Mayor White, Perry Smith Pull Well In Greenbelt

In the special charter election on Tuesday, January 26, Greenbelt voters gave local candidates, Greenbelt Mayor Francis W. White and Perry A. Smith, a good boost in their candidacies for the new county council. White was top man in the 1st District race, swinging 1,361 votes out of 2,841 cast in the city. His nearest rival was Melvin L. Meer with 580 votes. The only candidate to get more votes than White in Greenbelt was Royal Hart in the 2nd District race. White drew well in all areas of town, but best of all in North End (see box).

Perry Smith's margin of victory in Greenbelt was much smaller. He received 807 votes to Gladys Spellman's 735. In old Greenbelt, Mrs.

Spellman outdrew Rev. Smith.

William W. Gullett had a comfortable victory margin in Greenbelt, getting 1,005 votes to 652 for runner-up Steny H. Hoyer in the county executive race. Leo E. Green followed with 412 votes. The pattern of votes was similar in all precincts, though Hoyer did best at Springhill Lake.

In the other council races, the Citizens Charter Slate grabbed the Greenbelt high vote in two districts; the Alliance 4 Action candidates won in the other two districts.

The number of Greenbelt votes cast Tuesday was less than 60 percent of the 5,167 cast in last November's election which adopted charter.

Proposed City Action On Outdoor Burning

by Rhea Cohen

At its meeting on January 21, the Park and Recreation Advisory Board approved the Pollution Ordinance Subcommittee's request to return the City's proposed Ordinance to Prohibit Outdoor Burning to the City Council for second reading and speedy passage. This ordinance declares that, "It shall be unlawful to kindle or maintain or authorize the kindling or maintaining of any bonfire or any other outdoor fire" within the City of Greenbelt. Exceptions are fires in City park fireplaces or pits and in outdoor fireplaces, grills or stoves on private property, and also "other small controlled fires," such as the burning of matches, lighters, candles, torches and tobacco. The ordinance concludes: "Any person violating any provision of this ordinance shall be, upon conviction, punished by a fine not exceeding $100 for the first offense and by a fine not exceeding $1000 or imprisonment for not more than 90 days for each subsequent offense, and each day of the violation shall constitute a separate offense."

Because of the imminent development of Greenbelt territory east of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, the committee felt that such a ban should be passed by the Council as soon as possible. In the absence of City legislation, the newly adopted State air quality standards and regulations permit the burning of trees and brush 600 feet from "occupied buildings and heavily traveled public roadways," in areas lying outside of the National Capital Beltway, provided that there is no practical alternate method of disposal of the material, that no hazard or nuisance be created, that fire control regulations not be violated, and that no materials which produce dense smoke be burned, such as rubber tires and roofing materials. Thus, the State law bans large bonfires in all parts of Greenbelt except in the as yet undeveloped Smith & Ewing and Glen Oaks tracts on Greenbelt Road.

The study committee will meet again with City Solicitor Emmett H. Nanna, Jr., on Tuesday, February 9, at 8:30 p.m. in the City Council Room. The agenda will include the City's proposed water pollution and litter control ordinances. All interested citizens are invited to participate.

City to Follow Through With Parcel 8 Purchase

by Virginia Beauchamp

The go-ahead to purchase parcel 8, a strip of woodland along Kenilworth Ave. at the city's Crescent Rd. entrance, was given by the Greenbelt city council at its January 18 meeting. At the same time, the other major issue before council — of whether to amend a section of the city charter dealing with issuance of bonds — was tabled. But this latter decision was as much a positive action as was the former. It was effected in order to make possible a search for more precise wording for the proposed resolution.

In both cases — the decision to purchase parcel 8 and the decision to go slow on amending the charter — the same controlling issue seemed to be at work: what effect would this action have on the future history of this city? Members of council expressed great concern over their responsibility to the future of Greenbelt's citizens. They specifically referred to the council's opportunity to control land use within the city's boundaries and to their obligation to protect the citizens' right to speak, through referendum, concerning major municipal expenditures of the future.

Parcel 8 Acquisition

The $75,000 purchase price for parcel 8, awarded by a jury of the Circuit Court following the city's condemnation suit for the parcel, is the highest per-acre price the city has even been called upon to pay. Council, however, considered the price to the city of releasing its control over the land as even higher. On that question no dissenting voice was raised, either by a member of council or from the audience.

If the city chose not to purchase the property, it would still incur considerable dollar costs, City Manager James K. Giese pointed out, since it would be required to absorb all court costs, as well as attorney's fees for the property owners. But this was considered the least of the real cost to the city if it failed to go through with the purchase. As City Solicitor Emmett Nanna pointed out, the city's bargaining position on future zoning applications, either for this property or for any other, would be undermined if the city threw away this opportunity to acquire available open space land. Noting that the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, as well as its technical staff, had endorsed an earlier petition of the owners of Parcel 8 for commercial zoning, Nanna argued that the District Council's subsequent denial of the application rested entirely on the city's opposition to that action. In the light of Park and Planning's recommendation, Nanna said, the $75,000 price for the parcel, consisting of slightly less than 2½ acres, was moderate.

Part of the purchase price — a grant to the city of $15,350 — has already been authorized by the Federal Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. Giese noted, however, that HUD — on the basis of past experience in the purchase of parcels 9, 10, 11, and 12 — would probably increase its grant to half the purchase price of the land in question.

Charter Amendment

Discussion on the proposed amendment to the city charter concerning issuance of bonds was highly technical, and some members of council, as well as various members of the audience, at times appeared to be lost in the obscure and legalistic language in which it was described. The proposed change appeared to differ in two ways from the present language of the charter.

The present charter provides that the city shall issue bonds only if approved at a referendum, except where more than half the cost of an improvement is to be paid, and to be paid from a special assessment against the benefiting property. The proposed revision would allow for issuance of bonds without referendum if half or more than half of the cost is to be paid by the benefiting property owners and if this is to be paid not just by a special assessment but alternatively from taxes or the collection of special fees or service charges.

The question of revision of the present language arose in connection with the city's plan to improve the Center Mall. Because this project is to be financed by the issuance of bonds to be paid back from a special tax levied within a special taxing district (not from a special assessment, the only means of financing now allowable without a referendum), the city cannot begin the mall renovation unless they first hold a referendum.

Council agreed unanimously that a broadening of the language to include other means of financing than special assessments seemed in order and directed the city manager and the city solicitor to offer substitute wording along those lines. On the other question, however — the reduction to 50% of what the benefiting property owners would have to pay to eliminate the requirement for a referendum — council agreed unanimously to leave the present wording as it is. Councilman Edgar Smith suggested that some future irresponsible council, perhaps about to face an election at the end of its term of office, might abuse the privilege allowed by the proposed change by committing the city to large expenditures without the concurrence of the citizens, as arrived at through the process of referendum. On this basis, the motion to table the proposed amendment was passed.

Other Actions

Council also agreed not to join the Metropolitan Washington Police Mutual Aid Agreement, since Greenbelt already has a mutual assistance agreement with the Prince Georges County Police (under whose terms, for example, city police were used to direct traffic at the intersection of Greenbelt Rd. and U. S. 1 during the campus riots last spring.)

They approved a new lease for the firehouse which calls for the Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad to repay the bond issue for financing the new addition to the firehouse, plus interest costs, over a 15-year period and also provides for including the new fire department parking lot in the lease. (The driveway itself, it was noted, is not covered by the lease, since it is a city right-of-way reserved as a potential access road to Braden Field.)

In addition, council authorized the purchase, for not more than $450, of a tire changer to be used by the city's automotive mechanic, and discussed, without coming to any final conclusion, the question of whether to require city committees and subcommittees to hold all meetings on city property. (Councilman Dick Pilski was concerned about the city's liability in case of injury to any participating members on city business but off city property.)

The city manager was directed to try to improve the pedestrian walkway from Lastner Lane along Ridge Rd. to the North End School.

Introduced for first reading was an ordinance to provide for a 4-way stop intersection at Ridge and Research Rds.

Mrs. Bogley to Open St. Hughs Antique Fair

Mrs. Samuel Bogley will officially open the St. Hugh's Antique Fair at noon on Friday, January 29 at ribbon cutting ceremonies.

Mrs. Bogley, wife of Prince George County Commissioner Samuel Bogley, will cut the ribbon that will kickoff the three-day showing in the parish hall of collection of antiques from 26 dealers in a six state Eastern seaboard region.

Assisting Mrs. Bogley in the ceremonies will be Commissioner Bogley and their four children. Mrs. Bogley, the former Rita Brady, was a former resident of Greenbelt and was a student in the first class to graduate from St. Hughs' Parish school. The Bogley's now live in Bowie, Md.

The Antique Fair, a pioneer effort by the parishioners at St. Hughs', will be open from noon until 10 p.m. on January 29 and 30, and from noon until 6 p.m. on Sunday, January 31. Admission will be charged; with an advertisement announcing the Fair, the cost is less. The admission cost is good for all three days of the Antique Fair.

Wearing Blinders

To the Editor:

Congratulations and thanks to the Skolniks for their very fair and accurate article on the Springhill Lake golf course. I hope it will restore a bit of reason to a controversy which has become terribly political and acrimonious. The people involved seem to be wearing blinders, hiding from any facts they consider uncomfortable or inconvenient. It won't work.

Mayor White can't wish away the floodplain law, or the wetness of the low ground there, by telling the Prince George's Sentinel (Jan. 21) he's never known it to be inundated.

Mr. Katz has been even more unwilling to face the legal and technical problems involved in developing the floodplain. In a recent newsletter to SHL residents, he neglected to mention any of these problems, while promising a recreation building, softball and football fields, and picnic facilities on the golf course. He also neglected to mention that the city is investigating other possible locations for the building, or that the building will have to be redesigned to fit on the only part of the golf course where such a building could be located. Nor did he explain that the building proposed is estimated to cost twice the amount budgeted, that money must be found to make up the difference, and that except for HUD's preliminary approval of our application and the money budgeted for the building, no commitments have been made by anybody. These facts won't go away, and they can't be kept from the people forever. They must be dealt with.

People (myself included) who believe that the SHL developers owe Greenbelt a big favor in return for the money we saved them by financing the box culvert can't ignore the fact that the developers don't have to give us land if they don't choose to. We can urge them to make good on their offer to dedicate land for the building — and I think we should do so vigorously — but they are under no legal obligation to be good guys.

So let's take off those blinders and start solving the problem. We need to find the way to get the residents of SHL the best facilities possible for the money we have to spend, and to do so as soon as we can. I don't mean that we should be stingy, rather that whatever amount we spend on land acquisition, grading and development of the floodplain, and the building should get the residents of SHL the maximum benefit.

I'd like to propose a course of action, admitting that I don't know if it can be done, any more than I know if we can fit a recreation building, two DRY ballfields, and picnic facilities onto the golf course without either running afoul of the law or expending unreasonable amounts of time and money in altering the floodplain.

1. Acquire the golf course, either by buying at floodplain prices or by a dedication procedure.

2. Build whatever playfields, etc. we find we can after technical studies are made.

3. Reforest heavily as much of the floodplain as possible, including a strip the length of the golf course, to protect the apartments from the noise and dirt of the industrial traffic on Cherrywood Lane and the dust storm that will probably accompany development of the industrial tract.

4. Get the developers to dedicate land elsewhere in SHL for the building. At least two locations

"Clever Little Word Games"

To the Editor:

Clever little word games from clever little people. Little baby carriages with galoshes. Little children out golfing on their very own recreation facility. Little earth mother of the year who says she thinks a building should go here or then again it could go there.

I'll bet my galoshes that in the next few timely months before the city election, we Greenbelters who live in Springhill Lake will be informed (or reported to, in Rhea's officialese), that she and Leo are the candidates who are the friends we've always needed, but never had. What do you think, Virginia, should or shouldn't they come around for our bullet vote then?

You profess, Auerbach, Moryadas, Foster, Cohen, Anderson, to have an objective position on the construction site for the Springhill Lake recreation facility. You profess on page 3 of the last News Review. But you pay to advertise the real reason for your positions on the back page. In great big, bold, block letters you have spelled it all out for us. All that high-toned rhetoric is in support of a political candidate. And how many good Greenbelt citizens, at this moment, are chagrined at having been used by you, to your own clever little ends.

Springhill Lake wasn't really the point at all, was it? But along the way you insulted our civic association, you insulted our elected officials, you insulted our integrity, you insulted our intelligence.

High Praise

To the Editor:

Since the people who are opposed to Rhea Cohen's comments are so vociferous, I would like to attempt to offset the negative reactions to her.

Everything that Rhea has written, whether it has been letters, newspaper articles, position papers, etc., has been well documented and researched.

It has been my personal experience that she is a very honest and capable person. She has nothing to gain politically by any of the activities she is engaged in. Her interest in the matters she is involved with is that of a public-spirited citizen who wants to see that justice is done: that "the people" are truly represented. The "special interest" crowd manage very beautifully with rather questionable tactics of their own.

She has courage and fortitude and what counts the most is, "She can't be bought."

I think that the citizens of Greenbelt are very fortunate in having such a fine person living among them.

Irene Hensel

are attractive and worthy of serious investigation.

5. Find the extra money required for the building really needed by the people of SHL and build it as soon as possible.

Whatever we do, let's start working together again, and not let ourselves get bogged down in a morass of insinuations, recriminations, and half-truths. A floodplain is enough trouble already!

The label says "permanent press." But your experience says differently. Maybe the gap between promise and reality is in your dryer. If it's old, it treats permanent press clothes like regular clothes. Which can only lead to the ironing board.

A new electric dryer, on the other hand, has a special permanent press setting. First the clothes are tumbled dry at the proper temperature. Then the heat shuts off but tumbling and fluffing continue. This cool-down phase prevents baked-in wrinkles and helps bring the clothes back to their original contours.

When your clothes are ready, a buzzer sounds. In fact, some models will even re-fluff them for you every 5 minutes (for up to 2½ hours) until you answer the call.

Today's electric dryers also include a convertible model that can run on regular house current, without rewiring, or on 240 volts. And another that doesn't require outside venting.

Visit your appliance dealer, or see the many makes and models at the Appliance Showroom, Pepco Building, 10th & E Streets, N.W.
