Centennial Festivities Mark Greenbelt's Special Feelings for Eleanor Roosevelt

by Kelly A. J. Powers

Although Greenbelt, along with the rest of the nation, will be celebrating the Centennial of former First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt's October 12 birthday this week, the city will also be celebrating Mrs. Roosevelt's personal involvement with Greenbelt. For it was with her concern and actions that Greenbelt was first started.

A member of President Franklin Roosevelt's brain Trust, Rexford Guy Tugwell, first thought of the idea of making the perfect community, one that would encourage the identities and freedoms of each town member. Mrs. Roosevelt seized the idea and pushed for action with President Roosevelt. "It was Eleanor's idea and influence that got the idea going," says J. Davis, of the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club. "She really took it upon herself personally to see that the town was going to be there. She stopped by often to see how it was going."

In fact, several town members remember her visits were frequent, to the point where Mrs. Roosevelt and her Secret Service entourage became a familiar sight.

Greenbelt was built as one of the three planned New Deal "greenbelt" towns that existed on the periphery of an urban city.

2, 1968, Mrs. Roosevelt's daughter, Mrs. James A. Halsted, said, "I remember that both my parents had a very personal interest in the development of greenbelt towns and both of them felt it was a shame that a conservative swing (in Congress) made it impossible to build more greenbelt towns around the peripheries of urban cities."

Mrs. Roosevelt was interested in the more personal aspects of these green towns. Since Greenbelt was so close to Washington, D.C., Mrs. Roosevelt was able often to see first-hand how a greenbelt town such as Greenbelt was functioning. She visited Center School many times and appeared at a Defense Rally in February 1942 when $1,000 was collected for the war effort. (See separate article from News Review of Nov. 25, 1971.)

In each of her visits Mrs. Roosevelt praised the neighborly spirit of the Greenbelters and asked them to constantly rededicate themselves to the original community spirit.

Council Picks PAS for Police Study; Five New Officers Sworn In by Mayor

by Sandra Barnes

Five new police officers were sworn in at the Monday, October 1, meeting of the Greenbelt City Council. This brings the city's police force strength to 31 uniformed officers an increase of one over the past year. However, 34 officers are authorized by January 1. Included in the five are two women, Carolyn Kane and Leslie Hodge, and three men, Michael Jeffreys, Bob Keller, and Frank Simpson. Hodge previously served the city as a police cadet.

In line with adding more police officers to the force is the decision of the City Council to engage a consultant to study the operation and management of the department. Although the city manager expressed no great enthusiasm for the project, noting that often such studies are costly and of limited usefulness, he nevertheless recommended the Public Administration Service (PAS) be hired at a cost not to exceed $20,833. The unsuccessful competing firm was the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Remembering their pledge to the citizens in the last election, council voted unanimously (4 to 0 with member Toni Bram absent) to support the staffs recommendation. PAS has performed similar studies for other jurisdictions.

The study had been requested by a number of citizens over a year ago. Some citizens were upset by procedures of the department which led to one officer's being suspended from the force. In another incident, an officer was charged with brutality. This case resulted in a lawsuit being filed against the city.

However, as the council emphasized, this study would be an evaluation of the department and would include such items as an assessment of management practices, staffing, scheduling, deployment and supervision of personnel; an organizational analysis; an assessment of need for changes; and a determination as to whether the department should seek accreditation. PAS will develop an implementation plan based on its findings and recommendations.

Beltway Plaza Revisited

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld commented on grading being performed at Beltway Plaza on property that is adjacent to Springhill Lake. "I am at a loss to know exactly what is happening," he said. Giese replied that the owner had obtained a grading permit, but little else was known about the owner's intentions. It was suspected that the grading might be in preparation for the building of the proposed new theatres on the property.

Mayor Weidenfeld objected to the destruction of the hill which provided a visual barrier to the Springhill Lake complex. However, Giese commented that at the time of development of Beltway See COUNCIL, p. 6, col. 1

Townhouse Construction Proposed For Expected Storm Water Pond

by Philip J. Hanyok

Western Development Corporation has proposed construction of residential townhouses for the site which has been under consideration to serve as a storm water management facility for Greenway Center and the Maryland Trade Center.

The Greenbelt City Council reviewed the proposal by the developers of Greenway Center on September 10 and voted to recommend denial of the plan. The Advisory Planning Board (APB) also recommended denial of the plan because "this area has been proposed for use as a storm water detention facility."

The more than seven acre tract, known as the Witt tract, is located on Hanover Parkway opposite the Greenway East Professional Center. It was rezoned from high-rise apartments (R-10) to residential townhouses (R-T) at the time of rezoning for the Maryland Trade Center.

The Preliminary Plan of Subdivision proposed 84 "piggyback-type" townhouses with a density of 12 units per acre. "Piggyback-type" townhouses have one unit above or below two side-by-side units.

Nearly a year ago the City Council went on record as supporting a Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) plan that would use a major portion of the Witt tract to create a natural ponding storm water detention facility.

According to city staff, the proposed development was an attempt by the owner to make the WSSC "express its intent on the property." The WSSC has since provided a letter indicating that it intends to establish a storm water detention facility on the site with construction in 1986.

According to an APB report, the WSSC, as of September 5, had not yet acquired the property.

The board also made recommendations to the council should the preliminary plan be approved by the county. First, "the city should request a site plan review be granted prior to issuance of any building permit."

Second, "any development on this parcel should be made subject to the adequacy of public facilities, particularly roads." Also, development should not proceed until after construction of Maryland Trade Center III because the trade center is further along in the planning process. Allowing smaller developments to proceed first would delay construction of the trade center III because changes in proposed road improvements might be needed.

And third, any site plan should indicate the location of the needed right-of-way for the extension of Ora Glen Drive across from Greenway Center Drive."

In Memoriam Josie Yakupkovic

The Yakupkovics: our next door neighbors for more than 16 years. They watched our three children and we observed their six children grow, leave home, marry, bear children — as the years and generations of persons naturally flow. And then one day, less than two years ago, Josie got a little worried about this lump — oh, no problem, a non-major surgical procedure to correct; in and out of the hospital in no time. True, that's usually the case—but not this time. It was a monstrous problem, involving a very rare form of that most dreaded disease—soft tissue sarcoma—medical gobble-di-gook that said, without saying it out loud—"bad news." She never gave in and she never gave up. Yet the disease defied all and so finally she succumbed on August 7, 1984.

No! Not Josie! Not our Josie! All those years that she—as a woman, as a homemaker, as a peer professional—was a person al inspiration to me: a woman physician, a mother, a wife (who can't boil water without burning it). Josie was able to work to within two months of her death and continue to inspire her co-workers and subordinates at Greenbelt Convalescent Center with "Come on folks, let's get busy. We've got work to do!" and they did it; with her never flagging as leader of the pack.

They were such a devoted, faithfully religious, cohesive family—she was still so needed. As one who is also deeply religious, I am tempted to say to God, "Un-fair! Too soon! The mid-fifties is too young to go in 1984. Why?" But like them trusting God, I have no recourse but to conclude, "Her earthly work was finished."

The day after Josie's funeral, the youngest grandchild was christened. There is death, and there is life.

I can only say this—many of us in Greenbelt knew her, loved her, respected her. Her family is in our prayers, but most importantly—we won't forget her. — "Doc Anne" Zevallos

Police Chief Closes Investigation

(Editor's Note: Greenbelt Chief of Police Francis T. Hutson has administratively closed a departmental investigation into the actions of city police officers involved in the arrest of a motorcyclist more than three years ago. In a letter to City Manager James K. Giese dated September 12, 1984, Hutson explains "that too great a time has taken place for any action to be taken against an individual." The complete text of Hutson's letter is reprinted below.

(The investigation grew out of an incident on August 14, 1981, when the police car driven by Greenbelt police officer Fred E. Murray collided with the motorcycle driven by Greenbelt resident Peter Ladnier. Ladnier subsequently charged Murray with responsibility for the collision and with unnecessary use of force in restraining and handcuffing Ladnier after the accident. Charges were also filed by Ladnier against the City of Greenbelt, its police department, and then-Chief of Police William T. Lane. At the trial of these charges before the Fourth District Court, the City of Greenbelt, its police department, and Lane were exonerated. Murray was held liable, in his individual capacity, for damages for use of unjustified force against Ladnier, but was not held liable for damages for the collision. Both sides have appealed the finding of the trial.

(The text of Hutson's letter follows:)

Dear Mr. Giese:

This is to inform you that I have administratively closed the investigation of the incident of Peter Ladnier, as it related to the actions of Pfc. Murray and those of an unidentified second officer, without action being taken against any individual.

I have done so based on my review of the departmental files, verification of appropriate procedures to be followed as set forward in the Maryland Law Enforcement Officers' Bill of Rights and rules of procedure for administrative hearings, and my conclusion confirmed with the city solicitor, that too great a time has taken place for any action to be taken against an individual.

As you are aware, this incident took place on August 14, 1981. The basis for investigating this matter was a complaint from an individual who was not an alleged victim. The alleged victim not only failed to make an official complaint, but did not cooperate in the investigation that was conducted. The subsequent filing of a civil proceeding naming Officer Murray, Chief Lane and the City of Greenbelt, further complicated the resolution of this matter. At this time there is no expectation that the civil matter will be resolved at an early date.

In reviewing this matter it is my determination that the Police Department Rules and Regulations, promulgated administratively by the former chief which were in effect at the time, were not followed as they related to the time limit for completing Internal Investigations and notifying the officer as to the findings. Further, based on my review of this matter, with persons knowledgeable and experienced in the conduct of Internal Affairs and Administrative Hearings, under the Law Enforcement Officers' Bill of Rights, I must conclude that the appropriate rules of procedure were not followed in that the actions were not taken against individuals within a reasonable period of time.

It is my policy and practice to cause the investigation of all complaints against members of this department to be conducted expeditiously, thoroughly and without bias and to take such actions within my authority as are determined most appropriate in the interest of the City, its citizens, the Department and its employees.

Francis T. Hutson
Chief of Police

Greenbelt A Look At The Beginnings

(In the fourth in a five-part series on Greenbelt's beginnings, the new town with only four years under its belt meets a new crisis — war.)

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times."

—Dickens, A Tale Of Two Cities

By the autumn of 1941, Greenbelt had become quite a community for residents living in it; the experiment was thus far successful. The town was completed; the homes occupied; the municipal services—fire department, police department, schools, and public works—were operating successfully; and social activities such as dances, clubs, church services, and town meetings were a constant occurrence. The health clinic was operating at full capacity and the commercial center, completely supervised by the residents, was making a profit.

The people of Greenbelt were happy, content, enjoying their new home and the people in it. But on the infamous day of December 7, 1941 this would change and Greenbelt would begin operating on a war footing.

In 1940 conscription had been activated and many of Greenbelt's young men enlisted to serve their country. Peace drives were held in the community as refugees from occupied Europe and Asia came to America. In the elementary school Senator Gerald P. Nye was making speeches about the coming war, while residents entertained refugees who came to see their town. Contemplation about when their country would enter the war was prevalent in the minds of Greenbelt's residents.

Prior to the war, in September 1938, the theatre showed its first film, Little Miss Broadway, which featured curly haired Shirley Temple. Before the film was shown, however, the theatre, as was normal practice then, started the evening with a news reel. The first picture flashed across the screen was that of Adolph Hitler, which was quickly sneered and hissed at by the 500 children who came to see little Miss Temple. These children were unaware that they would soon be adapting to a new life style so their country could put an end to Hitler's war-making.

On December 8, after sadly hearing the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor, many of the men in town gathered at the commercial center. In another recollection from Dorothy Lauber's

The Greenbelt Theater, the nation's first cooperative movie, opened its doors on Wednesday, September 21, 1938. The first film starred Shirley Temple in "Little Miss Broadway."

A Collection of Recollections, Richard Benson, who came to Greenbelt in 1938, when he was 16 years old, remembers that "We young men gathered as if by instinct at the Center. Nothing much was said, but we were pensive, wondering what was coming next."

More men began to enlist as the town's newspaper the "Co-operator" began publishing instructions for air raid drills. In February 1942, Eleanor Roosevelt attended one of many Civil Defense Rallies that were held at the elementary school. In her "My Day" column for the "Washington Daily News" Mrs. Roosevelt wrote this about Greenbelt: "The meeting was in the school house, for they have there a real conception of community activity and work. . . . I had a sense of community spirit, which we must develop now everywhere in our country."

And as the Defense Rallies continued, so did the drives. Besides the peace drives, there came bond drives, blood drives, and aluminum drives. There were drives to recruit Air Observation Corp volunteers to scout the skies for enemy aircraft. There were Red Cross drives and drives by organizations such as the American Legion and Woman's Club. So successful was the Woman's Club drive in raising money for war planes that a fighter air craft was named after the club.

A defense council was organized, which appointed an Air Raid Warden, who in turn appointed block wardens to insure that everyone would install blackout curtains and keep their lights off at night.

As the war went on, with some of the town's young men going off to fight in it, the residents continued their patriotic endeavors of drives and rallies. Although they had to sacrifice like everyone else in the country by rationing food, gas, and other commodities, life became more community-minded. A harmonious existence was created within the borders of the "green belt." By 1943 the town was adapting well to the new life style. It was at this time, however, that Roy Braden, the town's first manager, re-

In 1945, as the war came to an end in Europe and then in Asia, Greenbelt proudly celebrated the victory and return of its young men, while mourning quietly those who had died in the fighting. Our Community

"Only by cooperation, by pulling together, can we make Greenbelt the success its sponsors want it to be."

— Eleanor Roosevelt
in her column "My Day," published after the December 15, 1937, visit to Greenbelt.

An Early Visit

(These excerpts are taken from the issue of Nov. 25, 1971—"Atlantis on the Hill" by Robert Muller).

... "An apocryphal story is told of a visitor to early Greenbelt who, noting the relative isolation of the town, asked a local resident what people do here in their spare time. Back came the rejoinder, 'We organize.'"

Organize they did, with thirty-seven clubs established in the first few months of Greenbelt's existence. One old-time resident reminisced, "Before the Maryland Legislature made it a city, Greenbelt was a lusty, brawling town. Folks were alive and dynamic. They attacked community problems and civic events with enterprising vigor."

... In fact, civic affairs came to attract such enthusiasm that The Cooperator (later the News Review) was persuaded to endorse "Stay at Home Week," in which all public meetings would be cancelled.

The national press jumped on this development. "Where are the Nation's vast experiments in regimentation to end if, in the model closest to the Capital, citizens unanimously prefer staying at home and minding their own business to organizing details of their own and their neighbors' lives."

These developments eventually reached President Roosevelt through his able assistant, Eleanor. In November, 1937, Wallace Richards, the Executive Director for Pittsburgh's Municipal Planning Association, pleaded for Mrs. Roosevelt's intercession with FDR on behalf of Greenbelt. She responded with a memorandum for Missy Lehman on November 4, 1937. "FDR, this seems to me most important. There is a new experience being involved which curtailment may seriously hurt. Won't you look into it" Two days later Franklin replied, "I suggest that you and Will Alexander go out to Greenbelt and see it some morning or afternoon after you get back."

Therefore, on December 15, the First Lady made a surprise visit to Greenbelt, praised the neighborly spirit and studied the co-op store project; found the children happily at work in school; and sought information on medical plans. The visit, and Mrs. Roosevelt's follow-up column in the syndicated My Day, prompted Greenbelters to rededicate themselves to their original ideals. "Greenbelt must be raised to such a lofty plane that no exponents of selfishness and greed will ever dare point to it in their arguments against a better housed America. And only by cooperation, by pulling together, can we make Greenbelt the success its sponsors want it to be."

Applicants Accepted For Page Program

The Maryland State Department of Education is now accepting applications for the 1985 Maryland State Page Program. Nineteen Pages and four alternates will be selected from Prince Georges County public and private schools.

The program is designed to interest youth in state government, foster leadership among youth and provide students with worthwhile experiences in state government.

Applicants should be high school seniors, at least 16 years of age and reside within the state of Maryland. Students selected for the program will be assigned duties in either the House of Delegates or State Senate for two one-week sessions.

Students interested in applying for the program should contact their school principal. For more information, contact James Kern at 567-3800.

Eleanor Roosevelt Celebrations

Clearly Mrs. Roosevelt's visits were more than courtesy calls, says J Davis; they reflected instead "a personal concern of Mrs. Roosevelt's for the development of the people and the town of Greenbelt." Because of this special relationship, Greenbelt has always felt an obligation to Mrs. Roosevelt's memory.

For example, when the Eleanor Roosevelt High School was being built in 1975/6, it was slated to be named after President Roosevelt. Immediately several Greenbelters interjected, asking that instead it be named after Mrs. Roosevelt, who, they argued, was so interested in the lives of the people of the community.

The Democratic Club itself was named after both the Roosevelts, with the former first lady's name placed first.

In November, 1968, a white oak tree on Crescent Rd. was dedicated to Mrs. Roosevelt with a plaque. (See box.) Unfortunately the tree died after a fence was implanted around it, severing the tree's roots. The tree was never chopped down, however, because of its significance for the community. This was the tree Mrs. Roosevelt had stood under in 1937 when Greenbelt was first pictured as the New Deal dream town, a town to be built for and by New Deal policies. Thus the tree remains on Crescent Rd. with ivy vines now engulfing its trunk.

But soon the tree will have company in its symbolic connection with Mrs. Roosevelt. The Roosevelt Democratic Club is planning to plant a 16-foot blue spruce in November to honor Mrs. Roosevelt. "The tree will be planted almost exactly where the old Christmas tree is, near the Municipal Building, sometime in November," says J Davis. There will be an early ceremony dedicating the tree, however, on Saturday, October 13 at 11 a.m., when a representative tree is presented. The blue spruce has been donated by the Prudential Life Insurance Co.

In addition to the tree planting, the city of Greenbelt has proclaimed the week of October 7-13 to be Eleanor Roosevelt Week. The Roosevelt Democratic Club is also sponsoring a writing and graphic arts contest in each of the five Greenbelt public schools. Two winners from each school level and in each of the two categories will win a $50 U.S. Saving Bond. Awards will be presented at the Utopia Theater following the tree dedica-

Free Patterns Available For Doll-makers Here

Free patterns for rag dolls to be donated to the "Toys for Tots" drive in December will be available at Saturday's Flea Market in the Center, announces Dee Raley, coordinator of the project.

A Greenbelt resident many years ago, Dee has obtained the patterns for Greenbelt doll-makers and for a similar drive in Crofton, where she now lives. Those who cannot pick up a pattern Saturday can call her at 721-0513. The patterns may also be had by leaving a name and phone number at 441-8770.

Hand-made dolls as well as other new toys will be collected early in December. All dolls will be exhibited and judged one Saturday morning in the lobby of the Greenbelt Arts Center, a sponsor of the project for a second year.

In Washington, at the Museum of American History (8th & F St.) the exhibit, "Eleanor Roosevelt: First Person Singular," will run through January, 1985. And during the weekend of October 12, a special series: "Eleanor's Day: A Weekend of Programs," will be held at the Museum. Call 357-4090 for details.

Council Looks at Beltway Plaza Development

Plaza in the early 1960s, people had objected to the large hills of dirt resulting from the construction.

Councilman Tom White reported on a meeting held with County Councilman Richard Castaldi, Robert Cline, M-NCPPC Development Review Division; Mike Petrenko, M-NCPPC Zoning Division; and Mike McLaughlin, administrative assistant. Discussion centered on whether legislation could be proposed at the county level which would somehow make Beltway Plaza conform to a site approval process before the developer undertakes construction. Beltway Plaza operates under legislation which permits the developer almost free reign on construction without prior site plan approval from the affected municipality or the county. Subsequent legislation passed in the 1970s requires such approval, but Beltway Plaza is under no such constraints.

White recommended that the city pursue the two proposals discussed in the meeting with Castaldi. These proposals included 1) denying access to developer Sidney Brown to Breezewood Drive from Beltway Plaza for health, safety and welfare reasons and 2) legislation which would grant a general waiver to current development requirements on projects subdivided prior to 1970 if the developer agreed to meet certain other standards.

White further urged that pressure be put on the county to inspect Beltway Plaza for building code violations such as overly large signs, erosion, and broken pavements. Such violations could force the developer to seek the city's cooperation in order to have the deficiencies cleared up, White contended.

Plateau Place Island

Nine residents of Plateau Place petitioned the city council to reconsider its vote to include an island in the plans for reconstruction of that street. Residents maintained that such an island would be hazardous and that other ways to beautify the area (e.g. flowering trees) could be used. The council then voted to change its previous vote, deleting the island from the reconstruction plans.

Boxwood Baseball

Council discussed the request of David Moran, vice president of the Boxwood Civic Association, who wanted a one-half court practice basketball court installed on Parcel 7, adjacent to the existing tot playground. The cost of the facility is estimated to be approximately $5,100. Since council has not budgeted for such a facility, members were reluctant to consider it. Council members also opposed "piece-meal development of that parcel and suggested that Boxwood come back to council with an overall development plan for the tract.

Moran was reminded of the history of the site when residents had been appalled by the destruction of the vegetation when the developer, Charles Bresler leveled the property in the late 1960s. Since the city purchased Parcel 7 as parkland, residents have expressed happiness over its return to a more natural state.

Prudential Insurance, developers of the Golden Triangle, proposed extensive planting on the Golden Triangle complex along Walker Drive. Giese was concerned that the area was being "overplanted" with trees and evergreens. Council approved the tree planting and landscaping plan subject to certain conditions such as reservation by the city of the right to remove any plant that created a traffic hazard or was not in good condition. The Advisory Planning Board, council and the city manager commended Prudential on its beautification efforts.

Commemorating Eleanor

In celebration of Eleanor Roosevelt's 100th birthday, council heard from Gary Kohn, president of the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club, and J Davis, its former president, on the club's plans to celebrate the event. The plans include a contest involving Greenbelt school children, who have been asked to respond in written or graphic form to the theme of "Eleanor Roosevelt's Contributions to America." Prizes are to be awarded. The club also presented to the city a photograph of Eleanor to match the one of her husband currently hanging in the council chambers.

Further, the club wants to donate a tree to the city in Mrs. Roosevelt's honor, one which would eventually replace the city's Christmas tree, thought to be dying.

A reception to commemorate the birthday is being planned for October 13.

The club also requested that the city provide an appropriate frame for the photograph and a cash donation if the city preferred a larger tree than the one the club was prepared to purchase.

Council agreed to participate with the club in its efforts and issued its own proclamation for the week of October 8 to be declared Eleanor Roosevelt week in Greenbelt. Speaking on behalf of Prudential Developers, Kathleen Moore offered to donate the tree to the city.

Council voted to pursue its recommendation to the county that Citizens Bank not be permitted to add additional signage to its building. The firm of Greenman-Pederson was selected to perform the engineering work for the reconstruction of Gardenway and Ridge Road from Westway to 7 court Crescent. Approved an ordinance to place a stop sign at the intersection of Laurel Hill and Hillside Road. Mayor Weidenfeld and councilmember Ed Putens were designated as the official delegates to the annual National League of Cities Conference in Indianapolis. Councilmember Tom White also announced his intention to attend.

GHI Board Seeks Permanent Solutions for Basement Water

by Mavis Fletcher

Questions about ground water in and around the new townhouses in the 5 Court of Laurel Hill Road — whether, how much, why, where and does it matter — occupied a large part of the meeting of the board of directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. on Sept. 26. Jay Freedman, GHI superintendent of Contract Processing and Technical Services, and Walter Petzold of the engineering firm Oyster, Imus and Petzold presented a plan to bury perforated pipe in a rock-filled trench some 10' below the surface and run the trench out to a natural outlet in a wooded area in order to drain off subsurface water which, according to Petzold, moves through the subsoil under and around the footings of the townhouses.

Members occupying these units who were present at the meeting held conflicting views about the necessity for undertaking a project to control subsurface water. Tony McCarthy maintained that there was no problem in most of the homes and that whatever problems do exist are being adequately handled by sump pumps. Petzold pointed out, however, that such large quantities of water moving through the soil may, in time, undermine the footings, causing structural damage. In response to a question by McCarthy, Petzold admitted that no damage to the footings had been found in the test borings done to date.

One member, however, said that he has muddy water in his basement during periods of wet weather. When he asked for a sump pump, the board agreed that installation of a pump should be expedited to alleviate the problem while a more permanent solution is being worked out.

Some members present were reluctant to pursue an expensive solution. Some board members recalled that on several occasions measures had to be authorized to combat an "emergency" water problem in these units and were equally reluctant to postpone a solution to the problem. Therefore, the board by unanimous action authorized management to go out to bid for installation of the part of the system which would benefit the most seriously affected units. The board also directed management to gather information about water problem complaints which had been made in the past in all these units.

The board, which sat for 30 minutes awaiting a quorum because some confusion resulting from the shift in meeting date and the absence of Directors Wayne Williams, Mark Dombrowski and Mac Wirick, also heard two members' complaints. One of these concerned reimbursement for electrical work which the member had done at her own expense because of what she considered an unsafe condition; this matter was referred to management for resolution or further investigation.

The other complaint concerned the placement of a shed. Since the member was under some time constraint and since, as Director Janet Cantwell noted, the member had been waiting since July for an answer, the board agreed to view the site in the next few days and make a decision. The board also adopted pet regulations which will become part of the overall revised Rules and Regulations to be published this Fall.

In the first manager's memorandum presented by General Manager Ronald Colton, the schedule for hearings on the 1985 budget was announced as follows: presentation to the board, Oct. 11; presentation to the membership in a televised meeting in the city council chambers on Oct. 23; second presentation to the board, Oct. 25; presentation to the board for final passage, Nov. 8. All dates for presentations to the board are regularly scheduled board meetings.

R. G. Colton Assumes Post As GHI General Manager

by Leta Mach

Ronald G. Colton has been appointed General Manager of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI). On September 17 Colton, already a Greenbelt resident, assumed the post which had been made vacant by the resignation of former General Manager Shekar Narasimhan.

Colton comes to GHI from a position as Deputy Director of Development with Wesley Housing Corporation in Alexandria, Virginia. In that position he was responsible for developing housing for low and moderate income families. This involved project development, bond financing, job coordination and tenant relations. Most of the projects involved rehab rather than new construction. Colton found the rehabilitation work challenging and interesting.

Prior to that position, Colton was Executive Director of Neighborhood Housing Services of Baltimore, a non-profit corporation dedicated to the revitalization of declining areas. His other work experience includes a position as community developer with Prince Georges County and staff assistant with the American Historical Association.

A native of Pittsburgh, Colton has a Master's degree in urban planning and management from the University of Maryland. In 1972 he graduated summa cum laude from the University of Pittsburgh, receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in sociology.

Colton has lived in Greenbelt for nine years. Currently he resides in Charlestowne Village with his wife and five-year-old daughter. He enjoys the green space and people of Greenbelt. He feels the people of Greenbelt are unique and special for their activism. For four years, he served on the city's Advisory Planning Board. During those years the board considered the relocation of the post office, plans for the Windsor Green and Greenway Center Developments and the Greenbelt Master Plan.

GHI has just completed a major rehabilitation program, the largest of its kind in the nation. The GHI Board of Directors and membership are to be congratulated for this accomplishment, Colton concludes. He views GHI as entering a period of "consolidation." The cooperative needs, he feels, "to step back and evaluate what was done and what needs to be done in the next ten years."

New Softball Scoreboard Dedicated to David Craig

One of the highlights of the Labor Day Festival was the dedication ceremony of the Recreation Department's new softball scoreboard made possible by donations of friends and relatives of David R.S. Craig (known as "Maggs"). David, a Greenbelt resident and employee of the Recreation Department, died in a train accident in March of this year. Many friends and relatives gathered at Braden Field on Friday, Aug. 31 to witness the dedication and enjoy the exhibition softball game, using the new scoreboard and featuring the teams "Maggs" and "Stripes." These two teams were selected since many of David's closest friends play on one of these two teams.

Anne Herink, recreation coordinator for the Youth Center told the audience: "David grew up here in Greenbelt and was active in the recreation department's sports programs. His enthusiasm and love of sports was conveyed to the participants in the programs he worked with and this enthusiasm was the key to the program's success. One example of David's impact is the National Junior Tennis League. David, an accomplished tennis player, used his skills to help children learn and appreciate the sport of tennis."

"A new program was started by the recreation department two years ago. We call it 'North Pole Calling'. Santa Claus calls the young children in Greenbelt to ask them their Christmas wishes and to reinforce good behavior. When I started this program, the first person that came to mind to play Santa was David. His unique ability to communicate with children and make them feel at ease made him the obvious choice. If you could have seen his portrayal of Santa — the hearty 'Ho-Ho-Ho, Merry Christmas' — the clever way he answered the children's questions, and the joyous expression on his face while talking to the children, you would have known why I was convinced I had made an excellent choice in David as Santa."

"David's family requested that monetary gifts in honor of David's memory be sent to their church and to the recreation department. They felt that the recreation department's programs played a vital and positive role in David's development from childhood to young adulthood. We are very honored that they feel this way and appreciate their support.

his position with the recreation department but I was also fortunate to share with you, in having David as a close and much valued friend. . . He was a warm, caring, sensitive man with a love of life, sparkling wit and enthusiastic approach to anything and everything he did.

"We will all miss David, that's only natural, but each one of us here tonight has their own special memories of the good times we shared with David. Let us remember those special moments now. . ."

LP-Gas Regulator Recalled

In cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), RegO Company of Chicago, Illinois, announced the voluntary recall of RegO Model 210 LP-Gas (liquefied petroleum gas, bottled gas) regulators because of a possible fire/explosion hazard. Without warning, the RegO Model 210 LP-Gas regulator may suddenly allow high pressure LP-Gas to pass to appliances, hot water heaters and furnaces fueled by LP-Gas. Fire and explosion can occur and result in severe property damage, personal injury or death.

Consumers having an LP-Gas fueled hot water heater, cooking appliance, furnace, outdoor grill or who own or use a recreational vehicle, mobile home, standard mini-compact or low profile motor home, travel trailer, park trailer, fifth wheel trailer, truck camper or van conversion having an LP-Gas hot water heater, cooking appliance or furnace should examine the LP-Gas regulator. If it is a RegO Model 210, consumers should close the shut-off valve of the LP-Gas supply container and contact a local LP-Gas dealer for immediate replacement of the regulator at no cost to the consumer. Consumers are cautioned not to remove and replace the regulator themselves.

Information concerning this recall is available on CPSC's Toll-Free Hotline at 800-638-CPSC. The TTD number for the hearing impaired is 800-638-8270.

REORGANIZING GROCERY STOCK

During the next couple of weeks much of the grocery stock will be shifted onto different shelves and even into different aisles. Our major supplier, P. A. & S. Small Co., is planning and will be carrying out this work.

The main reason for doing this is to relocate shelf space — increasing it for some items, decreasing it for others. At the same time we will be breaking up the Generic section and shelving Generic items alongside the brand labelled items.

We'll try to inconvenience you as little as possible during the process. And when it is finished, we'll have maps to show you where to look for everything.
