Schrom Lake Approaches Houses And City, County Seek Solutions

by Diane Oberg

The growing lake in Schrom Hills Park took the spotlight at the April 16 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council. Council also discussed other problems in Greenbelt East, postponed the next council meeting from April 23 until April 30 and declared April 22 as Earth Day in Greenbelt. In a related action, council received the report of the Refuse and Recycling Committee. Council and the committee will discuss the report at an April 23 worksession

Council member Edward Putens raised the issue of the flooding of an area in Schrom Hills Park. The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) originally planned to construct a lake at this location to serve as a stormwater detention facility. However, in 1988 the city was notified by its con-sultants that the planned pond site was in a wetland area. Plans for the stormwater facility, including the basic decision to build a pond or a "dry pond" drainage area, are still in limbo. To the city's dismay, the rains over the past month or so have created an unplanned lake, which City Planning and Development Coordinator Celia Wilson said was 15 to 20 feet from the nearest house. Putens said that the water has risen rapidly since the previous week. He expressed concern about damage to nearby property.

Wilson told council that the current flooding results from installation two years ago of new drainage pipes and the closing off of the old drainage pipes. These pipes were located where the proposed stormwater facility will drain. Because of the stale-mate on pond plans, no work has been done to ensure that stormwater drains to the new pipe location. As a result, Wilson said that there is no natural way for excess water to drain.

WSSC is no longer part of the process, since the county government has assumed responsibility for stormwater management. Wilson said that two county agencies, the Department of Public Works and Transportation (DPWT) and the Department of Environmental Resources (DER) have responsibility for stormwater management. However, neither agency, she said, would take responsibility for resolving the flooding situation.

Earlier that day, Wilson said, Ann Castaldi of county council member Richard Castaldi's staff assisted the city in getting the agencies to cooperate. As a result, DER issued a memorandum for emergency maintenance directing DPWT to "do something" to fix the problem. Likely options are diversion of water through a trench, reopening the old drainage pipes or pumping the pond. Wilson expected to receive the county's decision in the near future.

During the past year considerable construction has occurred in the area draining into the pond. The replacement of open space with pavement has increased the amount of water runoff. City Manager James K. Giese said that the city was prepared to cut a trench to drain the area if it becomes necessary to protect the nearby homes from flooding.

Status of the Pond
Putens also asked about the status of the proposed pond. Before the pond could be constructed, the county must obtain a permit from the Corps of Engineers granting approval for the plans and for any mitigation steps to offset the loss of wetlands. Wilson said that the county never submitted a permit application. However, the Corps has informally informed the county that the originally proposed fiveacre pond will not be approved.

DER, in the meantime, is working on a plan for a wet pond approximately one-half the original size and a dry pond of equal size. These would provide a recreation facility while reducing the impact on the wetlands.

Putens argued that the city should pressure the county to submit an application for the original pond plan to get a definite answer from the Corps. Mayor pro tem Thomas X. White disagreed, saying that it is easy to surmise from the comments of the Corps that the pond plan would not be approved.

Wilson and Giese had not yet developed a position that both could support. Council directed them to review the situation further and come back with a recommedation for what the city's next step should be.

Other Problems

Another area of Greenbelt East is also experiencing water problems. Putens asked Wilson about stormwater or springwater problems in the single family homes area of Greenbrook. Wilson said that the city has directed developer Porten and Sullivan to correct a problem on Brett Place and is still investigating problems on Matthew Place and Brett Circle.

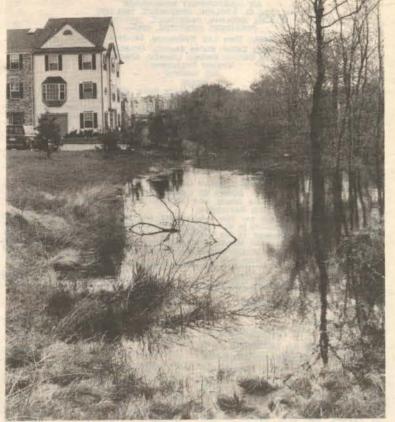

Council referred to staff for comment a petition from Paul Andrews of the Greenbrook Village Homeowners Association. Andrews seeks assistance from the city in dealing with Porten and Sullivan regarding the use of fire-retardent treated roofing plywood. Use of some such plywood has been found to cause roofing problems, even under normal conditions.

Council member Antoinette M. Bram urged anyone who has not yet done so to obtain "sticky bands" to place on their trees to trap gypsy moth caterpillars. Assistant City Manager Michael P. McLaughlin said that although there has been a recent run on the bands, the city expects to receive a new shipment later in the week. The city will run announcements on channel B-10 to keep residents informed as to the availability of the bands.

Legislature's Bill Authorizes $150,000 For Rehabilitation of Center School

by Elaine Skolnik

The Maryland State Legislature approved bond bill HB-1227 authorizing a grant in the amount of $150,000 for the rehabilitation of Greenbelt Center School as a community center. Co-sponsored by state delegates Joan Pitkin and Mary Conroy, the bill originally called for $1 million in financial assistance for renovating and equipping the center. A companion bill in the state senate was sponsored by delegate Leo Green.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld observed, "Getting the $150,000 is a good sign and indicates that the merit of the project was recognized. It opens the door for the city to seek additional money."

In testimony before the Maryland House Appropriations Committee in March, Weidenfeld, on behalf of the city council, supported legislation that would provide $1 million in financial assistance for renovating Center School as a community center. He urged the committee to take favorable action on the bill which, he said, would significantly help the city achieve its goal of "full restoration of this historic landmark for the benefit of all citizens of Greenbelt."

At the time the mayor also noted that a Citizens Task Force had been formed to develop a plan and guidelines for the reutilization of Center School as a community center after it is transferred to the city. (The new elementary school on the old North End site is expected to be occupied in September 1992.)

"It will be the task force's job to recommend a usage plan to the city council, keeping in mind the architectural heritage of the building and its relationship to the original Greenbelt town plan," he said.

The house committee, chaired by delegate Charles "Buzz" Ryan, voted favorably on the bill. The House of Delegates concurred but in conference with the Senate the amount of financial assistance was reduced.

Task Force

Many uses have been proposed for the community center, including a senior citizen activity center, child day care, artist studios, performing arts center, teen center and recreation program-

Community Center Task Force members met for the first time on March 5. William Stratton was elected chair of the group and Barbara Simon, vice-chair. Other members are Janet Jacob-Parker, Keith Chernikoff, Tony Pisano, Marie Tousignant, Joyce Chestnut, Sharon Alfaro, Brenda Cooley, Sandra Schwartz and James Maher. The group meets the second and fourth Wednesdays of the month.

Stratton explained that an architectural consultant, with input by the task force and other city groups, will propose a concrete list of programs. Then the design phase can begin, he noted, adding that the task force will oversee this phase to insure that the renovation is faithful to the facility's historic architecture.

In 1982, the Center School building received one of 10 annual awards from the Art Deco Societies of America. It is listed in the Prince Georges County Register of Historic Places and is included in the Greenbelt Historic Neighborhood listed on the National Register.

Originally named the "Community Center," the Center School facility was built in 1937 as a combined elementary school and community center. Classroom needs eventually forced the relocating of most community and recreational programs to other facilities.

TASK FORCE PLANS VISIT TO STUDY NEARBY CENTER

by Kelly Harmon

The Greenbelt Community Center Task Force, organized to develop plans for the vacated Greenbelt Center School, resolved at a meeting on April 11 to visit other community centers in the area to get ideas for the future Greenbelt center.

On May 11, 12, and 23 members will visit the Lee Center in Alexandria, VA; Harmony Hall in Fort Washington; Rockland Center in Ellicott City and the Chevy Chase Community Center. At these facilities they will study aspects of parking, types of activities and the full use of building structure.

The task force is considering a ',campus' type of center which will include the Center School and other public buildings, such as the library, the municipal building and the new pool to make better use of available public space. All are in walking distance from the school. The task force intends to put together a catalog of available resources.

Aggressive Recycling

To the Editor

Greenbelt will celebrate Earth Day this week as testimony to a better, more livable environment. Consistent with this broad objective is an aggressive, workable recycling program which significantly reduces the amount of refuse our city takes to the county landfill.

City council, late last year, created an advisory committee on recycling charged with makrecommendations which would bring Greenbelt into compliance with recently passed county recycling legislation. This legislation did not require that municipalities make use of the newly established county recycling program-it offered its services and grant aid to cities desiring such assistance.

The debate will focus on two key questions: what is the best approach to effective recycling and who should manage such a program-the county or the city? The city's ad hoc committee on recycling has been considering this question over the last several months. I hope that the committee's goals were more ambitious than those set by the county: to recycle 60% of our city's waste stream by 1999.

The city must develop an ag gressive recycling program which takes advantage of an excellent aluminum and bottle market, and will search for and help to develop a market for papers. A city ordinance requiring that businesses and city offices use recycled paper would be of immense assistance.

But most importantly, if Greenbelt desires to significantly reduce the amount of refuse going to the county landfill (for which we pay $50/ton), we should establish a program which allows residents to separate recyclables by category, making pickup simpler and subsequent breakdown more efficient and cost-effective. Public Works crews already pick up trash at the door throughout most, if not all of original Greenbelt. This convenience will encourage a large segment of Greenbelters to become actively involved. This door-todoor service would not be provided if the county managed the recycling program.

The city has an opportunity to demonstrate to the rest of the county how a decent program can and ought to be run, and can exceed the modest goals of the county. And a city-run program can be operated at roughly the same cost as a county-run

The Trade-offs

As an ecologist with a strong interest in invertebrate zoology, I am concerned about the impact of ongoing gypsy moth control efforts on native species. I feel that the interest shown by Greenbelt residents in the pending local Dimilin application is healthy and I commend the News Review for supporting the exchange of information and views.

With that in mind, I would like to correct an error in the comments made by Eric Berlin in a letter published several weeks ago that Dimilin "has proven to be an effective controllant without adversely affecting humans or animals." What he probably meant to say was that Dimilin typically has no direct adverse effect on large, visible species of animals. Unfortunately, the vast majority of species on this earth are small, inconspicuous and frequently ignored, and many may be dramatically impacted by Dimilin.

As Berlin correctly stated, this chemical acts by preventing successful molting in insect larvae, ultimately resulting in their death. It is effective on the gypsy moth caterpillar, but works just as well on caterpillars of other native butterflies and moths. Those species can number in the tens to hundreds, and all are killed by Dimilin if they are feeding at the time that it is sprayed. There is concern that certain restricted species may be pushed to extinction by gypsy moth control efforts.

This problem goes farther, however, and may jump up the food chain a step or two to impact some species with greater visibility. A wide variety of small song birds feed on the caterpillars that Dimilin kills. Spraying considerably reduces the food supply for these species at the critical time when they must feed their young. Although we do not yet know just how great this impact is in our area, it can well be significant. Of course, not spraying can lead to some of these same impacts, since of the gypsy moth manages to completely defoliate a forest, these other caterpillars will have no food and will die just as surely as if they were sprayed.

The gypsy moth will be with us for a long time to come, and some management will unquestionably be required. If Dimilin or other chemicals are to be the primary control agents, then the reduction of native lepidonteran communities, including the possible loss of several species, is the trade that we will be required to make. I am not an advocate of doing nothing about the gypsy moth, neither do I feel that regular, widespread spraying of pesticides and insect pathogens is advisable. I do think that reliable information should be available when decisions concerning insect control efforts are being made.

I would not be at all surprised if ecologists a generation from now do not give us very high marks on the way that we handled the gypsy moth.

Youth Advisory Board

To the Editor:

The matter which causes me to write is the News Review's article covering PRAB's March 21 meeting that looked at a proposal recommending the establishment of a Youth Advisory Board, I did not bring this matter before PRAB. However, I did write a letter in November 1989 to the newly elected members of city council asking them to consider establishing a Youth Advisory Board. This led to the city council's request of PRAB (and CRAB) to consider the proposal and to provide city council with their input. I went before PRAB at their March 21 meeting to seek their support and to answer any questions they may have on the matter.

I was representing my own view that the city should establish a Youth Advisory Board. Your article made it appear I was representing the Boys & Girls Club. I was not, am not. My only capacity with the club now is that of a coach and chairof their Publicity and Public Relations Committee.

I want to make it clear that I did not suggest, or would ever suggest, that non-Greenbelters be involved as members on the Board. Greenbelt advisory boards are always composed of Greenbelt citizens. My November 1989 letter to council only suggested that the make-up of the board include people whose "employment or volunteer work involves children and youth."

I have also always maintained that youth be well represented on any such city Youth Advisory Board. In my proposal, I recommended a board whose members are a mix of adults and youth. I do not support an all-youth member board as the 1973 city resolution provided for.

I strongly recommend that the city re-establish a reconstituted Youth Advisory Board, the purpose or focus of which will be to advise city council on problems, concerns, issues and other matters of interest particular to children, youth and their fami-

SUBSTITUTE TEACHING WORKSHOP TO BE HELD

Prince Georges County Public Schools invites individuals interested in substitute teaching to attend a one-day Substitute Workshop on Thursday, April 26, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The workshop will be held at the William Paca Instructional Services/Staff Development Center, 7801 Sheriff Road, Landover. Participants will be involved in discussions on classroom management and instructional strategies at the elementary and secondary levels.

To register for the workshop, contact Edith Greene at 386-1529.

Celebrate Earth Day!

Earth Day will be celebrated in Greenbelt on Saturday, April 21 with many events. There will be a fair, featuring local groups and displays, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. In case of rain the fair will begin at 11 a.m. in the Youth Center. In any event, posters and photos will be displayed in the Youth Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Other events include T'ai Chi at 9 a.m., and Sufi dancing at noon, folk dancing at 1, a talk on how citizens can make a difference to the environment at the Greenbelt library at 10:30 a.m. A tree will be planted in front of the swimming pool at 1:30 p.m.

To cap the day people will meet in the Center at 2 p.m. for a "parade" to the lake and a "Hands around the Lake" ceremony at 3 p.m.

For further information call 345-0410, see the information table in the Center on Saturday, see ad in the News Review.

Band Concerts at Tawes

The University of Maryland Wind Ensemble and Concert Band, under the direction of John E. Wakefield and L. Richmond Sparks, will present a specail joint concert to commemorate the 80th anniversary of the band program on the College Park campus at the Tawes Theatre on Friday, April 20 at 8 p.m. Admission is free.

The evening will be highlighted by the return of six former bandmasters whose tenure covers more than forty years of the band's history.

The University Bands anniversary celebration will continue on Saturday, Aprli 21, in the Tawes Recital Hall, with a Horn Festival featurnig guest artists and Philip Farkas will be featured. Rehearsals and masterclasses begin at 9 a.m. Call 454-6803 for more information.

Earth Fair Is Saturday

The public is invited to an Earth Fair, to be held at Roosevelt Center Mall on Saturday, April 21, 10-4. The Earth Fair will feature displays and exhibits from a variety of groups, including the City of Greenbelt, Prince Georges County, and the Environmental Protection Agency. At the Youth Center, the results of the poster and photo contests will be shown. Goddard Space Flight Center's Conservation Club will demonstrate how recycled paper is made and the Astronomy Club will bring a telescope made from used parts. Environmentallyconscious products such as recycled paper products, will be shown. Local environmental groups such as the Greens and the Sierra Club, as well as scout troops, churches, and school groups will provide other interesting displays. In the event of bad weather, the Fair will be held at the Youth Center Gym beginning at 11.

Volksmarch in BARC

The Great Greenbelt Volksmarchers, in conjunction with REI, will hold a 10 kilometer (6.2 mile) sanctioned walk on Saturday, April 28 and Sunday, April 29, The walk both starts and finishes at the REI store at 9801 Rhode Island Avenue, College Park. Ample parking is available in the parking lot.

Everyone is welcome to participate. Children under 12 must be accompanied by an adult. Registration is from 8 a.m. til 1 p.m. both days.

The walk is free. American Volkssport Association policy requires that everyone carry a start card. IVV (international Volkssportverbund) credit and patch are available if preregistered by April 21. Information on the awards program will be available for new participants.

This event is not the same as the family fun walk to be held at BARC on Sunday, April 29.

From Every Household

Most people in Prince Georges County received census questionnaires in late March and were instructed to return them to the Census Bureau by April. Some households did not receive a questionnaire because of an incorrect address listing or a delay in mail delivery. Other households may have thrown away or misplaced the questionnaire they did receive.

Households falling into these categories should let the Census Bureau know by calling one of their toll-free numbers: English, 1-800-999-1990; Spanish, 1-800-CUETAN; and TTY, 1-800-777-0978.

Roy K. Davis

Roy K. Davis, 82, a resident of 4-J Ridge Road since 1944, died of a heart attack on Sunday, April 8.

Davis came to the Washington area from Johnstown, Pa., to work at Bolling Air Force Base where he built wooden patterns for air planes. He later was a real estate appraiser for 20 years.

Davis was a founding member of the Community Church. He was involved in setting up the housing cooperative that purchased the original homes from the government in 1954, later Greenbelt Homes. As an avid fisherman he was an active member of the Izaak Walton League and helped in teaching boys to shoot guns safely in the Gun Club. He maintained a lifelong interest in gardening and woodworking. In recent years he walked around the lake daily. Five years ago his wife Ethel died. Three years later he re-married. He was a member of the Greenbelt Baptist Church.

Davis is survived by his wife Geraldine; a daughter Hazel Coates and a son Brien; a brother Earl; four grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Interment was at the George Washington Cemetery in Adelphi.

The recent rains have been gentler than some of our other weather-and much appreciated by the flowers that are tentatively showing their faces. Other new blossoms in our community garden include Amanda Lynn Blumer who made her debut at Holy Cross Hospital on April 1. The second child of Judith and Dietrich Blumer, young Amanda weighed 7 lbs 7 ozs. Big sister Alyssa Anne, 2½, will show her the neighborhood haunts, I'm sure. The Blumers live on Lakecrest Drive.

Howard and Cynthia Anderson brought home a little girl recently. Rebecca Jane Anderson was born at Holy Cross on March 31. She weighed 8 lbs 7 ozs. The Andersons live on Hanover Park-

Congratulations to Public Works employee Chris Fleshman on the birth of a daughter, Teal, weighing in at 7 lbs. even.

Brent and Beverly Moulton are the proud parents of a baby girl. Meredith Robbie Moulton was born at the Laurel-Beltsville Hos. pital on March 16 and weighed 8 lbs 1 oz. The Moulton family lives in Greenwood Village on Mandan Road. Welcome all! Congratulations are in order for Greenbelt Lion Ernest Varda. He was recently given the Greenbelt Fire Department's Presidential award for his outstanding fund-raising efforts. The city will benefit from his work on behalf of fire and safety.

Congratulations also to Aileen Criswell an alumna of Center School and current student at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Aileen was honored as the Student Historian of Prince Georges County by the United States Capital Historical Society, an honor she received as a result of her entry in a contest focusing on the Constitution. Also honored was Robert Sommerville, the teacher who most influenced Aileen's interest in history

Speaking of students, there are some graduations to report. Shari Nan Boyer has completed her studies at the Art Institute of Philadelphia and was awarded an Associate degree in specialized technology in visual com-munications. She is a 1986 graduate of ERHS and the daughter of William and Dianne Boyer of Barr's Lane.

Thomas Pacuk has graduated from Regent's College with a Bachelor of Science degree. He lives on Hanover Parkway. Congratulations to you both.

Word comes in that Martha Unger, daughter of Pat & John Unger. Lakeside Dr., has represented Northern Illinois University at the NCAA Women's Gymnastic Regionals for the third straight time. A senior, she is ranked 6th among the at-large

Police Blotter

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

On April 7 Officer Marie Croissette arrested a 20-year-old nonresident male for disturbance of public peace in Beltway Plaza. The young man was released on a citation pending trial.

On April 7 a resident boy reported being the victim of an indecent exposure in the men's room in the Greenbelt Library. The exhibitionist is described as a white male, 24 years old, 5'7" medium build, short blond hair, and wearing a black leather jacket and blue jeans.

On April 7 a breaking and entering was reported in Bang's Watch Repair Shop in Beltway Plaza. Entry was gained by climbing on the roof and pushing down the ceiling tiles. No property was taken.

Early in the morning on April 8 there was a car chase up and down Greenbelt Road, roughly between Frankfort Drive and Lanham/Severn Road, A citizen noticed a car driving recklessly and reported it to the police. The police observed the car swerve from lane to lane and turned on their flashing lights and siren. The driver of the swerving car then sped off, and the chase began. Before it ended, when the chased car ran into a tree, the chased car rammed Sgt. Doug Sappington's vehicle twice and a Prince Georges County Police officer's vehicle once. No injuries were reported. The driver of the chased car, a 38-year-old nonresident male, was charged with three counts of assault with intent to murder, resisting arrest, driving while intoxicated, reckless driving and fleeing and eluding a marked police vehicle; he was incarcerated in lieu of $10,000 bond.

HEALTH OFFICIALS URGE MEASLES IMMUNIZATION

Health officials at the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) are urging parents to protect their children against a measles outbreak. Sixty-four confirmed cases of measles have been reported by the Epidemiologly and Disease Control Program at DHMH since the beginning of January, 1990.

All age groups have been affected. Measles is a serious, highly contagious viral disease, passed from an infected person through droplets in the air when an infected person coughs or sneezes. In rare cases, measles can cause infection of the brain, brain damage, or death.

For information on immunization, or if measles exposure or infection is suspected, consult a physician as soon as possible.

Golden Age Club

At the April 25 meeting, there will be a magic show.

A great many "thank-you's" are in order. First, to Ruth Dungan for her interesting report on the "Mississippi Queen" trip. Then, to Helen Oring, co-ordinator of the "Hat Show," for an enjoyable event. Winners of the Hat Contest were: prettiest hat, Sally Carrano; funniest hat, Ral Haber; oldest hat, Betty Devlin; most original, Mary Gardner. Adding to this show was singing by Helen Oring and Paddy Bailey and the piano-playing of Lucille Luchine. Thank you's also to hostesses Irene Owens and Margaret Graham for the April birthday party and to "Uncle Joe" Rimar for his original poems.

Arts Center was mentioned briefly. The survey's purpose was to aid the department in finding out what classes are needed or wanted at the Arts Center. The survey was distributed by hand at the December craft show and at the flea market, Co-op, library and Arts Center programs, as well as mailed to 600 houses.

"We know we don't have nearly enough classes for children," said Task Force member Barbara Simon. "We know there are a lot of gaps. Part of it is not knowing what people want and part of it is finding space."

At the Wednesday, May 2 meeting, the results of the survey will be discussed. Two and a half percent of Greenbelt households returned the survey.

At the next regular meeting (Wed., April 25) task force members will meet at the Center School in the Roosevelt Center to tour the building.

The Community Center Task Force was established Sept. 11. 1989 to develop a plan and guidelines for a professional architect the city will hire to renovate the Center School.

To accomplish this job, the task force will review the community center idea'since its inception in the early 1980's. They will examine concept plans, use propossurveys and community needs. They will also collect data on what they believe the citizens of Greenbelt want and need, as well as denoting examples of what they do not want for Green. belt to show the architect.

The task force has been charged with keeping the achictectural integrity of the build-ing, which is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. The building is one of the original structures erected in 1937 as part of the planned community and reflects the Art Deco design of the time. The front wall of the school features six carved stone bas reliefs depicting the Preamble to the U.S. Constitu-

The task force will hold public meetings and prepare a report for the city council recommending a usage plan for the community cen-

When the community center is occupied, the task force will be disbanded.

Gray Panthers Meet

Gray Panthers will meet Saturday, April 21 at 2:15 p.m. at the Greenbelt Library. Abe Bloom, vice president of the Nat:onal Gray Panthers will speak on "U.S. After the Cold War and the Peace Dividend." Areas covered will be conversion from a military to a civilian economy, a federal budget with new funding for domestic programs, including a national health system, and the rebuilding of the civilian economy. Please note the time of the meeting, which will allow members to observe more of the local Earth Day program. The public is invited. Refreshments will be served.

sy, the school board determined that a new elementary school was preferable to extensive renovation of Center School. The Greenbelt electorate voted to give the city-owned North End School property to the school board for a new school in return for the county's transferring the Center School facility to the city for use as a community center.

At the time, voters also approved a $3 million bond issue for the project. In appealing for funds before the state house and senate committees, Weidenfeld explained that the $3 million would be enough to bring the Center School building "into conformance with codes so it can be used" as a community cen-ter. He added that "many needed improvements will have to be delayed until additional funds are available."

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again!!

There are still many rear wheel drive vehicles on the road today and a good number still come in for periodical maintenance check-ups. In addition to the normal parts that are continually being serviced as part of a good Preventive Maintenance Program it is important to check the condition of the universal joint, located in the drive shaft. The function of the universal joint is to connect the transmission to the rear differential (which transmits the torque to power the car). Both universal joints have to be able to move with out any binding and cannot have any play in the joint, otherwise they must be replaced. To perform a proper diagnostic check the drive shaft should be removed, thus assuring proper diagnosis. If the universal joint has lots of "play" in it, this can be detected by visual inspection without physically removing the drive shaft. Several problems in the universal can be detected by the observant driver. A clunking noise from under the body of the vehicle when placing it in and out of gear, a high pitched tinny sound or similar cracking sound upon acceleration or a vibration that increases with speed signal a problem with the universal joint.

Unfortunately, 95% of all factory universal joints are sealed and therefore no service can be performed, however when these components are replaced it is advisable to install universal joints that have service ports for zerk type grease fittings. This will insure that in the future the universal joints can be included in a scheduled Preventive Maintenance Program,

TILL NEXT TIME !!!! THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE!!!!

JOE!!

Dr. Frank Pisciotta, Gastroenterologist

Listening To Your Body's Language

I f you think the way com-puters work is complicated, think for a minute about your own body. Everything we do-from taking a step to reading a page to processing food-requires enormous coordination of systems within. When something is going wrong, the body often sends out signals to warn us.

These signals are commonly known as symptoms, and are the body's way of telling us that something needs attention.

Dr. Frank Pisciotta, an area gastroenterologist, states, 'Two common signs of a digestive system in trouble are diarrhea and constipation. Others include painful swallowing, heartburn, nausea, cramping, unexplained weight loss, discoloration of tissue or the presence of blood in the stool."

Dr. Pisciotta says that for some 20 million Americans, minor digestive upsets are a daily problem. According to the National Institutes of Health figures, another 20 million are chronically ill with serious gastrointestinal disorders.

He states, "Almost everyone suffers from occasional bouts of heartburn, Changing eating habits may help dramatically, however, if within a week's time self-care measures don't help, it's time to seek medical advice. The acids caused by heartburn can actually erode the esophagus and cause painful ulcers. Your doctor can likely prescribe something to prevent it."

Common sense, he says, is the key. Many people wait too long for the symptoms to disappear on their own. By the time they seek medical advice, the problem has advanced to a more complicat-

Most digestive diseases are highly treatable in their early stages, includes malignancies. Early tumors can usually be effectively removed with little or no discomfort by a simple in-office procedure called endoscopy. Dr. Pisciotta has offices that include endoscopy facilities. as well as on-site lab, and Xray, so there is no undue disruption of the patient's daily routine. Should there be a need, he has hospital privileges at many of the areas finest facilities.

He says, "We often see patients who have suffered for weeks or months before they come in, thinking that the problem would go away. Our staff understands the importance of early treatment, so when someone calls, we accommodate them right away. A thorough evaluation and program of treatment, if needed, begins im-

Dr. Pisciotta, who is a duate of the Universit of Maryland and Texas Medical School, trained at institutes including Hahnemann Medical Center and Hospital in Philadelphia; M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston; St Mary's Hospital at the University of Rochester in New York and Washington Hospital Center in Washington, D.C. He prescribes preventive measures as ways in which to avoid having trouble.

"Eat slowly," he advises, "and as your mother always told you, chew your food well. Have plenty of highfiber food in your diet, drink alcohol only in moderation, don't smoke cigarettes, and be aware of any changes in your body's normal patterns. If you have doubts concerning the seriousness of a condition, see a doctor. Ignoring symptoms for long periods of time can wind up being very costly in terms of your health. When your body talks, listen.
