Council Scrutinizes Plans for Increase In Cable TV Rate, Protests the Change

by Diane Oberg

On January 1, 1987 the 2,118 cable subscribers in the city of Greenbelt will be subject to increased cable fees. The largest increase will affect the 86 "universal tier" subscribers, who will be charged almost eight dollars monthly for the previously free service. At its December 15 regular meeting, the Greenbelt city council unanimously voted to officially protest this change.

Background

Currently two levels of service are available from Prime Cable, (Springhill Lake and some other residents are served by other companies.) The universal tier offers those channels that could be received without a cable hookup, plus the city and other access channels. Subscribers to this service use an A/B selector switch, but no cable converter box. The "Cable-Plus" service of fers approximately 60 channels through a converter box. Cable-Plus subscribers may also sub-scribe to one or more "premium" channels for an additional $6.95 to $8.95 each per month. Univarsal subscribers may not subscribe to any premium channels.

As of January 1, monthly fees for both services will increase. The universal tier fee will increase from no charge to $7.95 per month while Cable-Plus will increase from $11.95 to $13.95 monthly. There will be no increase in fee for the premium channels. Information provided to the city by Prime Cable indicated that the charge for FM service will also increase, to $1.50 per month. Prime Cable's Position

Winfield Kelly, President of Prime Cable of Northern Prince Georges County, appeared at the meeting. Providing the subscription data above, he also noted that (as of December 30, 1986) the 1984 Cable Act takes all rate-setting responsibilities away from municipalities. According to Kelly, virtually all cable companies in the United States are planning January adjustments to their rates.

He said that originally most of the signals sent to cable subscribers were free to the cable company, but that the company must now pay and must pass on the ever-increasing fees for most of these signals. Kelly said rates were unlikely ever to stop increasing and that customers should expect annual increases of about a dollar a month because increases in labor and other costs. He said the company is still losing money.

Kelly apologized for the letter sent to universal tier subscribers indicating that they could upgrade to Cable Plus for an additional four dollars per month, when in fact it would cost six dollars more per month with the January increases. Subscribers converting from the universal tier to Cable Plus would have to pay the full $13.95 per month. Premium channel rates were Premium channel rates were not increased because of the competition of video cassette recorders and other entertainment media. Kelly said. If the premium channels get too expensive, people would cancel them. He noted that the Cable-Plus service includes the Home Team Sports network. for which subscribers to other cable services have to pay extra.

Universal Tier

Mayor pro tem Thomas X. White said the biggest issue was introduction of the fee for the universal tier. He called this service the entre to public access and felt the eight dollar fee was unreasonable. Kelly answered that other subscribers are currently subsidizing the universal subscribers' share of maintaining the cable. He called the new fee a "modest" rate for enhanced reception. In addition, some subscribers have discovered that with cableready televisions and VCR's they can receive almost all of the Cable-Plus stations for no fee. Kelly said that the technical problems of restricting users just to the intended channels could not be solved.

This explanation did not ease White's concerns, who noted that that logic would result in increasing the fee for universal service to the Cable-Plus level. White also objected to reported practices of cable marketers which lead customers away from the universal tier or say that it was not available.

Kelly said that Prime does not market the universal tier, since it is not a revenue producer for the company but he said the sales staff should not be refusing to sell the universal service. He of-See COUNCIL page 6 col. 1

Congressional Appropriation Accelerates B-W Bridge Work

by Elaine Skolnik

At the end of its last session, the United States Congress appropriated $8 million for reconstruction of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, a project which is estimated to cost $96 million. According to Earl Kittleman, spokesman for the National Park Service, all of the preliminary $8 million appropriation is earmarked for development of working drawings for the entire federal portion of the Parkway.

Reconstruction projects include improvements to bridges and ramps and bringing the Parkway, which is under the jurisdiction of the NPS, up to modern safety standards.

Kittleman said, "$15 million from Fiscal Year 1986 appropriations will be used directly" for improvements to the Greenbelt Road (Route 193)/B-W Parkway interchange across from the Greenway Shopping Center and to the Greenbelt Road bridge that spans the Parkway. The development boom along Greenbelt Road has caused serious traffic problems in the northeastern quadrant of the Parkway interchange.

"This (project) will be pushed ahead of schedule," Kittleman noted. He explained that Prince Georges County and the State of Maryland are also helping to pay the reconstruction costs. By a large margin, county voters in November gave their approval to an $80 million bond referendum for roads and bridges, including $3.5 million for the Grenbelt interchange and bridge. The county hopes, however, to be reimbursed eventually by the federal government. The state has provided $200,000 for design and engineering studies.

"The best estimate for the work to begin is in the fall of 1987 or spring 1988," Kittleman said. At the present time the county expects quick approval of the projects from the State Highway Administration's Federal Aid Section. Then the consultant to the county will move shead on design and engineering studies. These will include reconstruction of the Parkway's on and off ramps to extend acceleration and deceleration lanes. New lanes could be created and one ramp shifted and improvements made to the west side of the interchange.

Reconstruction of the Greenbelt Road bridge is also planned so that three lanes will carry traffic in each direction. The bridge structure itself will not be widened although widening by cantilevering may be done on the north side to accommodate a sidewalk. Safety improvements will be made to both projects.

Kittleman explained that, while the bridge is perceived as one, it is "actually composed of two bridges. The original was constructed 40 years ago, with improvements made 20 years later."

Related Projects

Design plans for the bridge over the Parkway are crucial to the county's work in widening Greenbelt Rd. from Mandan Rd to the Parkway, and from the Parkway to the Beltway overpass. There it will connect with the newly widened Greenbelt Rd.

Greenbelt Youth Lights National Christmas Tree

"Who, me?" was the initial reaction of 8 year old Byron Whyte, a Springhill Lake resident who assisted President Reagan in lighting the nation's Christmas Tree. Brycn was chosen for this honor through the National Capital Area of Big Brothers by being one of the youngest participants in the program. Francis Hinton, Bryon's Big Brother, served a key role when, after receiving the call from the White House, he telephoned the Whyte family to inform them of Bryon's unique opportunity.

"All I could do when I heard the news was smile." said Bryon, a student at Glenarden Woods Elementary School and a participant in the Talented and Gifted Student Program. "I couldn't wait to tell my friends that I would section that is part of the Kenilworth Ave-Greenbelt Rd. interchange. Without reconstruction of the Parkway bridge, the present structure would function as an exasperating bottleneck in both directions. According to county Public Works spokesman Charles Ward, the widening of Greenbelt Rd. is scheduled to start during 1987.

Another county project to begin in 1987 is the extension of Hanover Parkwa yfrom Hanover Drive, near the Greenway Shopping Center to a connection with Good Luck Rd. near Doctor's Hospital.

brary, Bryon met Mrs. Reagan who joined him for cookies, apple cider, and punch. Mrs. Reagan said, "It's nice to meet you, Bryon. Thank you for coming. Merry Christmas" Bryon responded in kind, surrounded by reporters and cameramen. "I felt like a celebrity, especially when I shook hands with Preside t Reagan."

Bryon was then rushed to the Channel 9 television studio for an exclusive interview. He later appeared on the Countdown to Kickoff, a pre-game Redskin show. Bryon, who aspires to be an astronaut, has been invited to participate as a special guest in the Springhill Lake Lantern Lighting Ceremony to be held October 14, a reflection of Springhill Lake's commitment to quality education. "What interests me most is the time capsule," said Bryon. Among other memorabilia. this will contain messages to the President from Greenbelt students to be selected in a contest February 25 at the Springhill Lake Fountain Lodge.

Bryon's Big Brother, Francis Hinton. has been contacted by Springhill Lake to conduct a Big Brother workshop in the Spring.

Aboard the Pony Express

To the Editor:

The Greenbelt Post Office informs me that the postal route which includes Lastner Lane and some of the other streets in Boxwood Village is not an "estab-lished route," that is, it is carried by any mail carrier who has time at the end of the day. This of course explains why our carriers are so informal with the mail, since they are really doing us a favor by delivering it at all. Surprisingly, it was my opinion that our neighborhood had been embraced by the people of Greenbelt, and that we were an integral part of the community. Lately, however, the postal service we have has set me to wondering.

Since early this spring we have enjoyed a running conversation with the post office about mail not received, about checks lost, about regular delivery of neighbor's mail to our address, and other happy situations. The response from the post office made me realize that I am the only person in our fair community who is unhappy with the mail service. An act of providence has placed this burden in my mail box alone. So be it. I am still very unhappy about the postal service. . . .

I am writing this to ask for volunteers to start our very own pony express service. Where there is a need and where there is a will there is certainly a way. I do not know much about riding a horse, but I am not too old to learn.

Robert L. Field

Editor's Note: According to Greenbelt's Postmaster Franklin Ford, Boxwood Village shares an established route with two of the large office buildings on Ivy Lane. The carrier is directed to deliver the heavier volume of mail -for the office building-early in the day and the lighter volumeresidential homes-afterward.

SHL EMPLOYEES CAP LONG SEASON OF GIVING

by Steve Galanis

Springhill Lake employees pledged to remember children who are ill and handicapped, at their annual Christmas party early this week, by voting to replace their custom of exchanging gifts with an annual donation to Children's Hospital.

The move by Springhill Lake employees in the Marketing Dept. caps a season-long outreach to needy children that began with a promotional event in the fall, and was crystalized last week during the "Mitten Tree" celebration at the Fountain Lodge.

The idea of commemorating children unable to enjoy a normal Christmas had its roots at Springhill Lake even before Dress Like a Kid Day was sponsored in September, according to Kimberly Andreadis, the marketing director for the apartments.

According to Andreadis, the custodial staff began collecting an annual donation for Children's Hospital 13 years ago, when the department supervisor. Graham Jackson, said he preferred that an annual collection for the hospital be taken up rather than a Christmas gift from the staff.

According to Andreadis the apartments' emphasis on children this Christmas, especially in last week's Mitten Tree celebration in which Springhill Lake children put mittens, scarves, sweaters and other small clothing items on the lodge Christmas tree to help needychildren, is in keeping with the Christmas spirit.

CITY NOTES

The general crew constructed a drainage system to relieve the wet condition on the lake path at the rear of the residences on Olivewood Court. This crew also sandblasted one of the city refuse trucks removing both paint and rust prior to repainting. This truck is scheduled for replacement next year, but will be used as a standby truck and for trash removal from the parks.

The special detail crew painted parking lines in the areas newly paved-Plateau Place, Gardenway and Ridge Road from Westway to 7 Court Crescent Road. Also, this crew installed signs in the same area, plus on Mandan Terrace and Lakeview Circle.

The special details crew also assisted the refuse crews in collection.

Both the regular and special trash collection is current and on schedule. The special trash backlog has been corrected by placing additional trucks on the route. The special trash calls have also dropped since the weather changed.

The parks crew and the horticulturist have been working on restoration of the areas disturbed by the reconstruction of Ridge Road, Gardenway and Plateau Place. The leaf vacuum and chipper have also been out this week. Some public works employees have also been assisting in the driving for the Greenbelt Connection this week.

Stress Workshop To be Held Jan. 7

Louise Gallum, Assistant Manager for Community Relations for Springhill Lake has put together a stress workshop at the Fountain Lodge.

The guest speaker at the January 7 workshop will be Marcie Walder, clinical social worker with Behavior Service Consultants Incorporated. "The workshop will be an introduction to basic concepts having to do with stress." said Walder. Topics discussed will include how the body responds to stress, how thinking affects stress, and ways interaction af-fects stress, said Walder.

It will be a very practical workshop, she said, with questionnaires designed to access one's level of stress, she added.

The workshop, open to the public, begins at 7:30 p.m. After coffee and a short movie. Walder will lecture at 8:30 p.m. There will then be a question and answer period.

Arts Center Will Include More Children's Programs

From parents to the Parks & Recreation Advisory Board to interested citizens, Greenbelters have asked the Arts Center to provide more programming for children. Thus, the December program by the Greenbelt Arts Center contains a great variety of programs, "not only for childrent, but for their parents as well," says Konrad Herling, Director of Community Relations for the Arts Center.

There are workshops in which both children and parents together. can learn about how puppets are made, how to clog (a form of dancing) and to enjoy the art of storytelling.

Early this month the Arts Center program featured "The Nutcracker" and "Cinderella" and will resume Saturday, December 27, at 11 a.m. with the Clarion Shadow Puppet Theater's presentation of "Peter and the Wolf." There will be a second performance at 1 p.m. the same day. At 2:30 Clarion will provide a children/parent workshop about the art of puppet making and puppet movement.

On Monday, December 29 and Tuesday December 30, the Arts Center will hold two two-day workshops, starting at 10 a.m. each day. Objective: for ages 9-14, children will paint a mural to hang in the lobby of the Utopia Theater. Linda Kodis, who has taught art workshops for the Virginia Museum of Art, and whose murals can be seen throughout the metro area, will be the instructor. At 2 p.m. on Dec. 29 and 30 Michael Westberg, will teach an acting workshop for 11-15 year olds, culminating in a short performance. Westberg, most recently taught acting workshops for the Arts Center during the fall, primarily for younger children.

The Arts Center strongly urg-es a careful look at this week's advertisement for more details, says Herling. Some of these programs are the direct result of a grant of the County's Park & Planning Commission. "It is most heartening to be able to provide these activities," says Cindy Hutchins, of the Park & Planning Commission, "but it is up to Greenbelt and its citizens to support them. People may complain that the Arts Center has been doing very little for kids. This is a positive response. And, as importantly, it provides for parent participation as well." (Hutchins was recently hired by the Park & Planning Commission to help the Arts Center diversitfy its programming.)

fered to work through the city to obtain universal service without a conversion fee for anyone who had been told they could not get universal tier service.

Other Concerns

In response to a question from Council member Antoinette M. Bram, Kelly said a key can be provided to lock out certain channels that may not be appropriate for family viewing. Council member Edward Pu-

Council member Edward Putens complained of high pressure sales tactics. He also asked about a reduced fee for senior citizens. Kelly said that the county contract expressly prohibited such discounts.

Council member Joseph Isaacs said he had heard complaints and had some himself concerning the quality of the broadcasts that repeated service calls had failed to correct. Kelly said the system has had few complaints about quality.

Council closed out the discussion by passing a motion to protest officially the withdrawal of the free tier and the related rate increases and to solicit information from citizens with marketing, service or maintenance complaints. Anyone with such complaints should write or call the city offices. Service and maintenance complaints should be made to Prime Cable first.

Apology Requested

Leonie Penney requested that council publicly apologize for comments made at the November 5 special council meeting concerning the Greenbelt museum. The remarks related to the 210 names appearing in an advertisement in the News Review opposing the city's purchase of the building for the Greenbelt Museum.

Penney said that while it was stated at the meeting that the ad contained the names of several underage people, the ad contained the names of only one underage citizen. who will, in fact, be of voting age by the next council election. In addition, she said that it was claimed that people whose names were listed in the ad wrote to the city in support of the museum. and that people's names were listed in the ad who had refused to participate in the ad. These comments were based in part on misinformation provided by the city staff, according to Penney.

In accordance with standard council procedures action on her request for a public apology was deferred to the next council meeting.

Center School

The Assessment Study for the renovation of Center School was reviewed by the Advisory Planning Board in report 86-43. The report recommended that the findings of the study be supported and that the study be forwarded for evaluation to the County Historic Preservation Commission.

School Board member Suzanne Plogman reported to council that the state Interagency Committee on School Construction has recommended that the renovation not be done this fiscal year. but that the school board is appealing this recommendation. She noted that the project is on the state's five-year plan and "absolutely is going to happen"—if not in fiscal 1988 then in fiscal 1989.

Plogman said John Van Schoonhoven, principal of Center School. has some additional concerns, foremost among them classroom space and size. According to Plogman, Van Schoonhoven, who deems the current space inadequate, is not certain that the recommended improvements are adequate either.

The renovation placalls for creation of a courty of near the cafeteria. Van Schoonhoven and the city staff are concerned that the courtyard would be an "attractive hangout."

Council unanimously approved the staff recommendation that the APB recommendations be accept. ed, along with the additional concerns about the cafeteria courtyard. These comments were to be forwarded to the County School System.

Arts Center Budget

In response to comments from the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, the Greenbelt Arts Center has submitted a revised budget for the city's contributions of $3.700. The original budget called for $2.500 to be used to reimburse the Public Works Department for moving set materials and for special maintenance projects. The revised budget allocates all the funds for equipment puhchases.

PRAB's concerns included the city's being responsible for workmen's compensation or liability for work done for the theater, and that city contributions should be used for the purchase of items the city could receive if the center should fail.

City manager James K. Giese said that since the staff is still receiving requests for assistance in moving furniture and other tasks. he requested clarification from council, noting that Arts Center requests may conflict with city tasks or require weekend work. Giese felt that the city should not be working overtime for the Arts Center or giving them top priority but he said otherwise he had no problem with providing services.

Bram noted that the Arts Center makes the theater available as a backup for various city events without charge. She said that it would not hurt to maintain this courtesy between the city and the Arts Center. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld suggested the matter be discussed further in the next budget review.

Council unanimously approved the revised budget request.

Police Department

In actions relating to the police department, the city council: —Authorized an additional corporal, replacing one of the authorized PFC's in the canine unit. —Heard a report from Giese that interviews with seven applicants for the police chief position have been scheduled for mid-January.

-Saw Richard Anastasi sworn in as a Greenbelt police officer by Mayor Weidenfeld. Other Actions

In other actions, the city council:

-Authorized the purchase of 300 tons of road salt for $24.20 per ton.

by Jack Brickman Greenbelt police, responding about 3 a.m., Monday, December 22 to a report of someone stealing a car at Ora Glen Drive and

Police Catch Car Thief

Burkart Court were led on an 11-mile chase at speeds of more than 100 miles per hour before the car they were pursuing crashed, according to police spokesman Officer Pat McAndrew.

Stuart M. Gary, 18 years, of Baltimore, was held on $25.000 bond charged with theft of over $300, rogue and vagabond, fleeing and eluding a police officer, reckless driving, driving without a license and numerous speed and automatic signal violations.

One of the responding officers saw two cars leaving the area of the theft and followed. When the two separated at Greenbelt Road and Frankfort Drive one car. a 1986 Toyota Camry took off at high speed eastbound in the westbound lanes on Greenbelt Road. The pursuit continued to University Boulevard in Adelphi, where Prince Georges County police had set up a roadblock. The suspect, avoiding this barrier, drove off the paved surface into a wooded park area, over grass and between trees, where the car was stopped when it crashed into a ditch. The suspect jumped out and fled on foot with Greenbelt officers in pursuit and was arrested a short. distance away on Wells Boulevard in Adelphi.

Police learned that there were two cars stolen from the area where the incident began. The second car, a red 1979 Chevrolet Monte Carlo with Maryland registration EHT-210 has not been recovered. During the pursuit through the unpaved wooded area two of the police cruisters, one belonging to Greenbelt police and the other to Prince Georges County police, re-ceived minor damage. The officers were not injured.

Police believe, says Officer Mc-Andrew, that the suspects in this case may be the same ones who have been responsible for a rash of cases in the area of the orig inal call in which parked cars have been broken into, ransack ed, and property stolen.

College Credit Offered

A new arrival was celebrated at the Barbe and Matthew Dur-kin home on Ridge Road in the form of baby Kathryn Rose Durkin. Kathryn was born September 25 at Holy Cross Hospital, weighing in at 7 lbs 7 oz. Kathryn has a big brother, Michael, who is 181/2 months of age.

Susan and Joel Hagen of Ridge Road welcomed their first born, Kristen Marie Haken, on September 22. Born at Holy Cross Hospital, she weighed 8 lbs. 7 oz. We just returned from a three-day trip to New York City where we went to the Metropoltan Museum of Art, Radio Cty Music Hall where we saw the magnificent Christmas Spectacular starring The Rockettes, and the Statute of Liberty since its renovation. On the return trip we stopped at Longwood Gardens in Pennsylvania. If you're traveling that route, Longwood Gardens is a must to see. Truly a sight to behold!

Annie Citron of Greenbelt is having as house guests her son Matthew and wife Diane and her two darling grandsons, Sean and Jason, all from Marlboro, New Jersey. Have a grand time, folks!

William McClay of the Public Works Department, became a new daddy. He and his wife are the proud parents of a baby daughter, Samantha Allison Mc-Clay, born December 18. Samantha weighed 6 lbs. 3 oz., and was 20 inches long. Congratulations!

Merry Christmas to all; HO! HO! HO!
