City Budget Proposes Tax Increase

by Leta Mach

The proposed 1980-81 city budget which council has received from City Manager James K. Giese calls for a 10c tax rate increase that raises the rate to $1.07 per hundred dollars of assessed valuation. However, in his budget message, Giese pointed out that "while expenditures are increased, after allowing for inflation, operating levels have been reduced."

Although the proposed budget at an 8.4% increase over last year's is below the rate of inflation and the city will have more revenue from growth increasing assessed valuation by about 61/2%, it is still necessary to increase the property tax rate. Giese explained "this is because most other revenue sources of the city are not growing at the rate of inflation and some have been declining." Giese further noted that "the proposed $1.07 tax rate can be reduced if citizens wish the city to provide less service than is proposed in the budget." For each cent the tax rate is decreased, $11,661 has to be found either in reduced expenditures or additional revenues.

The city has been hit hard by inflation. A graph in the first pages of the city budget handbook shows that the rate of inflation of "most of the goods and! services which the city purchases exceeds the rate of inflation of Consumer's Price Index." the Number 2 fuel oil showed the most dramatic increase-126% above 1975 base prices.

The proposed budget does not add any new services or employees. Instead it provides for existing services and the completion of special programs already begun. Only replacement equipment is proposed for purchase in the General Fund.

The General Fund

The General Fund, the major city budget, provides for operating expenses of the three city departments-police, recreation and works-in addition to public Greenbelt CARES and administrative staff and services. The total dollar amount proposed for the General Fund Budget is $2,748,700. "From the taxpayer's point of view," said Giese, "it is the budget that is balanced each year by the levy of a property tax."

Expenditures

Some of the significant items proposed in the new budget are listed below:

1. Reserve for Salary Adjust-ments: $137,000 is set aside for increased pay and fringe benefits averaging around 9% 2. Reserve for Capital Improvements: $58.300 is provided, but P.G. Planning Board Supports Greenbelt

a list of needed improvements totals $400,000. Priority projects will have to be selected from the list which includes street reconstruction and resurfacing, the Greenbriar sidewalk easement, curb and gutter replacement, and resurfacing the swimming pool diving well.

3. Funds to purchase materials for resurfacing four Braden Field tennis courts.

4. Recreation organizations: an 8% increase in contributions is provided. There is no specific proposal to assist Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center, Inc. Revenues

Real and personal property taxes will account for $1,225,750 in revenues. However, because of the receipt of one-time-only revenues this year, there will be a decrease of about $8,200 in the city's share of state income tax next fiscal year. The city expects an 8% increase in state support for Greenbelt CARES. Due to new customers, waste collection revenues should increase. There is $82,900 in the Revenue Sharing Fund, which accounts for the expenditure of Federal Revenue Sharing Grants. About half will be used for debt service assistance and the remainder to purchase new equipment. Priority among equipment items has been assigned, in the event the U.S. Congress does not extend the program in September.

ERHS CONVERSION TO FOUR-YEAR SCHOOL BEGINS NEW COUI

by Hally Ahearn

Prince Georges County The School Board has unanimously voted to enter into the first phase of a plan to convert most of the county's junior and senior high schools to a middle school system. Among the first schools to be affected will be Eleanor Roosevelt High School, which will be changed to a four-year high school in the 1980-81 school year.

Mary Bethune Junior High will shift Greenbelt ninth graders to ERHS in 1980-81, and more to Northwestern and Parkdale in 1981-82. In the 1984-85 school year Bethune will be closed. Its seventh and eighth graders will be assigned to Greenbelt Middle School and its remaining ninth graders to Fairmont Heights. Some ninth graders from Greenbelt Junior High will be shifted to ERHS. Then, in 1981-82, the junior high will become a middle school, serving only seventh and eighth graders. The remaining ninth graders will be assigned to Bowie, Northwestern and Parkdale.

ERHS has been chosen as one of two pilot four-year high schools (DuVal is the other) in part because it already has some ninth graders attending its Science and Technology Center. Thomas Johnson Junior High will serve as a pilot middle school in 1980-81.

The school board plans a step by step phase-in of the middle school system in order to allow time for review of programs and for the massive deployment of personnel and resources during the five-year reorganization period. Each succeeding phase of the plan will be reviewed and approved by a vote of the school board before being implemented.

NOTE: This is a preliminary agenda - subject to change.

April 24 Meeting Prince County Georges Board of Education member Lesley Kreimer will hold a meeting on Thursday, April 24 at 8 p.m. in the City Council Chambers. She will brief parents on the establishment of middle schools and four year high schools in the county. There will be an opportunity for questions on the recent actions by the school board. The public is invited.

At its conclusion in the 1984-85 school year, the plan as it stands would close a total of eleven junior highs, ten junior highs would not be converted to middle schools, and two high schools, Potomac and Suitland, would remain as three-year high

Purpose of Change

Moving ninth graders to the high school level is designed to give these students additional course offerings toward the credits they must earn for graduation and to offer them a broader range of programs and activities. At the same time, the middle schools would not be bound by these credit requirements, which would allow them more flexibility in programming to meet the special needs of early adolescence.

Moreover, with declining enrollments some form of reorganization is needed to bring junior highs up to the optimum of 750 students that provides a base for sufficient staffing and resources within each school, and to bring senior highs up to the 1,200-1,500 optimum, a base for a comprehensive program without hiring special or part-time staff.

According to Greenbelt's school board member Lesley Kreimer, the move to a middle school system will help correct the situation where elementary students are split up to attend different junior highs, and then students are split up again to attend different high schools. "I am excited about the proposal and pleased that Greenbelt will be the first area affected by it," said Kreimer.

The 1970 adopted Master Plan proposes R-T zoning for Parcel 4 and R-80 for Parcel 3.

At the March 26 meeting, Mike Petrenko of the Technical staff said, "The staff could find no particular rationale for the Master Plan's proposal that townhouses be developed on Parcel 4.

City Manager James K. Giese thought that Parcel 4 was "overlooked" when the county commissioners in the mid-sixties remanded the original Master Plan to the the Planning Board for a reduction in densities from what had been previously proposed in the Greenbelt area.

"At that time" Giese said, "much larger zoning issues concerned the city than these two small parcels . . . What resulted did not become an issue because we were resolving so many more important issues."

Edward Gibbs attorney for the owners (Burton J. Reiner, Theodore N. Lerner and H. Max Ammerman, Trustees) did not believe anyone knew why R-80 was recommended for Parcel 3.

Former Greenbelter Joseph A. Long, age 79, died on April 6. A Greenbelt pioneer, he was associated with the Department of Interior until his retirement. He was a member of St. Hugh's. For many years, Mr. Long and his wife, Gladys, returned to Greenbelt for Labor Day festivities.

He is survived by his wife of the home address, 2010 49 St. N., St. Petersburg, Florida, son Joseph Q. of Silver Spring, grandchildren Victoria and Carol Long, and two bothers Roy and Lawrence Long.

Jack Willard

Jack Willard, of 43 Lakeside Drive, died suddenly on Saturday, April 12 of a heart attack at the age of 55. He was the husband of Flora W. Willard (whose friends all call her "Babe") and he had two daughters, Diane and Jackie. He also had a host of friends, who find themselves most saddened by his death.

Born in West Virginia, he served as a pilot during World War II. After that he graduated from West Virginia University in 1948, and then came to this area as a teacher in Hyattsville Elementary School, In 1951, when Greenbelt School became Greenbelt Junior High, he was one of the original faculty. In 1954, when High Point opened, he went there, and stayed until 1971, when he was appointed Supervisor of Interscholastic Athletics for the county. During his years at High Point he coached basketball, baseball, golf, track, and football. He taught boys physical education and, for a time, driver education. He served on many faculty committees. He helped with commencements. He was always present for Blue and Gold.

The obituary announcement in the local papers tells all about Jack Willard, but says nothing about him. It doesn't mention something that all his colleagues knew: he was interested in the students he worked with. He was not interested merely in having winning teams, or looking at a lot of silver-plated trophies in a display case. His idea of teaching physical education was not just to throw a basketball out on the floor and let most of the boys fool around while he worked with good ones. When other the teachers had problems with one of the students they could always know that Jack would know something about the boy, as an individual. The students themselves probably were not aware of this-that he thought every single one of them was an important person.

Jack Willard himself was not a "plain, ordinary human"; he was considerably better than many of us. That's what many people felt, and that's why so very many went around to the funeral home to tell his family how much they expect to miss him, and it's also why so many feel a great sense of loss.

Both Mr and Mrs. Willard were to retire in June. They were looking forward to doing this.

His family asked that any expression of sympathy be in the form of contributions to the Jack Willard Scholarship Fund, which will benefit high school seniors in Prince George's. Contributions can be made in care of Freda Martin, 4105 Chapel Forge Drive, Bowie, Md. 20715.

RESIDENT POOL PASS FEES HOLD Retirement Dinner for Roy Breashears "Run For Life" BUT FEES RAISED FOR OUTSIDERS by Will Scheltema

The Greenbelt City Council at the April 7 regular meeting voted to increase swimming pool fees for non-residents to $120 for a season pass and $2 for a daily pass. Council held the line however, for Greenbelt residents, feeling that the pool is a "fundamental and basic recreation service," and that pool fees should only "supplement tax appropriation support."

The action was taken on the recommendation of a Park and Recreation Advisory Board report, after action had been put off at the previous meeting of Council.

Council member Richard Castaldi supported the measure, but he had some reservations. 'I think our citizens are going to have to start paying a little increase."

Castaldi also proposed that nonresident membership be solicited from the new office buildings being built in the area.

Family rates for non-residents jump from $90 a season to $120; single yearly rates rise from $40 to $50 and group rentals were boosted to $75 from the previous $50 rate.

In other action, Council supported recommendations of the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB) and rejected the formation of an Elderly Citizens' Advisory Board. CRAB felt that for the present time, "such a board is unnecessary."

Senior Citizens

The consensus of Council members was that the mechanisms for senior citizens to voice their needs are already available in the form of CRAB, the Greenbelt Golden Age Club and the Green Ridge House Tenants Association.

Jose Morales, long active in elder citizens' affairs. walked out of the meeting when the mood of Council toward the proposal became apparent. "I let you finish. and you don't let me finish." he said to Mayor Pro-Tem Richard Pilski. 'Thank you," he said, walking out.

Pilski was upset that Morales left the meeting without hearing Council's views on the subject and without fully stating his own. Pilski made clear that, "We (Council) are not insensitive to senior citizens.'

Pilski went on to say, "We've felt their pressure without a board, and they were effective."

The idea of a board was rejected by a 4-0 vote. and Council cited 'no desperate need' as their reason for the rejection.

Pilski thought Morales might be interested in applying for the vacant seat on CRAB. The staff was directed to contact Morales. CR-AB had suggested filling one vacancy with a person particularly interested in the concerns of the elderly.

Opposes Special Groups

Council also questioned the advisability of establishing a group that would deal with the interests of any single group, in this case, the elderly. The Council felt that if there were a need that could not be met by the Greenbelt Golden Age Club or the more recently formed Green Ridge House Tenants Association, another group outside the government would form.

Most services to the elderly are now provided by the Prince Georges County Division on Aging, which receives large Federal grants to deal with age-related issues. The City of Greenbelt has limited resources and would not be in a good position to help with many problems brought to Council by such an advisory board, according to Council agenda comments.

Council directed that CRAB lock at issues and problems of the elderly including transportation questions. CRAB was also asked to meet with representatives of existing groups representing the elderly. Additionally, Morales was asked to give the city information about bus transportation in Baltimore (Morales had mentioned the transportation in his petition to council at the beginning of the meeting). The city staff was also directed to put together information that would include alternative transportation services (van) along with preliminary cost figures.

Council gave $250 to the Golden Age Club for recreational transportation assistance. The funds will come from a portion of the $2,700 in this year's budget for elderly bus services. The Golden Agers are proposing that some of the funds be used to pay for buses to take senior citizens on a variety of special trips.

Street Lights

City Manager James Giese also proposed that the city ask PEP-CO to replace the present mercury vapor streetlights with more efficient high pressure sodium vapor lamps, at no cost to the city. He called the sodium vapor lights, . . the light of the future."

Several Council members had objections to the proposal, however. Thomas White said he ". didn't like the orange glow all over Greenbelt."

The proposal was put on the agenda for the next Council meeting, by which time members will have had a chance to inspect the areas of the city that have the old mercury vapor lights and compare them to areas that already have the newer, more efficient sodium

PARCELS 3, 4 Con't fr pg 1 neighborhood." Of 339.32 acres rezoned within the neighborhood, 314.29 were rezoned to singlefamily detached zones; 5.10 acres to single-family attached zones and 19.94 to multi-family zones.

Gibbs concurred that sufficient changes had occurred in the neighborhood. He contended that most of the recent development in the surrounding area had been singlefamily attached dwellings (GHI townhouses). For this reason the applicant has maintained that R-80 zoning for Parcel 3 is "impractical."

The Technical Staff took some issue with that claim, noting that the "neighborhood" consists of a much larger area, which includes many single-family detached homes. The applicant used only a small "neighborhood" which did not include such homes.

Compatibility

While the Technical Staff members found R-T zoning debatable, in the end they rejected its use and called for R-80 because "it is the only zone which meets the test of all applicable criteria."

Gibbs asserted that R-T for both parcels would more nearly comport with the existing GHI development. The single family detached homes, he said, could not be seen from Ridge Road, "even with no foliage on the trees" because of a difference in elevation." He also argued that to get to Parcels 3 and 4 from the Southway entrance, one would see only the GHI row houses.

Giese countered that when using the Kenilworth-Crescent entrance, the single-family detached homes of Boxwood and Lakewood are seen first.

Giese also pointed out that two nearby parcels located on both sides of Ridge Road beyond 73 court of GHI have been purchased by Greenbelt residents for development in the R-80 zone. "The fact," he said, "that the properties overlook the Agricultural Research Center (ARC) make them particularly suited for single family residential development."

Speaking for the Citizens for Greenbelt, president Richard Ley said: The reasons for supporting R-80 zoning are primarily reasons compatibility: compatibility of with the historic development of Greenbelt; compatibility with the existing and neighboring development; and compatibility with the housing needs in the city (see statement below).

Lev asserted further: "Last December the Governor's Consulting Commission on the National Register of Historic Places recommended that the land contained within the boundaries of the original planned community be designated an historical area. This would have included Parcels 3 and 4 . . .

The city council, technical staff and Charles Hagelgans of Research Road stressed the need for more single family homes. Petrenko said: "The staff feels in this particular area of Greenbelt, there is no additional need for townhouses."

The technical staff felt that development under the R-80 zone

EXCERPTS FROM STATEMENT BY CITIZENS FOR GREENBELT

. Our organization supports the recommendation of the Technical Staff namely, to deny R-T zoning for those parcels with the further recommendation that the property be rezoned to R-80.

Greenbelt is one of the planned communities built by the Federal Resettlement Administration between 1935 and 1941. The entire municipality (streets, homes, schools, lakes and parks) was planned before any construction began. In the 1936 "Ultimate Town" plan the northern end of town was to include a buffer of park lands, green belt farms. and green belt woods, as a buffer zone between the city development and the undeveloped land comprising the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center . . .

. The topography of Parcel 4 with its irregularly shaped and steeply sloping terrain. seems more compatible with single family dwelling rather than townhouse construction. Further, the subject properties adjoin an area of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center dedicated to animal parasitology. The lower density R-80 zoning would help minimize the impact of development on this ecological research center . . .

Just about one year ago over 950 Greenbelt residents signed a petition opposing the rezoning of Parcels 3 and 4. These people were not just from the neighboring homes in the north end, but were from the Greenbelt Homes Incorporated. Lakewood. Boxwood Village, and Lakeside sectors of the city . . .

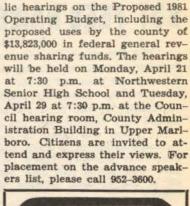

"Greenbelt is a unique community, one of the first new towns in the country," Petrenko said. "We looked at Greenbelt and its purpos-. . considered three elees . ments - innovative design, large green areas and variety of housing opportunities."

Council has consistently stated that its objective is to reduce the density of residential development and provide a better balance of housing units within the city by increasing the city's stock of freestanding homes. Greenbelt has 5,400 garden apartments (70.1%). 1,800 row houses (23.4%) and 500 free standing homes (6.5%).

Parcel 4

At the hearing the applicant presented a rough sketch showing R-T developement on the irregularly shaped Parcel 4. It was explained by Carlos Cordero of Ben Dyer Associates. There would be an average of eight townhouses per acre. The manner in which the engineers would treat the steeply sloping terrain was not addressed.

Concerned about the siting of the townhouses and buffers Eunice Coxon of Research Road wanted assurance that future plans would be made available for public comment. Cordero said there would be an opportunity for a site plan review.
