day at Twin Pines.

Four of the five candidates are incumbent board members — Nat Shinderman, Steve Polaschik, Katherine Keene, and Norman Weyel. The other candidate is Darwin Beck, 3-D Ridge Rd.

Also to be elected is a 3-man audit committee for 1-year terms. Two have announced: incumbent Janet James and James Foster, 4-H Hillside Rd.

GHI candidates wishing to run for the board or audit committee are urged by Adams to contact any member of the nominations and elections committee to pick up a Candidates' Consent Form. Other members of the committee are Gordon Allen, (474-4963), David Bridge (474-1463), and Catherine Foster (345-2025).

Candidates' Consent Forms are to be completed and returned to the nominations committee by midnight Saturday, May 9. Board members receive a salary of $500 a year and officers $750.

The committee requests that each candidate run as an individual rather than as a member of a slate.

Produce Those Figures!

To the Editor:

I do not intend to engage in verbal fistfights with Mr. Milton Hoffman from now until May 20; I shall let my character, my reputation, and my hard work for GHI speak for themselves. However, since I as a "lady auditor" am accused of collaborating with a "lady board member," I think perhaps the members of GHI might like to know that this is true. Miss Katherine Keene (the lady Board Member) is Chairman of the GHI Newsletter Committee; Mr. Stephen Polaschik and I are members of it. We do collaborate on getting out the Newsletter and I can't think of any other way to do it!

Mr. Hoffman also makes a rather remarkable statement that he has tried for months to get the formula for calculating monthly charges out on the table. Apparently Mr. Hoffman does not read his mail and is inattentive at Board meetings. At the Board meeting of December 4, 1969, Mr. Hoffman charged that members of GHI living in brick homes were paying less than they should be in monthly charges and those in frame homes were paying more than they should. Right then, as soon as Mr. Hoffman had made the charge, the Board "put it out on the table" by asking management to restudy the manner in which monthly charges were determined. Management made this study and wrote a memorandum to all Board members and all members of the Audit Committee, including Mr. Hoffman, giving the results. The Board felt that the data included in this study would be of interest to all of the GHI members, so that management memorandum was the basis for the GHI Newsletter on the subject of Monthly Charges.

It would seem that a study by knowledgeable professionals who take into consideration all of the facets of the operation of this cooperative would be more nearly accurate than a study by an amateur using only the worksheets on nine houses. However, Mr. Hoffman was not satisfied and said he had figures to prove that the charges were wrong. The Board then directed the Finance Committee to study Mr. Hoffman's figures and asked Mr. Hoffman to give them to the Finance Committee. This Mr. Hoffman has not done. I submit that the Finance Committee could meet every day until Doomsday and not be able to study Mr. Hoffman's figures until he supplies them.

GHI is a cooperative. Nothing is to be gained by pitting the Audit Committee against the Board or the members in frame houses against those in brick houses. I do not wish Mr. Hoffman would get lost until after May 20, as he suggests, but I fervently wish he would produce those figures he says he has!

Shabby Excuse

To the Editor:

Why are we in such haste to trace the line of the Perimeter Road? Mr. Giese has laid it out to run right up against the back fences of Research Road. There seems to be some valid question about the width of Mr. Giese's "buffer" strip. What's the rush? Is this the best we can do? We really don't have to accept this pig in a poke; the land will stay there; it won't run away; we have all kinds of options; let's take our time and look at them. Let's tell Mr. Giese to halt his game of trading off land with various "anonymous" land owners.

We cannot build for a few years under any circumstances; shouldn't we take a hard look at where we're going to spend the money — which, incidentally we haven't got — before we let Mr. Giese commit us? The Agricultural Research isn't all that hard to talk to. Matter of fact, the City of College Park is acting right now to annex some of their land. We have influential people right in town who hold responsible positions with the Department of Agriculture. Can't weicker for some land? Have we really tried? Mr. Giese says the land is contaminated. That's a pretty shabby excuse; anyone must know that the land can be un-contaminated and made usable. Our City Council says we must plan for future municipal needs — quite right — but let's not plan another municipal pratfall.

(Parkway) in securing high-density apartment zoning of that land. Thus, he said, despite the council's profession that it was against high-density zoning, it was doing the one thing — building the perimeter road — that would enable the developer to justify such high-density zoning.

White, joined by his colleagues, took great exception to Hoffman's charges. "I am deeply offended," White replied. "There is nothing in the record — no history, no documentation — that could justify an accusation that we are aiding the developer at the expense of the city."

He and councilman Edgar Smith stressed the long struggle they had with Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission before they persuaded the planners to designate parcel 1 for single-family homes rather than apartments. White said that the city will be opposing with all its might pending applications for R-30 apartment zoning for parcel 1 scheduled to be heard in June.

Hoffman apologized and said that he would agree to a "public paddling" if he proved wrong on the zoning of parcel 1. But he maintained that once the perimeter road becomes a legalized fact the developer will be able to justify a higher density zoning based on a change in the character of the neighborhood. White said that MNCPPC assured him that constructing the perimeter road would not constitute a change in the character of the neighborhood.

Smith concluded by saying that in his judgment the perimeter road will be needed eventually whether the school goes on parcel 2 or not. "We have to exercise foresight," he said, "and we should commend the city's Advisory Planning Board for developing the concept of the perimeter road, long before the school site had been chosen for parcel 2."

Mildred Murrow opposed the idea of the city's paying for a perimeter road, which, in her opinion, will only open up the vacant land for the developer. White reminded her that the vacant land already has public access roads through Plateau Pl., Laurel Hill Rd., Northway, and Hamilton Pl. and that it's a question whether the traffic generated by parcels 1 and 2 is channeled through these roads or around them through a new perimeter road, some of the costs of which will be assessable against the developers.
