

Local Officials Tour Metro Station, Discuss Traffic and Environment

by James Giese

"We're going to have a special train ride for you in about September of next year," METRO Government Relations Officer and Greenbelter Jerry Gough confidently told a group of city officials while escorting them on a tour of the new Greenbelt METRO station. "This station will open later in 1993, but before the end of the year."

A METRO bus hauled approximately 30 people — members of the City Council, Advisory Planning Board, and Park and Recreation Advisory Board; City staff and some interested citizens — from the Municipal Building to the new station under construction. Gough, Gordon Moffit, supervisor for the Outer E Route, and Rick Bockner, superintendent for Facility Planning, served as METRO tour guides.

Station Construction 'Although under roof, a lot of work still needs to be done on the building that, at ground level, looks somewhat like the New Carrollton station. Steel bars and gates separate the station interior from the outside. Workers are in the process of installing the floors. Walls are of textured concrete. Two stairways lead to the platform, each with one escalator adjacent to it. Angling off to the left from the station lobby is a long tunnel that provides access to the MARC commuter rail station on the CSX rail line and to Lackawanna Street in the Hollywood section of College Park.

The station platform is centered between the two tracks, which are already installed. Instead of the arched canopy at New Carrollton, this station will have two concrete wings extending over much of the platform.

The Greenbelt METRO station platform is centered between the two METRO tracks immediately adjacent to the CSX Railroad tracks to the west. The center section between the two wings will be enclosed. In the distance to the north is the Beltway bridge. The terminal yard for the E route will be located on the other side of the Beltway.

Present open space between the Before METH wings will be covered with a translucent material. MARC Station The MARC station, which consists of two open platforms to be covered by a canopy, was not part of the tour. The METRO officials understood that because tickets will be sold from the train, no booths or other facilities will be necessary. The station will replace the Berwyn Road stop.

The MARC station will open before METRO. When? Gough was uncertain. He understands that the delay is because of equipment problems. Maybe in two or three months.

"Instant Death"

Gough pointed out the need to educate local children about the danger of touching the third rail, not yet installed, that provides the electric power to the trains. "To touch that rail is instant death." he reported. "It carries 750 volts of direct current."

The station design prevents easy access to the tracks and the third rail. At other locations the track is fenced to prevent access.

Parking and Access

A paved parking lot has already been built, but it is only about a quarter the size of the final lot. This lot will serve the MARC commuter rail station.

Access ramps have been completed from the Beltway to the parking facility. However, access will only be from the eastbound, inner loop lanes of the Beltway. Similarly, the parking lot exit ramp to the Beltway leads only to the westbound, outer loop lanes. Greenbelt traffic will access the parking lot from a new two-lane road connected to Cherrywood Lane. -photo by Ray McCawley

Before METRO opens, the parking lot will be rebuilt and expanded to provide 3,287 park and ride parking spaces. There will be two kiss and ride lots, with a total of 387 spaces plus 24 motorcycle spots, one to serve Beltway traffic and the other to serve traffic from Cherrywood Lane. The Beltway lot will also have oversized spaces for large high-occupancy vehicles. METRO buses will enter the site from Cherrywood Lane and use bus bays built next to the access road's kiss and ride lot.

The park and ride lot will be available for all day parking. That lot will have access from both the Beltway and Cherrywood Lane, although it is possible to erect barricades to prevent vehicles entering one way and leaving another. In any event, it will not be possible to shortcut from the Beltway to Cherrywood Lane or vice versa without paying to use the parking lot.

Gough expects over 6,000 riders a day to use the station. At a subsequent city council work session. Council member Thomas X. White expressed concern that the two-lane access road would not be sufficient to handle the large number of vehicles that would use it. City Planning Director Celia Wilson responded that she was not as concerned with the width of the access road as with its intersection with Cherrywood Lane. She felt that a traffic signal would be required and was concerned that the city would be the one to have to pay for it as both the access road and Cherrywood Lane were city streets.

There will be no parking or kiss and ride facilities on the College Park side of the tracks. See METRO TOUR, page 11

Bands, Majorettes, Dragons, Clowns, Bikes and Dr. Van In Big Labor Day Parade

by Sandy Smith

The 38th Labor Day Festival Parade steps out at 10 a.m. on Labor Day to march from "Buddy" Attick Lake Park down Crescent to the viewing stand across from the municipal building. Along the way, viewers will be treated to the precision drill work of the Yankee Rebels, floats, majorettes, community groups, government officials, and the local entries which each year delight and entertain. The American Legion Post #136 leads off with the official color guard, the Greenbelt Police Department brings the parade to a close, and in between hundreds of marchers, dancers, clowns, and performers take part in Greenbelt's annual salute to Labor Day.

Bands and Dragons

The Yankee Rebels, a renown drill team, returns to Greenbelt for the 1992 parade, after sev-eral years' absence. The Rebels have an active following, have won numerous competitions, and are popular parade performers throughout the mid-Atlantic States. The Chinese Lion Dancers offer a decided change of pace. From nearby Washington, D.C., they evoke the traditions of the Far East with a giant dragon that snakes down the street. The Alte Kameraden German Band brings the sounds of the traditional brass band to Greenbelt. Still another popular marching group are the Camelot Lancers, whose costumes and movements intrigue. The Prince Georges County Police Pipe Band return for a much-awaited repeat performance.

* The Diamond Wheels will entertain with square dancing along the route. Marching to the tune of a different drummer (or harpist) are the Blackthorn Irish Dancers whose costumes and little Irish cottage create a far-away time and place.

The drill teams include Shelly's Sparklers and K-Company whose majorettes have been an important part of the Labor Day parade for many years. Eleanor Roosevelt High School is well represented by the Varsity and Junior Varsity cheerleaders and the PomPom Squad and Drum Line.

Parade Marshall

Greenbelt's 1992 Outstanding Citizen, to be announced at Friday evening's opening ceremonies, will appear early in the parade. The parade's Grand Marshall is recently retired Center School Principal, Dr. John Van Schoonhoven. As usual, Greenbelters can see a good turnout See FESTIVAL, page 16

Metro Area Development Raises Early Questions

by Diane Oberg

One thing was clear: Although Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission staffers have not begun work on plans for development around the Greenbelt Metro station, that agency and the Greenbelt City Council have distinctly different ideas about the purpose of the plans. Council met with Frank Derro, Chief, Transportation and Public Facilities, Planning Division at an August 25 worksession.

At issue is the Greenbelt Transit District Overlay Zone (TD-OZ). Derro described the TDOZ as a development plan for the area from which people can be expected to walk to the Metro station. Its goal is to figure out y the type or amount of development the county wants around stations has not occurred, and investigate how such development can be encouraged while protecting the surrounding community. The Greenbelt zone will be unusual, Derro said, in that it is a terminal station. He said it was "not ideal for development" because of the higher than average number of automobiles that use the last station on a line.

Although the boundaries for the Greenbelt zone have not yet been determined, zones generally extend approximately one-half mile or a 10-minute walk from the station. According to Derro, studies show that beyond that distance only a few people will walk to the station

Currently, there are no detailed development proposals for council to review. Derro said that Metro has proposed developing up to two million square feet of space on its property. Derro said his agency will be studying that proposal to figure out how much space the area could support and what conditions should See DEVELOPMENT page 2

Development Around Metro

(Continued from page one) be applied to the development. The final decisions on the boundaries of the zone, the develop-ment plan and related issues will be made by the Prince Georges County Council, sitting as the District Council.

Businesses within TDOZ are subject to certain restrictions in exchange for higher densities than normally permitted. For example, there is a cap on the number of parking places. In a TDOZ the amount of parking might be capped at one or two spaces per 1000 square feet, with less parking permitted closer to the station. This is significantly less than the 2.5 spaces per 1000 square feet required outside a TDOZ.

Park and Planning also will require businesses in the zone to take other steps to reduce the number of trips on adjacent roadways generated by their operations. Derro sought to assure council that the TDOZ plan will provide for adequate public facilities for the development permitted.

Council's Wishes

The council members pushed Derro to include Beltway Plaza and the Smith tract (located between Greenbelt Road and the Metro property) in the zone. Derro pointed out that Park and Planning's latest proposal in-cludes a portion of the Smith property. He argued, however, that both Beltway Plaza and most of the Smith tract were too far from the station to be included. He noted what all resi-dents know, that Beltway Plaza is "very parking oriented." Derro expects that Metro will improve bus service between the station and the Plaza, which may lead more customers to come by mass transit. However, he does not expect the reduction in automobile traffic to approach the 30 to 35% decrease expected when the Prince Georges Plaza station opens.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld described one of council's goals as con-trolling traffic density in the Beltway Plaza area. Derro acknowledged that desire but said that was not the purpose of the TDOZ as established by law. Developers placed in a zone against their will can and do appeal the decision in court.

Council member Rodney Roberts argued hard for inclusion of the entire Smith property in the zone. He argued that development should occur in the area closest to Greenbelt Road, not near Metro where there are many environmentally sensitive areas.

Derro did not disagree, but said that that land will probably be beyond the scope of the TDOZ. He doubted that many people would walk the roughly three-quarters of a mile (as the crow flies) from that area to the station. Instead, customers and clients would more likely drive, increasing the traffic problems on Greenbelt Road.

Although the two areas pushed by council may not be placed in the TDOZ, the entire area will be considered in determining the effect development in the zone will have on roads, schools, police and other services, Derro said. He reported on the TDOZ plans for the West Hyattsville and Prince Georges Plaza stations, noting that they include plans for road improvements, money for trails and facilities. Trip generation rates of homes and businesses in the zone will be monitored, and the developers can be penalized for not meeting their trip reduction commitments.

Derro argued that council has a variety of legal and administrative tools to address its concerns about development outside the TDOZ including the master plan process and environmental regulations.

White House Tour Volunteers Needed

The National Parks Service is in need of energetic Volunteers to help with public tours of the White House. Volunteers will receive eight hours of preparatory training, Saturday, September 12, and work directly with park staff to assist the thousands of visitors who take the free, one-hour morning tour throughout the year.

All volunteer work will take place either near the White House at the Ellipse, Lafayette Park, Sherman Park, or at the President's Park office in East Potomac Park. Volunteer duties include distributing tour tickets, escorting tour groups, assisting with the library and volunteer newsletter, presenting interpretive talks, aiding the music program, and staffing the information kiosk to provided information on the White House and Washington, D.C. In addition, volunteers provide support for special events such as the annual White House Easter Egg Roll, Spring and Fall Garden Tours, White House Candlelight Tours, and the Pageant of Peace. Volunteers are enrolled in the nationwide Volunteers-In-Parks program of the National Park Service. VIPs are considered park employees in case of duty injuries or damage claims. Anyone who can donate a few hours each week to this pro-gram, contact President's Park volunteer coordinator, Kathy Langley at 202-755-7798, Tuesdays through Saturdays from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

In our continuing effort to bring Qussay Nuaimy home from Iraq, there will be a prayer vigil in front of the Iraqi Interest Center on Saturday from 7:15 to 9 p.m. We will leave from 9-A Parkway at 6:15 p.m. Please join us.

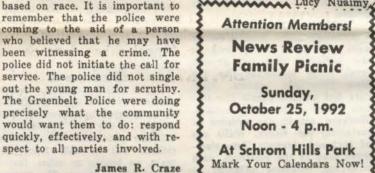

We are setting up a non-profit organization called FACT to help bring Qussay and other internationally abducted children back from foreign countries. It is a fact that 4,428 children have been internationally abducted. It is a fact that 345,100 children are abducted annually. It is a fact that our government does not offer much assistance and little hope in returning a child that has been abducted to a foreign country.

It is a fact that the parent from whom a child is taken must go alone to the foreign country to get the child back.

We are now planning two fund raisers to be held in September for FACT. A hymn and gospel music program will be held on September 13 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Mowatt United Methodist Church. On September 20 the Church will sponsor a spaghetti dinner. Please call 345-5325 for more information.

Other donations may be mailed to Lucy Nuaimy, P.O. Box 845, Greenbelt, Md. 20768.

Park Improvement Projects Approved at Special Meeting

by Virginia Beauchamp

In order to deal with near deadlines set by the state of Maryland, the Greenbelt City Council held a short special meeting on August 31. Unless awarded now, council was told, the city could lose Maryland Department of Environment funding for Phase 3 of a series of improvements to Greenbelt Lake. In addition, September 4 was the stated deadline to respond with proposals for use of $63,105 in open space funds, should this amount become available. expected to begin on Septem-In order to authorize immediate work on lake improvements, ber 1. council suspended the rules and Phase III improvements include removal of rubble from the north stream channel, stabilizapassed upon second reading a resolution to accept a $73,000 bid by Lake Services of Virginia, tion of the streambank, habitat Inc. for dredging lake Forebay I creation, and dredging of the forebay at the east end of the Open Space Proposals

Because of the state's fiscal constraints, there was no way of knowing whether the money authorized for open space development would become avail-Hobbs said. Nevertheless, the Prince Georges County government was anxious that municipalities submit proposals in order to reinforce the idea that there is need for open space development.

For this reason the city staff had drawn up a wish list of six possible capital improvements. The idea was to give the city flexibility in future development. If money was actually allotted, Hobbs explained, the list would again be presented for council to select specific projects.

The six projects listed were as follows:

Further development of Schrom Hills Park, Witt Pond Trail and amenities, Greenspring Community Park, Attick Park master plan projects, neighborhood parks in Greenbelt East, and a citizenbuilt playground at a site not yet selected.

In responding, Mayor Pro Tem

Thomas X. White expressed disappointment that development of a trail system throughout the city had not been included. Council member Rodney Roberts agreed, specifically designating a bicycle path to the Metro station as a priority.

Council member Antoinette ("Toni") Bram took a different tack. Rather than adding to the list, she suggested a realistic appraisal of what proposal might fit cost-wise the amount of funding that could at best be allo-cated. "We must join the spirit of these times," she said, indicating the severe financial constraints on the state of Maryland.

Council member Ed Putens dis-agreed. "I have no problem in asking for more," he said. "I want Greenbelt to get its share." White concurred. "The more projects on the list, the greater flexibility in negotiating with the people dispensing the funds," he said.

White also thought the city should look again at open space acquisition, for which the funds could also be used. "Maybe it would be good for Celia to come back with candidates for such acquisition, such as buffer space, trails, etc.," he added.

Roberts said he hoped the city could acquire part of the A. H. Smith wetlands property. Pressed about the purpose, he suggested that it could be used for "active recreational facilities."

"We could ask for 100 acres of the Smith property as a possibility," Celia Wilson, the city's Director of Planning and Development concurred.

On a motion by Putens, council unanimously agreed to accept the staff recommendation of the six suggested items, to which would be added a trails project.

County Programs Earn Awards

Prince Georges County Department of Family Services was awarded two Achievement Awards from the National Association of Counties (NACo) for a program involving disabled county residents and an afterschool program for grade school children.

A NACo Achievement Award was given to the county's Unity Chorus Program for its effectiveness in establishing a nonstigmatizing, integrative opportunity for people with and without disabilities to sing together in a county-sponsored chorus. The Unity Chorus rehearses twice a month at the Margaret Brent Special Center in New Carrollton and performs at community concerts throughout the county.

The other NACo Achievement Award winner in the Department of Family Services was the School Drugs Intervention Program. This after-school program at four of the county's elementary schools, including Greenbelt Center Elementary School, is free of charge to parents and runs activities for three hours following school.

Activities include drug awareness and prevention, skill development, homework help, and optional student and family counseling. During the 1990-91 school year, the School Drugs Intervention Program served approxi-mately 160 students per school and had a 15:1 student to adult ratio.

School attendance and behavior, as well as reading and math performance, improved among those students who participated in the program. Prince Georges County won a total of 34 NACo Achievement Awards. NACo Achievement Awards are given to county government programs that demonstrate both innovation and effectiveness.

Free Brochure On Insect Stings

Thousands of Americans enter emergency rooms throughout the every summer, suffering U.S. from bee stings that should have been treated at home.

If a person is stung on the wrist and it swells to twice its normal size, turns red and itches at the sting site, there is no cause for alarm. This is a local reaction requiring minimal care, according to Emergency Medicine Specialist Jack Kelly, D.O. However, if a person is stung on the wrist and symptoms appear in an area other than the sting site (their eyes and face swell, they feel itchy all over, or are short of breath, for example) this person is having an allergic reaction that may be life-threatening.

April, 1942-With 60 members, Greenbelt American Legion Post No. 136 became the largest in Prince Georges County ac-cording to its commander, Jennings Craig. Recent initiations, due to the large influx of Defense Home residents, represented the largest percentage of gain in membership of any Legion Post in the country.

The Post headquarters occupied a nine-room house located on an extension of Southway about half way between Greenbelt and Edmonston Road. A silver-painted World War I tank located in front of the house served to identify the post headquarters.

Although it is no longer located on an extension of Southway, but just off Greenbelt Road on Legion Drive, the Greenbelt post is still located at the same old farm house, although it has been extensively remodeled and added on to. The post also continues to be the largest in the county and one of the largest in the state and nation.

Fifty Years Ago Who in Hell Do You Think You Are? by James Giese

April, 1942-"Just who in Hell do you people think you are to live here off the fat of the land without so much as raising a fin-ger to help with the vital functions so necessary in Greenbelt?" That's how the editorial staff of the Greenbelt Cooperator berated its readers on the front page in a page long two-column editorial for failing to turn out for meetings of the Citizen's Association that were called off for lack of quorums, for not supporting the cooperative or the Greenbelt Health Association, for not volunteering to work on the paper and for not aiding the local defense council.

The paper began its diatribe with, "Every military or economic defeat in the history of the world has been preceded and furthered by an era of smug, complacent living. Greenbelt is in the throes of just that kind of an era."

It went on to say, "Do you think Greenbelt is just a place to live in body only, while you laugh at those poor suckers in the District forced to live in the benevolence of the Robber Rental Barons? If you do, brothers and sisters, you had better nail your hat down or else you are in for a surprise. . . . For your information, anything our Government does or anything that happens to our Government's possessions is enemy propaganda in one way or another. Greenbelt's failure would give the Axis Rats plenty of fuel to point out that an American governmentsponsored housing project failed due to complacency and smugness on the part of the residents, tending to prove that democra-cies are soft and that free people can not or are not fit to think and govern themselves."

The editorial concluded its invective with, A whole lot of you reading this editorial are going to hate us unto the death because of that human failing 'you can dish it out but you cant take it.' Frankly we don't give a damn... You have had your chance and have almost fumbled the ball. Now it is up to you to pick it up and carry on. . . Greenbelt is not an island in the middle of nowhere. It is a living, breathing example of what a truly democratic town could be, a symbol to the nation and the world that a free people can think for them selves, can govern themselves, and can live in peace. Don't make a liar out of Greenbelt."

Brothers and sisters, maybe we don't have to fear those "Axis Rats" anymore, but if the shoe otherwise fits as to your not volunteering enough, you better put it on and get out there and work to save the world, our country, and most importantly, Greenbelt. P.S. The News Review can use help too.

State Holds Hearing On ITN Travel Fraud

The Consumer Protection Division in the office of Maryland Attorney General J. Joseph Curran, Jr. has accused a Baltimorebased vacation club promoter of using misleading and illegal tac-tics to sell "luxury" vacation accommodations that are far from luxurious-or never provided at all.

International Travel Network, Inc., and its operators, John Eric Ginn and Bradley S. Callahan, of Baltimore are charged with "engaging in deception, fraud, false pretenses, misrepresentation, and knowing concealment, suppression or omission of ma-terial facts" in their promotion and sale of vacation club memberships that cost from $600 to more than $4,000 apiece.

International Travel Network (ITN) offers consumers prizes and gifts that can be claimed at its office in the 1500 block of South Edgewood Road. When consumers respond to these offers, ITN illegally requires them to submit to a sales promotion in order to receive the promised promotional item or vacation; makes the consumers pay money for the supposed gift or prize; fails to disclose the restrictions it places on the use of "free" vacations it offers, and often fails to provide the promised vacation at all, according to the charges.

Instead of the discounted travel rates ITN promises to provide, its members actually pay rates that are no lower than rates generally available to members of the public.

Curran's office is seeking an order requiring ITN to stop its allegedly deceptive business practices and to pay full restitution to consumers who were defrauded by the firm.

A public hearing on the charges against International Travel Network, Inc. will be held on September 21 at the Office of Administrative Hearings, Administrative Law Building, 10753 Falls Road in Lutherville. Anyone with personal knowledge of facts concerning the allegations may qualify as an interested party and participate in the hearing. In order to take part in the proceeding, consumers should contact the Consumer Protection Division, 16th Floor, 200 St. Paul Place, Baltimore, Md. 21202, or call (410) 576-6556.

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

Around 2:15 a.m. on August 25,, officers responded to a report of gunshots in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace. A Loose Dog Could Stop Mail Delivery

The Postal Service reminds citizens that biting dogs are a danger to letter carriers, especially during the summer months when doors are open and pets are outside. According to the Postal Service, someone is bitten by a dog every minute somewhere in this country. Eighty letter carriers were bitten in 1991 in zip code areas 200-209 and medical and compensation costs for these dog bites were almost $10,000. The Postal Service asks pet owners to make commitment to controlling their dogs and warns that failure to control one's dog could result in loss of delivery service.

METRO TOUR

This design is in compliance with the express wish of the College Park City Council. A walk will connect the station to Lackawanna Street for access by bicycles and pedestrians. The access will be designed for use by fire equipment, but instead of pavement will use grass paver blocks (i.e., blocks with holes that permit grass to grow between and over them, but that can still provide adequate support for occasional vehicle use). Bicycle Access Advisory Planning Board member and bicycle enthusiast William Clarke and others were concerned with accessibility for bicyclists. A bicycle path and sidewalk will be built adjacent to the access road to Cherrywood Lane. There will also be bicycle parking on both sides of the station, both in racks and in bicycle lockers that can be rented. City activist Doug Love asked if there would be enough bike racks and lockers. The METRO representatives said that this would not be a problem as more could easily be added if needed.

Environmental Issues On the tour, council member White asked if there were now any unresolved water quality problems relating to the station. Moffit advised that METRO had all necessary permits. There will be two dry storm water retention basins. Each will have an oil separator.

Robert Boone, Executive Director of the Anacostia Watershed Society, asked if heated water resulting from rain running off from a sun-baked parking lot would be retained until cooled to the stream water temperatures of Indian Creek. Moffit advised that there would be stone gabions that will slow it down, thereby enabling it to cool off. Boone, who was not satisfied with the response, got into a heated discussion with Gough. Declaring the issue closed, Gough told Boone, "It's decided, Bob." "Not by me" Boone retorted. "We have our permits and we won't impact on the stream," Gough declared, to which Boone countered, "It will definitely impact."

GREENBELT NEWS REVIEW

Crime Concerns Clarke also expressed concern with crime occurring in the parking lot and asked if there would be any video or security equipment. Gough advised that car theft and stealing parts from cars would most probably occur. As a result of a study made by the Arthur Young Company in the early stages of METRO planning, an agreement was entered between METRO and the area police chiefs that gave local police primary responsibility for law enforcement in parking lots and stations and METRO police responsibility in the tunnels and on the trains.

The Greenbelt police will have concurrent jurisdiction with METRO, but METRO police cannot take any action beyond METRO property. Gough advised that a meeting should be held between the METRO police chief and Greenbelt police to further coordinate police activities.

As to crime in the station and on the trains, Gough noted that there were surveillance cameras

5 the MARC station, which is few months, to the METRO —photo by Ray McCawley and a difficulty for perpetrators to determine where the police might be. "We also have a quick police response time," Gough re-

Terminal Yard

After seeing the station, the group exited from the parking lot onto the new ramp to the Beltway. At the end of the ramp, a brief stop was made to overlook the area upon which the terminal yard will be constructed. The yard will consist of tracks and a large brown brick maintenance building. Gough expects the yard to be completed in 1995, two years after the station is completed. The terminal yard is not essential to operating the E route to Greenbelt.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld asked why the delay in completing the terminal. Gough responded that the delay was due to differences as to the design radius for the turnaround track. METRO wanted a 350-foot radius, but the U.S. Corps of Engineers insisted on a tighter radius in order to reduce the impact upon wetlands. A 300-foot radius will be used.

Not mentioned were environmental problems caused by a portion of the land's having once been used as a dump by the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC), which is making the land available to METRO.

According to Kim Kaplan of BARC's Information Staff, the involved area will be excavated and cleaned up to meet METRO's needs. BARC is in the process of receiving proposals for a contractor to perform the work.

GHI Manager's, Employees' Salaries to Be Made Public

by Sandy Smith

The August 13 meeting of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. Board of Directors extended until the wee hours of the morning in Executive Session. But before midnight, and after much discussion, the Board voted to make a part of the open record of GHI the salary ranges of GHI employees and the current annual salary of the General Manager. The Manager was directed to develop a list of categories of employees for approval by the Board at the September 10 meeting. This action was the result of a compromise between board members who wanted detailed salary information to be made public and those who wanted more general information released.

Salary Information

The Board took action on releasing salary information in response to a motion passed at the annual meeting in May. The board debated the intent of the motion, what the membership wanted, what would be in the best interests of the corporation and the employees, and the effect of releasing salary information on future recruitment. Board member Margaret Hogensen proposed that salary information be provided for groups of employees by job categories. Management had developed a general listing of categories with relatively broad salary ranges. Board member Don Comis distributed a list he had developed with very specific categories, often consisting of only one employee. Board member Carol Levin interpreted the language of the membership motion as requiring the specific salary of individual employees be part of the open record of GHI. A great deal of discussion followed. Finally, the Board adopted Hogensen's motion to release salary range informa-tion, with the Manager directed to develop a list of salary ranges for approval by the Board.

In a separate motion, the Board approved making public the current actual salary of the General Manager. Board President Ray McCawley opposed the latter action on the grounds that making this information public would be an impediment to hiring a future manager and would limit GHI's ability to negotiate the salary of future applicants for the post of General Manager.

A&E Committee Reports

In a very comprehensive report, A&E Committee member Chris White reported on the results of a survey on additions conducted with members living in one-bedroom units. The survey was conducted to see if there needed to be a change in the current policy which prohibits additions to one-bedroom GHI units. The overall finding was the majority (somewhat over half) of residents of one-bedroom units would consider an addition. the rest would not, but were not necessarily opposed to others having an addition. They were then asked about the kind of additions preferred, how firstand second-story units should be handled, and how the additions might be financed. A&E Chair Jim Maher suggested that the committee draw up possible approaches to building additions. The Board requested that management first review the report and get back to the Board before further action is taken.

The A&E Committee also reported on the Court Beautification Contest. Four courts-17, 23, 35, and 65 Ridge-entered the contest by submitting a plan for beautification of their court entrances. The committee recommended approval of all four plans and the Board occurred.

Jim Maher, Audit Committee member, and Art Maas, member of the A&E Committee submitted a report on the audit review of the Fee-for-Service program. They met with GHI staff and discussed the program and then reviewed and compared estimates of the charges under the GHI fee-for-service program with those charged by outside contractors. It was their conclusion that "work done by GHI is not only economical, but if taken together with its guarantee and maintenance programs it is an excellent value."

Member & Community Relations Debbie Hartwick reported that the Member and Community Relations Committee had finalized plans for the GHI Labor Day booth and was recruiting volunteers to run the Treasure Hunt activity. At the GHI booth, $1.00 chances will be available to guess the location nearest to the buried treasure. Funds raised will go to "Shelter the World," a project the Cooperative Housing of Foundation, to assist families to build better housing in countries throughout the world.

The Member and Community Relations Committee also recommended against a playground request between 7 and 9 court of Research Road. The playground was rejected on the basis that not enough land was available for its construction and the concerns of nearby residents. There was also the suggestion that North End School facilities might eventually offer additional playgrounds for the children in this area. The Board concurred with the committee's recommendation.

Bylaws Committee The Board appointed Nat Shinderman, Mac Wirick, and Tom White to serve as a Bylaws Committee and review the bylaws and suggest any changes needed to make the bylaws consistent with current policies and procedures. The Board said that the bylaws should be consistent with present day practices.

Prepayment of Loan

The Board passed on first reading a motion that GHI use a portion of its cash to prepay

Thursday, September 3, 1992 the balance of the loan which financed the large homes rehabilitation. In addition to the larger home rehab, it also fi-. nanced the share loans to members who purchased those homes prior to 1982. The loan balance is presently approximately $480,-000 with about half of it allocated to members in the larger homes. In light of this action, the Board also passed a motion to reset the monthly charges of members in the larger homes to reflect a drop in the interest rate from 11.31 percent to an interest rate of 9.25 percent. This would give the members in the larger homes the benefit of refinancing without the costs of a new loan. Audit Committee Minority Report

Audit Committee member Jim Maher submitted a minority report in which he is not in complete agreement with the direction taken by the Audit Committee. He stated that although the Audit Committee is charged to review and evaluate operations of the corporation and report to the Board, that review should be in response to a member's complaint or in the course of the Audit Committee's routine check of the system. When a consultant is required he recommended that certain guidelines be followed: consultant's credentials be certified, that the consultant have no personal interest in the corporation or be a friend of a committee member, and that several bids be considered regarding costs.

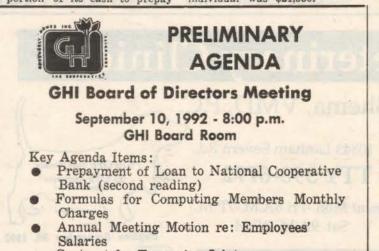

Unclaimed Funds Search At Maryland State Fair

"If you visit the Maryland State Fair this year, you might find a windfall to cope with the difficult times," says State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein. The State Comptroller's Office will be at the State Fair in Timonium through September 7, with computer hookups that will allow fairgoers to find out if they are the owners of unclaimed funds being held by the state. "The service is free, and your chances are better than you might think because we have records on approximately 160,-000 accounts worth more than $60 million," Goldstein said.

Employees of the Comptroller's Office will staff three computar terminals from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily in the Exhibit Hall at the Timonium Fairgrounds.

"Last year our effort to locate unclaimed property owners at the State Fair was successful. In fact out of, the 13,262 fairgoers who stopped by the Comptroller's Office booth, 889 found leads on unclaimed bank accounts, insurance benefits, refund checks and other money worth $241,272," the comptroller noted. The largest amount identified for a single individual was $21,550.

GREENBELT NEWS REVIEW

General trash and smelly garbage should be placed in resident's own garbage cans or apartment dumpsters. These items do not belong at the recycling center. —photos by Beverly Palau, City of Greenbelt

Recycling Center Is Not a Dump

by Betsy Likowski

An arm chair, muffler, a tailpipe and other items of trash were dumped at the city's recycling center last weekend (see photo). This dumping of nonrecyclables happens all too often. People are "using the recycling center area as a garbage dump," said Carl Hirsch, Director of Public Works. This costs the taxpayers money, because men have to leave their normal jobs to clean up the trash dumped at the recycling center, he explained.

People should call 474-8004 for special trash to come and pick up items that do not usually go in the trash can, such as yard waste and bulky items. Special trash is picked up every Wednesday at people's homes.

People also misuse the recycling center by putting the wrong things in the wrong places. For example, aluminum cans are accepted at the center but screen doors and lawn chairs are not. When antifreeze is contaminated with solvents, the anti-freeze is no longer recyclable, but is hazardous waste. It costs the city money to dispose of hazardous waste.

Mufflers and other bulky items should not be dumped at the recycling center. The city's special trash crew (or the county's) will come to a customer's door to pick up these items. Greenbelt customers may call 474-8004 for service. Solvents, paint, and other common household chemical products are accepted at the county's hazardous waste days. Call 95-CLEAN for more information.

Trash is improperly dumped in other places around the city. Call special trash for pick up of the trash, do not dump yard waste and magazines in trash cans in parks or common areas.

The sign above the discarded paint cans reads "Do not leave any hazardous waste here No paint . . ." Call 95-CLEAN for recycling information about hazardous waste.

of city, county and state-wide officials as well as candidates for office.

Miss Greenbelt, Little Miss, and Jr. Miss and pageant participants will be featured in the parade. As will many community groups. The Greenbelt Girl Scouts will probably enter the largest group, more than 70 members strong to symbolize the 70th anniversary of the Girl Scouts. The Lions Club sponsors its annual Bike and Trikes, with decorated tricycles. Sally Carrano, the Queen of Hearts, will make another popular appearance in the parade. The Friends of the Greenbelt Museum will march in costumes reminiscent of earlier times. Emma, the car, also represents an earlier period, and there will be more antique cars, clowns, cartoon figures, and other entertainers and groups.

Parade Chair Tony Fominaya and co-chair Cheri Gainor have involved many volunteers to put on this parade. Festival president Bobbi McCarthy and Bob Spear  will emcee the parade. After the parade the carnival opens and the Festival continues until 6 p.m. Monday.

Carnival and Entertainment

The Festival officially opens on Friday evening with a con-cert by the Greenbelt Concert Band, followed by Opening Ceremonies (with sign language interpreter Lisa Costa present) when the Outstanding Citizen is announced. Then there is the first presentation of the Miss Greenbelt Pageant participants. "Second Conspiracy," a 50s and 60s show band featuring impersonations of Elvis, Four Tops and the Supremes provides the stage entertainment Friday evening. On Saturday, "Blue Miracle," a classic rock group performs. Sunday's headliner is "Bustin' Loose" a Southern Rock Country group. A variety of performers provide non-stop entertainment on the Festival stage.

The carnival with games and rides for all ages and booths and activities sponsored by community groups and organizations runs throughout the weekend. So do special events, special contests, athletic contests and games, and many other activities scheduled for this year's Labor Day Festival. Check the ad in this week's News Review and cable television for highlights. A full schedule appeared in last week's News Review and is posted at the Information Booth on the carnival grounds. Also call the information booth at 982-4019 (during the Festiva.) for more information or free
