Castaldi Drafts Bill to Preserve Center School as Historic Site

by Philip J. Hanyok

Prince Georges County Councilman Richard J. Castaldi recalls climbing on the Art Deco sculptures of Greenbelt Center Elementary School when he was a child. Now he is fighting to designate the school as a county historic site.

Castaldi, 39, attended classes, roller skating sessions and other recreational events at Center School when he was a youngster. Sometimes, like many before and after him, he would climb the building's carved structures with his friends.

"We would climb up on the Art Deco to be able to reach the windows" to see what was going on inside the building, he said. "We didn't quite understand the significance" of the sculptures then. But, he said, he knew the building was different and he admired it with a kind of awe. "It's part of my growing up," he said.

Center School means a lot to Castaldi and he wants to preserve it, so he has drafted a bill that would shorten the time needed to designate the school as a county historic site and place it on the county's Historic Sites and District Plan.

The school's existence became threatened last August when the Prince Georges County Board of Education, which owns the building, considered replacing the structure with an up-to-date elementary school building. It was then that interest in preserving the edifice began to grow. Support came from Richard Striner, president of the Art Deco Society of Washington, Congressman Steny Hoyer, Delegate Gerry Devlin, County Executive Parris Glendening, James Goode, Keeper of the Smithsonian Castle, Greenbelt officials and others. Later the school board quickly agreed to "renovate the significant portions of the school."

In November Striner asked the Greenbelt City Council to support an application to place the school on the Historic Sites and District Plan. Council agreed to co-sponsor the application, which was sent to the Prince Georges County Historic Preservation Commission to begin the long review process.

Review Process

Placing the school on the Historic Sites and District Plan is "a much longer process than any of us had imagined and I don't want to take the long route," Castaldi said.

According to Warren Kahle of the Prince Georges County Planning Board, the current process, which amends the master plan, takes about a year because there are so many steps and most steps require a 60- or 90-day review period. During these review periods, hearings are held to allow the public to comment on the amendment to the master plan. Kahle calls the current process "rather cumbersome."

Center School, according to Kahle, has an unusual character that is worth preserving. "There are so few Art Deco buildings around I think we ought to preserve it," he said.

The school, built in 1937, has six sculptured panels which depict the Preamble of the Constitution (We the People . . .). Carved by Lenore Thomas, a New Deal WPA artist, the panels can be reached from the ground and children often climb them. Thomas also carved the Mother and Child statue in the Center (Roosevelt Mall).

The building itself was designed by Reginald Wadsworth and Douglas Ellington, Resettlement Administration architects who designed much of original Greenbelt.

The building is "one of the prime Art Deco sites in the area and it should be preserved," Castaldi said.

James Goode, Keeper of the Smithsonian Castle, has said that Center School is one of the five best Art Deco structures in the Washington area.

According to Kahle, designating Center School as an historic site would "assure that any renovations or exterior changes preserve the character of the structure."

Once it is on the county's Historic Sites and District Plan, a list of about 150 county sites, any proposed changes to the structure would require review by the Historic Preservation Commission.

If the school doesn't make it onto the Historic Sites and District Plan, modifications to the exterior of the building could be made with only the usual permits required.

Not only would the building be protected from renovations but, according to Castaldi, funds would become available to preserve the structure and possibly some tax credits could be gained. There are some "real incentives to do this," he said.

On January 17 the Prince Georges County Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to recommend to the County Council that the school be designated as a county historic site and be added to the County Historic Sites and District Plan.

Leslie Kreimer, Board of Education member, and Jon Peterson, county school administrative staff, both expressed a willingness to have the school designated as an historic site.

Now the issue must go to the County Council for further review. Castaldi hopes his new legislation will expedite the designation of Center School as a county historic site so that it will be preserved.

Castaldi agrees with Richard Striner, president of the Art Deco Society of Washington: "The time to do it is now."

50th Anniversary Group Begins Planning for 1987

The Greenbelt 50th Anniversary Committee, which held its organizational meeting on March 6, elected Sandra Barnes as its director, with Al Herling as vice chairman. The purpose of the committee is to assist the mayor and council in preparing for Greenbelt's 1987 Fiftieth Anniversary Celebration.

The committee will send letters to all known local organizations notifying them of the committee's existence and asking for their participation, ideas and suggestions. Council will also be asked to approve a public hearing to get thoughts from all Greenbelt citizens who are interested. After replies to the letters are received and a hearing is held, subcommittees will be formed, plans and policies drafted, and a report submitted to Council for its review and comments, before actual work is undertaken.

In informal discussions, a suggestion was made by Alan Virta that perhaps not all anniversary activities would have to take place in 1987, but that preliminary work could be started such as developing a slide and script show that would be available for presentation to organizations and schools in 1985 and 1986 to foster interest in the anniversary celebrations. Other items included the possibility of having a booth at the Labor Day Festival, developing a logo for the celebration, and continuation of the Collection of Recollections program that was begun with the 45th Anniversary celebration.

Steve Polaschik volunteered to write items for the Greenbelt News Review to keep Greenbelt residents aware of the committee's work.

Co-op Will Not Close

GCC Wins Bid to Buy Co-op

by Jim Cassels

The new Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative (GCC) successfully bid for Greenbelt's Co-op Supermarket and Pharmacy. The seller, Greenbelt Cooperative, Inc. (GCI) will continue to manage the facilities until the new owners are ready to take control, in about one month.

A private operator whose bid far exceeded that of GCC, won the right to purchase the Co-op Service Station. The new owner promises to continue to employ Dave Meadows and the rest of his Greenbelt staff.

In addition to financing, GCC must obtain necessary licenses and permits to begin its operation of the facilities. The store will continue to open each day.

GCC plans to borrow $400,000 from the National Consumer Cooperative Bank. Combined with what it has raised and a second smaller loan from the co-op bank's subsidiary development corporation, GCC will purchase for approximately $500,000 all the inventory, store equipment, store improvements and supplies — everything but the building. One of the conditions the co-op bank is imposing on GCC is that the new Co-op demonstrate community support by having a minimum "family enrollment" of 1,000. The board expects to have more information on this requirement before its next meeting.

The GCC board will meet Friday, April 6 at 8 p.m. at the Greenbelt Homes offices on Hamilton Place. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Utopia One-Acts Bill To Be Signed for Deaf

Friday evening's 8:15 performance of the Tennessee Williams' One-Act Plays will be "signed" for the hearing impaired, according to Marie Tousignant, publicist for the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center.

The April 6 and 7 performances are the last in a three-week run of the three-in-one-evening production at the Utopia Theatre.

Donations from the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Maryland State Arts Council have made possible the construction of unique stage sets for this production, Tousignant explains.

Patrons at last weekend's performance mentioned the new sets as the most striking feature of the plays. Joyce Chestnut of Springhill Lake commented that the use of the same backdrops for all three plays—with minimal addition of props to suit each play—seemed to carry the theme of human relationships exceptionally well.

The plays featured are "The Lady of Larkspur Lotion," "This Property is Condemned," and "Something Unspoken." The plays are separate in plot but unified by the theme of how human relationships develop and influence decisions.

The plays are being presented by the Greenbelt Players, most of whom live in Greenbelt.

CORRECTION

Last week's story by Elaine Skolnik on page 12 of this newspaper on the proposed development of 667 town houses on 88 acres of land adjacent to the southeast (Windsor Green) boundary of Greenbelt may have gone unnoticed by some of our readers. A wrong headline suggested the story concerned a different set of development plans — for Lakeside West. The newspaper recommends that interested readers who did not find that story may wish to look again at last week's issue. We regret the inconvenience.

The Last Word

To the Editor:

To achieve needed community amity, the best course would be to declare a moratorium on claims and counter claims on the issues surrounding the change-over in our food and service station.

In defining our goals, it should be noted that a number of the petitioners definitively indicated they were supporting only the second portion of the request pertaining to continuation of services. Their concerns have been allayed because an organization is in place to take over the facilities.

To reiterate the second point in my previous letter, our focus now should be on strengthening the foundations of the new Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative (GCC). Legal restraints have been swept aside and our services have been saved by GCC through the formation of a group to shoulder the responsibility of maintaining these services. Since saving our services is the common goal, the time has come to shelve the rhetoric and channel all efforts toward implementing GCC's program.

Once again, let's concentrate on the beef!!

A rally for supporters of Senator Gary Hart will be held April 10—the evening of the Pennsylvania Presidential Primary—at Jason's, 10108 Greenbelt Road, from 8 to 12 p.m.

A donation is being requested by organizers of the rally, which will provide live band music and "munchies" and a cash bar, according to Bernie Horn, 5th District coordinator for Hart.

Nearby offices are Suitland, 568-0222 and Wheaton, 949-6030 and TTY 949-6032.

SOS Unnecessary

To the Editor:

In response to David Lange's letter which appeared last week, I would offer the following to increase his understanding of "What's Going On":

- The proponents of a city sponsored meeting really wanted City of Greenbelt support for pursuing legal and other efforts to have GCI rescind the announced divestiture. I opposed any city involvement in what was a business decision of a private organization.

- By the time "Save Our Services" (SOS) was formed, there was already a group seeking legal redress and Jim Cassei's group had already begun their positive effort to form a new co-op to take over the services—SOS was unnecessary and/or duplicate.

- SOS unduly alarmed the community that the food store, pharmacy and service station facilities were going to be "lost". Anyone who read the GCI press release and other announcements at the end of 1983 would realize that all operations would continue uninterrupted. Events have borne those pronouncements out.

- A practical and responsible assessment of the best approach to preserve local control over the existing services was, of course, full support for the new cooperative. As a community leader, that is the effort that received my unqualified support.

- A realistic assessment of the divestiture decision demonstrates that there was simply no leverage for effecting a change in the legal GCI decision. We could no more persuade GCI to reconsider than we could convince Twin Pines, another cooperative, not to merge itself out of existence.

- SOS, on the other hand, served to confuse the issue. It inflated its own importance and released for the press inaccurate information that had to be corrected in later issues or by letters to the Editor. Probably more than anything else the SOS organization provided a "safe harbor" for those who merely wanted to engage in political posturing. Here I make a distinction between the men, women and children who signed the SOS petition and the small group that provides whatever leadership there is in SOS.

I agree fully with Mr. Lange's comments on the lack of unified community leadership. That leadership should be focused on the real challenge, as noted in the News Review editorial, namely, getting new members, patrons and supporters so that the new cooperative taking over the food and pharmacy operations this month will thrive.

TRAFFIC LIGHT INSTALLED AT GREEN RIDGE HOUSE

Motorists driving on Ridge Road should be alert for the new traffic signal at the pedestrian crossing in front of Green Ridge House. The traffic light was installed at the direction of the City Council after it received complaints that motorists were ignoring yellow flashing caution signals previously located at this crosswalk. The signal is to help provide for a safe crossing for residents of Green Ridge House who walk to the Center.

Many of the residents, while able to walk to the Center and other places in the city, suffer impairments in seeing, hearing or mobility and therefore have difficulty in crossing this busy street.

Cultural Arts Center Sets Agenda for Coming Year

by Eileen Peterson

The Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center is alive and well and bursting with plans for the coming years, according to president Konrad Herling, at the Center's 5th annual membership meeting on March 29.

Herling outlined some of the immediate plans of the Center: the scenery (flats) previously stored in the theater have been moved to a room elsewhere in Greenbelt, and new drapes will be hung on the side walls the last weekend in April. Casting for "The Diary of Anne Frank" is being done amid plans to raise funds to match a grant given by the Maryland Arts Council for the production of that play; the Central Maryland Ballet is planning its role as the Center's resident ballet company (including a ballet in June and summer dance classes for senior citizens and children); and acting workshops will soon be organized at the Center.

In the next few weeks, plans will be made in partnership with the Greenbelt Recreation Department, headed by Hank Irving, to present matinee programs of films and puppet shows for children.

Herling noted that 70 of the 240 theater seats in the Center are still available for those who would like to purchase a seat as a direct donation or in memory or in honor of someone else. For information about the seats, call 345-4487.

The Utopia Theatre in the Roosevelt (Center) Mall has been used by the GCAC for plays by the Greenbelt Players and other groups, for dance programs (including the Greenbelt debut of the Central Maryland Ballet Company presenting "The Nutcracker"), for films, forums and exhibits. Plans call for more exhibits of the works of local artists. The Center will also sponsor its Second Annual Arts and Crafts Fair on June 2.

Board Members

New members were added to the Board, bringing the total to 20. Officers elected are President Konrad Herling, Vice-President Norene Yoch, Treasurer John Ward, and Secretary Becky Putens.

Other Board members include Jeff Beyrent, Lindley Darden, Albert Herling, Joe Isaacs, Fann Kash, Michael Moore, Nick Mydra, Gail Neumann, Eileen Peterson, Suzanne Plogman, Tom Schreiber, Marie Tousignant, Pat Valle, Ken Voigt, Muriel Weidenfeld and Gas Weiland.

Membership Drive

A membership drive to increase community participation in the non-profit arts center will allow the newly elected Board of Directors to consider expanding the services of the Center.

Anyone who wants to be involved in any way with the life of the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center is encouraged to contact any board member or fill out a membership form before or after any of the Center's productions, comments Herling. Volunteers will be needed to help hang the new drapes and to help in many areas of the expanded programs. He also urges those past members who have not renewed their memberships to send a $10 check to the Center at P.O. Box 293, Greenbelt, Md. 20770.

SO MANY HOMES HAVE SOLD, I HAVE A NEED FOR MORE PROPERTIES TO SELL!

CONSIDERING A CHANGE IN RESIDENCE?

There are three key elements to consider:

- A) Your needs: things you positively have to have.
- B) Your wants: things you'd like to have, but don't necessarily need.
- C) Your qualifications:
 - 1) Your initial investment (cash to move in)
 - 2) Your total income (gross yearly income)
 - 3) Your debt service (total indebtedness)

I would like the opportunity to discuss with you how we can combine these three factors to assist you and your family in achieving your housing goals both within Greenbelt and the metropolitan area - of course with no obligation.

The program is designed to provide fun and exercise for ladies and gentlemen 60 years and over, but retirees 55 and over are also welcome. No experience or skill is needed, only an interest in sharing a good time while playing softball. The Greenbelt Recreation Department will provide the participants with everything needed — bats, balls, the fields and even a uniform hat. The program is free of charge. At the organizational meeting, Volunteer Coordinator Tony Pisano will be on hand to discuss specific playing schedules with players. Free coffee and pastries will be served.
