Voters Go to Polls Next Tuesday To Fill Federal, State, County Posts

by Elaine Skolnik

In the upcoming general election on Tuesday, November 6, some 8,533 Greenbelt voters will help to elect a governor, a U.S. representative, a county executive, a county council member and a long list of other state and county officials. Voters will also be asked to vote "For" or "Against" a Statewide Referendum on two State Constitutional Amendments, a proposed county charter amendment and five county bond referenda.

Local interest centers on native son and former Greenbelt mayor and council member Richard J. Castaldi in his bid for reelection to the Prince Georges County Council. After a hot primary race in which he gained 87% of the Greenbelt vote and about 57% of the fourth councilmanic district, Castaldi is expected to win easily over his Republican challenger, Theodore Henderson, a counseling psychologist working with the county public school system, Castaldi is running on his legislative record, focusing on bills he sponsored dealing with controlling development and the environment Henderson wants government "off the backs of munici-palities" in order to return to municipalities "their just course for running their cities."

In the non-partisan election Greenbelter Suzanne M. Plogman is running unopposed for the Board of Education in District 2. It also looks like clear sailing for the incumbent Democratic team of William Donald Schaefer and Melvin A. Steinberg over the Republican husband-wife duo of William S. Shepherd and Lois B. Shepherd for the governor and lieutenant governor posts.

Congressional District In the Fifth Congressional District contest, incumbent Democrat Steny H. Hoyer should be the top vote-getter again beating handily his Republican challanger, Lee F. Breuer, a political activist and former member of the Republican Central Committee. Incumbent Democrat Parris N. Glendening should also have no trouble in his bid for reelection as county executive. His Republican opponent Charles W. Sherren, Jr., is a vice presi-dent of the B. F. Saul Company for real estate management, a tion he says which is closenos ly parallel to running a town or county.- Sherren would focus on improving education for students outside the magnet schools.

Politican pundits predict that the Democrats who outnumber Republicans by 3 to 1 in the county will continue their win-ning ways. The action, they point out, took place in the September primary where Democrats battled each other and where nomination was viewed as tantamount to victory in the

Where and When

General election day is Tuesday, November 6. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the four precincts which serve Greenbelt - Center School (third precinct), St. Hughs School (sixth precinct), Springhill Lake Elementary School (eighth precinct), and Eleanor Roosevelt High School (thirteenth precinct).

Any registered voter who has doubts about where to vote may obtain additional information by calling the Election Office at 952-3270.

general election.

Incumbent Democrats are running on their records and experience. Republicans hope that the gain in their party's registration rol's over the past decade in the state will eventually translate into victory at the polls and end "one party rule." Unlike previous elections, Greenbelters will discover that Republicans have fielded candi-dates in almost every office. Poorly funded and in the main inexperienced, however, Republi-can challengers are in an uphill fight as they face entrenched Democrats who are running on a slate.

Republican Hopes

However, Republicans say they are pinning their hopes in the 23rd Legislative District races on R. Nicholas Palarino who is opposing incumbent Democrat Leo E. Green for the state senate seat and on Robert S. Sanders, who is seeking one of the three state delegate slots now held by Mary A. Conroy, Joan Breslin Pitkin and Charles J. Ryan.

So far, none of the races appear to be generating much interest among the electorate. Even the anticipated sparks have not publicly exploded in the State's Attorney race between incumbent Democrat Alexander Williams, Jr. and Republican Arthur A. Bud Marshall. In 1986 long-time State's Attorney Marshall was defeated by Williams in a bitter primary face-off. Marshall then endorsed the Republican candidate and later changed his party affiliation to Republican.

The abortion issue that placed incumbent Democrat Green in a close state senate primary race is not seen as a factor in the general election. He and his Republican opponent. Palarino, share similar pro-life positions. Both are Bowie residents. An attorney, Green is focusing on his eight-year record in the state senate. In Greenbelt he points to his success in obtaining grants for parkland acquisition, for Center School renovations and adult day care.

Palarino, a consultant on arms control and president of the Republican Club of Prince Georges

County, says he offers voters an alternative to the "Democratic party machine" platform. He favors "no new taxes" and poli-cies will "promote growth and investment in our county."

Defeated in the September primary, Democrat Donna J. Campbell is running as a writein candidate.

The three incumbent members of the House of Delegates are running on their experience and record in the state legis'ature. They also point to securing funds for open space parkland, for Greenbelt Center School renovations and for adult care programs.

Challenging the incumbents are Sanders, James William Thompson and Roger D. Chamberlain. A former resident of Springhill Lake who later moved to Glenn Dale, Sanders' concern development "with nowhere is for cars to travel" and the "tax structure." Thompson, a resident of Westchester Park and an inspector for the county's Zoning Enforcement Office. wants to improve the criminal justice and educational systems to reduce the number of repeat offenders in jail." Chamber'ain is an operations manager for Federal Express and is president of the Young Republicans of Prince Georges County, He lives with his wife and three children in Bowie.

In the State Comptroller race, long-time incumbent Democrat Louis L. Goldstein is being challenged by Republican Larry M. Epstein, a certified public accountant. Incumbent Democrat J. Joseph Curran, Jr. is being opposed by Republican Edward L. Blanton Jr. in the Attorney General contest.

In other contested races, Democrat Vivian Jenkins and Republican Christine Davis are running for the post of Clerk of the Circuit Court. For Register of Wills, incumbent Democrat Callie M. Heffron is facing a challenge from Republican Everett L. Edmond. The race for Sheriff is between incumbent James V. Aluisi and Republican challenger Alec Edmund Pueschel.

Two Republican candidates, Richmond Davis and Thomas M.

Ballot Poses Bond Questions For Roads and Buildings

When voters go to the polls on November 6, they will be asked to vote for or against three state constitutional questions and six county questions. The county questions include a charter amendment and five bond issues.

State Questions

Question 1 asks voters to determine whether state and local officials. including legislators and judges, may serve in the military reserves or state militia while holding office. Maryland's constitution prohibits state and local officials from holding more than one office. The amendment was proposed to clarify that holding such reserve or militia positions does not violate this prc hibition.

If Question 2 is approved, Clerks of the Circuit Court will be governed by rules adopted by the Maryland Court of Appeals, not by the local judges, and their budget will be proposed by the Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, rather than by the Comptroller. The budget must still be certified by the Governor.

The final state question permits voters to request that a Constitutional Convention be held to alter the current state constitution or frame a new constitution. The Maryland Constitution requires the General Assembly to pose this question to voters every 20 years. A new convention will not be called unless Question 3 receives "for" votes from more than 50% of the voters casting ballots. including those not voting on this question.

County Questions

Question A would change the way vacancies on the county council are filled. Currently, unless the vacancy occurs during the first two years of the council member's four-year term, the remaining council members, by a majority vote, appoint a replacement. If Question A is approved, vacancies that occur more than 90 days prior to a primary or general election would be filled by a special election.

R Enactment of Question would approve county borrowing up to $47.9 million to finance the construction of transportation facilities. The capital projects to be financed include improvements to the intersection of Kenilworth Avenue and Calvert Road, the reconstruction of Havron are running in the race for the three places as Judge of the Orphans Court; the three Democrats are incumbents Albert W. Northrop and Lucy B. Warr and newcomer Angelo I. Castelli. James Patrick Salmon is the lone candidate for Judge of the Circuit Court for the 7th Judicial Circuit, Voters are also being asked to vote "Yes" or "No" on whether Robert F. Fischer should continue in office as Judge, Court of Special Appeals at Large.

Adelphi Road as a four-lane divided highway between Metze-rott Road and University Blvd., construction of a realigned Calvert Road between Kenilworth Avenue and Route 1 and the extension of Kenilworth Avenue as a four-lane divided highway from Ivy Lane to Cherrywood Lane. Additional projects through the county would also be funded.

In addition to the specific highway projects, the bond issue could also be used to fund rightof-way purchases for future projects and replacement of curbs and sidewalks throughout the county. Part of the proceeds may also be allocated to pay the county's portion of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority's capital costs, including the purchase of buses and construction of bus and rail facilities.

The third question asks voters to approve $12.9 million for construction and renovation of county libraries. The communities to receive these new or improved libraries are Bowie, Hyattsville. Upper Marlboro, New Carrollton and Oxon Hill.

Roughly $32.3 million is sought under Question D for the construction or improvement of public safety facilities, including fire stations, a drug treatment facility, expansion of the detention center, several police facilities. and the Hyattsville Justice Center.

Approval of Question E will permit the county government to borrow $17.5 million for construction or renovation of several buildings operated by the county, including the County Building, a residential drug treatment center, and Melwood Horticultural Training Center.

The final question will permit the county to borrow up to $799,000 for major maintenance to the Prince Georges Community College facilities.

For Foreign Visitors

Prince Georges County is participating in an Eastern European Management Internship Program. Under this program a Hungarian delegation of entrepreneurs will be attending a three-day dialogue at the Uni-versity of Maryland, and then a week-long internship with businesses in Prince Georges County. Three participants will be working with Greenbelt businesses: Grimm and Parker, Beitsville Agricultural Research Center and Martin's Crosswinds. The County is seeking volunteers to host and house these visitors during their stay.

The City of Greenbelt also County and will provide an internship with the City Department of Planning and Development the week of December 3 to 7 for a planner from Poland. Again, the County is seeking a volunteer to host and house the visitor while serving the internship.

Isaacs Named Executive VP of Health Council

Greenbelt City Council member Joseph Isaacs was recently named by the board of directors of the National Health Council (NHC) as the organization's next executive vice president. Isaacs has been employed by the association since 1986 as its vice president for government relations and will assume the chief staff post when the organization moves its headquarters from New York City to Washington, D.C. next year.

Founded in 1920, the NHC is an umbrella group representing nearly 100 of the nation's public and private sector health-related organizations. Members include the American Medical Association, the American Red Cross, American Cancer Society, the the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and the U.S. Public Health Service.

In his current post, Isaacs routinely monitors national health policy developments. He is recognized for his knowledge of the federal statutory and regulatory processes and for his understanding of the evolving health care system. He has written and spoken extensively on such subjects as effective advocay, future health care trends, addressing the needs of the uninsured, and financing long-term care.

Isaacs is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the City College of York and received New his M.S. Degree summa cum laude from the health services management program at the University of Missouri, where he was named "Outstanding Graduate." Since 1984, he has served as an adjunct professor in the Division of Health Sciences at George Washington University's School of Medicine.

Active in community service, Isaacs is serving his third term on the Greenbelt City Council and last year received the Scull Award from the Washington Metropolitan Council of Governments for his contributions to regional affairs and intergovernmental cooperation in the Vir-ginia - D.C. - Maryland tri - state area.

Doctors' Hospital Becomes Non-profit

AMI Doctors' Hospital in Lanham has recently been purchased by a not-for profit organization. The new organization is named Doctors Community Hospital.

Other chain-owned, for-profits have converted to community hospitals, but only when faced with an imminent closure. Sources at the American Hospital Association said that this is believed to be the first time that any hospital has initiated such a conversion when no threat of closure loomed.

Doctors Community Hospital becomes the third Maryland hospital in recent years to convert to a non-profit status. The only for-profit remaining in the state is the Southern Maryland Hospital Center in Waldorf.

The 15-year-old, 250-bed hospital has an average occupancy rate of approximately 76 per cent and more than 600 physicians on staff. It offers a fullrange of medical-surgical services. excepting obstetrics. It also has extensive out-patient facilities and a rehabilitation gymnasium. Doctors Community Hospital serves central Prince Georges County and is loated just off Capital Beltway.

Talented Roasters Pledge To Put Gil on Hot Seat by Sandy Smith

It's not George Bush, or Ron-ald Reagan, or Ted Kennedy, or Donald Schaefer. But it's Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, Greenbelt's own political luminary, who will feel the heat at the celebrity roast sponsored by the Greenbelt Arts Center. The Arts Center is promising incredible revelations about this man, who has lived quietly in our community for years. In fact the Roast Committee pledges that "no one's reputation is safe," as the committee has researched thoroughly every aspect of city government and civic affairs throughout the community.

Celebrity roasters are in a unique position to know "the story behind the story," or at least to make one up. Judge Gerry Devlin, former State delegate for the Greenbelt area, knows Greenbelt political stories and its politicians quite well. No one can beat County Council member Greenbelt's Richard Castaldi for his knowledge of scandals and near-scandals. Konrad Herling brings his own perspective to mudslinging and muckracking. Tom Renahan promises that no stone will go unturned. Behind the scenes, Gerry Gough has urged the roasters to show no mercy. The usually civilized Roast Committee Chairman. Al Herling, has put his scruples aside.

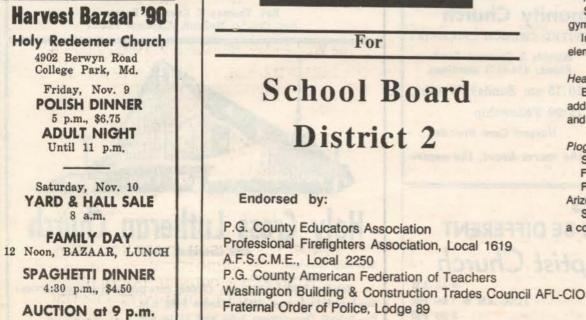

The roast will be held on Sun-day, November 11, 7 p.m., at the Greenbelt American Legion, on Greenbelt Road, A banquet dinner precedes the roast. Tickets are available from the arts committee (see ad in this week's News Review) but limited, on a first-come basis, to a capacity crowd of 200. The event is a fund-raiser for the Arts Center, which offers a program of drama and music to Greenbelt citizens.

DuVal Aerospace Program Receives Award from Ford

Ford Motor Company awarded DuVal High School $500 at the inaugural Aerospace Technology Program, October 4 to help de-fray administrative costs associated with ongoing efforts to develop DuVal into an aerospace magnet school, Dr. David Blanchard, executive director of Ford Aerospace's Space Programs Operation and presenter of the check along with the DuVal High School Aerospace Committee, advises Dr. Frank Stetson, principal of DuVal of aerospace related curricula and facility plans.

The committee, made up of senior executives from the local aerospace industry and government agencies and instructors from area universities, implemented a placement program to employ high school faculty and students in summer assignments at aerospace companies. In ad-dition, it helped install "Opportunity Skyway", a program designed to interest students at DuVal in careers in avaition.

"Our goal is to educate today's teachers on the future requirements of the aerospace industry so that they may better prepare tomorrow's work force,"

Plogman introduced the resolution that created Drug Free Zones at our county's schools.

Local police departments could not make arrests at schools within their own town limits until Plogman sponsored a resolution to change that.

Discipline

Her resolutions, approved by the board, mandated immediate expulsion for students involved in gang fights and for students who physically attack school employees.

Responsiveness

Plogman is available to resolve the concerns and problems of parents students and teachers. She's there when she's needed.

Capital Improvements

Funds for an auditorium were budgeted for DuVal High by Plogman. She has had funds allocated for a new multi-purpose room, a second gym and six new classrooms at Roosevelt High.

In Greenbelt, she backed a referendum to decide where to locate a new elementary school. She made sure citizens and teachers helped design it.

Health Education

Beginning with the class of '92, graduates must pass a health course that addresses issues like drug and alcohol abuse and AIDS, thanks to a study and resolution recommended by Plogman.

Plogman's Experience

She was elected to the school board in 1986.

For 8 years she was a teacher in our county schools.

Recollections of an Early Greenbelter With this third and last excerpt of Elizabeth Harrington's interview with Robert Douglas she brings up some of the controversial subjects of her day.

We are grateful to the Tugwell Room of the Greenbelt Library for making this transcription available.

Greenbelt used to be called Tugwell's Folly by the people who lived in Laurel, Hvattsvine, Riverdale and so on. Also, Greenbelt had a swimming pool, a library, a theater, and lots of playgrounds-lots of community advantages-which Riverdale, for instance, did not have and could not afford. People living in Riverdale or any place outside of Greenbelt felt that the only reason we could afford them was that we were supported by the Federal Government, Maybe this was true. We were never able to get a breakdown of the costs of supporting Greenbelt. The Federal Government owned the land, therefore it was not taxable. So we had to receive our money from the Federal Government in lieu of taxes and the members of council had to go before the Public Housing Administration and justify our budget. And each time we would ask, "Well, how much does it cost you to sup-port Greenbelt." We were never able to find out. If they knew, they wouldn't tell us. I have a suspicion they didn't know, but I don't know that. But, we had all these things because we had a budget of something over $300,-000 a year. We had a town manager which no other town in the county had, many probably still don't have . . . I don't know. The interviewer then asked about the absence of blacks in the community Remember, this was in the 1940s. The Supreme Court decision on nonsegregation in the schools came in 1954, I believe. This was prior to that. The restaurants in Washington were segregated. I took one of the first integrated groups into a restaurant in Washington in 1961 but that was considered very-well, I was called a communist for having done that.

It was a very segregated society. and I think that when Greenbelt was built, during the Roosevelt administration, the administration was very eager to prove that the government could build these little towns. There were three of them, all told. These little towns had real promise for political action, for community action. They didn't want to muddy the waters, as they would have said then, by introducing also an integrated community. They thought they would work on the whites first. and maybe it would trickle down to the blacks . . . I don't really know what they thought. But at any rate, we were a segregated community.

Did you ever bring any blacks into the community?

Yes, well, I planned to. I was working with a national student group, that was housed in Washington. It was an integrated group, and I had planned to bring the blacks and whites, whoever wanted to come, to the swimming pool. I told the town manager that I was going to do this. The blacks decided that they didn't want to come They felt they were being made an issue of, an example of, and they wanted to have nothing to do with it. And only a few of the whites came Some of the whites wouldn't come because the blacks wouldn't come. They were very loyal to each other.

by Christina O'Boyle It must be Thursday: the Volksmarchers are hiking past our kitchen windows. This is the part I enjoy about living near the sidewalk beside Ridge Road: Everyone outside is a part of the hubbub inside our house. It's not only the energetic Volksmarchers at the dinner hour, it's also the neighborhood kids who also the neighborhood kids who catch frogs in the woods next door, the parents pushing strollers, Ralph and his yappy dogs, Susan and her quiet dog. There's a parade all day, all evening. We live ringside.

On special days, the joggers race by in large numbers. We run to the windows and root them on, even though they don't hear us. Our two-year-old son always greets the trash truck from our windows, announcing the arrival of its flashing lights and grinding noises.

It's been some years now, but the Labor Day Parade used to go by our house. In those days, we'd get it coming and going because the marchers would go past us on their way to North End School to organize. Later, the drums would thump and the bagpipes come closer. Excitedly, we'd grab our coffee mugs, walk out to sit on our car as the parade marched past us.

With our kitchen windows so close to the sidewalk, we practically invite passers by to look in and watch us cook, eat, live. I sometimes think we're not shy enough about it and should create greater privacy. But for us, privacy is synonymous with no sunlight. We keep the curtains wide open to bring in the sun and with it comes the view. And so, as you're watching us, we're watching you.

FOR MENTAL ILLNESS

The Mental Health Association of Prince Georges County has recently started a self-help group for adults who suffer from mental illnesses. The group, On Our Own, is designed to offer consumers of mental health services an opportunity for fellowship, recreation and advocacy.

On Our Own in Prince Georges County has held four general meetings, beginning with one in June. The meetings were a great success—each one averaging 35 people. The next general membership meeting will feature Dr. Harold Eist, MD, PA, a noted psychiatrist from Montgomery County. He will address such issues as mental health, mental health advocacy, the recovery process and stigma. Autumn refreshments will be served. The meeting will be held at the Cheverly United Methodist Church at 2801 Cheverly Avenue. The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. on Saturday, November

SHA's Mills Tells Rotary Of Clogs on the Open Road by Julian Weiss

The B-W Parkway is supposed to go to Washington, but lately, it's going nowhere. Cabin John Bridge is under perpetual repair, and that car phone to help kill time during aggravating back-ups might as well be replaced by a futon mattress. One way or the other, it seems that all roads lead to Greenbelt-to paraphrase the saying about Rome, but traffic doesn't go as fast as Roman chariots.

and Ivy Lane, oversees Mont-gomery and Prince Georges

County with the largest population numbers, the largest bud-ways, and (no surprise) the largest traffic volume in Maryland.

SHA Role The sheer scope of District 3's mandate was explained on September 27 at the Greenbelt Rotary Club meeting. Creston

Mills, chief engineer and a 28-year veteran of SHA, discussed his agency's expanding role.

"The future highway situation is not looking good," he told the group which included council woman Antoinette M. Bram.

Yet, "many of the important road improvements are completed or nearing completion," a point that may provide some consola-tion to residents.

grams are addressing safety,

congestion and the problem of deteriorating infrastructure.

"Reaching Capacity"

"Our highways are reaching capacity," declared Mills, who concedes that not all funding required for other projects will be available. Acknowledging a surge of major accidents, he noted "new and innovative programs which you might not notice right away, but they're there." This includes availability of tow trucks, communications vans and improved use of radio station 530 AM (with commuting and motoring alerts).

Specific steps for better coordination with State Police are now in place, and a program on hazardous materials gives agencies flexibility to make rapid cleanups and movements of cargo trucks. Planned introduction of yellow flashing lights at key Beltway entrance ramps will reduce accidents.

Mills conceded that the coming of Metro to Greenbelt will necessitate other changes. If people's "high expectations people's "high expectations about driving conditions" are to be met, he hinted that flex-time and similar innovations should be tried. In response to a question, Mills termed the controversial Eastern Bypass "on the balance, a good idea," although he will okay any decision made by appropriate state agencies. Toll roads are "one possibility" that could make sense, based on results on the recently-approved Dulles Toll Road venture.

The City Council is seeking applications for the recently established Recycling Advisory Committee. This committee will consider and advise the City Council on matters relating to the recycling of refuse and matters related thereto, including but not limited to

- Reviewing the existing recycling program;
- Assisting in educating Greenbelt citizens and businesses about recycling and source reduction;
- Expanding the program to include ALL AREAS of the city;
- Recommending modifications to the recycling program and refuse collection program, as appropriate, to maximize the recycling of materials and to minimize the amount of waste disposal by land fill.

REFUSE DISPOSAL AND RECYCLING ARE MATTERS AFFECTING EVERY CITIZEN, and it is, therefore, important that this committee include representatives from ALL AREAS of the city, including those not presently receiving city refuse service. Business contributes greatly to our waste stream and should play a role in addressing this issue, as well. The city is, thereore, welcoming and urging indications of interest from our neighbors in the business community.

Please submit inquiries or letters of interest to the City Clerk, 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770. Telephone 474-3870 or 474-8000.

HAZARDOUS WASTE DAY AT PARKDALE A SUCCESS Over 1,100 vehicles rolled into the Prince Georges County Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day at Parkdale High School Sunday, October 14. The third collection day held this year was undoubtedly the most successful, netting over 80,000 pounds of household hazardous waste, according to the Departof Environmental Rement sources.

Materials such as oil, pesticides and batteries were collected for proper disposal.

Hazardous waste is one of many important issues associated with the nation's complex waste management problem. The Household Hazardous Collection Days are coordinated by the County's Department of Environmental Resources Environmental Policy Branch, which has expanded the program from twice a year to three times a year. Over six tons of telephone books, 200 gallons of latex paint and 400 car batteries were collected on October 14. The latex paint was donated to the metro area Christmas in April program.

Anyone interested in the next collection day should contact the Department of Environmental Resources' Community Outreach

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

As a resident got out of her vehicle and was returning home in the 5800 block of Cherrywood Tr. around 5:30 p.m. Oct. -2, a man came up behind her, grabbed her purse, and fled. He is described as black, 17-20 years old, 5'7", slim build, wearing a black jacket and blue jeans. A similar incident occurred that same night around 10:30 in the 7900 block of Mandan Rd., where a woman was followed into the hallway of her building and then robbed of her purse. This man is de-scribed as a black male, 6', thin build, wearing blue jeans. He fled in a brown 2-door vehicle.

Investigating a suspicious vehicle in the 7800 block of Mandan Rd. on Oct. 21, Pfc. Steven Keller found a .22 caliber semiautomatic handgun in the pocket of the driver and three other guns in the vehicle. He arrested the driver, a 34-year-old male resident,, and charged him with carrying a concealed handgun, transporting a handgun, and driving while intoxicated. The man appeared before a District Court Commissioner and was held on $500 bond.

On Oct. 18, a resident reported that she was kidnapped and battered by her boyfriend during an argument. The boyfriend, a 25year-old nonresident, was arrested for kidnapping and assault with intent to murder. After appearing before a District Court Commissioner. he was held on $50,000 bond pending trial.

On Oct. 24, a residence in the 7800 block of Hanover Pkwy. was burglarized; two TVs. a VCR. and a handgun were stolen. Entry was gained by lifting a window out of the encasement.

Two thefts occurred in office suites in the 6400 block of Ivy Lane: On Oct. 19, a Wallet was stolen from an unattended purse; on Oct. 22, a printer was stolen.

Two incidents of exhibitionism were reported: One, on Oct. 17, involved a man in a 2-door Plymouth, MD tags RDE 718 or 817, and occurred in the Beltway Plaza parking lot. The other, on Oct. 21, involved a man in an older model, white, 2-door sports car, possibly a Pontiac Transam or Camario, and occurred in the 7500 block of Mandan Rd. The man is described as white, in his 203, with short light brown hair

On Oct, 21 Pfc. Robert Dowling arrested a 22-year-old non-resident male in the 9300 block of Edmonston Rd. for possession of an alcoholic beverage. On Oct. 21 Officer Barry Byers

PHOTOGRAPHY, BOOTH WINNERS OF FESTIVAL

There were many winners in this year's Labor Day Festival from the photo and art shows, to the special contests and carnival booths, to the Labor Day Parade.

Each year the carnival booths are judged on attractiveness and the design-and quality of decorations. For the 1990 Labor Day Festival the booth winners were: First place, Greenbelt Swim Team, selling watermelon and corn-on-the-cob from its palmtree decorated site; Second place, Committee to Save the Green Belt, creating a small green belt in the carnival area; Third place, Maryland Tri-County Hawg Hun. ters, with a rustic setting for the goldfish toss. Honorable mention awards went to the Eleanor Roo-sevelt High School Cheerleaders, the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and the Crime Prevention Committee. There were 27 booths sponsored by community organizations in the 1990 Greenbelt Labor Day Festival.

Many visitors to the Labor Day Festival enjoyed the varied and interesting display from the talented photographers in the Photography Exhibition. Judges Roscoe Butler and Nancy Crossed selected the following winners in the color category: First place, Yosemite Park, California, by Phil White; Second place, Wind Lovers, by Anne Zevallos; Third place, Chattanooga Choo-Choo, by Michael Grunberg and Fourth place, Sunrise in Nag's Head, by Janet Richards. In the black and white category: First place, The Gallery - Early Shoppers, by Prospero Zevallos; Second place, Brenda, by Lisa Goldman; Third place, Eternal Shadows, by Anne Zevallos; and Fourth place, Best Friends, by Lisa Goldman. In the Young Photographers Category the winners were: First place, Ben and Amanda, by Josh Kepler; Second place, Girl's Best Friend, by Erin Grace; and Third place, Man's Best Friend, by Stephanie King. Visitors to the photo ex-hibit voted for the Community Favorite, Mountain Stream in Springtime, by Gary Peck.

Other winners will be announced in later articles in the News Review.

City Passes Special Tax For Ora Glen Dr. Costs by Virginia Beauchamp

At a brief special meeting on October 10, the Greenbelt City Council approved an agreement with Glen Ora Green Ora Limited Partnership, developers of the Smith-Ewing subdivision. Under the agreement, the city will levy a special assessment on the property owners in the amount of $425,000 to finance the completion of Ora Glen Drive adjacent to Lot 3. Of this amount $20,804 would be deferred until after grading is completed for Lot 2 and the adjacent street right-ofway. Included in the total cost are engineering, interest on tem-porary financing. legal fees for financing, permit fees, legal advertisements, bond sales expenses, loan fees, inspection fees and city administrative fees.

The city has already constructed Ora Glen Drive except for the sidewalk and a commercial driveway and the planting of street trees and seeding or sodding of grass on the north side of the street alongside Lot 3 to Hanover Parkway. This latter work will not be completed until the afore said grading is finished. Street lights will also be installed by the Potomac Electric Power Company at this time. Lots 3 and 2 are zoned for commercial office development.

Present at the meeting was Jennifer Lantrip, a vice president of Sovran Investment Corporation, who had arranged for the sale of $325.000 in public interest bonds. She commented that she had been working to prepare this sale in August, contemplating no special difficulties. Then sudden-ly the Iraqi invastion of Kuwait intervened. Nevertheless, she was happy to report that she had been able to sell this "rather small" bond offer at a 10 and a half per cent fixed rate over 20 years. The balance between the $425,000 figure and the bond sale represents interest paid to the city by the developers.

State Requires Stabilizing Of Construction Site's Soil

Maryland builders, developers and contractors must begin stabilizing construction sites that are not actively being cleared and graded in order to prevent soil erosion in the upcoming months, according to the Maryland Department of the Environ-ment. Without stabilization, which involves inexpensive seeding and mulching, soil and other particles are washed into streams during periods of heavy rains causing water pollution to the area. The optimum time for seeding is from August 1 to Oc-tober 31 says Vincent Berg, Director of the MDE Sediment and Stormwater Administration.

During the second quarter of this year, MDE collected more than $106,000 in fines for violations of Maryland's erosion and sediment control laws. In an effort to minimize erosion, MDE is encouraging Prince Georges County residents to notify the county's enforcement authority at 735-SOIL if they see construction sites in need of stabilization or other sediment control measures. Greenbelt residents may also contact the City of Greenbelt at 474-0569.

Museum Activities by Sandra Barnes There have been approximately 700 visitors to the Greenbelt Museum in the past year. Most of the visitors are Greenbelt residents. The remainder have come from states primarily along the east coast, and several have visited from foreign countries, including Germany, Poland and Norway.

Among the projects to be undertaken this coming year is the renovation of the garage into an office, and the installation of original casement windows. Victor and Anne Boswell, 35 court Ridge Road, donated their windows to the museum when they moved from Greenbelt several months ago. The windows currently in the house were installed as part of the Greenbelt Homes Inc. rehabilitation program. The original casement windows designed for the homes provide a more unified design to the exterior, and carry out the Art Deco features.

Recent acquisitions to the museum include a civil defense helmet used in the 1940s, Depression glass, a period ice cream scoop, a child's metal high a bread box, various chair, books, a music scrapbook and the Woman's Club photo album. To date over 600 items have been donated to the museum by 90 persons. The wish list for new acquisitions include a baby buggy, a dress form, ration books, toys, and period household Twenty-six volunteers items. have donated more than 720 hours of time to working at the museum.

Officers elected at the September annual meeting are Mary Linstrom, president; Sandra Barnes, vice president; Barbara Havekost, secretary; and Dorothy White, treasurer. The mu-seum, located at 10-B Crescent Road, is open every Sunday, 1-5 p.m.

area. The race was renamed in honor of Noel for his years as a race official and race director and his years on the Park and Recreation Advisory Board. It has been only with the help of long time volunteers and the cooperation and help of the Greenbelt Recreation Department that this race has been safely conducted.

Any Greenbelt finisher in the 15 kilometer race who did not receive an award may get one by contacting the Recreation Department. A complete list of the results of the race is available at the Youth Center.
