Residents in Greenbriar, Springhill Lake Hear Council Candidates Express Views

Greenbriar

by Mary Lou Williamson

Five incumbents and three challengers again faced the voters in open forum on Monday, August 29 — this time at Greenbriar. The affair was sponsored by the Greenbriar Community Association with Bill Ayers, the association vice president, serving as emcee. About 35 persons attended.

Traffic problems on Greenbelt Road and encroaching development in East Greenbelt and its environs were the hot topics. All candidates supported a strong police force and citizen involvement in crime prevention. All supported completion of the full Metrorail system and a mini-bus for transportation within the community.

Each candidate was allowed five minutes to present his or her platform, followed by a question and answer session for the audience and a two-minute wrap-up. The order of speakers was determined by picking numbers from a box. The luck of the draw put incumbent Thomas X. White first and former mayor (in the 'sixties) Francis W. White last.

Thomas X. White On development, incumbent Tom White called for the next council to acquire more buffer strips (green space). To do that, he said, will require a bond issue, something he has been supporting for several years. He said he is particularly concerned with aesthetic development and environmental protection.

In the wrap-up, White cautioned against allowing development to continue to proceed without improvements to public facilities — in particular, road improvements. "We need to hunker down and say to the county: 'No more development till we get the improvements you promised.'"

Ed Putens. Crime is increasing in number and in degree of violence. Incumbent Ed Putens is proud he has helped establish Greenbelt's crime prevention activities, stressing educational programs that show people how to protect themselves and how to be eyes and ears of the community. His statement, "Greenbelt Road is becoming the Shirley Highway of Greenbelt," was greeted with appreciation for his awareness of the problem. He has led the battle for a traffic light at Mandan Road, he said.

In summary he said, "In Greenbelt we can always sit down and talk it out, even though we don't always agree."

Richard Pilski. Greenbelt has had well qualified candidates over the years, said incumbent Dick Pilski. With his 20 years on council, committee service at all levels of government and commitment as a fiscal conservative, he asked voters to give him one of their five votes. "Select someone who knows how to handle problems." He then read the list of goals from his flyer.

In his wrap-up, Pilski added a note of caution about further development: "Bigness does not mean better."

Gil Weidenfeld. Outlining needs for the coming term from the point of view of East Greenbelt, incumbent Gil Weidenfeld put Greenbelt Road improvements first — traffic light at Mandan Rd., a must; widening; and rebuilding the intersection at the entrance to Greenway Center, which has become a bottleneck. On the problem of dogs, he called for "strong, effective action through city ordinances." On a more personal note, Weidenfeld spoke of his experience of 12 years on council, his commitment to the job (only one absence) and his leadership qualities.

In his conclusion, he told voters: "Look to what an individual can contribute to the community."

Herb Jones. Challenger Herb Jones made clear his initial reason for running was to call attention

Springhill Lake

by Luke Blanda

Eight candidates running for the five spots on the Greenbelt city council outlined what they each feel they can offer Springhill Lake at a special "Candidates' Night" Thursday at the complex's Community House.

The candidates—Herbert Jones, Robert Zugby, Richard Pilski, Gil Weidenfeld, Francis W. White, Antoinette M. (Toni) Bram, Edward Putens, and Thomas X. White (their names appear here in the same order they will be listed on the ballot) were invited to speak by the newly-formed Springhill Lake Civic Association.

Each had two minutes to discuss what he or she will do as a council member to help Springhill Lake, and two minutes to speak on city-sponsored teen recreation programs.

Council Help

Herbert Jones said his campaign is based on the issues of public safety and the rights of property owners.

Robert Zugby, who lives in Greenbriar Phase III, was appointed to the city council last February. The traffic intersection at Kenilworth Avenue and Greenbelt Road, especially the spur leading onto Edmonston Road, he said, is "badly designed." Improvements will be made over the next five years, he said, and the city council must "keep on top of this problem."

Zugby will continue to support strong police protection, he said, and wants to make sure that that protection keeps pace with the continuing development of the city.

Richard Pilski said the city council must demonstrate "sensitivity to each of the city's parts" but said that emphasizing the need of one part of the city at the expense of another "wouldn't be fair to the (entire) community."

Labeling himself a "fiscal conservative," Pilski said he will continue to seek the best in recreation facilities and programs, in public safety and in the preservation of the city's natural surroundings at the best possible price.

Police protection, recreation facilities and protection of the city's natural environment, said Gil Weidenfeld, are not new problems. By getting street lights for Cherrywood Road and by finding the room and funds for ball fields, he said, he has worked on these kinds of problems in the past and wants the chance to follow up on them.

"Greenbelt is a quality city, with quality services and quality people," said Francis W. White. "But the level of that quality should be the same throughout the city."

He too will support strong police protection and considers himself "tough on crime," he said. His approach to crime, he said, will be to use more plainclothes officers without "raising the visibility" of the police.

On Metrorail, Francis White said he will press for the earliest possible completion of the Greenbelt line but wants to be sure, he said, that all the service roads for the station are in place first.

"Springhill Lake cannot operate on its own," said Antoinette (Toni) Bram, and it is for this reason, she said, that she is glad to see the beginning of the Springhill Lake Civic Association. Bram said she sees a connection between crime and youth activity. "Working with youth will decrease crime to some extent," she said.

Bram said that Springhill Lake is "landlocked" by the Beltway and that she will work to make the roads into and out of Springhill Lake more "comfortable and safe."

According to Edward Putens, Springhill Lake has a crime problem. "I will roll up my sleeves and work with you," he said.

"Springhill Lake is well thought of by Greenbelt," said Thomas X. White, and this is due, he

Al Herling: Outstanding Citizen

by Leta Mach

Albert K. Herling, Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen of 1983, was described as a "preserver" when his name was announced Friday evening September 2 at the Opening Ceremonies of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. He was recognized as a preserver of the News Review, the Greenbelt Library, Center School and the Greenbelt Theater.

When Herling accepted his award, he commented, "No one man ever does all the things I've been credited with all by himself." He in turn credited the citizens of Greenbelt for making his work possible. "Thank you, all of you, each and every one of you, for all the efforts you have put into this city," he concluded.

Announcing the award, Bobbi McCarthy, Outstanding Citizen Chairperson, noted that Herling's efforts on behalf of the city "have all been punctuated by a positive, problem-solving approach which has helped preserve and enhance some of the finest aspects of Greenbelt." In addition to his work for the paper, the school, the library and the theater, he serves on the city's Employee Relations Board and regularly brings Greenbelt notable visiting performances from the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra.

Herling, together with Charlie Schwan, Outstanding Citizen of 1982, organized the Freedom of the Press Committee when the News Review was sued by a local developer. This committee raised $30,000 to defend the paper and the committee's efforts were rewarded when the newspaper won its appeal before the United States Supreme Court, McCarthy explained, "and firmly ensconced the name of Greenbelt in the law books of this country."

When the County decided to move the library from a room in Center School to a location outside the city, Herling was also on hand to form a committee to save the library. This committee convinced the "County government that Greenbelt needed and deserved to have a public library at the center of the community."

Recently, he has been heavily involved in preserving the Greenbelt Theater and saving it from a future as a health spa. He dreamed of preserving the theater's role in the cultural life of Greenbelt. Explained McCarthy, "Today, thanks to that dream and to the unending dedication of himself, his family and many others in the community who have been inspired to join the effort, we have a cultural arts center which is alive and well and living in Greenbelt."

This year's judges unanimously chose Herling for the 1983 award. The judges are Greenbelt

FISHING OKAY AT LAKE

Greenbelt Lake is once again open for fishing. It has been closed for about two years, since the lake was drained to eradicate undesirable fish, such as goldfish.

After the lake was restocked, no fishing was then allowed because the new fish were too small.

On August 30, an inspection was made of the fish population in the lake. James E. Van Tassel, manager of Warmwater Fisheries, State Wildlife Administration, said, "After analyzing all of the data collected . . . I see no positive reason for keeping the lake closed."

Call Special Trash

To the Editor:

Today I found a young man unloading a carful of trash into the woods. He told me that he lives in Boxwood. I can't imagine why he chose to drive several miles up Ridge Rd. to dump his trash when he could have stayed home and let Special Trash do the work.

I wonder if people in Greenbelt realize that they have access to free trash removal by simply calling the city's Special Trash number, 474-8004. I also wonder if people in Greenbelt realize that grass clippings, tree limbs, hedge clippings, etc. are trash.

I live adjacent to woods which belong to GHI on Ridge Rd. below Westway, and I am appalled by the continual dumping. People come from blocks around to dump lawn clippings, hedge trimmings, etc., thus filling the woods with trash. It's ugly to look at and ultimately, it's bad for the health of the woods.

Please, Greenbelters, use the Special Trash service and let everyone enjoy the natural beauty that surrounds us.

LIFT HIGH THE CROSS

Holy Cross Lutheran Church begins 40th year

HOLY CROSS LUTHERAN CHURCH
6905 Greenbelt Road

Next April the members of Holy Cross will mark the 40th Anniversary of their ministry to the people of Greenbelt and Surrounding communities.

Lutherans in Greenbelt worshipped together for the first time on Easter Sunday, April 9, 1944, in the home of Adele and Ed Trumbule at 35-L Ridge Road. The service was held in the dining room; Sunday school was conducted on the staircase.

Seeking more adequate facilities, the congregation soon moved into the Center School cafeteria. A small church building was erected at 22 Ridge Road in 1952. It served the congregation until 1969.

Now the Church is located at 6905 Greenbelt Road on an 11 acre tract of land purchased from the U. S. Department of the Interior. The Bill authorizing this sale was signed into law by President Kennedy on October 9, 1962

THE STAFF OF HOLY CROSS: Rev. Edward H. Birner, Pastor; Scott P. Wycherley, Director of Christian Education; and Carol Koke, Parish Worker.

Sunday Worship 8:30 & 11:15 a.m.
(Care is provided for infants and toddlers at both services.)

Sunday school and Bible classes 9:50 a.m.

Young People for Christ meeting 4:30 p.m.

Visitors are always welcome to worship with us. For information concerning any of our services, please call 345-5111 between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

YOUNG PEOPLE FOR CHRIST — AN ACTIVE YOUTH MINISTRY

Holy Cross has a youth ministry for teens with weekly meetings, Bible study, and fellowship activities.

The young people for Christ (Y.P.F.C.) are basically confirmed youth of the congregation, but in recent years friends of the church youth have joined and now make up over 40% of the active membership

The youth meet with teacher Pamela Brown every Sunday morning at 10:00 a.m. to discuss issues relevant to the Christian teen of today. They meet every Sunday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. for a devotion and business meeting. The church opens at 2:30 p.m. for athletics and game room activities as well as fellowship prior to the meeting. The youth participate in church services by singing anthems at least twice a month

The Y.P.F.C. support an inner city mission project in Washington, D.C. Recently they made a substantial contribution to a young man who needed a bone marrow transplant.

Of course, there are plenty of social activities and outings. Recently, eight members of the group (Lisa West, Kurt Bender, Joel Birner, Kevin Weiner, Jonathan Peterson, Jimmy Gainor, Billy Isenock, and Chuck Hiep) attended a youth gathering in San Antonio, Texas. They also sponsored a caramel apple booth at the Labor Day Festival.

Current officers of the group are: Joel Birner, President; Jonathan Peterson, Vice-president; Tim Savage, Treasurer, and Michelle Liotta, Secretary.

CHILDREN AT WORSHIP

Children are included in the worship life at Holy Cross. Each Sunday, Pastor Birner invites the boys and girls to come and sit with him for a special message. After the message, the children frequently sing a song that they have learned during the Sunday school hours.

Jesus once said, "Let the children come to me, and do not stop them, because the Kingdom of God belongs to them." Mark 10:14. These words are taken very seriously at Holy Cross.

Bruce Poesse, Chairman of the Department of Christian Education at Holy Cross, discusses Rally Day plans with Peggy Melley (center), director of the Pre-school department, and board member Alex Holt (left).

The Rev. Edward H. Birner was ordained into the ministry of the Lutheran Church in August of 1953 after graduating from Concordia Seminary in St. Louis. He became a resident of Greenbelt that same month. Recently the congregation celebrated his 30th Anniversary at Holy Cross with a surprise banquet at the Fontainebleau in New Carrollton.

Scott P. Wycherley, a graduate of Concordia College, Bronxville, N.Y., joined the staff of Holy Cross in 1978. He serves the congregation as Minister of Youth and Director of Christian Education. He plays the organ on Sunday morning and directs the youth choir.

Carol Koke is the most recent addition to the church staff. She is a 1983 graduate of St. John's College, Winfield, Kansas, where she majored in Church music and Parish work. She manages the church office, leads the music program, and serves as a church organist and choir director.

RALLY DAY — SEPTEMBER 11

Sunday, Sept. 11, will be an especially big day for all the children at Holy Cross. It marks the beginning of the new Fall Educational Program.

Boys and girls up to the age of 12 are invited to participate in the Rally Day activities that begin at 9:50 a.m. After registering and being assigned to a class, the children will participate in a program that includes a Bible lesson, games, a movie, and a lunch at 12:15 p.m.

Children between the ages of 2½ and 5 are enrolled in the Pre-school and Nursery Department. There they have an opportunity to play and learn from 9:45 a.m. until the close of the late service.

Parents will benefit from a course on "Moral Development" led by Pastor Birner. Scott Wycherley, the Director of Christian Education, will lead a class on "Our Lutheran Heritage," a study of the historical and doctrinal background of the Lutheran Church.

The youth Bible Class will meet at 10:00 a.m. (See accompanying article.)

to the brutality case against a city police officer. He asked the new council to request an evaluation of Police Department ethics and practices. Why, he also wanted to know, was the city employee of the year harrassed for appearing in court (under subpoena) to "tell the truth" in the brutality suit? Was he suspended? Jones criticized both city officials and the press for not promptly informing the citizens of these occurrences. Later he said he understood the incumbents were not at liberty to discuss a case in litigation or a personnel matter. (Editor's Note: City Manager James Giese told the News Review that Opl. Edward Daniel Blake is on administrative leave with full pay because of illness.)

In his wrap-up Jones made clear his "greatest respect for the Police Department. There is just one fly in the soup . . . The rest of the police are just like you Greenbelters," he told the audience, "just great!"

Antoinette Bram. Challenger Toni Bram would like to see the development of policies that would help address problems before they occur. In law enforcement, these policies would apply to officers as well as citizens. On the Master Plan, existing policies, she said, must be constantly expanded and must be flexible to meet future needs. "I am for ordinances that protect citizens from letting pets become pests," said Bram. She offered attendance at dog obedience classes as an alternative to paying a fine. Bram would like to see development controlled "to maintain our small town simplicity," but acknowledged it will take determination to stem the tide. "I offer you strength and determination — a new choice."

Robert Zugby. Incumbent Bob Zugby, who is president of the Greenbriar Community Association, said in addressing his community's concerns about Green Holly Wood, "We want to be sure the sewage and storm water run off doesn't run on us." He is committed to fight "the irrational plan that would divide Glen Oaks through one of its buildings." He is proud that Greenbriar had the first operating neighborhood watch program. He is concerned with the overpass and any problems it may present for people who live on both sides — "the overpass does run in both directions." His primary goal, he said, is to be of service to the community and to help Greenbriar identify with the larger community of Greenbelt. In summary, he noted that during his six months on council, he has just begun to learn how the city works together and with citizen groups.

Francis White. Challenger Francis White, the last to speak, said, "I endorse everything that's been said." White semi-retired, told the group, "I am no stranger to municipal problems." He characterized Greenbelt as a "quality city with quality leadership and quality programs because citizens want the programs and are willing to pay the taxes." On law enforcement he called for plainclothes work on parking lots and shopping centers where crime is known to occur. He reminded the audience he had served five years on the Metro board and knows how the lines came about. He urges support for the present alignment of the Greenbelt line.

Questions and Answers

Three questions offered the candidates opportunities to further define their positions on dogs, traffic, and uses for surplus property. The dog issue took a new path as residents asked why the city thought it could "tell anyone how many animals they may have in their home."

"I don't know that the city is in a position to do that," responded Weidenfeld.

The questioner went on to quiz council on the quality of the facilities to keep animals that the city has picked up.

"Those pens were constructed by someone who liked animals," Pilski reassured the questioner. A few shelters are in the city warehouse so that animals do not have to be kept outdoors during extremely hot or cold weather.

Greenbriar resident Carol Pelosi held a different view. She called the facilities "sorely lacking" and offered free assistance from the Bowie Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on "how to improve them cheaply." Pelosi is vice president of the Bowie SPCA.

Bram expressed interest at hearing from the "other side" of the pet issue. She wondered if it had been blown out of proportion.

Zugby supported updating the regulations. Tom White repeated his view that the Community Relations Advisory Board is the proper board to do the necessary fact finding and study all facets of the problem that pits neighbor against neighbor. He likened the issue to that of smokers and non-smokers sharing the same space.

Traffic

Jeanette Gordy, Greenbriar resident, asked for an advance warning light for west-bound traffic on Greenbelt Road coming down the hill by the high school toward the light at Hanover Park.

said, in large part to good relations the city has had with Community Realty, Inc. (which manages Springhill Lake) and with the owners.

What the city council can offer Springhill Lake, Thomas White said, is a voice with the county and state governments. What he will work for, he said, is an improvement of communications with all parts of Greenbelt.

Recreation

The candidates addressed the second issue on the evening's agenda, city-sponsored teen recreation programs, in reverse order.

In opening the discussion, Thomas X. White said improvements can always be made in these programs. In this year's budget, he said, money has been set aside for an "intra-city bus" for recreation. The bus can be used, he said, to take teenagers on camping trips and to various attractions in the greater Metropolitan area.

Thomas White also said he would work for a "demand-ride bus" which teenagers can use to go to the library, for instance, or to get from one part of the city to the others.

"We don't want our teenagers just walking around," said Putens. In the past, he said, the city council has been active in supporting recreation for youth and the elderly. Recreation, he said, is an issue "everyone supports."

Putens offered two ideas on youth recreation. "A teen forum," he said, is not a new idea, but perhaps now may be the time to give it a try. He also suggested that perhaps the city council needs a youth representative.

The city council, said Bram, should assess the present recreation programs to find out where the problems exist. Further, she said, it should measure the crime prevention budget against the money spent on recreation.

"We want input from you," said Francis White. Residents of the city should tell the City Council what they think they need, he said.

According to Weidenfeld, recreation was the issue that originally got him interested in running for the city council. While his interests have broadened, he has never lost sight of the importance of this issue. He added that he is "not an expert" on recreational programs and depends for help on civic organizations and input from city residents.

Pointing out that Greenbelt has a population of about 18,000 people, has spent $250,000 on recreation, and has two large recreation centers, Pilski asked, "Where are we remiss?" No representative from Springhill Lake, he said, has ever been turned down before the city council when he came with a request for recreation funds. If we have been remiss, he said, he wishes someone would show him in what way.

Having once been a teacher, Zugby said he knows the importance of organized activities for teenagers. Whether the recreational activities in Springhill Lake are good or bad, he said, he just doesn't know. The Springhill Lake Civic Association, he suggested, should appoint a two or three member committee to evaluate the complex's recreational programs. He will sit down and evaluate these programs with the residents of Springhill Lake and make the recommendations of the Civic Association known to the city council.

"Teenagers can be highly responsible and often quite aware of what is needed," Zugby said. The whole area of recreation, he said, is "problematic." He is willing to experiment, he said.

"Kids have problems," said Herbert Jones, "and we should go the extra mile with them." There are enough playgrounds, Jones said. "What we want is more than just happy kids."

Like Martin Luther King, Jr., Jones said, he too has a "vision." He will work for the creation of a "re-cycling center for (high school) drop-outs," he said, a place where kids can get vocational training that will help them out later in life.

way. Accidents have been caused by speeding motorists, who do not notice the traffic light in time to stop. Gordy termed the intersections "Take a Chance Junction" for fellow Greenbriar residents attempting to exit or enter the development.

The candidates supported the idea of a flashing or strobe light to warn motorists of the upcoming traffic light.

Surplus School Property

Greenbriar resident J Davis inquired of candidates what they would do if the property owned by the Board of Education for an elementary school between two sections of Glen Oaks were to be declared surplus, as is expected. Bram's response was echoed by the others. "The city must get it, leave it (as is) and let it stay green."

Pilski and Francis White suggested some kind of passive use for the property. Weidenfeld broadened the response to include input by residents in the immediate area and study by the council's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board. Zugby reported that the views expressed paralleled those of the Greenbriar boards of directors, who wished for the city to acquire the land and for area residents to help determine its use.

Council, By-passed in Beltway Plaza Planning, Expresses Anger at Hearing

by Virginia Beauchamp

An angry city council, at a special meeting on Monday evening, August 22, could hardly contain their rage when representatives of the Beltway Plaza and of Bennigan's Restaurants, a national franchise which plans to locate in Greenbelt, appeared with only the sketchiest of information about the proposed facility. Council, who had scheduled the meeting when they learned about these plans inadvertently, through Bennigan's application to the county liquor board for a license to sell alcoholic beverages, were already irate that they had not been consulted from the beginning stages.

"This is not the first time Brown (Sidney Brown, Beltway Plaza developer) has surprised the city," said Mayor Gil Weidenfeld. "Each time we get angrier." He explained the impor-

Watson, counsel for Bennigan's in the District of Columbia area, was also present.

The corporation has committed $500,000 for improvements, Kenkel said, in addition to the structure itself. It will have "good decor" and "good artifacts," he added. He likened the restaurant to Jasper's and H. T. McDoogal's in the Greenway Center. He estimated that the facility would be ready to open sometime in the spring of 1984. "We would like to become a real friend, a partner of the city of Greenbelt," Kenkel said.

In response Mayor Weidenfeld expressed the city's outrage at having been excluded from prior knowledge of these plans. "Here we're being told what's going on," he said.

Apology

Kenkel apologized for the breakdown of communications. Because the Beltway Plaza was already existing commercial space, the corporation had not been concerned with problems that go along with a newly developing property, he said. They had not even realized that the Plaza was part of the city of Greenbelt, he noted, until he had personally called the Greenbelt Police Dept. to find out. "We do not control the timing of the liquor license," he pointed out. He termed the failure to communicate "a bureaucratic oversight."

But Weidenfeld accused Brown of failing to work in the best interests of the restaurant corporation when he did not notify them of the Plaza's relationship with the city.

"He's only our landlord," said Kenkel. "That's the only relationship."

Brown himself was not present at the meeting, though he sent a prepared statement which Fleischman read, in which Brown requested the city's support in approval of the liquor license application.

All members of council were concerned with the proposed site plan for Bennigan's — the positioning of the restaurant in relation to ingress and egress, the location of the dumpster and its screening, the plans for beautification of the property along Greenbelt Rd. and similar matters. In particular they questioned all three men about whether or not there would be adequate parking and how Bennigan's viewed the projected nearby neighbors—two fast-food places and two kiosks.

Councilman Tom White noted that Bennigan's will be "nestled against the sign for the theater. What is their reaction to being next to a gaudy sign?" he asked.

"Quite frankly," White said, "the concern I have about Bennigan's proposal is this lack of knowledge about what next. It is hard for Greenbelt to be rational about what is irrational."

Parking Issue

Questioning revealed that no covenants in the lease agreement with the Plaza would assure Bennigan's of a particular number of parking spaces. They would be able to draw on all the parking area in the Plaza. Fleischman affirmed.

"You're looking at the overall plan," said Watson. "We're looking at this one parcel." He did not see Wendy's and Popeye's as real competitors. They do not draw the same clientele, he stated.

Mayor Pro Tem Richard Pilski, who had not yet spoken, reaffirmed council's rage. "You really treat the city council like fools.

You ask us to give you something very valuable," he said, referring to support for the liquor license request. "Brown always sends others," he continued. "I feel sorry for you. You show us a menu and a picture. But you have nothing to say about how you get in, how you get traffic in and out.

"We asked Brown to come in years ago," Pilski went on, "and discuss the overall plan. Somewhere he has to have enough parking spaces for all these shops. I'm going to ask council to withhold approval of the liquor license until we can get an overall plan."

Pilski noted that six more AMC theaters are also projected. Three more department stores—two of them new structures—are also proposed in the sketch which the councilmen were examining.

"What else will sprout up like mushrooms?" councilman Bob Zugby asked.

Councilman Ed Putens wondered what kind of a sign Bennigan's proposed. "Are there any back-door plans for a sign?" he asked.

Weidenfeld expressed the feeling that he had no problem with Bennigan's itself but had many reservations about traffic flow at a dangerous intersection. He spoke of the good working relationships the city has always enjoyed with the other Greenbelt developers—in Springhill Lake, the Greenway Center, and the Golden Triangle. "Bennigan's is somehow trapped in this mire that the owner has set up. We're irked, outraged, and annoyed," he said.

White, noting that the liquor license application is the only leverage the city has to try to influence the proposal, introduced a motion to withhold the city's support for such an application pending a meeting with Brown and representatives of Bennigan's to discuss in detail the site plan, traffic flow questions, parking and aesthetic issues. The motion was passed unanimously.

LIQUOR BOARD HEARING

The Board of License Commissioners (Liquor Control Board) on August 31 considered the request for a Class B, BLX, Beer, Wine and Liquor License for Bennigan's and took the matter under advisement.

Councilman Thomas X. White testified on the city's concerns relating to the lack of information about the setting and the impact of the restaurant on nearby roads, the city and the neighborhood.

The City Council, which recommended denial of the Bennigan's application for a license at its August 22 meeting, has the matter on its Monday, September 19 agenda.

tance of early consultations, especially with the city's Advisory Planning Board, so that potential problems with traffic flow, parking, and aesthetic considerations could be worked out.

In his presentation at the beginning of the meeting, Irving Fleishman, Leasing Consultant for the Plaza, passed around copies of a plan dated July 14 showing revisions and additions to the present buildings that occupy space in the Plaza. Bennigan's was drawn in as a darkened rectangle in the western corner formed by Greenbelt Rd. and the 62nd Ave. entrance to the Plaza. This is the easternmost entrance, which leads straight back to Marshall's.

Immediately adjacent to Bennigan's on the west are shown two kiosks—one for a Suburban Bank Money Mover, the other for a Photomat. Negotiations are also underway for a Popeye's Restaurant, a chicken fast-food franchise, still further west. East of the Plaza entrance and directly opposite Bennigan's, also on Greenbelt Rd., a Wendy's restaurant is projected.

Two representatives of the Bennigan's chain whose ultimate owner is the Pillsbury Corporation, passed around a colored drawing of the Old Town Alexandria restaurant in the chain, as well as a menu, to indicate the high quality of operation that the chain stands for. "This will be a luxury restaurant," said James E. Kenkel, Maryland attorney representing Bennigan's. Matthew

by Elaine Skolnik

Five members of the current city council — Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, Mayor Pro-tem Richard Pilski, and Councilmen Thomas X. White, Edward Putens and Robert Zugby — are out on the hustings, along with challengers Antoinette "Toni" Bram, Francis W. White and Herbert Jones. These eight candidates are vying for five city council seats in the September 20 city council election.

The candidates were seen working the crowds at the Labor Day Festival. All are also out doorknocking, and campaign signs are dotting lawns throughout the city.

In trying to heighten voter interest, three candidates' nights have already been held — one in Old Greenbelt, another in East Greenbelt (Greenbriar, Glen Oaks and Windsor Green) and a third in Springhill Lake. Candidates will also discuss the issues before Green Ridge House residents.

On Tuesday, September 20, Greenbelters will elect five council members for two-year terms, all at large.

In order for a candidate to be elected, he or she must receive 40% of the votes cast. If fewer than five candidates receive such a vote, a run-off election will be held one week later on Tuesday, September 27. Traditionally the top vote-getter has been the mayor.

Some 3,194 Greenbelters are currently on the voter registration rolls, down 9.3% from 1981 (see accompanying chart). Registration declined in all precincts primarily because registered voters who did not vote in the two previous council elections were removed from the registration rolls.

There will be no referendum question this year. But voters will again be asked to complete an information questionnaire dealing with city programs and services. A complete copy of the questionnaire will be published in the News Review next week.

Polling places are: Precinct 3 - Greenbelt Municipal Building; Precinct 6 - St. Hugh's School Gym; Precinct 8 - Springhill Lake Community Center; and Precinct 13 - Greenbriar Community Center.

Applications for absentee ballots are now being accepted in the city clerk's office in the Municipal Building. Applications must be made in writing no later than noon Monday, September 19. The ballot must be returned no later than 6 p.m. election day, September 20. Application forms are available in the city offices.

Any qualified elector who is unable to vote in the election because of religious beliefs, physical condition or absence from the city on the day of election may vote by absentee ballot.

Police Blotter

Compiled by Mavis Fletcher
 Two suspects were arrested by Pfc. Thomas R. Justin and Det./Cpl. Terrence M. McGrath and charged with two attempts of breaking and entering; one was also charged with carrying a handgun on school property. The arrests occurred after a moped was reported stolen from Greenway Shopping Center August 30 and shortly afterward an attempted breaking and entering in progress was reported. From the lookout, Sgt. Herbert I. Faulconer spotted the two suspects walking along Greenbelt Rd. and the arrests were then made. A third suspect is also being sought in connection with several of the charges and for the theft of the moped.

A woman's purse was snatched at Beltway Plaza at about 10 p.m. on September 3. Two suspects approached the woman and one of them apparently cut the purse handle with a knife and jerked it away from her.

The attempted theft of a motorcycle took place over the weekend in the 51 Court of Ridge Rd. In view of the high level of motorcycle thefts recently, Police Chief William T. Lane advises all motorcycle owners to be especially careful in securing their motorcycles. He also requests all residents to report any suspicious activity around the parking lots.

Two juveniles were arrested in the Springhill Lake area by Officer Timothy F. Hahn for possession of marijuana.

Autos were stolen from the 6000 block of Springhill Dr. and from the 9100 block of Edmonston Rd. at the end of last week. The latter was recovered in Seat Pleasant. An auto was also stolen from the 6200 block of Springhill Court on August 31.

A case of indecent exposure occurred on Westway Rd. at 12:30 p.m. on September 4.

All four tires were slashed on an auto on Lakeside Dr. over the weekend.

Two juveniles were arrested for attempted theft of bicycles in the Beltway Plaza.

A residence on Westway Road was entered during daylight or early evening hours on August 31. The suspects entered the home by forcibly removing a screen from an open window. Silver, jewelry and radios were reported stolen.

A breaking and entering was reported in the 400 block of Ridge Rd. on the afternoon of August 30. A TV, camera and currency were reported stolen.

The Co-op gas station on Southway Rd. was entered on the night of August 30 and vending machines were vandalized.

Officer Timothy F. Hahn arrested a female juvenile non-resident for shoplifting at Shoetown in Greenway Shopping Center on Sept. 1.

A theft was reported at the House of Tiffany on Hanover Parkway on August 30. Currency was stolen.

Early Maryland Colony Historical Society Topic

Fred Demarr, president of the Prince Georges Historical Society will be the speaker at the next Historical Society meeting scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tugwell Room at the Library.

Demarr's subject will be "Avalon, the First Colony in America set up by Lord Baltimore." The public is invited.

Talk On Social Security

The Woman's Club of Greenbelt will hold its monthly meeting on Monday, September 12, at 1 p.m. at the Greenbelt Library. The guest speaker, Ms. McManus of the Social Security Administration, will speak about recent changes in Medicare. She will answer questions after her talk. Golden-agers, senior citizens, and others who are interested in learning more about Medicare are invited to the meeting.

ELECTION MESSAGE TO ALL GREENBELTERS

Dear Greenbelters:

Once again Greenbelt is preparing for the city elections. You will be receiving campaign literature, meeting candidates, and seeing signs throughout the city.

Candidates will be asking for your vote to be elected to council. We will all be telling you what we intend to do for Greenbelt.

The voters of Greenbelt know there are no flashy, dramatic or magical answers for good government. Limited resources require balanced policies to maintain the excellent services and programs Greenbelt enjoys.

Greenbelt's volunteer groups have made it possible to have more services and activities than other cities enjoy. I thank them.

We in the city are better off than many cities in Maryland. Good planning, fiscal responsibility and sensitivity to people's needs have made Greenbelt a model city.

In political campaigns slogans and pledges become standard phrases.

Your votes should be given to proven experienced leadership.

I ask you for your vote. Ten (10) elected terms deserve another. Vote (4A) for Richard "Dick" Pilski.

Sincerely
 Dick Pilski

- B) Your wants: things you'd like to have, but don't necessarily need.
- C) Your qualifications:
 - 1) Your initial investment (cash to move in)

Council Discusses Center School Accepts CRAB, APB Reports

by Germaine Timmermans

The issue of Greenbelt Center School was on the City Council agenda August 8. Richard Striner, president of the Art Deco Society of Washington, spoke on the school, calling it a national treasure and a splendid example of New Deal culture. Striner informed the council he planned to meet with Carol Shull, director of the National Register of Historic Places to find out whether the building is protected under the Register. Mayol Gil Weidenfeld requested him to report on the outcome of this meeting.

Striner would like to have the building made a Prince Georges County historic site, the only way to prevent it from being demolished. He believes in interior modernization, but does not favor "facadism," i.e., merely preserving the front of the building.

Striner referred to the renovation of the Engineering Building and the dining hall at the University of Maryland as examples of what could be done with Center School; namely, having the interior completely renovated while leaving the exterior walls intact. He also proposed that the city trade the North End School for the Center School with the Board of Education and that the city keep the latter for possible use as a museum.

James Giese wanted Greenbelt to suggest to the Board of Education that it have an architectural evaluation of the school done. Mayor Weidenfeld and Councilmen Thomas White and Richard Pilski favored preserving the school, as did Councilman Ed Putens, who was for preserving the interior as well. Councilman Bob Zugby wanted to be sure that the educational needs of the children are taken care of without harming the outside of the building.

J Davis, who was on the evaluation team of Center School, called the location of the school "fantastic" and the interior characteristics "delightful." She said she believed the School Board would be very amenable to preservation after experts made their testimony. (Editor's note: On August 18 the Prince Georges County School Board voted unanimously to "modernize" Center School.)

Casimir Prybyl, the city treasurer, reported to the council on negotiations with Francis W. White to buy from him a portion of the lake park path that goes through his property at 42 Lakeside Drive. White originally asked $1500 for the property, but agreed to an offer of $1275, which Prybyl believed to be a fair price as well as the going rate. The council passed a motion to buy the property from White at $1275.

CRAB Criticized

Albert Herling spoke vehemently on the Community Advisory Relations Board's (CRAB) actions in connection with the cross-burning in front of the home of a city resident earlier this year. He stated that all members of CRAB, save one, were absent when this event was to be discussed at their meeting. He continued that one member of the board had said that it was not CRAB's business to be the conscience of the community. Herling said CRAB has come up with no programs and should be disbanded; it should not have to be told by the council when to act.

The CRAB report on the cross-burning incident at Charlestowne Village was accepted. Albert Herling spoke again and called the report inadequate: "This is no report: it tells us what we already know." Pilski said CRAB should inform Herling when their next meeting will be held and reminded those present that CRAB was initially created to handle sensitive community race relations. The CRAB report will appear on the agenda again in September.

APB Reporter

Council moved to refer to the Advisory Planning Board a preliminary draft of a traffic study being undertaken by the staff of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The study identifies existing and potential traffic problems on major highways in Greenbelt and considers ways to improve the traffic flow. The council also asked Giese to have his staff find out the deadline for the application for block grants.

Council accepted Advisory

Planning Board reports on the site plan of the Maryland Trade Center II, the sign plan for the Holiday Inn and the site plan for the Greenway East Professional Center (portion of the Witt property).

The Mayor also requested that city administrative aide Michael McLaughlin obtain more data on the declining revenue from Storer Cable Television in the April through June period.

TOM WHITE

PREPARED FOR THE CHALLENGE:

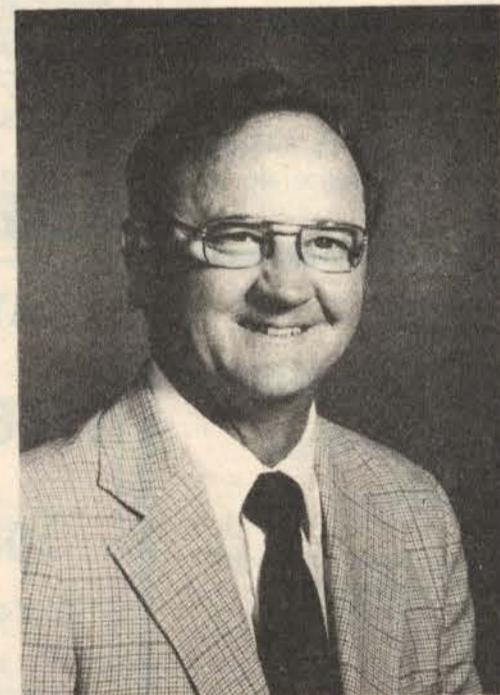

The twin issues of development and transportation are the most persistent and perplexing of any facing the next Council. Because of Greenbelt's location at the hub of interstate highways and its overall pleasing and aesthetic qualities, it has become the focal point of new development in northern Prince Georges County.

Meeting the challenges posed by the increased pressure for development will require a unified, well-informed citizenry and experienced, committed leadership guided by the following principles:

- Remaining development in the Greenbelt area should be balanced according to available public facilities and the environmental capacity of the surrounding air and water sheds;
- Overall density of development should be reduced upon review and adoption of an area sectional zoning map amendment;
- Developer's proposals and requests should be held to the strictest standards for amenities, greenspace and environmental control;
- Additional development should be curtailed until transportation improvements are in place to accommodate increased traffic;
- State and County transportation planners must show greater sensitivity to the need for pedestrian and bicycle access via overpass/underpass facilities — completing a comprehensive city-wide pathway system;
- Completion of Metro (E Route) at the earliest possible time.

These principles will continue to be my guideposts in facing the challenges of the next two years. I need YOUR support on September 20.

Thomas X. White

Our Neighbors

by Eileen Peterson

Seen at the Labor Day Festival: Ed, Wanda, Todd and Allison Hurley, who recently moved to Crofton from 26 Ridge Road; Dick French, former Center School PTA President and Greenbriar resident now living in Rockville; 79-year-old Gladys Long, who held court at the corner of Gardenway during the parade. Gladys moved into 3-B Gardenway on Oct. 18, 1937. Returned from living in Florida for the past 29 years, she greeted friends, their children and grandchildren and reminisced about life in early Greenbelt. She lives at the Greenbelt Convalescent Home and would enjoy visits from friends of those early days.

Blanche Lee is also at the Greenbelt Convalescent Home and would appreciate hearing from friends and neighbors as she recuperates from a recent hospitalization. Blanche has been a frequent News Review contributor with items about senior citizen activities.

"It's a Girl, Thank God" read the sign on the house at 26 Lakeside Drive. Inside, proud parents Charles D. and Anna M. Scarlata attended Christiana Maria, born August 31 and weighing in at 5 lbs. 9 ozs. and only 19 inches long. The tiny girl, with long, black hair has a constantly hovering trio of brothers: Shawn, 11; Jamie, 7, and Chuckie, 16 months.

Rajiv Suri of Greenoll Place recently attended the U.S. Space

Camp at the Alabama Space & Rocket Center in Huntsville. The week-long camp lets youngsters gain first-hand knowledge of space technology by participating in simulated space activities and through learning the principles of rocketry. Rajiv attends the Town-n-Country Day School.

Congratulations to Parzin Agamir of Springhill Lake on receiving a M.S. degree in Electrical Engineering at the Pennsylvania State University on August 20.

Dr. Robert Ruderman and wife Elaine, of Lakeside Drive, recently spent 10 days in London. Advised by a friend to take umbrella and raincoat against England's traditional weather, the Rudermans instead were met with one of the hottest, driest summer periods in many years. Five mornings spent in the cool British Museum gave them such pleasure that they faced good-naturedly the fact that air-conditioning is virtually unknown in England. Elaine was aghast at the sight of Londoners shopping for woolen clothing in 90-degree weather.

Edith Jamison of Westway from United Communities Against Poverty, and Sidney J. Brown, President of Beltway Plaza Development Corp., have been appointed to the Prince Georges Industry Council as Private Sector Representatives. The appointments were authorized by County Executive Parris Glendening.

Our deepest sympathy to the Osborn family on the death of their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Hilda Osborn.

 residents from all parts of the city: Bill Ayers, Bob Flynn, Kathy Gough, Don Volk, Jean Baron and Jackie Derdeyn. Herling received a savings bond from the C & P Telephone Company, a dish garden from Beltway Florists, a plaque from the Labor Day Festival Committee and a "Greenbelt Is Great" T-shirt from Greenbelt Nursery School, "a training ground not only for our preschoolers but also for their parents in the art of volunteer service." His name will be added to the plaque listing outstanding citizens which hangs in City Hall. County Councilman Richard Castaldi read a proclamation from Prince Georges County applauding Herling and thanking him "for all his contributions not only to Greenbelt, but to all of Prince Georges County." State Delegates Gerard Devlin and Joan Pitkin presented Herling with the Governor's Citation "for outstanding services to the citizens of the State."

The 1983 award was the 11th Outstanding Citizen award given each year in memory of Pop Cipriano, a pioneer in opening up Greenbelt for development. Herling, joined by his wife Fran, accepted the award to the heartfelt applause of an overflow crowd in front of the Labor Day Festival Stage. "The purpose of the award," said McCarthy, "is to recognize each year a Greenbelt resident who has given greatly of his or her time and effort to help this community and its citizens." She found it "particularly fitting that this award is given at the Labor Day Festival, which I consider the ultimate volunteer event around here."

A Letter From Bob Zugby To the Voters of Greenbelt

Dear Friends:

In my continuing campaign to meet personally with every one of you, I am constantly being reminded of the values we share in this community. Mutual respect and cooperation, and a firm dedication to a family environment, are the qualities that have made Greenbelt a truly unique community. Because of these qualities, Dea and I chose to make our home here in 1977. When Kristina was born 3½ years ago, we knew we wanted to raise her here in Greenbelt.

It is for the sake of my family, therefore, that I have dedicated my efforts to the preservation of these values in the Greenbelt community. My contributions to Greenbriar (where we reside), the Community Relations Advisory Board, the Crime Prevention Committee, the Greenbelt Arts Trust, the City Council, and other community organizations are various expressions of this commitment.

Because I want my daughter to grow up with a sense of safety and security, I have consistently worked for effective police protection backed by citizen involvement in crime prevention. Because I would like Kristina constantly exposed to the best creations of the human mind and spirit, I have worked for the enhancement of the cultural arts in Greenbelt. Because I want Kristina to share her parents' sense of wonder at the works of nature as God created it, I will continue to strive to preserve and expand what remains of our beautiful green spaces and parks. Most importantly, I will strive to be sensitive to the desires of all our citizens in all civic matters in order to teach our daughter by example the kind of human being we would like her to become.

If you share these values and this commitment on behalf of your own families, then I invite you to vote for me on September 20. that I may continue to serve on our city council. My only promise to you is that, regardless of the outcome of this election, my commitment shall remain.

Sincerely
Bob Zugby
