Innovative After-School Program Offers Children Help and a Haven

by Virginia Beauchamp

In the 1939 film "The City," which shows scenes of the newly constructed Greenbelt as a solution for problems of urban congestion and blight, an early sequence filmed in the then grimy and littered slums of Pittsburgh depicts unkempt, dirty children at play in the filthy puddles of back alleys. The crowding and obvious poverty of the urban scene, the unhealthy and dangerous conditions in which children sought their meager pleasures—these were central elements of the Depression era's definition of the social problem of cities.

For thinkers of that time, the building of New Towns like Greenbelt was the answer. Contrasting scenes in the film show Greenbelt youngsters in safe, park-like spaces, where they could bicycle, go fishing, or picnic by the lake. One view showed a crowd of children, obviously full of joy, dashing up the hill from the underpass toward Center School.

Unfortunately, in the view of Greenbelters, the New Town solution for social reform was abandoned by the nation. Today urban slums still exist, but their central problem is different. Now they are racked with the drug trade and enmeshed in the drug culture. Sadly, this problem has moved into the suburbs as well, including one from which some of the students at Center School are drawn. Nevertheless, one program in Greenbelt—still in the problem-solving mode of the city's founding—places Center School in the forefront of the search for answers. This article is the first in a projected series to explore how once again Greenbelt may be part of the solution.

Readers of the recent articles in the Washington Post on Dooney Waters, the six-year-old Greenbelt Center School pupil from Washington Heights, may have become aware for the first time of an innovative after-school and summer program which the school has inaugurated. Although the program was designed to alleviate problems of children like Dooney who are forced to survive at the very center of the drug scene, it is by no means restricted to them. Many Greenbelt and Washington Heights children from stable home environments have also enrolled, for the program is viewed as enriching to all.

About a year ago Center School Principal Dr. John Van Schoonhoven began to hear stories from his teaching staff about their young charges' fear of returning home at the end of the school day. Some children begged to spend the night at school, or to go home with the teacher. They told stories of having guns put to their heads and the trigger pulled, in a sadistic joke by adults in the neighborhood. One group of children witnessed a drug execution on their neighborhood playground.

Some parents reported that they met the school bus both morning and night, to see that their children made it safely between bus and home. These children were never allowed to leave the house to play. Worst of all were situations like that of Dooney, who could scarcely sleep because of the commotion and chaos of living in a crack house, and who never got a square meal. According to Prince Georges County Chief of Police Michael Flaherty, Washington Heights, where these children live, is the county's worst drug area.

Soon the intensity of the stress under which these Washington

Heights children lived was spilling over onto the teaching staff at Center School. Van Schoonhoven said they felt inadequate to deal with the problem and were devastated by its emotional consequences. Some of the teachers and students had already developed a strong bond. Van Schoonhoven said, through a program in language enrichment that was started in 1987.

Van Schoonhoven's first concern was to help his teachers. To this end he called in psychological consultants to help design an eight-week in-service training program for teachers. Its aim was to help the staff develop strategies for dealing with the drug culture. Yet it was clear to everyone that this was not enough. Something would have to be developed for the children themselves.

In the words of the document describing the Center School program, "The Washington Heights community has taken on the characteristics of an occupied territory where for many parents and children the only means of survival is to acquiesce to the standards, policies and practices of drug dealers. The children's sense of right and wrong has become blurred. . . . Every possible effort must be made to rescue these children. . . ."

County Assistance

At this point Van Schoonhoven asked to meet with County Executive Parris Glendening, school Superintendent John Murphy, and Police Chief Flaherty, as well as with public school and private psychological counselors. With assistance from school administrators, Van Schoonhoven drew up a program for Center

School students which actually began on April 3.

Without cost to parents, the program extended the school day to 6 p.m. and provided late-afternoon snacks for participating children. Door-to-door bus service was provided for the Washington Heights children, while Greenbelt children were picked up at school by their parents.

More than two hundred families responded to the letter that was mailed out to the homes of all Center School children — 150 by the very next day. Of the See AFTER SCHOOL, pg. 5, c. 2 in Washington, D.C. In 1960, he

WEIDENFELD & ISAACS DECLARE INTENTION TO SEEK REELECTION

Two incumbents—Mayor Gil Weidenfeld and Mayor Pro Tem Joseph C. Isaacs—have announced their intention to run again for a position on the Greenbelt City Council. Weidenfeld, who is completing his ninth term on the council, has served as mayor for six of those terms—an unprecedented record in council history. Isaacs was first elected in 1985 and reelected in 1987. As second highest vote getter in that election, he was named to the post of Mayor Pro Tem. It has been traditional for the council to elect as mayor or the candidate receiving the highest number of votes.

Weidenfeld Biography

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld is a graduate engineer and attorney. Besides his council position, he serves as Chairman of the Prince Georges Community Development Advisory Committee, whose function is to make recommendations each year to the County Executive on the distribution of millions of dollars in Block Grant Funds.

Weidenfeld has also served two terms as chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments (COG). He is the first elected municipal official from Prince Georges County ever elected Chairman of the COG Board in its 32-year history.

Weidenfeld has also served for three years as a vice president of the Maryland Municipal League (MML) and was on the MML's Board of Directors for five years. He is a past president of the Prince Georges County Municipal Association (PG-CMA) and served five years on the PG-CMA's Executive Board. He is the recipient of the PG-CMA's "Outstanding Municipal Official of Prince Georges County" Award.

Weidenfeld, who holds a management position with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, has earned numerous governmental awards for outstanding performance, special achievement and work of outstanding quality.

In 1969, Weidenfeld earned a law degree, Doctor of Jurisprudence, from Catholic University received a Bachelor of Science Degree in Mechanical Engineering from Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey. He is a member of the Maryland Bar, the District of Columbia and the United States Supreme Court Bar.

The Weidenfeld family, Gil, Muriel, and daughters Sharon and Ellen, are 24-year Greenbelt residents. They have lived in Springhill Lake and Boxwood Village and presently reside on Ridge Road.

Isaacs Biography

Born and raised in New York City's South Bronx, Isaacs, 38, is the first generation American son of immigrant parents. He is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the City College of New York, where he earned his Bachelor's degree in 1972. In 1975, Isaacs graduated summa cum laude from the Master's degree program in Health Services Management at the University of Missouri School of Business. Finishing at the top of his class earned him the "Outstanding Graduate" award.

Isaacs is currently the Vice President for Government Relations of the National Health Council, a 70-year-old association representing 95 of the nation's most respected and influential health organizations. Since 1985, he has also been on the faculty of the Department of Health Sciences at George Washington University's School of

by Sandy Smith

On Friday, September 1, at 10:30 a.m., the senior citizen swim party will provide a splashing opener for the 1989 Labor Day Festival. Three days later, in the late afternoon of September 4, the folk-singing Partners in Song will bring the curtain down on the weekend's stage entertainment. And in between the four-day Labor Day Festival will provide a celebration of entertainment, games, special events, athletic contests, food and fun for all ages.

Greenbelt's Recreation Department has planned a full program of athletic events—to watch or join. Among these are gym baseball, a ping pong tournament, home run derby, and softball game on September 1. There will be a tennis tournament, horse-shoe tournaments, hockey shoot off, golf contest, hot shot contest, baseball, speed pitching contests, slam dunk competition, races — of all different lengths — and more softball the rest of the weekend. Big wheel riders, ages 2 to 6, can take part in the 12th annual Big Wheel Road-cross. Winners are recognized for driving skill or best decorated vehicle.

The carnival midway opens Friday at 6 p.m. As in other years, the opening ceremonies will feature the Greenbelt Concert Band. Listeners can find a chair with a good view of the band in Roosevelt Center. Notlim the Clown will be roving through the carnival area to greet and entertain children.

Then the ceremonies shift to the Festival Stage, where city officials will be introduced. Soon the 1989 Outstanding Citizen will be named—a surprise to all except the committee which has been charged with reviewing the many worthy nominations to settle on a single recipient.

A nautical theme will be the background for the presentation of this year's Miss Greenbelt contestants. The eight pageant participants have already been busy with a tour of Annapolis and this year's fundraising project—the Make-a-Wish Foundation to benefit terminally-ill children.

The Festival's first dance will take place to the county rock sound of SouthBound. Throughout the weekend, there will be varied, continuous entertainment on the festival stage. The 35th Labor Day Festival has an international flavor with African drums, Sahara dancers, and Korean Karate. Children will welcome back the Bob Brown Puppets and Christian the Magician.

Special contests draw contestants from crawlers to teens. The diaper derby is always popular with parents and spectators, even if some of the participants are reluctant. In the diaper derby babies still at the crawling stage, are placed within an inner circle and encouraged to crawl to an outer ring. This year all of the special contests will be held Saturday, September 2.

The pet show and talent shows bring out children and teens to watch and participate. The art show and photographic exhibition get underway. These events are all listed in the Labor Day Festival schedule in this week's News Review. Next week the final schedule and preview of the entire Festival will appear.

Children in After-School Program Put on Show

Members of the After School Program at Greenbelt Center School presented a program on Thursday afternoon, June 15, to show some of the things they had learned to do. The children, who had been attending the program since April, performed either with their regular group or as members of a club, a once a week activity for the older children. Group leader Wendy Geagan was mistress of Ceremonies. Dr. Joanne Favors, director of the program, recognized the group leaders and welcomed guests.

Starting the program with a jazz dance, "Nasty," were fifth and sixth graders: Ayanna Alt-Fatah, Nicole De Haven, Alton Johnson, Cortni Tuck, V'na Chamberlain, Jessica Johnson Starr Lindsay, Vichelle Hancock, Tamaura Shephard, Jennifer Carey, Lindsey Dial, Melissa Mays, Tawanda Greenwell, Terezia Footes, Marquitta Johnson, Nateasha Whitman, Jherylita Cobb and Chris Avery. They were taught by volunteer Karer McGovern, who did the final number, a jazz solo dance, "Secret Rendezvous."

First graders, under the direction of their leader, Monica Washington, sang and danced "Winken, Blinken and Nod." They were Madeline McNulty, Tina Mooney, Donald Leggett, Antoine Miller, Christopher Vicks, Sherree Henderson, Shelly Sacra, Christina Marinelli, and Michael Watkins.

Third grade singers, coordinated by Yvette Boldt, sang "We Are the World" and had the audience join in. Singers were Gary Arrington, Heather Durance, James Johnson, Antonio Perry, Tammy Smith, Eddie Padgett, Michael Monke, Melissa Erby, Jason McNulty, Deonte Pressley, Herbert Gill and Aaron Taylor.

Eddie and Antonio also demonstrated a non-violent form of settling differences by sword fighting with large plastic swords which had no sharp points but were just fun to manipulate.

Monica Wiley's third graders, Andrea Simms, Latisha Ford, Donna Leggett, Chimere Freeland and Michelle Williams, read short original essays telling what they wanted to do when they graduate.

The fine arts club, coordinated by Marilyn Kendall and Barbara Likowski, presented a short mystery play "007". The cast included Katrina Padgett, Michael Sampson, Shante Ford, Mindy Byers, Chris Avery, Timothy Smith, Tiffany Dial, Gary Brown, Brian McKenny and understudy

CABLE CREW CAPERS

Every summer, as part of the Recreation Department's Camp Pine Tree program, the Channel B-10 production staff goes to the Youth Center to videotape the campers performing their own music videos. This year's performances included versions of the old nursery song "The Farmer in the Dell", "Don't Worry, Be Happy", and the popular rap tune "Parents Just Don't Understand".

The groups were videotaped without an audience. After each group had been recorded, all the campers gathered around the big screen TV and watched . . . and laughed . . . and laughed some more. (The camp counselors have just as much fun watching the videos as the kids.)

The municipal building finally got wired with the "A" cable after years of only having the "B" side. Since the new digital converter boxes do not work with just one cable, the other cable was installed. It was not an easy task. It took the technician about three hours to run the cable from the basement, up to the council room, down the hall, and finally to the City Manager's office. The new "A" cable will come in handy, especially during the winter months to watch "The Weather Channel" during snow emergencies.

Candis Bynaker.

Stage props for the play were made by Alan Pyles, Fernando Cortez, Alton Johnson, Thomas Massie, Ernest Vinson, Steven Smith, Marquitta Johnson and Jernelle Reynolds. These included a huge paper mache moosehead.

During intermission members of the cooking club, led by Mae Gingell and Marilyn Pell, served refreshments. Hosts and hostesses were Mark McLean, Kitesha Bailey, Marisa Dunmore, Nateasha Whitman, Monique Hunter, Adrian Taylor, Jessica Johnson and Terezia Footes.

Public Hearing on Time Limits Applied to Master Plan Process

by Elaine Skolnik

A public hearing on two Prince Georges County bills dealing with the allocation of specific time periods for each phase of a Master Plan and Sectional Map Amendment process will be held on Tuesday, September 5 at 1:30 p.m. in the County Administration Building in Upper Marlboro. Current law does not stipulate time limits for the various stages leading to adoption and implementation of a master plan.

"Due to the lengthiness of the (present) procedures, the Master Plan can become outdated even before it achieves adoption," said County Councilman Richard Castaldi, sponsor of CB-68. A second bill on the issue, CB-67, is sponsored by County Councilman James Herl.

Both bills shorten various time frames of the Master Plan and SMA phases. The major difference between them is that Castaldi proposes to prohibit the Planning Board, Zoning Hearing Examiner and County Council (sitting as District Council) from considering piecemeal zoning applications following the Planning Board's adoption of an updated master plan and its transmittal to the District Council. Herl's bill adheres to current procedures of postponing the acceptance and processing of individual zoning cases (with the exception of those in the Comprehensive Design Zones) until the District Council adopts a new master plan.

For example, if Castaldi's bill were law today, there could be no further zoning applications filed by developers in the area covered by the updated Langley Park, College Park and Greenbelt Master Plan — recently approved by the Planning Board — until after the District Council approves and implements the plan through the Sectional Map Amendment process. During the SMA process, new maps are prepared to reflect proposed Master Plan changes. Upon adoption by the District Council, the SMA for a particular area becomes the official zoning map.

Castaldi's bill would extend the postponement period of receiving and acting on zoning applications by an additional three to five months. This, he said, would "protect the integrity of a master plan after adoption by the Planning Board" and while the District Council was considering the plan. "Presently," Castaldi explained, "both the Planning Board and its staff face the dilemma of making recommendations on various zoning applications based on old and outdated

"Old Gang" Reunion

To the Editor:

I moved to Greenbelt with my parents as one of the first families. I grew up in Greenbelt and lived there for a few years after marrying. I attended the 50th Anniversary of Greenbelt and a great time. Although I have kept in touch with a lot of friends that I grew up with, it was nice to see many others during the 50th Anniversary.

During the 50th Anniversary my friends and I decided to continue this get-together by having an "Old Gang" reunion every two years. We had our first one in Los Angeles in July. We had friends from Florida, Missouri, California, and Maryland attend.

Some of you "old timers" may remember them: Mike Cockill, Susan Cockill, John Flynn, Mary, Nancy, and Annita Flynn. Larry Holien, Teddy Havens, Charles Howey, John Schaeffer, and Donny Walker. We had a fantastic time, and plan to have our next reunion in Florida in 1991.

We wanted to let all of you know just how special our "Old Gang" reunion was, and especially let Greenbelt know how special (she) is to all of us. These special friends and lasting friendships are the result of having grown up in a special place (Greenbelt).

An Open Invitation

Mark your calendars for Monday, September 4, and accept our invitation to attend the 35th annual Greenbelt Labor Day Parade. The parade steps off at 10 a.m. at Greenhill Road (Lake-wood) and runs along Crescent to the Center School lawn area.

This year's parade is packed with over 65 entries including the 130-piece Middletown High School Marching Band, the Potomac River Jazz Club, the Pawtomack Ancients Fife & Drum Corp., and the Prince Georges County Police Bagpipe Band, as well as many of your old favorites. Unfortunately, the deadline for parade entries has passed and only those registered will be in the parade.

If you are looking for a quiet, shady seat to view the parade, why not try the area along Crescent Road from Greenhill to Parkway Road. This year parade participants will be performing the entire route.

The parade should reach the reviewing stand, located across from the Municipal Building, by approximately 10:25 a.m. Be sure to join the participants afterward at the festival area for food, drink, and fun.

The parade volunteers have spent the past year scouting out groups to entertain and make the day memorable. Sit back and enjoy the festivities (and keep your fingers crossed for plenty of good weather).

Anyone who knows of a worthy business, organization, school, church or individual can sponsor an entry. Applications can be obtained from local libraries, the information desk on the first floor of the County Administration Building in Upper Marlboro, or by calling the CCCC office at 952-3676.

Changes in Maryland Tax Became Effective July 1

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said July 1 was New Year's Day for the state's fiscal year 1989.

Comptroller Goldstein, whose office collects the bulk of state revenue, told Marylanders that the new fiscal year also brings some changes in Maryland's tax law. "You may have read about the 'pizza tax.' But contrary to some reports, the new sales and use tax on delivered food the General Assembly enacted, (which was effective July 1,) applies not just to pizza, but also to other delivered food which is prepared for immediate consumption," Goldstein said. This new tax also applies to sandwiches, salads, deli trays, and other foods that are specially ordered.

"On the other hand," Goldstein continued, "effective July 1, the law exempts the sale of wigs or hairpieces needed due to surgical or medical treatment, such as chemotherapy. Sales to non-profit PTA's have also been exempted if the item purchased is to be donated to the school."

A targeted income tax relief program went into effect July 1 and will affect the state income tax returns Marylanders will file between January and April of 1990. The program will:

- replace the additional standard deduction for blind and elderly taxpayers with an extra personal exemption of $1,000;
- increase the minimum standard deduction from $1,000 to

$1,500 for single individuals and from $2,000 to $3,000 for married couples; and —exempt income below the poverty guideline threshold from tax.

The year after that, for returns filed in 1991, the personal exemption for all individuals will increase from $1,100 to $1,200.

Comptroller Goldstein noted that some law changes will provide tax breaks for military taxpayers. "On tax year 1989 returns, which will be filed in 1990, military personnel may subtract from their federal adjusted gross income all the military income up to $15,000 they receive while serving outside the United States." The amount of this subtraction modification declines dollar-for-dollar for each dollar that military income exceeds $15,000. In other words, if military income totals $30,000, the subtraction modification becomes zero.

Greenbelter Joins Peace March in North Korea

by Becky Williams

For two weeks in late July I participated in an International Peace March in North Korea. In all, a group of 200-250 marchers, 50-60 from Europe, Africa, North and South America, and the rest Korean students, traveled from the north tip of North Korea (within sight of China) to the brick and cement wall that cuts North Korea from South Korea.

The marchers stopped to visit historical sites, and to rally with townspeople on their 10-day journey. The Peace March objectives were signing a peace treaty to replace the armistice between North and South Korea; withdrawal of U.S. troops and weapons from South Korea; and negotiations for the reunification of Korea.

The trip was an intense multicultural experience. I had two quick impressions. The first was as the plane dropped below the clouds, the emerald valley of Pyongyang, the capital city, spread below. The tree-shaded walks along the two rivers that join in. Pyongyang suburbs could be seen. Beyond the city the rice paddies and corn fields fitted into the contours of the land, a sculptured carpet right up to the steep mountains that ring the valley.

Here and there against a narrow range of foothills were clusters of homes (reminding one of GHI clusters) for the farm families. Small carefully terraced rice and maize fields were ubiquitous; other crops marked field limits and were sown on slopes separating terraces. Sturdy plants were used as windbreaks. Archways over irrigation ditches and paths held cucumber, squash, and melon vines up into the sun. A war-ravaged land was made into a garden.

The second impression was of an energetic, healthy and hopeful people. Throngs of young adults, children, farmers, construction workers, parents holding babies, and some older citizens crowded the sidewalks cheering, shouting and bearing gifts of flowers, soft drinks, and spring water, and greeting the marchers at each town we walked through.

During a particularly tumultuous reception a small boy joined me. He was in a bright white shirt and soft red scarf such as all school children wear. He stuck beside me for a mile or more, then, with just the hint of a smile, and an abbreviated bow, ducked past the parade marshals again and ran back down the road.

Korean university and college students, most of them multilingual, were helpful to all the other marchers, and the interaction and sharing was exciting for everyone. They were an outstanding selection of young people by any standard, and very knowledgeable about their own country. It is a closed state but these were not a closed people.

This fall a video tape of the Peace March will be available. I will welcome invitations to discuss the Peace March objectives, as well as discuss what I learned about North Korea health services, education, and agriculture. Please call me (474-6265) or the the Committee for Nuclear Disarmament and Self-Determination in Korea 387-2989.

Swim Team News

by Meadow Wirick

Division C, Prince-Mont. Swim League swam their top swimmers Saturday, July 29, at Bannister. Coach Gail Drake had said before the meet, "It should be a very close, competitive meet." She was right! All three of our coaches were working hard, answering questions and handing out instructions and encouragement. When they announced the scores of the other five teams, 6th through 2nd place, Greenbelt started jumping up and down and cheering. There had been some fantastic swimming, and many of our swimmers went up to All-Stars.

The All-Star meet was on August 5 at Cheverly. Aruna Inversin surprised everyone by getting a first in breast stroke! Carolyn Drake got a first in back stroke, a third in Individual Medley, and a fifth in butterfly. Jeanne Kepler got a second in back stroke, a sixth in breast-stroke, and a sixth in freestyle. Cooper Pappas got sixths in butterfly and freestyle. Kathy Barwick got a fourth in freestyle.

The American Legion is generously sponsoring our Swim Team Banquet again this year on September 17.

Winter swim, which meets on Sunday evenings, is good for people who want to join the swim team next year. Call Gail Drake for more information at 345-2522.

Thank you coaches Gail, Sarah and Warren for helping us improve our times — faster times and good times!

200 children subsequently signed up for the after-school program, about three-fourths have come from Washington Heights, one-fourth from Greenbelt. For the summer program, 65 children are enrolled — with about the same ratio of Washington Heights and Greenbelt children. In both programs parents had to make three commitments — that the child would attend regularly, would adhere to school rules, and would receive support at home in completing homework.

Through Glendening's efforts special funding was arranged with the Casey Foundation—now renamed the Commission for Families — to pay staff salaries, provide supplies, and underwrite busing costs. The primary goal of the Commission is to provide a unified program of services for families. It currently funds three pilot projects — one in North Dakota, and two involving three zip code regions of Prince Georges County. Two of the latter include Washington Heights — hence the Greenbelt connection. The other is in Glen Arden.

Staffing

The after-school program, which will begin again on September 5 and will enroll the first 225 applicants, kindergarten through sixth grade, is directed by Dr. JoAnne Favors. A letter soliciting applications will soon be sent to parents.

Ten Group Activity Assistants (about one to each 15 children), helped by volunteers, will lead the children in outdoor play, assist with homework and academic skill development, and offer enrichment activities such as computer literacy, music games, dance, fine arts, and field trips. Clubs in cooking, video filming, drama, choir, and sports activities are also offered. The summer program included field trips and gardening as well.

Counseling in drug awareness and prevention, family and individual counseling are an important part of the program. During the winter program, six counselors are assigned on a regular basis. In addition, another staff member functions as secretary and health aide.

Van Schoonhoven stressed the great value to the program which has been offered by volunteers. "Even a one-day-a-week commitment to just one student can make all the difference," he said. "The more volunteers, the richer the program," he continued. He urged Greenbelters to get in touch with him if they'd like to help.

Philharmonic Auditions

Auditions for the Prince Georges Philharmonic will be held during the first part of September. There are vacancies for: oboe, french horn, violin, viola, cello, and double base. Call Michael Rodgers at 885-3426 to schedule an audition.

Host Families Needed

Throughout the world, foreign high school students are nervously packing suitcases and telling their future American host families when their August flight arrives. For Juan, of Madrid, Spain, however, the scenario is somewhat different.

Juan will not have the opportunity of fulfilling his dreams to be an exchange student in the United States unless an American family is willing to share their home with him during the 1989-1990 academic school year. Juan is anxious to begin packing his suitcases just like all the other exchange students and to begin correspondence with his future family.

Any family who would consider hosting Juan or another ASSE exchange student, may contact local ASSE Area Representative Janet Smith at (301) 567-7288 or phone toll free, (800) 333-3802.

PLANS AFOOT FOR C&W 10K RACE ON SEPT. 9

by Mary Lou Williamson

With a hot air balloon and Mardi Gras costumes, Coakley & Williams will put on a colorful 10K race and one-mile fun run on September 9, with all proceeds again to benefit the Columbia Lighthouse for the Blind and Radio Station WLTT's Good Lite Fund. Runners are invited to don their "wackiest, wildest, craziest costumes and win a prize," says the race brochure. This year 500-600 runners are expected (weather cooperating).

The TAC-certified measured course begins at the Greenbelt development and management firm's headquarters in the Maryland Trade Center Park and will traverse streets in Greenbelt East (see map). Participants whose registration is received or postmarked by August 26 will be entitled to a discounted entry fee. All participants will be issued a cotton long-sleeved/customed T-shirt. Also on the program are an aerobics and progressive dance demonstration and post-race refreshments, to be provided by local restaurants. The Holiday Inn is offering a special room rate for runners and volunteers, with half the proceeds to be donated to the Columbia Lighthouse. Other corporate sponsors helping with the race are NYMA, Rocks Engineering and Bel-Jean Copy/Print Center.

Members of the Coakley and Williams families, who have also sponsored an annual fundraising banquet for the Columbia Lighthouse for the past six years, held a kick-off reception for the race in July at their Holiday Inn Calverton.

Charles Fagen, president of the Columbia Lighthouse expressed his gratitude to the two families for their support. "It's nice to be associated with such good people," he said. "The Lighthouse is celebrating its 90th birthday this year. The organization pioneered aid to the visually impaired in 1900 in a Washington townhouse by teaching chair caning and piano tuning. Today we have a 34,000 sq. ft. building with outreach programs in communities for continuing education. We teach everything from rock-climbing to gourmet cooking. Our computer classes, there is a three-month waiting list, enable the visually impaired to get jobs or better jobs," he said.

James Keating, vice president and general manager of radio station WLTT (94.7 FM), told of the work done by the Good Lite Fund "to put something back" into the community that supports the radio station. In the past five years, the fund has given out over $200,000 worth of aid to the disabled by purchasing and donating needed equipment, such as the Braille printer requested by the Volunteers for the Visually Handicapped. He commended the Coakley and Williams families for joining in "giving something back."

Dean Drucker, heading up the race for C&W, announced that fund-raising was ahead of schedule, with over $10,000 pledged by mid-July. The company concentrates its charitable activities rather than giving a small amount to many worthwhile endeavors, he told the News Review.

Brannan Heads Media Services

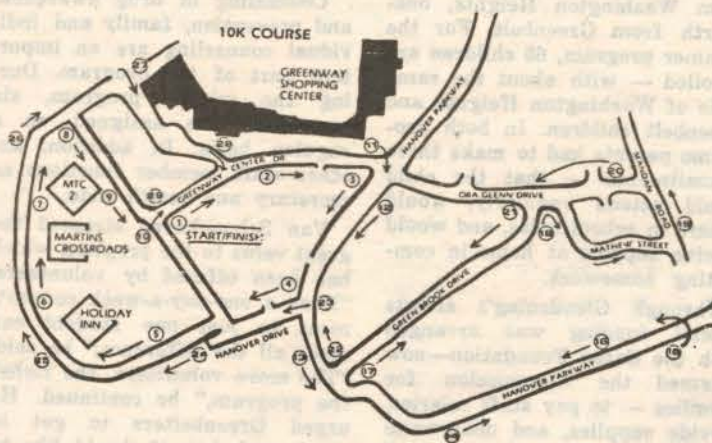

Marna S. Bateman, executive vice president and chief operations officer of West & Brady Inc., announced that Maria Brannan has been named Director of Media Services for the Greenbelt-based advertising and public relations firm.

A graduate of the University of Maryland, Brannan was formerly Media Buyer for the agency. She is active in a number of area professional associations and an accomplished theatrical performer, frequently appearing in local musical productions.

Jerry Dykstra of The Fred Ezra Company represented NASA/Goddard Space Flight Center in the firm's recent expansion at 6303 Ivy Lane. The firm leased 18,600 square feet in the building owned by Eleventh Springhill Lake Associates and leased by Community Realty Company.

Greenbelt's Business

The route of the 3rd Annual Coakley & Williams 10K race, which will be run at 8 a.m. on Sept. 9, is shown on the map above. Runners may obtain an entry form and return it by mail by August 26 or in person to the C&W office in the OAO building, Room 1160. All proceeds from the race will benefit the Columbia Lighthouse for the Blind and Radio Station WLTT's Good Lite Fund. For further information, call 345-9730.

M-NCPPC RECOGNIZED FOR QUALITY PLANNING

The Prince Georges County Planning Department of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) recently won recognition from the National Capital Area Chapter of the American Planning Association for three projects designed to ensure the quality of development in the county. The projects include: (1) a woodland conservation and tree preservation program that would require that a percentage of each development site be devoted to woodland conservation and establishes penalties for the destruction of woodlands without approval; (2) a county landscape manual that establishes minimum landscape design requirements for all private developments and which, when enacted, will replace all landscaping standards now in the county zoning code; and (3) the New Carrollton Transit District Plan, that will ensure high-quality development around the terminus of Metro's Orange Line at densities appropriate to the area. Each phase of development will be tied to specific transportation and parking management improvements.

Everyone Welcome

"Unity Through Community Involvement," the theme of the Labor Day Festival, describes a weekend when all Greenbelters can come together, both in volunteer work and for entertainment. Founded thirty-five years ago, the Festival has traditionally given Greenbelt organizations an opportunity to earn money and show off their activities. The Festival is a non-profit organization directed by a Steering Committee elected yearly. It receives its operating expenses from donations of local businesses and from a percentage of the profits from booths and carnival rides. All Greenbelt residents and organizations are invited to participate in the planning and activities of the Festival.

PG Educator and Civic Activist Heads For Germany in Challenging New Job

by Karen Myers

In 1965, President Lyndon B. Johnson gave a special message to Congress which he called "Toward Full Educational Opportunity." In it, he said, "Every child must be encouraged to get as much education as he has the ability to take. We want this not only for his sake — but for the nation's sake. Nothing matters more to the future of our country: not military preparedness — for armed might is worthless if we lack the brain power to build a world of peace . . . freedom is fragile if citizens are ignorant."

Spend merely an hour with Betty Moore and it becomes obvious that she shares Johnson's view of the importance of education, particularly in areas of political history and civic responsibility. Moore, a resident of Greenbelt for 30 years and professor at Prince Georges Community College for 28 of those years, has spent her career training students in history and government and showing them the value of being politically aware.

And now her love for imparting knowledge is taking her overseas to teach on military bases in West Germany. As her August departure quickly approaches, Moore fondly reminisces on her years as a Greenbelter and the fulfillment found in nearly three decades of teaching.

Teaching government and politics is not exactly what Moore, 65, had planned to do. She received a Bachelor's degree from Bucknell University in Pennsylvania in Social Science and English, then went on to complete a Master's in History. While teaching history at Penn State's Altoona campus, she had a student who would later become her husband. Not wanting him to go to the main campus in State College, Pa., without her, she applied for a doctoral fellowship. There was none available in history, so Moore accepted one in political science and followed this man, Durrell, to State College. They have been married now for 40 years, and she has been teaching government and politics for almost as long.

Goes to Capitol Hill

Moore took a break from teaching in the late 1950's and early 1960's to pursue a career on Capitol Hill. She was a consultant and personal advisor to U.S. Senator John McClellan from Arkansas, and in that position was able to recognize the strong link between history and politics. She remembers being on the floor of the Senate when Medicare was passed.

"It was really history," she recalls. "The beginning of socialized medicine in the United States." Her years on the Hill and first-hand experiences in politics would prove to be invaluable to her later teaching career.

Moore began teaching political science and history at Prince Georges Community College in 1961 when classes were meeting at Suitland High School. The college was only three years old at the time and had a mere 200 students. The campus on Largo Road was completed in 1965 and the college has since grown to 31,000 students.

Changes in Students

Teaching for 28 years has given Moore an opportunity to see both similarities and differences in students of various eras.

"Students in the '60's were more activists," says Moore. As was the case on virtually every campus in the country at the time, her students seemed very interested in the political climate and felt they played a key role in shaping national decisions. But Moore also remembers that many students were interested in her classes only enough to secure a passing grade and thereby avoid being drafted to Vietnam.

Some of Moore's students today are keenly interested in political ideologies. But many are there because they "have to be." "Why do I have to take this course?" is a complaint Moore has heard time and time again down through the years.

"How many of you work?" is her response.

"What does it say on your paycheck?"

And from these two questions, Moore launches into teaching her students about civic responsibility and the relationship between government and citizen. Although many of her students do not aspire to a life in elected office, she shows them that they all have dealings every day with some form of government.

Yet some of Moore's students have aspired to and are currently pursuing careers in politics. James V. Aluisi, Prince Georges County Sheriff, was one of Moore's students and still keeps in touch with her. Other students have gone on to work as congressional aides and serve in various political organizations.

As much as these individuals could be considered her "prize" students, Moore views another group of stars as just as valuable. These are the senior citizens, the newly-inspired housewives, the former welfare mothers. These are people who could probably never afford another college or university but have just as much desire to learn as anyone else. These students are an inspiration to Moore as much as she is to them.

Moore sees the affordability yet high-quality faculty as one of the many benefits of Prince Georges Community College, for one reason because instructors are not pressured into concerning themselves with research and tenure and can therefore devote more time to the students themselves. Throughout her career, Moore has been called upon to play the roles of adviser and mother, encourager and friend.

Greenbelt Connections

Leaving Prince Georges Community College to teach with the University of Maryland's University College in West Germany also means leaving Greenbelt, a place where Moore and her husband have raised a family and been involved in various community organizations. As is the case with all long-time residents of Greenbelt, Moore has seen many changes in this city.

As a child in the late 1930's, Moore visited this planned community with her uncle who was living in Georgetown. She found it to be modern and a milestone in concept and layout, but thought it unfathomable that people would actually live here and commute into the city and work. Little did she know that 20 years later she would be establishing Greenbelt as her home.

When she moved in, there was no Beltway and Greenbelt Road was a desolate road with no much more than a school and a general convenience store. Her lot in Lakeside was bought for $3,500 in 1959. The Moores worked with an architect to design the house which would be home to their son and daughter. Their children, who attended Parkdale High School, still live and work nearby.

Moore describes the early years of Greenbelt as being safe and secure ones. Neighbors knew each other well and crime was virtually unheard of. But she laments that the continued development, both residential and commercial, has resulted in more opportunities for crime. Moore also regrets that with the added growth came more mobility and less contact with fellow Greenbelters. The atmosphere of community became disrupted as people started commuting further and children did not always attend the neighborhood schools.

Yet Moore has pride in Greenbelt's past and hope for its future. Greenbelt has always been very much an activist community, says Moore, and it continues to be. A large percentage of its residents seem to be involved in some sort of community service. Moore herself has been active in the Lakeside Association and was the first chair of the elections board in the 1970's. Her husband is still very involved in the local Boy Scouts.

Much of the Moore's new adventure remains unknown. They will not find housing until they get there, and Moore is not yet sure which part of the country she will be teaching in. But they are excited about sharing in a new culture. They are relentlessly listening to German language tapes, to soak up all they can about life in Germany. This enthusiastic instructor has an insatiable desire to gain all the knowledge she can from this world and impart it to others. As a result of a lengthy investigation conducted by Det. Robert Keller, a 14-year-old resident male has been arrested and charged with two counts of armed robbery. The juvenile was incarcerated at Boys Village pending a hearing. He has been charged with robbing a Dante's Pizza delivery person at gunpoint on June 3 as she delivered a pizza in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace. He is also charged with robbing a Domino's Pizza delivery person at gunpoint less than two weeks later, during a pizza delivery in the 6200 block of Springhill Ct.

Ofc. Robert Dowling arrested a 12-year-old nonresident after the juvenile "moonied" a resident in the 100 block of Centerway on August 15. The juvenile was charged with disorderly conduct and released to his mother pending trial.

An employee of Mama's Pizza, 9200 block of Springhill Lane, was attacked on August 16 in the store by five or six teenagers after he told them that the store was closed. The victim was transported to Prince Georges Doctor's Hospital and treated for head injuries. A suspect has been identified and the investigation is continuing.

Breaking and Entering

Officers responding on August 14 to a reported burglar alarm at Bowman's Snack Shop, Buddy Attack Park, found that someone had attempted to break into the concession stand by prying open a wooden window cover. Entry was not gained and no property was reported stolen. A breaking and entering that had occurred overnight was reported on August 11 at the Pizza Place, Beltway Plaza. Entry was gained via a ceiling air duct. Although no property was reported stolen, damage sustained was estimated at $2,000.

Shoplifting

Pfc. Steven Keller was flagged down on August 15 by a witness in Beltway Plaza who had observed a person steal merchandise from Thrift-D Drug Store. As Pfc. Keller investigated, the person was seen leaving Superfresh Food Store. The person fled from the officer but was apprehended in a trash dumpster behind Pearle Vision Center. He had apparently stolen merchandise from Superfresh as well as Thrift-D Drug. A non-resident male was charged with two counts of theft and appeared before a District Court Commissioner where he was released pending trial.

A College Park woman reported on August 11 the theft of her purse from her shopping cart at Bud's Discount Drug Store, Beltway Plaza.

NEA Fashions, Greenway Shopping Center, reported a shoplifting on August 12. As an employee approached, the suspect fled with merchandise in a trash bag. The suspect is described as a black female, 27 years old, 5'7", 120 lbs., slim build, black hair. She was last seen wearing a navy blue shift with polka dots leaving the area in an older model tan vehicle, DC tags 356 933.

Stolen Cars

A 1989 Cadillac Sterling, green, with no registration plates, was reported stolen on August 14 from Capitol Cadillac.

On August 11, a resident reported that her 1988 Chevy Cavalier had been stolen in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace. She had just left the vehicle, leaving the keys under the driver's seat. It is a white Cavalier, Maryland tags VYN 466.

In the 7500 block of Greenway Center Drive, a two-tone gray 1989 Pontiac Bonneville, MD registration WZF 520, was stolen on August 16.

Vandalisms to, attempted theft of, and thefts from autos were reported during the week of August 11-17 at the following locations: 100 block Westway, Cres-

Making Greenbelt his home 14 years ago, Joe, his wife Deborah, and his daughters Rachel, Julianne, and Allison reside on Julian Court. Previously, Isaacs lived for four years at the Springhill Lake Apartments.

In recognition of his professional and civic achievements, Isaacs received an "Outstanding Young Marylander" award in 1986 from then-Governor Harry Hughes. Because of his dedication and commitment to community service, he was selected in 1984 as Metropolitan Washington Volunteer Activist of the Year, as Prince Georgian of the Year, and as an Outstanding Young Man of America by the National Jaycees.

Isaacs has served on Greenbelt's Advisory Planning Board (APB), as well as the City's Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB). He has also been an active member of the Maryland Citizens Planners Association.

NCSL Soccer

by Manuel Pereira

The last game of the season was against the Little River Scorpions and it was decisive: a win would mean passing the Virginians in the standings and having a good chance of going up a division. With this in mind the Greenbelt Comets traveled to Virginia and played an exciting, emotional game. Using their team and individual skills and their hearts the Greens overcame everything.

Losing by 0-1 and later by 2-2 the Comets never gave up and tion.

As President of the Boxwood Civic Association from 1982 through 1985, Isaacs was a strong advocate on many issues of concern to his neighborhood and the city-at-large. He founded Boxwood's crime watch in 1983 and successfully fought for the construction of needed bus stop shelters. On citywide matters, he served as co-chair of Citizens FOR the Bond Issue and as Chairman of the Save Our (Co-op) Services (S.O.S.) Committee.

Isaacs has been a member of the Board of Directors of the Greenbelt Arts Center and a vice president of the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club. His other local memberships have included Citizens for Greenbelt, Friends of the Greenbelt Museum, the Greenbelt Lions Club, Toastmasters and the Greenbelt Jaycees.

their determination and better play brought them the final well deserved 4-3 win.

The first goal was scored by Jason Ziegler. Then Etim Edim with a hat-trick (3 goals), assisted by Daryl Harrington and Robert Ramirez, deserved the outstanding compliments of Little River players and coach at the end of the game. Congratulations, Greenbelt Comets!

The last three games of the season started with a very tough game and a loss (1-2) in Arlington. One minute after Etim scored Arlington tied and towards the end when Greenbelt was attacking to win the game, Arlington scored on a fast counter attack.

The following week the team traveled to Wheaton winning 4-2. The first two goals were scored by Jay Blavett with one assist by Etim and the last two goals scored by Etim assisted by Miguel Pereira and Daryl.

This was a very exciting season. The Comets, coached by Peter Repole, improved a lot during the season. Special mention goes to Comets Jason Harbin, Aaron Johnson, Craig Halper, Gregg Repole, Jamie Despres, Jason Everhart, Peter Timei, Matthew Natonick, Raphael Mingo and Ryan Hackett for their contribution to the final record (8-4-1).

Sponsors were Springhill Lake Apartments, Three Brothers Pizza, Capital Office Park, Princeton Electric Co., and Recknow, Shaffer, Berg and Grillo, CPA.

Our Neighbors

Our condolences to Helen Foster on the death of her brother, former Greenbelter Kenyon Robinson.

Cadet Timothy A. McCleary attended the U.S. Army ROTC 6-week advanced camp, Fort Bragg, N.C.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in either the U.S. Army, Army Reserve or National Guard for the cadet.

McCleary is the son of Stephen J. and Maureen McCleary of Lastner Lane. He is a 1986 graduate of De Matha High School.

We were delighted to read about Katie and Greg Pugliese's new house on Research Rd. in a recent Home section of the Washington Post. Further confirmation of how great it is to live in Greenbelt!

So many new little faces greet us in walks, courts and even in the supermarkets and stores around the city, giving us a lift of spirits and helping to make the heat more bearable.

Nora Marie Codd was born May 18 in the Bethesda Maternity Center weighing 7 lb., 11 oz. She lives with her parents, Patricia and Joseph Codd and big brothers Terrence and Matthew, 3, at 36 Ridge Rd.

Christine and William James Hufnell, South Ora Court, welcome their first child, William Joseph. William was born July 23 at Holy Cross Hospital and weighed 8 lb., 6 oz. Uncle Gerald Hufnell lives on Lakecrest Drive.

It's a boy for Paula Baines and Scott Craig, Mandan Rd. Adrian Bryce Christopher Craig was born July 13 at Holy Cross Hospital, weighing 8 lb., 6 oz.

Veronica May Lafranchise was born July 10 at Holy Cross Hospital, weighing 8 lb., 9 oz. Happy parents are Darlene and Philip Lafranchise, 54 Ridge Rd.

Two of our new neighbors were born at Holy Cross Hospital on the same day.

Deborah Hodge and Michael Chase, Edmonston Rd., announce the birth of their daughter, Lakeisha Corindi LaQuida Chase on July 19. Lakeisha weighed in at 6 lb.

Also on July 19 Cassandra and Robert Walker welcomed Christen Bianca Ciera Walker. Their daughter weighed 8 lb., 1 oz.

Mark Anthony Staver is brightening the home of Dee and Richard Staver, Brett Place. Mark weighed in at 9 lb., 2 oz. on July 20 at Holy Cross Hospital.

July 26 was the birth date of Joshua David, son of Debra and David Sheppard, Lakecrest Drive. Weighing 8 lb., 7 oz., Joshua made his debut at Holy Cross Hospital.

Zina and Boyd Petersen, Westway, welcome their first child. Mary Rose was born August 5 in Holy Cross Hospital weighing 7 lb., 5 oz. Mary Rose's grandparents all live in Utah. A hearty welcome to all our new Greenbelters.

Mat Amberg reports that while his daughter Ruth and her husband, Jim Lantelme were touring Hawaii, climbing volcanoes and craters, shooting photos of bubbling hot lava running into the sea, they ran across a sign on the island of Kauai. It said "Spaceflight, Tracking and Data Network Station, Kokee Park, Hawaii, NASA Tracking Station, operated by Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Maryland." As Mat says, "However far you travel, you never get far from home."

Master Sgt. Mark A. Bryant, son of Bernice M. Bryant of Ridge Road, has earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland European Division in Italy.

Bryant has completed college studies through participation in the U.S. Air Force off-duty education program.

The program has the Air Force paying 75 percent tuition for active duty Air Force members and 90 percent tuition for career non-commissioned officers with less than 14 years military service.

He is a historian technician with the 487th Tactical Missile Wing in Italy.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again:

When you bring your vehicle into a repair facility, and the technicians explain to you that they placed your vehicle's engine on a diagnostic analyzer or oscilloscope, this means voltage readings were observed and a comparison can be made on all cylinders. This procedure can pinpoint a weak cylinder or a shorted spark plug or an ignition cable that has slight resistance. With all the latest emission control devices, it becomes a very good idea to scope the engine to eliminate any guess work and diagnosing can be done very easily.

A common problem is that ignition cables, otherwise called spark plug wires, become brittle from engine heat, or they may become soaked with engine oil and no longer carry the voltage from the ignition coil and distributor to the spark plugs, thus developing poor engine drivability.

Sometimes you don't need an oscilloscope to pick up on this kind of failure. A simple visual inspection can spot deterioration of spark plug wires instantly. Another simple way to determine another type of voltage loss can be done at night. With very little light, start your engine and open the hood. Any leaking voltage can be seen very easily and indicates a wire failure.

Till next time
