Cinema and Drafthouse Proposal Will Face City Council at its Next Meeting

by Diane Oberg

A Cinema and Drafthouse proposed for the Greenbelt (Utopia) Theater was the subject of an April 12 city council worksession. The council, at its April 18 regular meeting will discuss whether to take a position on the liquor license application for the cinema.

The applicant is Greenbelt Cinema, Inc. (GCI). President Peter Carney is also president of Bethesda Cinema, Inc., operator of the Bethesda Cinema and Drafthouse on Wisconsin Avenue. GCI proposes a similar operation at the Greenbelt Theater.

GCI was recruited as a possible tenant by the First Washington Development Group, which is considering a joint venture with George Christacos, owner of the shops in the Roosevelt Center. The venture would seek to revitalize the entire Center.

Steve Gerden of First Washington told council that the project is not feasible without additional income. Gerden called rehabilitation of the theater an integral part of their plans, and said that since there "is no market for single theaters the Cinema and Drafthouse is "imperative" to the venture.

First Washington has already met with the consultants who prepared the master plan for the Roosevelt Center, according to City Planning and Development Coordinator Celia Wilson. Carney said his firm plans to restore the original marquee while Gerden said his firm has already inquired about the city's plans for the Center's facades.

Dan LaPlaca, attorney for GCI, said that the joint venture and the drafthouse are separate issues, and that the joint venture proposal should not be considered a "veiled threat" should council reject the drafthouse.

Carney called his establishment a dinner theater which shows movies and said that the franchise agreement prohibits the showing of X-rated movies.

GCI is seeking a beer and wine license and Carney said he does not intend to seek a license for hard liquor. Patrons must be at least 21 years old, except for children accompanied by a parent. He said that this was strictly enforced, and that, for example, a 21 year old could not bring in an 18 year old date. He said that it was necessary to restrict admissions since with the dimmed lights and close seating it would not otherwise be possible to enforce the ban on underage drinking.

Council Concerns

One of council's concerns was the introduction of liquor service into the center. Councilmember Antoinette M. Bram was concerned about minors using fake ID's. Carney said that employees are well versed on valid ID's. The theater seizes any falsified ID's presented, he said.

Carney said that the theater See CINEMA, page 6, col. 1 suggested a token fee of $5 for seniors. When neither of these proposals were supported by the "group of three," Isaacs complained that he and Bram were the only ones giving in the compromise attempts.

Isaacs said the members were "kidding ourselves" if they thought the city could open the indoor pool and not charge everyone. He saw the current pool season as a transition year, with the city needing to recoup some of the renovation costs of the outdoor pool and introduce the idea that all citizens would have

by Elaine Skolnik

The Prince Georges County Planning Department in October 1987 issued a study evaluating the effects of private development at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center on existing and programmed public facilities in the area. Apparently the study, which was ordered by the Prince Georges county council and the county executive, was requested in response to longstanding concern that the Federal Government might sell BARC land.

Over the years, a gradual chipping away has seen BARC reduced from approximately 14,000 to its current 7,200 acres. An amendment sponsored by Congressman Steny Hoyer, and passed by Congress at its last session, now prohibits future surplussing of BARC property without prior consent of Congress. However, an uneasiness is still felt among county and local officials and BARC "watchers" because of the Administration's desire to sell federal lands in an effort to reduce the deficit.

BARC Report

In his February letter accompanying the completed study, County Executive Parris Glendening informed Mayor Gil Weidenfeld that the planning staff has concluded that "private redevelopment of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, even at a very low intensity, would result in severe consequences for the infrastructure of Prince Georges County." Glendening was referring, in particular, to the surrounding areas where master plans are being prepared - Subregion I (Beltsville, and Laurel), College Park-Greenbelt-Langley Park and Bowie-Collington. The BARC study will be incorporated into these plans.

For testing purposes, the staff drew up two hypothetical land use scenarios - one containing the lowest-possible land use densities, the other containing slightly higher densities. This analysis, staff concluded, "showed that development under both alternatives would present serious public facility impacts," and require expensive improvements beyond those already planned in the transportation network.

Included among these improvements are widening of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway to eight lanes with all interchanges requiring reconstruction. (Such expansion, the staff notes is contrary to current Department of Interior policy.) Other "improvements" include changing current plans for a six-lane Kenilworth Avenue Extended to an eight-lane facility from Powder Mill Road to the Intercounty Connector, "with access limited to intersections" and upgrading Soil Conservation road to "at least a collector" between Powder Mill and Greenbelt Road. Finally, Beaver Dam Road would be upgraded to an arterial between Soil Conservation Road and Kenilworth Avenue Extended and relocated to the south "in order to provide an adequate distance from Powder Mill Road." The staff pointed out that this change might require an interchange with the Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

The study also noted that the scenarios examined would require additional water pumping capacity, as well as the construction of a water storage facility; three elementary schools, one middle school, one-half of a high school, one new full-service fire station, and 43 additional police officers.

COUNCIL UPS SWIM POOL FEES BUT LETS SENIORS SWIM FREE

by Diane Oberg

The final unanimous vote did not reflect solidarity among the Greenbelt City Council as members voted to raise the outdoor swimming pool rates for the 1988 season but did not charge resident senior citizens $15 for a season pass. This fee was proposed by the Recreation Department and supported by the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board. Although all members of council voted to continue the present policy of letting seniors swim free, two of those members did not themselves approve.

Under the ordinance passed by council, resident season pass rates will be $100 for families and $45 for individuals. Non-resident rates will be $150 and $70.

The only controversy surrounded the proposal to introduce a $15 season pass fee for resident senior citizens, who currently are not charged for admission. (Nonresident senior citizens are charged $40 under the ordinance.)

The Recreation Department needed council's decision at this meeting in order to meet their deadline for printing the promotional material for the pool. Earlier council had approved an amendment to the pool rates proposed in the ordinance introduced at the March meeting. Therefore, a vote by at least four councilmembers to suspend the rules would be required before the ordinance could be considered for final passage.

Council was deadlocked at 2-2, when it considered the bill early in the meeting and thus agreed to delay action until Councilmember Edward Putens could arrive. When the full council voted, it was again deadlocked, however, with Putens, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld and Councilmember Thomas X. White voting for suspension and Councilmember Joseph Isaacs and Antoinette M. Bram opposed.

Finally, Weidenfeld pointed out the futility of the opposition. He said that if council did not vote to suspend the rules, the ordinance would be placed on the next agenda, at which the three-member majority would prevail. Thus, the same rates would be imposed, but the recreation department would have two fewer weeks to sell pool passes.

Isaacs and Bram both argued for introduction of a fee for resident senior citizens. Finally, in efforts to forge a compromise, Bram said she would agree not to impose the fee this year, if council would agree to impose some fee next year, while Isaacs

CFG Hears Reports on Parkway Reconstruction; "Renaissance 93"

by Betsy Likowski

Citizens of Greenbelt got the chance to find out about upcoming construction on the Baltimore-Washington Parkway (Parkway) at the Citizens for Greenbelt (CFG) annual meeting on Thursday, March 31 in the city council chambers. Plans to renovate the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center were also heard.

Several officials from the National Park Service and the Eastern District Federal Division/Federal Highway Administration were on hand to explain and answer questions about planned renovation work on the Parkway. (The Parkway north from Route 50 to just south of Route 175, including interchanges is under federal jurisdiction.)

Patrick Gregerson, planner with the National Park Service, explained that repair work includes fixing the pavement; constructing paved, six foot shoulders plus two feet of curb and gutter; improving some of the interchanges; repairing some of the bridges; and changing the guard rails to low, double faced stone walls (designed for aesthetic reasons to be like those on Skyline Drive).

Work will first be done from the Washington D.C. line to just south of Route 410 (Riverdale Road). Northbound lanes near Route 202 will be reconfigured.

Gregerson said that sections near Routes 32, 193, 197, 198 and Riverdale Road are in the design stage and that the county is designing 193 (Greenbelt Road).

Landscaping will be done at the end of the project using native plants. The vegetation will also be thickened in places to screen the Parkway from houses.

Although the construction will take place in different sections during the 10 years the whole project is expected to require, Project Manager Louis DeLorme quipped that to Greenbelters it will feel like 10 years of construction, since Greenbelt is located in the middle of the Parkway.

In response to Dorothy Pyles' question on what part the Park Service will play in the repair near the interchange of 193 and the Parkway, Gregerson answered that they will have responsibility for the median strip, the appearance of the bridge, the alignment, and lanes leading up to the ramp. He also said that there will be three lanes going each way under the bridge: two through lanes and acceleration/ See CFG, page 3, col. 1 deceleration lanes.

A Greenbriar resident asked how close the realignment of the Parkway interchange would bring the road to the Greenbriar tennis courts and what plans were being made to buffer the courts. DeLorme assured him that every effort would be made to screen the courts, but they have yet to receive the grading plans.

The Park Service officials said that part of the landscaping would be opening up some of the areas where trees have grown over the road to create a tunnel effect. Several persons expressed concern at this. But DeLorme assured them it would be sparingly done and only in areas where such dense growth occurred for mile after mile and "gets boring." Several people exclaimed at once that "we like trees here in Greenbelt" and "that's not boring."

Specific questions were also asked about various parts of the Parkway. The Patuxent bridge is scheduled to be repaired this year.

Ruth Kastner wondered if the width of the survey stakes meant that additional lanes would be added. Gregerson assured her these had nothing to do with construction. He added that the Park Service does not want three lanes north of route 450.

Keith Chernikoff asked if there were plans to improve lighting. Gregerson said there were not, for it is "not in character with a parkway." Thermal plastic stripes with glass beads to help visibility will be added in the middle and at the edge of the road.

BARC

Dr. Waldemar Klassen, director of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) gave a short talk on plans to restore BARC. Called "Renaissance 93," it plans to restore and upgrade BARC and the National Arboretum by the end of 1993. The total cost is $162 million, of which $27 million has already been spent. Very little money has been spent on BARC in the last 50 years, Klassen said.

CFG Business

Leading off the night, Eunice Coxon was awarded a green and gold plaque and $50 from CFG by President Marvin Holmes, Jr. as outstanding citizen activist of 1988.

The slate of nominees was elected by acclamation: Holmes, reelected president; Maureen Nelson, vice president; Ruth Kastner, secretary; and Sandy Bowers, treasurer.

Zoning committee chair Barry Schlesinger said that very little has happened on parcels 1 and 2. He said the developers have not come back and that council is not doing much about the parcels.

Schlesinger commented that he was glad to see that the News Review is finally covering Greenbelt East meetings. Although he believed that there is a limit to what can be done in development and zoning matters, Schlesinger encouraged citizens to go to council and Advisory Planning Board meetings.

Transportation committee chair Doug Love said "the mess" at Kenilworth Avenue is still there. He also showed a diagram of the planned changes at the Parkway interchange, pointing out that the new ramp will exit across from El Torito.

On CFG business, Holmes noted there was a 20% increase in membership in the last year. The treasurer reported $2157.72 in the bank.

It was reported that CFG is down to the last 500 maps it produced of the city of Greenbelt. CFG received a letter from Mayor Weidenfeld thanking the organization for producing the maps.

There was considerable discussion about the idea of universal registration. Leonie Penny said she would like to see CFG come out in favor of a bill that is under consideration by the Maryland State Legislature. A motion was approved to have the board make the decision after reviewing a copy of the bill.

A motion was also passed to oppose the Silver Diner in Greenway and its environs.

Library Friends to Meet

Friends of the Greenbelt Library will meet Wednesday, April 20, 7:30 p.m. at the Library. The June Strawberry Fest will be discussed. Anyone interested in promoting the Library and raising funds for Library materials and services call Barbara Simon at 474-2192.

Student Suspensions Get Public Hearing

The Monitoring Committee on Student Suspensions, a citizens advisory group to the Superintendent of Schools, has scheduled a public hearing on Monday, April 18 at 7 p.m. in the auditorium of the Sasser Administration Building in Upper Marlboro.

The hearing will give ordinary citizens the chance to comment on issues and concerns regarding the student suspension process within the Prince Georges County Public Schools. Testimony from the hearing will help the committee conduct its independent observation, review and evaluation of the school system's implementation of plans to reduce student suspensions.

The 10-member committee was appointed last fall by Superintendent John A. Murphy, with Alexander Williams, State's Attorney for Prince Georges County, as chairman.

Those wishing to speak at the hearing should register in advance by calling 952-6015. Individuals will be given three minutes of speaking time, representatives of groups or organizations will have five minutes.

Police Blotter

Partial Listing Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

On April 4 Greenbelt Police Department officers were asked to assist the U.S. Park police after a suspect vehicle being chased by the Park police entered the city. The driver abandoned the vehicle which had been reported stolen in a court on Southway and fled on foot. Numerous residents called the police, reporting a man running through their neighborhoods along Ridge Road. With this information, the suspect was apprehended in the 54 Court of Ridge Road and turned over to the Park Police for charges. A spokesman for the Greenbelt Police Department expressed the department's thanks, on behalf of the officers engaged in the chase, to the many residents who called in enabling the officers to capture the suspect.

The Standard Federal Savings Bank in Greenway Shopping Center was robbed on April 7 at about 3:35 p.m. The suspect threatened a teller, stating that he had a weapon although he did not display one. After getting an undisclosed amount of money, the suspect fled the bank on foot. An extensive check of the area for the suspect was negative. None of the bank employees was injured. The suspect was described as a white male, 30-35 years old, 5'9" or 5'10" with grayish blond hair, wearing a green army coat and blue jeans.

A woman resident was assaulted by two men near the post office on April 3 at about 5:55 p.m. She said that she was approached by the men and one of them grabbed her on the buttocks. Shortly thereafter, officers located two possible suspects but released them when the woman could not identify them.

On April 2 Sgt. John Lann arrested a nonresident male for disorderly intoxication after a disturbance at the Roosevelt Center Mall. The next day Lann arrested another nonresident male for consuming alcoholic beverages in public. The arrest was made in Braden Field Park. At the same location Cpl. Timothy Hahn arrested a nonresident man on April 5 for disturbing the peace and being in possession of PCP. The drugs were found on the suspect after he had been placed under arrest.

A resident woman reported being assaulted in the 3100 block of Bird Lane (in Windsor Green) on April 2 after a parking dispute with another motorist who had been parked in the victim's reserved space. According to the victim, the other motorist attempted to strike her with his vehicle as he drove away. The woman was not injured.

A nonresident man reported that his wallet was stolen by a pickpocket in the Beltway Plaza Mall on April 1 at 6:48 p.m. The suspect was described as a black male, 18-20 years old, with a thin build and black hair, wearing gray pants, a white shirt and a gray cap.

After Officer Tom Keifline attempted to stop a vehicle for a minor traffic violation in the 100 block of Westway, a highspeed chase ensued. The chase led through the streets of central Greenbelt and ended at Kenilworth Ave. and Crescent Road when the suspect lost control of his vehicle and struck another car. The suspect jumped out and fled on foot towards Ivy Lane where he was apprehended by Keifline. The vehicle the suspect had been driving had been reported stolen to the Montgomery County police. The man was charged with theft and numerous traffic offenses and held on bond. There were no serious injuries reported in the crash which ended the chase.

A resident of Springhill Lake reported a suspicious-appearing vehicle in the 6200 block of Springhill Court on April 6. Officer Mike Jeffreys checked and found the vehicle had been stolen from Washington, D.C.

A refrigerator was reported stolen on April 1 from an unfinished home on Megan Lane.

Some time over the weekend of April 2-3, an office in the 6300 block of Ivy Lane was entered by force. No property was reported stolen but approximately $500 of damage was done to the office.

A resident reported the theft of a motorcycle from the parking lot in the 9100 block of Edmonston Court. It was described as a 1982 Yamaha 550 Vision, black with red stripes, New Jersey registration E521A.

Between about 5-530 p.m. on April 6, an attempt was made to forcibly enter the PEPCO substation in the 6700 block of Greenbelt Rd. The perpetrators were apparently scared off when an alarm sounded.

Incidents of theft from autos and vandalism involving vehicles occurred in the period April 1-8 as follows: on April 1 in the 7800 block of Jacobs Dr. and the 7800 block of Emily's Way; on April 2 at the Greenbelt Lake parking lot and in the 8100 block of Lakecrest Drive; on April 3 in the 9000 block of Edmonston Road; on April 4, 5 and 6, in the 7000 block of Greenbelt Road, the 100 block of Lynbrook Court and the Greenway Shopping Center, respectively.

Golden Age Club

by Janet James

Happy Birthday to us! Happy Birthday to us! Happy Birthday Golden Agers, Happy birthday to us! Our 31st, no less—that is, as a club, most of us could more than double that as individuals. We're going to have a birthday party at Le Fontaine Bieu, 7943 Annapolis Rd. at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, April 20.

We have one sad thing about this party—we can't get a bus to take us there and we will have to carpool. Anyone who doesn't know with whom he/she is riding, get to the bank by 11 a.m. and wait for someone and anyone with room in his/her car, go by the bank and pick up the strays. We can do it, even without a bus—we golden agers can do anything! There is a charge and reservations are necessary. For information and reservations, please call Agnes Noack, 723-5194.

Gymnasium on Monday evenings from 6:30-10:30 p.m. Everyone, 16 years and over, is welcome.

Cinema and Draft House on Agenda

is cleared between shows, leaving patrons less than two hours for drinking. In addition, unlike restaurants and clubs, he said the focus at the drafthouse is on the movie, rather than on the food and drink and socializing. Permitting socializing would disturb moviegoers and hurt his business, he said.

Bram and Mayor pro tem Joseph Isaacs, presiding in the absence of Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, were concerned about the effect of the operation on the character of the center. Isaacs said that on-site drinking was unprecedented in the Center. Citing Greenbelt's attraction to "yuppies" LaPlaca said that the location is ideal, and jokingly asked "how close would you want it to be the police station?"

Another concern of council was the displacement of the Greenbelt Arts Center, which currently leases the theater. Carney said that they are willing to allow a limited mixed use. In a letter to Arts Center member Konrad Herling, Carney offered the Arts Center the use of the building for four to six weekends per year. He also offered to hold an annual fund raising promotion for the Arts Center. Carney told council that daytime uses of the theater would be no problem.

Councilmember Edward Putens, saying he was "intrigued" by the proposal by First Washington, was concerned that only one-half of the proposed joint venture was represented. Gerdon said that center owner Christacos had intended to attend, but was unable to due to an unspecified emergency.

However, Putens said that a multi-use theater is vital to the center and said that with the Arts Center it is being used as intended.

Isaacs also wanted to hear more of the proposed joint venture, but was concerned that the drafthouse represented a dramatic departure from the traditional orientation of the center as the social hub of the city.

Councilmember Thomas X. White suggested that the entire issue may be moot given the legislator passed that day prohibits the issuance of liquor licenses to theaters in the county. The legislation takes effect on July 1.

Bram said that even so, she would oppose the liquor license in the spirit of the legislation, which council had supported.

LaPlaca said that the drafthouse was a restaurant that showed movies and that his position is that the legislation does not apply to this establishment.

Citizen Concerns

Vice President Wayne Williams of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. read a statement from the board that took no position on the liquor license per se, but expressed concern that the operation may overwhelm the parking facilities, both in the Center lots and on the surrounding streets. Several individuals present also cited parking as a primary concern.

James Cassels of the Roosevelt Center Association, presented the group's concerns about the marketing of beer in the center and the incompatibility of the business with what he termed a neighborhood center.

A number of citizens, many of them associated with the Arts Center, echoed council's concerns about the impact on that group, even with the joint-use proposal by GCL. Carney cautioned Arts Center members not to assume that they will have continued use of the theater if the drafthouse is rejected. He said that any new owner will need some profit making business in that space.

Another concern, expressed by Beatrice Whitehall, was that the nearby residents may be disturbed by the noise generated by a large number of people exiting the center at the same time.

Praise

Windsor Green resident Sheldon Nat, an attorney with LaPlaca's firm, speaking as a private resident, thought the drafthouse a great idea for Greenbelt. He said it would attract area residents who would otherwise go elsewhere for entertainment and praised the Bethesda operation.

Baroque Music Program At Playhouse April 19

The Publick Playhouse will present a "Festival of Baroque Music" on April 19 at 8 p.m., combining performances by area artists Con Viva Musica and Musica Festiva.

Musica Festiva, an ensemble of professional musicians specializing in the music of the 18th and 19th centuries, will present an instrumental performance of Baroque chamber music.

Con Viva Musica, a chamber vocal ensemble, will perform a cappella repertoire of the 15th through the 20th centuries.

For ticket information call 277-1710 (Voice or TDD).

CITY NOTES

The general crew worked on the final patching of the surface on Hedgewood Drive. This will complete the underdrain project.

The parks crew are working on athletic fields. Several drain swales have been opened up around the fields in an effort to divert water from the playing surfaces. The grass-cutting season has begun in earnest.

The horticulturist is preparing roadsides and other planting locations for summer flowers.

The refuse crew is still short-handed, but a final employee has been hired. Due to the inclement weather and heavy collection requests, special trash is approximately four to five days behind.

Tom Renehan urged the city to consider the positive sides of the proposal, as well as the risks. He said that the city would incur considerable costs to rehabilitate the Center if the private proposal fails and said that any business that generates significant income would be likely to strain the parking facilities.

Renehan said the council should view the Arts Center separately from the theater, since it could be located elsewhere in the city.

Sixth Arts Fair Plans Underway

Greenbelt's annual Arts and Crafts Fair, set for June 4, is taking shape, and there is room for a few more artisans.

As in recent years, a special feature of the fair is the presence of The Blacksmiths' Guild of the Potomac, which will hold its two-day meet in the Roosevelt Center area. This year, the Guild will hold an auction of handmade ironwork on Saturday around noon, and members' works will be on display both Saturday and Sunday in the Utopia Theater Lobby.

Cosponsored in this sixth year by the Greenbelt Arts Center and the Greenbelt North End Center Arts Coalition, the fair will feature spinning, pottery, baskets, stained glass, wood-carving and toys, silk-screening, quilting, hand-made jewelry and various needlecrafts. Coordinator Eileen Peterson 345-2454 (evenings) is looking for artisans willing to demonstrate and/or sell items made of stone, leather, and other natural materials. Music will be featured throughout the day's events, which run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and anyone interested in providing entertainment should contact the coordinator.

Pool Fees for Seniors Rejected

to pay for pool admissions. He noted that no other area pool offers free admission to seniors. Bram said that the proposed fee was reasonable and called the issue one of equity. Both she and Isaacs raised the point that individual families, charged $100 for a season pass may need help more than some seniors. She agreed with the increases in the nonresident rates, saying they should carry the brunt of the increases.

PRAB Chairman Keith Chernikoff said that PRAB felt that the original proposal, giving seniors a 67 percent discount, recognized seniors' importance to the community. He called the senior rate consistent with national and local trends.

Chernikoff said that the city already has a policy that people of any age who cannot afford to buy pool passes can, upon presentation of proof, be granted free passes.

Weidenfeld said that it could be awkward to determine which seniors cannot afford to pay. He said that the reason the fee for senior citizen passes was eliminated some years ago was to encourage use of the pool by seniors. Weidenfeld said that the city provides many other recreation facilities, such as ballfields and tennis courts, that are primarily used by younger citizens.

Weidenfeld also argued that cost was not a significant consideration in the argument. He said even if all of the approximately 200 residents who receive free senior citizen passes purchased $15 passes, only $3,000 in additional revenue would be collected.

White, who offered the amended resolution striking the fee for seniors, said the free admission for seniors is a philosophical statement the city makes which he did not want to change.

Putens also opposed the fee, saying it represented a significant policy change and would send a message he does not want to send.

Youth Center Gym

Council, under a suspension of the rules, appropriated $14,400 for further repairs to the Youth Center gymnasium ceiling. Giese said in his written agenda comments that the repairs currently in progress will not be sufficient to prevent ceiling tiles from falling. To solve this problem additional supports must be welded to the ceiling. To avoid delays and a second closing of the Youth Center, the appropriations ordinance and a related ordinance permitting a negotiated purchase instead of the usually required bidding, were passed under a suspension of the rules.
