Council Approves $3.9 Million Budget

by Mary Lou Williamson

Council unanimously approved a $3.9 million budget for the City of Greenbelt on June 7 that will require a two-cent boost in the tax rate to $1.05 per $100 assessed valuation. The city continues to be in better shape financially than many governments in maintaining, and again this year slightly improving, its present level of services. New development within the city and increased assessments are making the difference. This trend is expected to continue for several years.

In April city manager James K. Giese and staff provided council with a budget that called for a five-cent tax hike to fund the cost of operating the North End school building as a community center when acquired from the county. Between council and staff the increase was cut to two cents -a more palatable rise in an election year.

This year's review found council changing very little in the proposed budget. "It is to the staff's credit that the council made as few changes this year as remember," remarked Mayor Gil Weidenfeld. "Staff can anticipate what council wants." He particularly praised the Recreation Department for its proposal of a self-supporting vanbus for special programs transportation. Council will use the bus to experiment with a dial-aride transportation service within the community-"something that we've been giving lip-service to for a number of years," said Weidenfeld, ". . . the first new idea to come out of the budget process in several years.'

The new budget format also received high marks from council. "Excellent!" said councilman Ed Putens of the way each budget account is contained on one page. The others agreed.

Council's newest member, Robert Zugby, was impressed by the "way the budget is presented." He found it "simple to understand." He thanked the staff for "my education. Now I see how the city does work."

summed up for all: "Excellent job," he told the staff.

The budget is balanced by "quite a bit of surplus and an op-timistic estimate of revenues." Councilman Thomes X. White sounded the only note of caution crease of three percent. The cost-of-living index rose during the past year by 3.9 percent.

during council's rapid-fire annual rite of budget approval - completed in just under 60 minutes. "This is a pay-as-you-go budget. We still have many unmet or deferred needs," explained White, who wants council to look seriously at a new capital improvements bond issue. The $950,000 issue of 1969, which has bought the city more than two million dollars worth of land and buildings and improvements with the aid of federal and state funds, is all but used up. White would like to see Greenbelt voters presented with a realistic list of potential capital improvements with dollar costs attached.

General Fund Revenues

The final review of expected revenues turned up both pluses and minuses. The $6 million of property thought to be owned by GE turned out only to be light bulbs in a local supermarket. Offsetting this loss, new development is now coming onto the tax rolls faster than originally anticipated: U.S. Homes (the Glen Ora townhouses), Holiday Inn (by Oct. 1), and T.G.I. Fridays restaurant and medical offices behind Safeway (by Jan. 1).

The admissions tax now is estimated to bring in an additional $42,000, in part an upward revision based on last quarter's collections and in part because the council voted to increase the cabaret tax from .5 to 3 percent. There will be no increase this year in charges to the city's refuse collection customers. In total the changes, including dropping the proposed tax rate by three cents, reflect a drop in estimated revenues of $61,300.

General Fund Expenditures

General Fund Expenditures in the new budget total $3,908,200, up $264,900 from last year or 7.3 percent. Classified employees will receive an average pay innext council. Council set the salary of the manager at $43,500. One new item this year calls for an expenditure of $3,000 to join in with other local cities to purchase technical assistance. Council was supportive on a one-year trial basis.

New Ducks Living On Greenbelt Lake

Greenbelt residents may have noticed that the flock of white Pekin ducks that have lived on Greenbelt Lake for the past 20 years suddenly disappeared last winter. The City Manager's office received numerous inquiries about their disappearance this spring by lake park visitors who had enjoyed watching and feeding

When Mr. and Mrs. Duane Bowman, owners of the lake park boat and concession stand, discovered the ducks were missing, they began trying to find a way to obtain a new flock. The Bowmans notified Mayor Gil Weidenfeld and County Councilman Richard Castaldi, who contacted Hugh Robey, Director of Parks and Recreation, Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Robey made available a flock of white ducks from the Duck Pond on University Boulevard, and his assistant, Mr. Gray, brought them to Greenbelt.

The ducks seem to be enjoying their new home on Greenbelt Lake almost as much as visitors to the lake are enjoying observing and feeding them.

POPULAR LIBRARY BOOKS TO BE ON 14 DAY LOAN

The Prince Georges County Memorial Library System will begin a new service in July which will put popular books in the hands of readers more quickly. What will happen is that selected books which are in demand will be circulated for a shorter, 14-day, loan period, thereby allowing the next reader his or her turn much sooner than with the usual 21-day loan.

Those books which will be affected by this new policy will be clearly marked on their spine and on the inside back cover by a 1 by 2 inch red on white label which reads "14 Day Book."

The library system purchases multiple copies of popular books (taking into consideration budgetary limits) so waiting times will be as short as possible. This shorter loan period will help stretch those copies even further.

In Heated Exchange Council Reaffirms Greenbelt Stand on METRO Alignment

by Edith Beauchamp

The city council unanimously passed a motion reaffirming its long-standing position in favor of the Metro line to Greenbelt, but not without some bickering mostly directed at Mayor Gil Weidenfeld — at the regular Monday night meeting, June

This was the second time in a month that council has considered the issue, and the reconsideration was at the request of Weidenfeld and Councilman Tom White after County Councilman Richard Castaldi sent an urgent message asking that Greenbelt make it known that the city has not changed its position on Metro. The City Council was also asked to reconsider the issue by the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club. At an earlier meeting council had defeated a motion which said Greenbelt "opposed any actions being taken which would delay or prevent completion of the Metro E Line." That motion, by Councilman Ed Putens, had been a response to a College Park proposal for a new location for the College Park

The three councilmen who voted against the first motion -

Richard Pilski, White and Bob Zugby - each made it clear that they were strongly in support of the Metro Line to Greenbelt and that they were surprised when their votes were "misinterpreted" to mean otherwise.

Zugby

Zugby introduced the new motion with a long statement explaining his first vote. "One of the reasons I moved (to Greenbelt) was because there was going to be a Metro station here," he said. "I would like to see it completed in my lifetime," he continued sarcastically, "and continued sarcastically, "and hopefully I'd like to see it completed as soon as possible." Zug-by stated, "I am personally opposed to anything that will delay that completion." However, Zugby gave three reasons why he had voted against the original motion by Putens.

At the prior council meeting, Zugby said he heard that "the proposed new alignment did not alter the completion date" and had heard "no specific rebuttal of that argument that night." Since then, he said, "I have heard much rebuttal of that argument from transportation people, from Met-ro people." Secondly, Zugby said he was "unprepared for the interpretation" of the vote as "somehow a softening of the Greenbelt position with respect to the completion of Metro. I had not anticipated that reaction.' Many people, Zugby continued, apparently see "a danger that since there's a new member on council, perhaps he isn't as strong, and perhaps a couple of others are going to go along and everything's going to change." Zugby said it was "time to set the record straight. I strongly support Metro."

The third problem Zugby had with the original motion was that it was to be sent to the county council and the surrounding municipalities, "there being no clear indication that any of these people had asked for it, or would pay any attention to it, or would even act on the original request by the city of College Park." This time was different, Zugby claimed. "We have since received a rather urgent request from our county councilman, Rich Castaldi, to please go on record again. I think what this does, it gives us a reason for doing so."

Zugby's motion, which was seconded by White, stated: "The City of Greenbelt favors completion of the full E-Route with the currently adopted alignment ter-

Secret Ballot Needed

To the Editor:

In the interests of clear, accurate and fair reporting, I am sending you for publication the statement I made at the May 26 board meeting of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., regarding the inability of the members of this housing corporation to vote for a secret ballot under the present bylaws.

This concerns member voting by secret ballot in an organization whose parliamentary authority is Roberts Rules of Order, Newly Revised. I quote from page 240 under "Methods of Voting" - "A member who believes that a secret vote will give a truer expression of the assembly's will in a pending matter can move that the vote on the motion be taken by ballot."

Compare this to the GHI bylaw, Article IV, Section 8 which states "Voting shall be by a show of cards unless the chairman calls for a roll call vote or secret ballot." My research so far shows that this section of the original by-laws was changed in 1963. I intend to find out who made this change and the circumstances.

The corporation attorney recommended some time ago that our by-laws needed to be updated and possibly rewritten and I don't think he was referring to any GHI by-laws committee. The last two committees, it seems to me, have had a blind spot as far as this particular by-law is concerned. As I recall, Messrs. Amberg and Schwan were the last two chairmen.

I have many examples to prove that this lack of a secret vote by members has been responsible for years of intimidation of employees and members in business here. It has caused many to skip the annual meeting, especially this year, when a vote on censure of a fellow member was on the agenda.

Although I have studied the bylaws many times, I unfortunately missed the section dealing with the chairman and secret ballots and so apparently did the Ad Hoc Committee on Election Procedures, which last year recommended to the Nominations and Elections Committee a secret ballot on "strongly controversial issues."

Wouldn't it have been a breath of fresh air and moving toward the concept of "working together" if the presiding officer as one of his last official acts had used his power under the present bylaw to allow a secret ballot. The Nominations and Election Committee had been alerted to that possibility and was prepared with materials.

minating in Greenbelt, in the most expeditious manner possible." The motion also directed that this message be sent directly to Castaldi with copies to the full County Council, and the cities of College Park, Riverdale, Hyattsville, Berwyn Heights, and University Park, the District of Columbia, and to Metro officials.

Heated Discussion

The discussion of the motion which followed became quite heated as both White and Pilski sought to rule Weidenfeld's comments "out of order" on two separate occasions. White also accused Weidenfeld of "political shenanigans," and called him "irresponsible."

The uncharacteristic public bickering among the council members appeared to be over semantics or the wording of the two Metro motions, and on parliamentary procedure. White particularly objected to Weidenfeld's letter to the editor published in the News Review, June 9.

Weidenfeld began the discussion by attempting to ask Zugby about the differences between the two motions. But Pilski interrupted him and called the mayor "out of order." Pilski said, "We're not going to discuss that. Point of order, Mr. Mayor. We're considering a motion on the floor which has nothing to do in reference to reconsideration of the other motion."

Weidenfeld explained, "I'm not talking about reconsideration. I don't believe I'm out of order. I'm asking a question to clarify what the differences are between the motion and the last motion. I'd like to know what Mr. Zugby finds is different. I don't believe I'm out of order." However, Weidenfeld invited Pilski, if he felt he must, to make a motion ruling Weidenfeld "out of order." Pilski complied. Weidenfeld then asked Pilski to offer a parliamentary explanation for his motion. When Pilski failed to offer a satisfactory answer to Weidenfeld, the mayor again asked his question of Zugby.

Zugby came to Weidenfeld's defense by stating, "I think it is quite legitimate to wonder why I put it in this form rather than in the form of a reconsideration." Zugby explained, "The substance of the motion is the same, other than perhaps the more positive wording." The difference, he said, is "in the manner of to whom it would be addressed." He called the original motion "too scattershot," because it was not specifically addressed to anyone.

Weidenfeld asked each of the other councilmen if they would like to make a formal statement. Pilski made a strong statement in support of Metro, claiming that had always been his position. White said he would reserve his comments until after they had voted on the motion. Weidenfeld then recited, for the benefit of the large crowd in the council chambers, the history of the issue. He said, "College Park has made a proposal that could adversely affect the Metro Line." As he gave some of the statistical evidence the council had learned, White interrupted him.

"Mr. Mayor, I believe you are out of order now," White charged. Weidenfeld gave in, and said, "All right, I'll address this matter after we vote on the motion."

After the vote, White then delivered a lengthy statement. He began, "Mr. Zugby eloquently stated what has been the longstanding position of the city of Greenbelt. The fact that it had to be reiterated came from a misinterpretation of the motion on May 16, which in its simplest terms was council declining to communicate a poorly worded motion to the City of College Park and injecting itself into the concerns of that community." White then objected to Weidenfeld's letter in the News Review and added, "I consider that the misinterpretation of that motion at our last meeting, especially in another forum in the community, by the mayor was irresponsible. I think he knew the distortion that he was making. One of the things that I like about this community, one of the things I love about this community, is their capacity to see through these political shenanigans."

Weidenfeld defended himself against this charge by explaining that the reason he put the issue back on the agenda was that the prior motion "was voted down on the argument that we were meddling in College Park's affairs. My feelings were that Metro belongs to the entire corridor . . and that we were sending the wrong signals if we didn't make our long-known position known again and particularly send this to the County Council. If someone would like to make this look like a political maneuver, I can't imagine why that would be a reason for me to want to urge Greenbelt to take its long-standing position and remain in its leadership role."

Weidenfeld concluded the discussion by saying, "Everyone's been arguing their own argument, but I think the important thing is we have a motion that five members of council voted on and it reaffirms the city's position and that was my objective."

BUDGET Cont. from page 1 deputy police chief. This is not an additional position, but will replace a currently authorized position of patrolman. No new funds were added. The cadet program will be expanded at midyear when a second person will be hired, in part providing expanded lake park patrolling. At its final work session council added $1,500 for additional training programs in an effort to catch up with the needs of an expanded department. Four new patrol cars will be added, along with the related emergency equipment.

Special objectives this year include: (1) a pilot program for improving the work scheduling of officers in order to increase coverage, reduce stress, and improve performance and working conditions; (2) investigate use of computer for storage and retrieval of police records; and (3) improve in-service training.

A second animal warden will be hired to share this part-time

(3) Public Works ($796,900)

This year's budget is up over year ago, primarily to better reflect what has actually been spent in recent years. Giese expects the balance of work to tip toward Parks and Recreation-related work during the coming year. Last year the pendulum had swung the other way - to street repair. Council's only change was to cut out $3,000 from ice and snow removal over-

(4) Social Services - Greenbelt CARES ($127,100)

Council made no changes in the proposed budget. In the unlikely possibility that the state does cut $1,235 from its support of the Youth Services Bureau, council agreed with the manager that the city would find additional funds within its budget.

(5) Recreation and Parks ($681,600)

Last-minute additions include $3,500 to install energy efficient windows in the Youth Center gym (inadvertently omitted from the budget).

Miscellaneous

Employee retirement benefits continue to be some of the larger line items in the budget. The city's contributions to these costs have skyrocketed as the city gets ready to pay its share of the accrued liability of the State Retirement System - a whopping $153,000 each year beginning in 1984 and continuing 36 years. Council began putting aside money toward these payments two years ago. Funds to be paid out this year will be: Social Security, $128,100; State Retirement, $159,600; and Reserve for Accrued Liability, $66,900.
