Half a Dozen Candidates Appear Before Council to Be Chosen for Vacant Seat

by Sandra Barnes

Six contestants for Richard Castaldi's vacated City Council seat paraded before council on Tuesday, January 4. Candidates Judith (J) Davis, Antoinette (Toni) Bram, Ron Ott and Bob Zugby presented their positions and a bevy of supporters spoke on behalf of each. One, Jose Morales, took the occasion to withdraw from the competition, stating that he could not see anyone else filling the void that he would create in his various volunteer activities were he to be chosen. Another, Bob Isaacs, "appeared" via tape, delivering a lengthy presentation on his background and reiterating his devotion to the city. A prior commitment to his parents prevented his being able to attend the meeting.

Former Greenbelt mayor, county councilman and state delegate, Francis White, also threw his hat into the ring. Appearing nervous and speaking without notes, White reviewed his experience and noted that he was in the process of moving back into the city after a five year absence. He left the meeting after the last of the candidates made his speech.

Each councilman had a prepared question for the candidates. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld asked each to prioritize the following qualifications: where a candidate lives, being female, whether he/she has run previously for city council, and past experience. He also wanted to know if the candidate would run for election in the next city council race.

Ed Putens asked each to state which of the following he/she thought was the most important problem facing the city: property taxes, park and recreation facilities and programs, needs of the elderly, zoning and development, crime, lack of inner city transportation. Tom White wanted to know if they would support a city bond issue and—if so—for what. Richard Pilski asked what each thought was the most important aspect of being a council person.

J Davis stressed the need to protect green space and improve Greenbelt's parks as well as the need to obtain grants to finance services. While stating that experience was the prime requisite for council, she also felt that being a woman was important. Davis supported a bond issue in order to build bikeways and buy additional parcels of land as well as improve the lake park. She also supported improvements to North End School and a city museum. "Working at being a servant of the people" is the most important aspect of being a council person," she affirmed.

Davis' supporters stressed her abilities on a number of activities: being president of the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club and chairwoman of the carnival for the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival, among others.

Toni Bram cited her years on the city advisory boards, parks and recreation and the Advisory Planning Board, as evidence of her experience. She also noted that she was pursuing a career in urban studies, majoring in criminology and history, and that she was available to attend meetings during the day. She wasn't sure that a bond issue was needed, but if there was to be one she supported an aqua spa and an outdoor/indoor pool.

Her supporters noted her strength in raising a family of four children while pursuing community activities and being an honor student at the University of Maryland. One supporter, John Churchill, the last speaker of the day, drew chuckles from the audience by commenting that it was not enough to emphasize the positive, one should minimize the negative. "Toni Bram can do the least harm" of any of the candidates, he stated.

Ron Ott emphasized the fact that he is a social studies teacher and would like to practice what he teaches. He has also been chairman of PRAB. Ott was not sure he supported a bond issue, but would favor improvements to North End School and its planned acquisition. He felt being a good listener was the most important attribute of a council person. His supporters noted that he had run for council in the last election, placing sixth, and that his fair and equable temperament would make him a good councilman.

Storer Plans to Meet Jan. 14 Deadline for Cable TV Service

by Bill Rowland

Storer Cable Communications plans to start marketing cable television to some Greenbelt residents late this week or early next week. This was the message given to council at its regular meeting Monday night by Storer system manager John Margeson. The cable firm, as part of its franchise agreement with the city dated January 14, 1982, has a contractual obligation to begin service within one year—that is, by this Friday—and Margeson was responding to city staff inquiries as to whether that obligation would be met.

According to Margeson, initial marketing efforts and subscriber hookups will be in the central part of the city, starting with the apartments along Crescent Road and Parkway (excluding the GDC-owned apartments on Parkway), and then moving on to the freestanding single-family homes. Council members asked that Margeson arrange early hookup of cable to the city's public buildings, including Green Ridge House. (Green Ridge residents will still need to subscribe on an individual basis.)

Margeson reported that negotiations with Greenbelt Homes, Inc., for cable installation on GHI property have not been completed. Agreement with Charles-towne Village has been reached, but Storer is not quite ready to begin door-to-door marketing in that complex. Although the Lakeside North and Springhill Lake apartments currently have contracts with other cable firms, Storer hopes eventually to win its way into those two markets.

On the east side of the city,

Storer is negotiating with the homeowners associations of Windsor Green townhouses and all three phases of Greenbriar condominiums for entry to these private properties.

Storer plans to send announcement postcards to potential subscribers, quickly followed by door-to-door salespersons. The firm will be trying to market up to 70 channels of television service, including up to six extra-cost "premium" channels that feature movies and specials. As an incentive, installation will be free for up to three television sets during the first 45 days after the potential subscriber receives the announcement postcard.

Persons who decide to sign up for cable service will pay their first-month subscription charge in advance to the salesperson, or, if they want to "think it over" first, to Storer's office in Hyattsville. The firm tries to schedule actual installation within a week to 10 days after the new subscriber makes the initial payment.

PROPOSED SCHOOL BUDGET UP $11.2 MILLION FOR 1984

The Superintendent of Schools, Edward J. Feeney, has presented to the Prince Georges County Board of Education what he describes as a "hold even" budget for fiscal year 1984. The proposal calls for expenditures of $317 million, an increase of $11.2 million (or 3.6 percent) over the fiscal 1983 budget. More than half of the proposed increase will be used to resume purchases of textbooks and other supplies and to undertake 125 planned-but-deferred maintenance projects.

Virtually all the remainder is accounted for by anticipated increases in costs, particularly utilities, and in employee benefits. Most of the latter will maintain the fiscal integrity of the accrued leave fund.

The proposed budget is based on a reduction of 358 professional and classified staff positions, the closing of 11 more schools and of one area administrative office. The last has already been approved by the Board of Education. The additional staff reduction brings to 3,141 (or 23 percent) the number of positions eliminated since the 1978-79 school year. The administration hopes that attrition will take care of the new reductions.

Eight elementary and three junior high schools make up the 11 schools marked for closing. The elementary school closings are in response to a reduction in enrollment (108,000 students estimated for fiscal 1984). The junior high school closings will further the reorganization of secondary schools into two-year middle and four-year high schools. Should all these schools be closed as the Superintendent recommends, the number of schools closed since 1977 would stand at 64.

Salary negotiations with the Prince Georges County Educators Association are to be held this year. Should salary increases ensue, they would have to be added to the budget proposal. The budget already includes salary increases for other employees, based on an estimated cost-of-living figure. To the extent that the estimates might be in error, appropriate adjustment would be required.

The eventual size and content of the fiscal 1984 education budget will be determined in significant part by how much money the County Executive and Council

NOTICE

A public hearing on the school budget will be held on Monday, January 17 at 7:30 p.m. at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Persons wishing to speak should call 952-4324.

cil will provide. County Executive Parris Glendening has estimated that the county will have a revenue shortfall in the next fiscal year of about $30 million. Since it is far from clear how that amount will be made up, competition for appropriations within the county budget is expected to be fierce. That the portion allotted to schools will be increased over what was allowed this year is anything but a foregone conclusion.

Roosevelt PTSA

On Wednesday, January 19, there will be an Open Forum at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Parents will have an opportunity to meet the principal, Ray Ogden, as well as several administrators and teachers. PTSA president Hugh Jascourt will moderate the forum. Parents are urged to attend and express their questions and concerns. The program begins at 8 p.m.

Democrats Meet

The Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club is sponsoring a night at the movies on Friday, January 22, at the Utopia Theater. The event is "The Grapes of Wrath," the Henry Fonda classic. After the movie, the club is holding a Depression party. Guests can come in period costume, or just come depressed, according to club president J. Davis. The movie is in place of the regular Friday club meeting. There will be a charge for the movie and the party, which is a fundraiser for both the club and the theater.

Drafts Eliminated

To the Editor:

Our grandparents liked to keep their heating costs down and their living quarters warm, and GHI members can borrow one of their ideas: hanging a curtain across the foot of the stairs leading to the second floor.

Without a barrier the warm air rises up the stairs to warm the upstairs hall instead of staying in the living area. Meanwhile the cold air slithers down the stairs and creeps along on the living room floor. The baseboard heaters have to work overtime and heating costs rise.

One gets a tension rod of the type used for cafe curtains (under $3 at Ben Franklin). Install it as high as possible at the bottom of the stairs and over it drape cloth. Five yards is adequate to give a double thickness. Eight feet is enough for a single thickness of a heavier cloth. However, a heavy blanket or even quilted cloth are not necessary. An attractive cotton print will do nicely, particularly if it is double thickness.

I have been using a single thickness of medium heavy cotton print. It looks good enough not to take down when company comes (always something to think about it!) and it certainly takes little energy to move it a bit when I go up or down the stairs. Drafts in my living room are now eliminated, and more to the point, the radiators switch on less frequently. The electric bill is now smaller since the heaters are expected to heat only the downstairs.

Katherine Keene

Open Letter

To the City Council:

My name is Jose R. Morales and I reside at 5800 Cherrywood Terrace.

For the last three weeks I have been writing and re-writing the speech which I intended to give tonight. After consulting with some local and county politicians and some friends concerning the importance of the appointment to the city council, my wife Anna, Elizabeth, my daughter Mary (who is sitting over there) and I have arrived at the following conclusion. Should I be the one who is chosen to fill the vacancy, who would do the volunteer work which I presently do — for example with Greenbelt's elderly, school activities, recreational activities and so forth? Yes, I might be able to help others, but others will be neglected and that is not my nature.

I would like to publicly thank all those that gave me their encouragement, but at this time I will not be a candidate to fill this vacancy. To our elected officials, may God assist you in choosing the candidate that can give 100% of their time to the city of Greenbelt, which at this time I am unable to do. Good Night and God Bless You.

Jose R. Morales

Open Letter

To County Executive and Council:
 The following is an open letter to our County Executive and County Council.

I read that you expect to have about a $30 million shortfall in the county budget if costs are not reduced or taxes raised. Any method you select to close this revenue gap will hurt some of our county residents. Your decision will be a very difficult one. Whatever it is, however, to be sure that the county's best interest is being served, do not ask our state senators and delegates to pass legislation giving you the option to increase our county residents' income taxes.

An increase in the county's piggy-back on the state income tax from 50 to 60 percent — as some have suggested — will be a grave mistake. First of all, it would set a bad precedent by breaking the 50 percent maximum now in effect for all counties in Maryland. I'm sure that is not the issue on which you and our state delegation would want our county to take the lead.

An increase in our county's income tax will probably expand the underground economy, which some authorities say is already getting out of control, because some people will feel compelled to hide taxable income to avoid or evade overly burdensome income taxes.

Perhaps most counterproductive to our county's well-being, an income tax increase will aggravate flight from our county by those who support it the most financially, while discouraging higher income-earning residents to move here. And we need good-paying job and business retention and attraction in our county like we never did before.

All taxes hurt, but an increase in the county's income tax will be one of the worst of them as far as the future and the attraction of our county is concerned. You are a promising new county government; don't make a short-sighted decision to balance the budget with an income tax increase that will inevitably damage our county's future.

It's income tax time now. I hope those who read this letter will pay particular attention to the computation of their Maryland state income tax—especially as they add to it the county's extra 50 percent — and join me in urging our elected representatives not to increase the piggy-back county portion to 60 percent.

A. James Golato

Love's License Lost

(The following story is reprinted with permission in its entirety from the Prince George's Journal issue of January 6, 1983.)

by Peter D. Pichaske
Journal Staff Writer

The bride and groom-to-be made it to the church on time. But their wedding license did not.

It took a quick-thinking photographer, a well-connected attorney, an amenable judge, a helpful bureaucrat, and a friendly state trooper to make sure the wedding came off at all.

Everything appeared to be in order for the wedding Dec. 30 of Joan Linstrom, 26, and Kenneth Jones, 28, at St. Hugh's Catholic Church in Greenbelt. The guests were seated, the bride and groom dressed to the hilt, the processional music already in progress.

But 10 minutes before the ceremony was to begin, Father Francis Kazista asked the groom for the wedding license.

"He handed me a paper with another paper stapled to it," recalled the priest. "I said, 'That's not a marriage license.' He said, 'They told me this was all I needed.' I said, 'No, it's not.'"

Father Kazista was right. What Jones had was his receipt, not the license. The couple could not legally be married.

"At this point, panic set in," said the priest. "Utter panic. In my 16 years as a priest, I'd never had anything like it."

While a singer and organist entertained the more than 100 guests, and the bride and groom-to-be paced nervously, others went to work.

Father Kazista called an attorney friend in Silver Spring. The attorney called Bruce Simpson, a District Court commissioner in Hyattsville. Simpson called Circuit Court Judge Vincent Femia.

Unfortunately, none of them could do anything. But Femia called someone who could: Clerk of the Circuit Court Norman Pritchett. Pritchett, who runs the Upper Marlboro courthouse where the licenses are kept, phoned an assistant who lives in Upper Marlboro. The assistant drove to the courthouse at 9 p.m., unlocked it, and found the missing license.

In the meantime, photographer Joe Brawner called a state trooper he knew at the Forestville barracks. He convinced the policeman to drive to Upper Marlboro, to pick up the license, and take it back to Forestville.

The groom's brother sped around the Beltway to Forestville, met the trooper, and ferried the license to the church, where it belonged in the first place.

Promptly at 9:30, 90 minutes late, the wedding ceremony began.

"It's a miracle that wedding ever happened at all," said Father Kazista.

"We were so relieved," recalled the bride's mother, Mary Linstrom. "It may be funny now, but it was a little heart-rending at the time. Here we were sitting, waiting, wondering what to do."

"You're nervous enough waiting for your wedding," said Joan Linstrom. "To wait for another hour-and-a-half is too much."

"Just hope that judge doesn't get in trouble," she added. "He saved us from having to send all the guests home and holding this again."

One week later, the bride and groom remain embarrassed, and kidding from friends makes the embarrassment worse. Mr. Linstrom refused to allow The Journal to take a photo of the couple. But already, Joan Linstrom sees a bright side.

"I've gone to a lot of weddings where you don't remember anything about it."

"But they won't forget ours for a long time."

This Week At the Utopia

by Konrad Herling

An enthusiastic crowd of 120 at Sunday's performance of "I Remember Mama" capped off activities at the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center last weekend. Florence Holly, President of the Golden Age Club, organized a group of over 50 seniors to witness the production. The size of the crowd marks the largest turnout for a Sunday performance since the Arts Center began operation more than three years ago. "Mama", which has received excellent reviews from both the city and county newspapers, concludes this weekend with performances Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:15 p.m.

Also this weekend, the Arts Center will hold its monthly bake sale. Those interested in contributing to the sale should call Paula Lipman, 345-3516, or Trix Whitehall, 345-4487. Each donor will receive a complimentary ticket good for any event at the Arts Center.

The Film Series will continue next weekend featuring two Fonda classics: "Mr. Roberts", playing Thursday and Friday evenings at 8 p.m., January 20 and 21, "Grapes of Wrath", playing Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m., January 22 and 23. A ballot will be distributed during the showing of these films to help determine films the Arts Center may show during the next season.

GHI NOTES

The GHIDC Board of Directors will meet at 8 p.m. on Thursday, January 13 in the GHI Board Room. Items on the agenda include crawl space vents and structural repairs.

After this meeting, the GHI Board of Directors will discuss window maintenance, reserves for non-standard heating systems, insurance bids and a report on moisture problems.

The January Energy Management Workshop is scheduled for January 19 from 8-9:30 p.m. in the GHI Board Room. The workshop will focus on "How to Use the Hot Water Tank." All GHI members are invited to attend.

Management advises members that water bills are due quarterly. Most members (except larger townhomes) are now responsible for directly paying WSSC. WSSC is working out billing details but the first bill should come in March. Members can estimate their bill by looking at the water and sewer item in their GHI monthly charges for last year.

Our Neighbors

Condolences to Eileen Labukas on the recent death of her mother, who had lived several years with Labukas in Greenbelt.

Congratulations to Romas Horton, who will serve as a director-at-large on the board of Property Management Assn. of Metropolitan Washington (PMA/MW). ### Golden ID

Are you over 60 years of age, and do you work less than 20 hours a week? If the answer to both of these questions is "yes," you are eligible for the Golden ID program. Under this program you can attend any state university, college, or community college which offers it, free of all charges except for the costs of books.

Not only can you attend the school, but you are entitled to all of the privileges of all other students at the institution, such as use of the library, use of the gyms and swimming pool, and free admission to the athletic events.

For the past year and a half I have been attending the University of Maryland, where I have taken courses in mathematics, government, physical education, and consumer economics. At the present time I am a graduate student in the Department of Textiles and Consumer Economics.

The one limiting factor is that students on the Golden ID can only take courses for which there is room after the regular students have registered. This makes it difficult to get into the popular courses, such as computers and accounting. On the other hand, those physically fit can take courses in swimming or fencing.

Although it is late, it may still be possible to register for the spring semester. If you want to David Gray Ross in 1978 when the latter was named to the Circuit Court. Ryan has been re-elected twice since then.

"Certainly Buzz' election is important for the county but it is even more important for the 23rd District and Greenbelt," Devlin said. "Both of us look forward to working with Greenbelt city officials and citizens."

GHI Energy Workshop

Greenbelt Homes, Inc. held its first Energy Management Workshop on Wednesday, November 17 at 8 p.m. About a dozen GHI members attended to learn how to keep records of bills and energy saving measures.

Members heard from Charles Gray from PEPCO and GHI staff members. Gray began with good news: PEPCO has proposed a 5% decrease in the fuel adjustment charge which could take effect November 29. He passed out copies of PEPCO's "Waste Watchers Energy Exercise Book" and "About Your Electric Bill," which was especially helpful in understanding the electric bill. Gray pointed out the pamphlet's chart which can be used to record electric bills. To reduce energy consumption, he suggested lowering the temperature of water and electric heaters. But his major point was: keep records.

Keeping records, the first step in cutting energy usage, was also the theme of the GHI presentation. Participants received a GHI handout, "Surveying Your Home Energy Usage" to use in determining present energy usage by appliances. The handout explains how to check the energy consumption and cost of running appliances. A chart on the back has space for recording the results. GHI Information Specialist Leta Mach demonstrated with a coffee maker. Participants discovered that it would cost about $.85 per month to make coffee in that particular machine.

GHI also gave participants handouts on buying appliances, determining lifecycle costs, determining energy efficiency ratios, finding the payback time, useful definitions, and typical savings from conservation measures.

Dennis Lewis, GHI Coordinator of Member Services, talked about government weatherization and energy assistance programs which are available to help low-income individuals.

Participants also looked at some energy conservation products available in the GHI Warehouse. These include indoor covers for air conditioners, insulating seals for electric switches and outlets and heat reflecting mattress pads.

The energy conservation products can be seen at the GHI Warehouse or the GHI Reception area. Information sheets provided at the workshop are available from the GHI Receptionist. These materials will also be available at the next workshop on Wednesday, January 19 at 8 p.m. in the Board Room.

noted that he was president of the Greenbriar Community Association, representing 3,000 people, 20% of the city. He cited his interest in the city and the fact that he had helped establish the first Crimewatch program in Greenbelt. He favored acquisition of land, capital improvements to the core of the city, more recreation facilities, improvements to North End School property as possible items in a future bond issue. Zugby felt that the role of a council person is to be alert to possible threats to what Greenbelt stands for, to communicate and listen to the people. His supporters stressed his dedication to community causes, even following his defeat for council in the last city election.

All of the candidates felt that each of the items mentioned previously by councilman Putens was important to the city. J Davis stated that she would run for council in the next election regardless of whether she was chosen or not to fill the vacancy. Zugby and Bram stated that they would run if chosen; Ott was noncommittal.

Mayor Weidenfeld noted that council will meet in executive session on January 17 to choose the winner. The date was selected because of conflicts with scheduling, not to prolong the drama, he said. The appointment will be made at the next regular council meeting on January 24.

Greenbelt Race Results

Teresa Downs, 18, of Greenbelt won the women's portion of the Annual D.C. Roadrunners 10 Mile Run in Greenbelt and through Beltsville Agricultural Research Center on December 26. Downs finished in 46th place in 74:27. Tim Tays, 23, of Alexandria, Va. won the race in 51:13. Four other Greenbelters finished as follows: 27th, Jack Stuart-67:00; 38th, Nelson Oertel-71:37; 45th, Lee Johnson-73:47 and 48th, Sid Conger-75:37. There were 64 finishers in the 10-mile run.

The main event was the 20 mile race held for 20 consecutive years in Greenbelt. Three U.S. 20 mile road running records were set. Laura Dewald, 25, of Arlington, Va., a world-class woman marathoner, set the U.S. national women's 20 mile record winning on the difficult course in 2 hours and 39 seconds. She broke her own record set here last year by 1 minute and 41 seconds. Highlighting her achievement was her placing 3rd of the 45 runners in the 20 mile race.

Bob Fischer, 42, of Newark, N.J., a nationally-ranked masters runner (over 40 years) made the trip especially because 20 mile certified courses are difficult to find. Fischer won the race in 1:51:38 by 8:52 over Eamonn McEvilly and set the U.S. single age record (age 42). Eddie Benham, 75, a former long-time jockey from Ocean City, Md., set the U.S. age group record for 75-79 year olds by running 2:42:30 for 30th place. Benham is the 75-79 year old world record hold-

A five-cent charge is proposed to be levied on bus-to-bus transfers.

Elderly and handicapped passengers, under the proposal, would continue to pay half the corresponding peak period rail fare with a maximum fare of 75 cents. Under the proposals, seven flash passes, good for two weeks of transit rides, will be sold. # City Presents "Want List" to State

by Bill Rowland

Greenbelt's top officials presented the city's annual "want list" to its state legislative delegation and its county council representative at a dinner meeting in mid-December. This list is the legislative program that the city hopes to have adopted during the 1983 session of the Maryland General Assembly, as well as items on which county council action or support is desired.

The following is a summary of the list:

City & County as Co-equals: The legislators are asked again, as they were last year, to support a bill to reestablish the historical co-equality of Maryland's counties and municipalities. In 1981 the Maryland Court of Appeals ruled that ordinances passed by a home-rule county supersede municipal ordinances on the same subject.

Double Taxation: Present state law permits counties to give municipalities a tax rebate when city residents pay taxes both to city and county for a service, but receive part or all of that service only from the city (for example, police, recreation, public works). Legislators are asked to change the law so that counties are required, not just permitted, to make such a rebate.

Antitrust Immunity: The request here is for enactment of specific state authority for municipalities and counties to award franchises. Such laws would protect municipalities and counties against possible court findings of restraint of trade and violation of anti-trust laws.

Maryland now has a new law authorizing the award of cable television franchises, as a result of a U.S. Supreme Court anti-trust ruling in a cable case last year, but similar protection has not been extended by the state in other possible areas of local franchise activity.

Retirement System Payments: The city asks for further legislative help in reducing the impact of a financial blow that stunned the state's municipalities two years ago. Cities whose employees are covered by the state's Employees' Retirement System were given substantial bills for unfunded accrued liabilities in the system. Greenbelt's bill was over $1.5 million, to be paid in annual installments of more than $115,000 over 40 years. Some legislative action was taken on this issue in 1982, but it was of limited assistance.

State Funding of Local Programs: The legislators are asked to oppose any cutbacks in state funding for the Youth Service Bureau or for the state-supported Open Space Program. There is concern that the current economic problems of the state may lead to attempts to make reductions in these areas.

Municipal Share of Income Tax: This proposal, put forth by the City of Riverdale and supported by Greenbelt's council, would have the state law changed so that municipalities receive 12 percent of the state income tax, instead of their present share of 8.5 percent.

Highway Projects: The city council again supports the earliest-possible improvement of the Greenbelt Road - Kenilworth Avenue intersection. It continues to oppose construction of an "intercounty connector" highway.

It favors leaving the Baltimore-Washington Parkway under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service, and also wants improvement of the northbound exit from the Parkway to Greenbelt Road. It asks for efforts to reduce the amount of noise reaching the city from the Beltway. And it wants the legislators to establish a program for funding pedestrian and bicycle crossings of interstate highways. In a request aimed not only at the General Assembly, but also at the county council and at METRO, the city asks for a highway overpass across the Beltway that will provide access for the commuter parking lot and eventual Metrorail and commuter railroad stations proposed for construction to the west of Springhill Lake apartments.

Master Plan Hearing: City council members are asking the county council to assure that, as the new Master Plan for the Greenbelt-College Park-Langley Park area is developed, at least one public hearing on the plan is held within the Greenbelt area. The previous county council had decided that the usual number of local public hearings would be reduced as an economy measure.
