City Must Notify Individual Greenbriar Owners of Overpass Condemnation Suit

JUDGE'S RULING DISTURBS CITY

by Elaine Skolnik

A last-minute motion submitted by Greenbriar Phase I condominium owners on August 7 has stalled the condemnation trial for the pedestrian right-of-way easement through Greenbriar Phase I. The new trial date is September 25.

In a pre-trial hearing last Thursday, Circuit Court Judge Jacob Levin granted Phase I's motion to postpone the proceedings so that all 252 owners and their mortgagees could be given an opportunity to enter the case as defendants. Notices of the condemnation must be sent by the city, after which owners will have 10 days to respond. If opting to enter the case, each owner would be responsible for his own legal counsel. Judge Levin said that because due process was involved, it appeared necessary to include all 252 owners and their mortgagees.

Judge Levin also granted the request of Carl and Brenda Jones of Phase I to enter the case as defendants. The Joneses are among those individual Phase I owners who feel they will be more adversely affected by the overpass than other owners because of their close proximity to the pedestrian walkway. The walkway, which will run through the parking area between 7716 and 7718 Hanover Parkway, will connect with a pedestrian overpass crossing the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and joining Greenbriar to the rest of the city at Gardenway.

Authority to build the overpass, which will provide a safe crossing of the highway by students at Eleanor Roosevelt Senior High School, was granted to the city in a municipal referendum in September 1979. The U.S. Department of the Interior, which maintains the Parkway, has agreed to pay construction costs of the bridge structure.

Process Costly

City officials were chagrined at Judge Levin's ruling, since it came at the eleventh hour and will cost the city about $3,000. The logistics of researching titles and sending notices to 252 owners—husbands and wives separately—and their mortgagees will place a heavy burden on the city staff. City attorney Emmett Nanna has estimated the procedure could be accomplished within 90 days. If that is the case, another postponement of the trial beyond the present September 25 date will be necessary.

Commenting ruefully, Nanna said, "There seems to be, if not a total absence, a considerable shortage of law on the subject. The (Greenbriar) Covenants and Master Deed does not cover condemnation by public authority. Apparently in this field both legislators and developers are looking to the judiciary to fashion suitable solutions on a case by case basis."

Nanna told the News Review that he objected in Court to the postponement and intervention by the individual owners because the application to the Court for permission to intervene was tardy. "By serving the Council of Owners, Greenbriar Association Phase I," Nanna said, "I have in effect served all the owners under the terms of the (Greenbriar) Master Deed and Covenants . . . All members were owners and members of the association which represents them. Everyone knew about the case during the last year and a half.

Defense Strategy

According to William Ayers, Phase I President, not until a week before the court hearing date was the legal strategy mapped out by the attorneys at a meeting with Phase I Board members and interested owners. Leo William Dunn represented Phase I, and Douglas Bregman the Joneses. George Brugger, attorney for Greenbriar Associates, developer of Greenbriar, was unable to attend the meeting. At this meeting, Ayers said, Board members were informed that (1) the "constitutional question" that all of the property owners have not been joined as defendants in this case was involved and that (2) a motion for dismissal or postponement should be submitted to the Court for the city's failure to include all 252 Phase I owners as defendants.

Previously the contention of the Phase I Board was that it had the authority to represent the entire block of owners and the discretion to negotiate on behalf of 252 units.

The strategy is generally interpreted as a delaying tactic. Some Greenbriar Phase I residents apparently hope that if they hold out long enough—especially with the completion of the Greenway Shopping Plaza—a pedestrian walkway will be built along Greenbelt Road, eliminating the need for the Phase I-Gardenway overpass. (The State Highway Administration opposes a Greenbelt Road walkway because of safety hazards.)

Negotiation

Ayers explained that after the voters gave the city the green light for the construction of the overpass (197 residents in Greenbriar Precinct 13 voted for the Gardenway overpass; 89 were against), Phase I owners were prepared to negotiate. They wanted to get as much money as possible, however, for the .09945 of an acre of land needed for the pedestrian right-of-way easement.

When the city's offer of $3,678 in December 1979 was rejected by

by Elaine Skolnik

City Solicitor Emmett Nanna informed the Greenbelt City Council on Monday that it would take about 60 days to serve the 252 Phase I owners—wives and husbands separately—and their mortgagees. Special process servers appointed by the Court will be under the direction of Assistant City Manager Dennis Pien-dak.

City Manager James K. Giese said that, because many Phase I owners "may be taken aback by receiving court papers in person," the city will alert them by mail to expect notices of the condemnation.

Process servers are required to make two attempts to deliver the notices, after which service will be made by publication.

Councilman Charles Schwan observed that the city did not anticipate that it would have to serve each owner in Phase I. "Is there any possibility that Phases II and III can assert ownership?" he asked Nanna.

Nanna did not think so since "the Declaration of Covenants run to Phase I."

Evelyn Feller, Ridge Rd., wondered if it would be useful for the city to research this question.

Phase I owner Peg Johnson, an opponent of the Gardenway overpass, asked if there were any chance that council will reconsider its vote on the Gardenway overpass in view of the cost of serving all Phase I owners and mortgagees and other escalating costs. Donald Shell of Phase I told council that the city will also be faced with a higher appraisal.

Responding to Johnson, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld stated that he was unaware of any interest in the community or on council to reconsider. (Only one of three members of council who voted for the Gardenway overpass may move to reconsider—Schwan, Weidenfeld or Thomas White.) Weidenfeld added that the overwhelming popular vote for the Gardenway site led him to conclude that there was little chance for reconsideration.

Phase I, the city started condemnation proceedings in February 1979. In July 1980 the city made an offer of $8,000 for the property and $2,900 additionally for landscaping and a fence. This offer was also turned down because, Ayers said, it did not offer adequate compensation.

Phase I's appraiser set a value of $29,200 for the property—$10,000 for the property itself and $19,200 for damages such as devaluation of units near the pathway, noise, vandalism and liability of homeowners because outsiders will be crossing Greenbriar's land. The city's two lat-

Cultural Arts Group Adopts Articles of Incorporation

by Virginia Beauchamp

The Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center moved a step closer to becoming what president Konrad Herling called "a true community theater" as the group formally adopted articles of incorporation at a general membership meeting on July 14. The articles, which rule out participation in political activities, establish the Center's status as a tax-exempt corporation. This status will in turn make the Center eligible to receive grants from public and private sources.

SUMMER HOURS

Because of staff vacations, the News Review office will be closed Mondays for the next three weeks, until after Labor Day. Advertising will be accepted on Tuesday for those weeks.

Festival News

With less than a month left before Labor Day, the Labor Day Festival Committee is completing preparations for the 26th annual Festival. As before, convertibles are needed for the parade. Please call Parade Chairman Wayne Williams, 474-1259. Arrangements for a Dial-a-Ride Bus Service for the Festival have been completed and traveling to and from the Festival should be easy and convenient this year. Miss Greenbelt contestants have been practicing an aerobic dance for "fitness night" at the Festival.

SWIM TEAM NEWS

by Mike Jones

In a hard-fought battle for second place, Greenbelt finished second in the division finals behind division champion Burn Brae, but in front of rival Belair Bath and Tennis. The final score was: Burn Brae 293; Greenbelt 195; Belair 184½; Beltsville 145; Bannister 127; Oxon Hill 115½. Craig Dies and James Fellows starred in the meet for Greenbelt with three gold medals and 21 points.

Other high point scorers were: Aimee Fellows (19), Mark Blue (17), Lynda Blue (13), Ken Blue (12), Brian Dies (9), Margaret Williamson (8), Tara Yaney (7), Colin Aldridge (6½), Shawn Luddy (5½), Susan Gardes (5), Anna Williams (3), and Holly Norton (3).

Other swimmers who scored points were: Shawn Fellows, Josh Gurvitch, Bill Gillett, Kathy White, Kris Reed, Simone Bram, Molly Ahearn, Ginger Gordon, Emily and Steffar Sonneveldt, Jill Aldridge, and Karen Jones.

Efforts are already underway, according to director Lindley Darden, to seek grant monies. In particular, the group is aiming for support of a "Thirties Festival," projected for the 1981-82 season. Such a festival, which might feature important films of the period and revival of plays popular at the time, could contribute, Darden said, to a renewed interest in Greenbelt's early years stemming from the city's designation as a historical landmark. Grant money is also being sought, Darden stated, for capital improvements for the old theater building—itsself an historical site.

The more than 40 people present for the general membership meeting dispersed after the business meeting to gather around tables set at one side of the theater building to sign up to participate on various committees that will keep the Center in operation. These were: publicity, programming, house (selling tickets, running the refreshment counter, and managing the building itself), the technical committee (which looks after and operates projectors, lights, sound, heat, plumbing, and air conditioning), long-range fund raising, short-range fund raising, and clerical assistance. Further community participation is being sought for all committees.

Around 250 persons are now members of the corporation. Three of these—directors David Lange, David Benson, and Herling—drew up the articles of incorporation. The board of directors consists of 20.

Following a short refreshment period, members were entertained by vocalists Arlene Golden and Nancy Prestipino, with the latter at the piano, and later by a performance of the one-act play, "The Make-up Artist," featuring Golden and Stuart Fensterheim.

The Cultural Arts Center, in the half year of its existence, has offered a variety of entertainment—stage plays, film selections, puppet shows and mime, and evenings of music. The next dramatic presentation, scheduled is "The Red Shoes."

TYPING CLASSES

Registration Monday, September 8, 7-9 p.m. at Parkdale Senior High School. Beginning, Refresher, and/or Advanced Typewriting classes (electric typewriters are used) will be offered as well as many other subjects. Classes will begin on Monday and Wednesday, September 15 and 17.

Inter-County Connector

Two public hearings concerning the inter-county connector will be held locally. On Thursday, August 14, the hearing will be held at High Point High School and on Thursday, August 21 at Laurel High School. Both meetings start at 7:30 p.m. For information call G. W. Grandy, 383-7108 or A. C. Oster, 383-4280.

Mayor in Music Man

While attending a two week management training session at the Federal Executive Seminar Center in Oak Ridge, Tenn., Mayor Gil Weidenfeld made a guest appearance in a local production of "The Music Man." He was introduced in the show as "a fellow municipalitarian" by the mayor of River City, the site of Meredith Wilson's famous musical comedy.

Weidenfeld found that the city of Oak Ridge has a history similar to Greenbelt's origins. The homes and the shopping center were built by the Federal government in the early forties and sold to the residents about ten years later. While the type of housing is different from GHI, Mayor Weidenfeld noted many similarities between Oak Ridge and Greenbelt.

While on a walking tour of Oak Ridge, Weidenfeld stopped to see how the theater in the local shopping center compared with Greenbelt's Utopia Theater. He met the director of the Oak Ridge Playhouse, and after a discussion comparing Oak Ridge and Greenbelt, Weidenfeld was asked by the director to make a guest appearance on the opening night of "The Music Man."

The Oak Ridge Playhouse originally had been a movie theater and was purchased by a group of citizens in the early fifties when the Federal government sold the shopping center.

In addition persons living with someone else may now be eligible, and those who are boarders.

Police Blotter

In June, the Greenbelt Lions Club presented Cpl. Ernest W. Brumley with a plaque as their "Policeman of the Year" for 1979-80. The presentation was made at the Greenbelt American Legion's Banquet Room.

The police received information from U.S. Secret Service Agent Robert A. Smith, former Greenbelt City Detective, of an outstanding federal warrant charging a resident with making verbal threats against President Carter's life. Det./Cpl. Brumley issued lookouts for the subject. The 38-year-old man was located near his Hanover Parkway residence, apprehended by Pfc. Thomas Justin and Pvt. David Kress, and turned over to Agent Smith.

Two suspects wanted by this department for the July robberies of the Arco Mini-Mart and Jerry Lake Cleaners in Springhill Lake hit the Co-op Beauty Supply Store in College Park last week. County investigators have joined efforts with city detectives to identify these suspects.

Three professional offices located in the Maryland Federal Building in Springhill Lake were broken into and robbed last weekend. The culprits used a prying device to open the building and office doors. The crimes were discovered by Pvt. Danny Love on a routine business check during closed hours. The cases are under investigation.

The Rental/Business Office for the University Square Apartments was broken into last weekend. Property was removed from a desk in the office. The case is under investigation.

Over the past couple of weeks the police department has received several complaints about a group of juveniles breaking into apartments in Springhill Lake. However, when these complaints were called in, the calling witness would not identify themselves or provide a call-back number to the police dispatcher. If the responding officers cannot locate the incident reported, it is helpful to call back the reporting person to get further assistance. This information can be kept confidential.

The police are ineffective without the full cooperation of the victims and witnesses of crimes. Unless citizens are willing to take a stand against criminals, criminals will remain on the street to continue their activity. Today you might be a witness to a crime. Tomorrow you could be the victim!

A citizen, observing the theft of a bicycle at Beltway Plaza, apprehended one of the three suspects and recovered the stolen item. He brought both to the BWP Security Office who notified the Police Dept. Pvt. Terrence McGrath charged a 17-year-old non-resident with theft. The youth was released to the custody of his parents pending juvenile court action. The bike was returned to its owner.

A terrace-level residence on Mandan Road was being burglarized when the resident awakened. The suspect, a white male, mid-20s, with curly dark hair, fled. Nothing was taken.

While on patrol, Pvt. Tony DiPietro found a fight in progress between two groups of males in the Arco Mini-Mart (SHL) parking lot. All patrol units and two off-duty officers responded to assist. The parties, who had assorted weapons, settled down and dispersed without arrests.

The front door glass of Highs in Centerway was broken again during the weekend midnight hours.

Six vehicles were vandalized with spray paint while parked on White Birch Court.

Officers responding to a break-in in progress on Research Rd. located the subject on the front porch roof. Pfc. Fred Murray arrested and charged a 38-year-old non-resident, known to the resident. He was incarcerated in lieu of $500 bond pending trial.

Deerfield Run elementary school orange pod (4, 5th grade classes) got acquainted with "OLO" the safety robot, and crime prevention officer Charles V. Watkins at the request of Mrs. Warsinger and Mrs. McGraw who attended the Police Week Program at the Beltway Plaza. "OLO" and PFC Watkins presented a class on alcohol and Drug Abuse to 65 students.

The Beltway Plaza car wash (Mobile) was broken into. Nothing was missing.

A 1968 Ford Mustang reported stolen to P.G. County Police and bearing a stolen license plate, was recovered by Pfc Thomas R. Justin in the 8000 block of Mandan Road.

CITY NOTES

Water was pumped out of the diving well at the pool. Recaulking material has been ordered by the pool company. When received, it will take about five days before the diving tank is back in service.

A riding mower on a trailer, which was being pulled by a parks department truck, became separated from the truck and went off the roadway on Kenilworth Avenue near the Beltway ramps. Because of the size of the truck, the operator could not visually see the trailer and thus was not aware the trailer had become separated until he had reached Springhill Lake. When the operator returned to retrieve the mower and trailer a few minutes later, they were missing. The police are investigating this incident.

Joe Aulisio, city mechanic, has successfully been certified by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence in the following fields: Truck Certification and Automobile Certification Test.

The parking area at the Public Works warehouse was repaved in front of the doors. A man-hole cover that had been removed from the dam area of the Greenbelt Lake was replaced.

All the crosswalks throughout the city have been painted. Some street signs were erected and roadsides cleaned. The Little League field (McDonald Field) was prepared for the "World Series." A new playground was established at 10 Court Southway and part of a playground at McDonald Field was completed.

Two thousand people attended the performance of the U.S. Navy "Country Current" at the Lake Park.

Presenting "... Red Shoes"

by Marshall Trammell

"The Red Shoes," presented by the Greenbelt Players at our own Utopia Theatre (August 15-17), will delight all ages. Director Angela Schreiber (who also directed "Night Watch," "Ticket to Broadway," and coordinated the one act play program) has effectively adapted Hans Christian Andersen's dramatic fairy tale.

A poor orphan girl (Angela Schreiber, Jr.) becomes obsessed by her desire to be like the Princess (Nicole Lefort) even to the point of having identical red shoes. She is aided in her desires by the Old Soldier (John Ward) and the unwitting Shoemaker (Nancy Prestipino).

With the exception of the first act, which seems to drag at times, the action moves well and builds continuously. At any given time, something is going on somewhere on the set. This is to be expected when there are nineteen young people in the roles of the children of the village. Kevin King and Melissa Levine lead the village children, played by Maisoon Zaghal, Kathleen McCleary, Efrat Levi, Cam Boswell, Andrew Knoll, Teresa Klem, Shannon Lawrence, Jeanine DeMattia, Diana Crowell, Edmond DeMattia, Ivan Wiener, Brandy Faucett, Paula Clinedinst, Louis Lefort, Richard Warren and Yvonne Schreiber.

When the children begin to dance, their enthusiasm and energy brings an abundance of life to an already lively cast. Angela Schreiber, Jr., believably transforms herself from the dirty-faced Karen to the proud and vain owner of the beautiful red shoes. Her movements are graceful and willowy as she dances. The imposing presence of John Ward, as the Old Soldier, could be further enhanced by more expressive line delivery. Armed with his violin, he bewitches cast and audience. With a royal air of being pampered and spoiled, Nicole Lefort makes a nice appearance. However, one could not help noticing the lull which occurred when her shoes were removed. Judy Holland, as Grandmother Nissen, once again dominates the stage with her mere presence, as she did as Helga in "Night Watch." Nancy Prestipino is charming and most consistent in her characterization of the Shoemaker. Alan Amberg is a bright spot as the flagrantly foppish footman. Beatrix Whitehall, Skip Pocock and Ilana Stern perform quite satisfactorily, as does Patricia Faucett. Mary Nietter and Lori Wiener as the Angels, bring the show to a pleasing end.

Thomas Schreiber, Bruce Crabbill, Douglas and Barbara Haines are to be commended for the imaginative creation of the village churchyard, which harmonized well with the costumes.

All in all, "The Red Shoes" is one of the few "G" rated events that the whole family will enjoy.

Assets

During the first half of 1980, Twin Pines' members earned $530,340 on their passbook savings and their savings certificates. For this period, passbook dividends totalled $227,696, while certificates earned $302,644. Dividends for the first half of 1980 were 20 percent higher than those for the first half of last year.

Total assets of Twin Pines were $14,196,054, as of June 30, 1980; assets have increased by over $1 million since December 31, 1979.

Twin Pines, like other savings and loan associations in Maryland and across the country, reported a loss for the first six months of 1980. That loss totalled $46,777.00. An increase in the passbook savings rate (from 6 to 7 percent), high interest payments on money-market certificates, and an inability to charge an adequate rate of return on mortgages contributed to this loss. Recently, the association's earnings have improved with the lifting of the ceiling on co-op loans, which allows the association to charge an adequate rate on mortgages, and with the falling interest rates on moneymarket certificates, Twin Pines reported a profit in June, 1980.

News from Florida About Walter Wight, Max Zobin

by Bill Cornett

Postmaster Emory Harmon received news from former Greenbelt Walter G. Wight, who now lives with his daughter and son-in-law in Palm Coast, Florida. Wight enclosed a news clipping from the Palm Coast News, showing pictures of his garden and telling of his work in tracing his family tree. The family history has been his hobby since 1975, when he discovered an ancestor who was buried in 1704 on the Isle of Wight, England.

Among other family records, he has in his possession a book written by William Ward Wight, a law librarian, which records an uncle Thomas Wight who emigrated to New England in 1635. Wight's paternal grandfather, Peter Wight, fought in the American Revolution, and Walter is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Wight graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1918, and in 1978 he attended the 60th year reunion of his class. For many years he worked as a city ticket agent for North Western Railroad in Milwaukee. When his wife died in an automobile accident in 1964, he came here to live with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Klukowski, on Hedgewood Drive.

Harmon tells us that Wight is also a top-flight bowler, despite his 86 years. When living in Greenbelt, Wight was known for his extensive letter writing.

Harmon also relates that Max Zobin, a former resident and painter of many Greenbelt homes, is now visiting here from his present home in Miami Beach, Florida. "Max will be 87 years young in October," says Harmon, "and he is as spry and agile as a cat. He can still dance and move like a boxer."

Zobin came to this country in 1914 from Russia, and he lived in Greenbelt for about 15 years. He was a member of the Mishkan Torah.

est appraisals were $7,386 and $5,339.

Both defendants—Greenbriar Phase I and the Joneses (individual owners) are in agreement that damages should be awarded in addition to compensation for the easement right-of-way. However, the question of how the money should be divided appears to be at issue.

Ayers notes that "each homeowner (in Phase I) has an equal value of the land... whether or not on the 'front lines'."

Bregman, speaking for the individual defendants, said there would be a diminution of the value of those units of the "front lines" (those closest to the pathway). Therefore, the owners of these units, he said, feel they should receive the larger share of the damages.

Bregman explained that this could be accomplished by seeking a "special verdict" from the jury rather than a "general verdict." In a "special verdict" the jury would decide each owner's share.

Russell Appointed

Prince Georges County Executive Lawrence J. Hogan has named Robert W. Russell, Jr., of Lakeside Drive, chairman of the Prince Georges County Council on Children and Youth.

Russell, a music teacher and a consultant to a wide variety of mental health agencies and one-time legislative analyst to the Maryland General Assembly, as well as a former family and adolescent counselor at youth services bureaus, replaces Delegate Joan B. Pitkin of Bowie.

Delegate Pitkin remains an active member of the council and she and Russell represented the county at a statewide conference of children's councils and representatives of the statewide office.

The purposes of these councils are to examine program services and plans for youth; to identify duplications, inefficiencies or effectiveness of those programs, to analyze budget requests affecting youth programs, to review the use of federal funds for those youth programs and to inform the public concerning those programs in each locality.

Harold Lloyd Festival

The Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center will continue its summer Harold Lloyd Festival with film showings scheduled at the Utopia Theatre on August 22, 23 and 24.

"The Wonderful World of Harold Lloyd," a collection of highlights from his funniest films, and "Girl Shy" will be shown at 8 p.m. on Friday, August 22. The latter deals with a tailor who tries to live his romantic fantasies.

On Saturday, August 23, also at 8 p.m., Lloyd fans can see "Dr. Jack," in which the actor plays an escaped lunatic, and "For Heavens Sake," where Lloyd poses as a millionaire.

A matinee at 2 p.m. on Sunday, August 24 will conclude the weekend's showings with "Freshman." Harold's antics turn the college campus upside down.

The Lloyd films are comedy classics on a par with those of Charlie Chaplin.
