Tax and Term Limit Proposals On County Ballot November 3

by James Giese

In the November 3 election, Prince Georgians will decide upon four county ballot questions. Drawing the most interest is a proposal to limit increases in county tax levies to 5% a year. A companion question would limit to two the number of consecutive terms served by county councilmembers and the county executive. Other ballot questions, if approved, would mandate a three percent contingency reserve fund and push back the county budget schedule by 15 days.

Tax Limitation

Citizens for Tax Reform and Term Limitations, part of the Prince Georges County Civic Federation, submitted two petitions, each with more than 34,000 signatures, to place the tax and term limitation questions on the ballot. The tax limitation proposal, county question D, would replace the present tax rate limit of $2.40 per $100 of assessed value. Instead, the provision would prevent the dollar amount of taxes raised each year from increasing by more than the increase in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) or five percent, whichever is less.

Proponents contend that the current tax rate limit is not sufficient. The assessed value of property can increase each year by up to 10 percent, which would increase the homeowner's property tax bill by 10 percent. The proponents feel that this is too much of an increase to be allowed.

Opponents argue that the proposed limitation does not take into consideration new assessments resulting from new development. They say that the county needs the full value of these taxes to fund the additional schools and other services required to serve the new development. Because the limit would apply equally to business and residential property and because property values are increasing at different rates, opponents charge that the amendment could shift more of the tax burden to homeowners. In addition, property owners receiving high assessment increases could still receive tax increases greater than five percent.

Alternative

County Executive Parris Glendening has proposed an alternative tax limitation. This proposal can become effective only if the referendum question is voted down. If enacted, CB-88 would put the alternative tax limitations into effect by law for the next fiscal year.

Instead of restricting total tax collections the alternative proposal would restrict the annual increase in residential property assessments to the CPI or five percent and keep the current tax levy rate limit. Taxes on new development would be based upon the full assessed value the first year, providing the county with the revenues needed to provide the additional services needed. The alternative proposal would not limit assessments on commercial properties. Proponents believe this will eventually shift a greater proportion of the county property tax burden to businesses.

These arguments are rejected by proponents of the ballot question, who contend that the county is only proposing tax limits now in an effort to defeat the referendum question.

On October 12, by a 3 to 2 vote, with councilmembers Toni Bram and Rodney Roberts dissenting, the Greenbelt City Council endorsed Glendening's alternate proposal.

Term Limits

Question C, if passed, will limit to two the number of consecutive four-year terms that a person could serve either as a county councilmember or as county executive. The proposal would apply retroactively past

James Hubbard Proposed For Delegate Appointment

by James Giese

The selection of Bowie area resident and former Greenbelt James Hubbard by the elected officials of the 23rd Legislative District as their recommended candidate to fill the vacant position in the Maryland House of Delegates has upset the supporters of the 12 other candidates and elected officials in Bowie and in Greenbelt. However, the disappointed partisans and dissidents were unable to unify behind an alternative candidate at a meeting held last weekend. The Prince Georges County Democratic Central Committee will fill the vacancy.

Hubbard, who is the Chief Administrative Officer for a Montgomery County engineering firm, is a lifelong county resident and has been politically active in Democratic politics for many years, having first been involved in election campaigns for former State Senator Meyer Emanuel. He has been a resident of the 23rd district for 19 years, six of which were in Greenbelt, six in Bowie and the remainder at his present residence in the Highbridge subdivision in an unincorporated area outside the Bowie city limits.

Hubbard once was elected as a Democratic precinct committee member from Greenbelt and made a losing bid for election from the district to the House of Delegates in 1982. He is a former Deputy Sheriff and has been involved with establishing shelters for victims of domestic violence. According to State Senator Leo Green, who chaired the meeting of elected officials of the 23rd Legislative District, Hubbard has been named as the Outstanding Jaycee of the Year and as Washingtonian of the Year.

Senators Support

Senator Green has advised the News Review that he has taken this recommendation to the County Senators and has received their support for Hubbard's selection by the Central Committee to fill the remainder of Delegate Charles "Buzz" Ryan's term as Delegate in the Maryland General Assembly. The Central Committee will select the re-

See HUBBARD, page 10

Hubbard Appointed

The Democratic Central Committee accepted the recommendation of the Prince Georges County Senators and the elected officials of the 23rd District to appoint James W. Hubbard to replace Charles Ryan as Delegate to the Maryland General Assembly by a 16 to 3 vote. According to State Senator Leo Green, the decision of the committee appoints Hubbard to the post.

Dissenters to the appointment expressed support for Hubbard but criticized strongly the appointment process which they believed prevented the committee from acting independently. Six other committee members, including Chair Gerard Evans and Vice Chair Joel Rozner supported the critical comments of the dissenters as to the process, which involved the elected officials of the 23rd District holding a public hearing in advance of the Central Committee hearing, submitting a recommendation for one candidate who was then supported by all eight county senators at the request of Senator Green.

Seeing the handwriting on the wall, most of the candidates who had appeared at the previous public hearing withdrew and expressed support for Hubbard. However, Greenbelters Antoinette Bram and Roberta McCarthy and Bowie residents Fred Robinson, Katie Costello and Terry Devaney continued to seek the support of the committee.

Voters to Face Six State Questions On Ballot: Abortion, Juries, More

by James Giese

A state referendum question on abortion has created the greatest interest among voters facing six state questions on the ballot in the November 3 election. Other state issues relate to the number of persons on a jury, the minimum amount of money in dispute for a jury trial, and the time allowed a county charter board in which to write a proposed charter.

Abortion

Question 6 is being treated by many as a referendum between a woman's freedom to choose what she does with her body and the right to life of a fetus. Prior to the Supreme Court ruling in Roe v. Wade, Maryland regulated and restricted abortions. The restrictions were voided by the Supreme Court decision holding that abortions during the first third of pregnancy could not be restricted by law. Since the court ruling, abortions in Maryland have increased.

Concern that the Supreme Court would overturn Roe v. Wade led the Maryland legislature in 1991 to pass and the governor to sign a law repealing the old statutes and permitting abortion during the first months of a pregnancy and, under certain circumstances, beyond that time. Right to life advocates, who believe that life begins at conception, then petitioned the new law to referendum.

The following is the exact question placed on the ballot for voters to consider:

Abortion Law Revision

"Revises Maryland's abortion law to prohibit State interference with woman's abortion decision before fetus is viable, or, under certain conditions, at any time and to provide certain exceptions to the requirement that a physician notify an unmarried minor's parent or guardian prior to minor's abortion; repeals pre-abortion information requirements about abortion alternatives; repeals some, and clarifies other provisions related to abortion referral; requires that abortions be performed by licensed physicians; provides good-faith immunity under certain conditions to physicians performing abortions; authorizes State to adopt abortion regulations; repeals certain penalty and disciplinary provisions related to the performance of abortions."

If the referendum passes, the new law will take effect, permitting abortions in Maryland in so far as the law is consistent with Supreme Court rulings. If the referendum fails, abortions will still be permitted under the Roe v. Wade decision. Should the referendum fail and the Supreme Court later reverse itself on Roe v. Wade, then the old Maryland statutes on the book would again become law.

Opponents of the referendum express particular concern with two aspects of the new law. First, it permits unmarried minors to have abortions without parental consent and without parental notification if the doctor decides that the minor is mature enough to make her own decision or if notification is not

by Elaine Skolnik

The surge in voter registration over the past month in Prince Georges County has apparently set a new record. The County Board of Election staff is working overtime to process 15,000 to 16,000 new applications. After staff completes this work, along with purging those who are no longer eligible to vote, election officers expect that 312,000 citizens will be on the county's voter registration rolls. The previous record was 304,591 voters in the 1984 presidential election.

Board of Elections Supervisor Robert Antonetti told the News Review: "Our efforts this year were very successful due to the support and participation of volunteers and local politicians in registration drives held by Project Vote."

Antonetti observed that the increase in voter registration demonstrates the interest and

Trick or Treat Night

Trick or Treat Night in Greenbelt will be Saturday, October 31 from 6 to 8 p.m. Residents should leave the porch light on or tie a ribbon around the apartment door knob if participating.

Correction

In last week's issue the name of the girl killed on October 6 on Greenbelt Rd. was misspelled; her name was Shelley. The News Review regrets the error.

Thanks

I spoke to my son, Qussay, on October 1. He sounded sad but he is okay. I want to thank everyone in Greenbelt who has been supporting my efforts to get my son home. There have been many prayers, yellow ribbons hung, numerous baked good items purchased, donations and kind words spoken to me. I appreciate everyone's support and just want to say thank you. Qussay has a wonderful community to come home to.

Two Referenda

Two referenda on the upcoming ballot concern me.

Term limitations. This is a two edged sword. It gets rid of bad people as well as good. Just because a person has served more than 'X' numbers of years, does not mean that said person is a crook or in the hands of a special interest group. It is the duty of the voters to keep tabs upon their representatives and assess their performance. If said representative is not living up to expectation then that representative should not be re-elected. That is the best and most effective means of term limitation.

Tax limitation. The referendum would limit the amount of taxes collected to no more than the increase of the Consumer Price Index or five percent, whichever is less. Taxes would be limited regardless of the amount of growth that has occurred within the county, nor regardless to the needs that are demanded of the county's services. Prince Georges County has had TRIM in effect for over 10 years. TRIM has been modified recently, and this referendum seems to be designed to return TRIM to its original draconian form. Look at our public schools. Look at our other county services. We and the District of Columbia are the laughing stock of the Greater Washington Metropolitan area.

How can our schools educate if they do not have funds for current text books? How can our schools educate if the Board of Education has to rely for teachers to buy their own supplies out of their own salaries? When we force our teachers to have 35 to 40 students per class? When the message that we send to their student body is that they are not worth the expense to educate correctly?

If the public schools have problems educating students now under the existing somewhat liberal form of TRIM, what will happen if and when the draconian form of TRIM that is on our ballots this November is put into effect?

Things may not be good to excellent in Prince Georges County today, but the referendum to limit future tax burdens is not the way to correct this condition.

Point Well Taken

In response to your August 13 article by Diane Oberg on the expansion of the Capital Office Park and its impact on police services, I would like to clarify the guidelines used in analyzing the adequacy of police facilities and services.

In our review of the proposed subdivision, we based our findings of adequacy upon a strict adherence to the county's subdivision regulations and the Planning Board's adopted guidelines. The subdivision regulations state that existing police facilities must be adequate to serve the proposed development. The Planning Board's guidelines provide the method by which the test is applied. The guidelines address the adequacy of Prince Georges County Police Department facilities only. The adequacy of police staffing is not addressed in the law or in the guidelines. It is generally believed that staffing issues are best addressed through the annual budget process.

According to the current guidelines, the APF test looks at the impact of the proposed development on the affected capacity of the police facility. This means that the test considers whether or not the existing police facility is large enough to house the needed officers to serve the development. The guidelines use a formula that considers staffing requirements, but the test determines the adequacy of the facility only.

The point you raised in your article is well taken and is one that may be of concern to other municipalities. Our staff is discussing the implication of applying the APF test to municipal facilities with County and municipal officials. We appreciate the city's concerns and look forward to future discussion of this issue.

I Challenge City

The city's center parking proposal addresses, but only in part, the need to allocate more spaces for the increased usage of commercial and public activities. Obviously it's good that the city recognizes the need for parking improvements. However, I challenge the city to look beyond the immediate and obvious parking needs and consider the greater parking needs brought on by the conversion of Greenbelt Center Elementary School to our new community center. And I believe we can take advantage of the fact that we will need more parking in a way that will both strengthen the long range fiscal vitality of the Roosevelt Center area and improve the visual appearance of our historic site.

Specifically I propose that the red brick apartments be torn down and replaced with a mixed-generation housing facility (65% would be dedicated for seniors, 35% for non-seniors) housing 225-300 units. This contrasts to the current 130 red brick units. Further, residents would have the option of renting or buying a housing unit.

This housing would rest on a parking garage built to serve the new residents and other users of the center. These new residents would be able to take advantage of the recreational, cultural, civic, educational and commercial activities of Roosevelt Center. These new housing residents would help build up the critical mass necessary to support the center as it would accentuate easy pedestrian access to the center and would address the need for senior housing. It would be part of a comprehensive long-range plan to ensure that the center will be a vital and vibrant part of Greenbelt history while correcting an architectural and historical slur by tearing down those red brick apartments and replacing them with a structure which would be sympathetic and compatible with the original 1937 structures. Further, it would be an opportunity to demonstrate that facilities can be built which accentuate and promote our beautiful landscape. It can be done. Anyone who has ever seen Frank Lloyd Wright's "Falling Water" knows that it's true, and it's inspiring.

I propose that the city consider this concept, its potential for success and a program for implementation. In order to effectuate such a program, the city, in conjunction with private developers, should establish a private-public venture, to be known as the Roosevelt Center Economic Development Corp.

If we explore the possibilities now, we can behave pro-actively with respect to senior housing and assure the long-term financial viability of the center. If we fail to, we probably will act re-actively during the course of the 1993 city council campaign.

Save Theatre

Hey, Greenbelters, wake up.

We are about to lose one of the most exciting vital things that has happened to the center of town in years — the movie theatre. There are strong indications that the theatre will close at the end of the year, due to very low attendance. And how low it is. On any weekday evening you can name, the moviegoers number about 20.

Are we taking this jewel of a bargain in our midst for granted? We think so. Don't forget that the owner has allowed the theatre to be used for community activities such as the GHI Annual meeting.

Haven't you noticed the change in the center during the evenings since the theatre and Beijing opened? It's an active, friendly place. Neighbors greet neighbors. Friends gather together. Unfortunately, not enough of them.

The owners can't afford to keep the theatre open without our support. Your support. Let's rally around this gift to us, and bring friends and neighbors from outside the city. We all know that people have trouble finding the center of Greenbelt without our help. Let's show them what we have. And what a bargain — $1.50! That for a movie that is still available after you thought it was gone — probably one you intended to see but your busy schedule didn't allow it. P&G Old Greenbelt Theatre is the answer.

Let's not return to those days of a darkened theatre in the middle of town. We saved the Co-op. Now it's time to save our theatre.

Misty Object

I thought it would be appropriate at this time to address some concerns about a Greenbelt legend. Some have asked me about rumors of ghost sightings on Northway extended. All I've been privy to is what happened October 1 of this year. Phillip Hatchbacker and Sid Gogglehiemen were walking down Ridge Rd. When they reached Northway extended they peered down the dark road. I don't think what they saw had anything to do with the haunting wind blowing through the trees or the stark darkness of the night. That was completely and simply a separate thing. They saw a misty object crossing the gravel road. Gogglehiemen swears it glowed somewhat. I think the sighting can be accounted for by the pail carrier of Northway. It is known that the foundation up the hill from the road was occupied by dwellers long ago who often crossed the road down the hill to fetch water. Rumor has it that one night one of the dwellers never returned and that ever since that night one could, at midnight, see her wandering lost in the woods. The pail is visible in the moonlight.

Minute Men Militia Formed In Greenbelt 50 Years Ago

by James Giese

April, 1942—Enrollment for the Minute Men of Maryland began at the end of the month in accordance with a General Order issued by Governor Herbert R. O'Connor. By that time, 5,500 civilians between the ages of 18 and 64 had volunteered in this new reserve militia to supplement the 3,000 available Maryland State Guard.

Harry A. Bates was designated chairman of the Organizational Committee Reserve Militia for the Southern Maryland District. Both the Gun Club and the local American Legion Post indicated interest in the enterprise. Leon Benefiel, Harold Estes and Robert Gray were appointed as a special committee for the Legion.

Instead of close order drill, the Minute Men would be trained on such guerilla tactics as the establishment of effective cross fire, how to take cover, enemy harassment and anti-parachute fire. The Minute Men, established for increased community protection, were to be used solely for defense of their home areas. Greenbelt was considered an ideal setting for the Minute Men because it had an auditorium at the school for indoor drill use, the athletic field and broad parkways for outdoor drill and the rifle range and wooded country for deployment practice. Uniforms, guns and ammunition were to be furnished upon completion of preliminary training.

(Note: Not mentioned, but another asset to the Greenbelt setting for the Minute Men were probably the numerous hedges, which would have been ideal for the conduct of door-to-door guerilla warfare.)

Rosenzweig Remembers

Original resident and Outstanding Citizen Ben Rosenzweig recalls serving with the Minute Men, which were officially called the Maryland Militia Reserves. Greenbelt was Company A of the Ninth Battalion of the Maryland State Guard. He recalls that Harry Bates became Captain in the unit and Ned Turner was Lieutenant. Rosenzweig became a sergeant. The organization met in the basement of Center School and trained by marching around with wooden guns.

However, in May, Rosenzweig, who apparently had not yet joined, was quite unhappy with the militia and wrote a letter to the editor complaining that at a recent gathering of the Minute Men behind the elementary school, he had heard the sound of firearms, apparently 22 caliber, being fired in the woods behind the tennis courts. As president of the Greenbelt Gun Club, he wrote to condemn "such a callous and wanton disregard for human life and limb" and reminded persons "ignorant of the fact that there are ample means for legitimate firearms shooting in town."

Rosenzweig advised that the Greenbelt Gun Club rifle range was one of the best ranges locally for outdoor shooting. "There is no excuse for wild-eyed plinking under outlawed conditions which are menacing the lives of citizens," he admonished. The group did use the Greenbelt rifle range, Rosenzweig recalls, and also helped to train youngsters to shoot. The range was located near where the State Highway Administration Regional District Engineer's Office is now located on Kenilworth Avenue.

Rosenzweig recalls going to training camp at Camp O'Connor, which was located in Cascade, Maryland. He received a ribbon for his participation and still has his discharge papers.

During the war, Rosenzweig was a civilian engineer helping to build armaments at the Washington Navy Yard. Most of the workers on the assembly lines were women, or as he called them, "Rosie, the riveters." Although he did not seem to have been upset by it, Rosenzweig, who was happily married, was subject to sexual harassment. "Every time I walked through the assembly line," he recalls, "I got whistled at."

Health Care Meeting Set

Governor Schaefer is calling a Town Meeting on Health Care on Thursday, October 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the Bowie City Hall. This is one of seven Town Meetings to be held throughout the state, and the only one to be held in Prince Georges County. It is sponsored by the Governor, the League of Women Voters, the AAUW, all local hospitals, the Medical Society and other local organizations.

Opening the meeting will be a representative of the Governor who will present an overview of Maryland's health care system. Following this there will be an open microphone to which people may express to the governor and policymakers their opinions about the current health care crisis. Attendees will also be given a survey to fill out which will be compiled by the University of Maryland and submitted to the Governor.

All persons concerned with the adequacy of health care are invited to attend. For information or rides call 474-2538 (Ruth Bond) or 474-6890 (Esther Webb).

Check Withholding To Avoid Surprise

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein urges residents to double-check the amount of state and local income tax being withheld from their paychecks. Prince Georges County increased its local income tax rate to 60%. Residents new state and local withholding should be 6.7% higher than before July 1.

Residents who wish to avoid owing additional taxes (or getting a lower refund) next spring, should increase their withholding by 13.3% over the pre-July level.

Taxpayers with taxable incomes above $100,000 are now subject to a 6% state tax bracket. Taxpayers affected by this change may need to adjust their withholding.

County Questions

service of office holders. Therefore, incumbents who by the time of the next county election two years from now will have served two or more terms would not be eligible for reelection.

Under this proposal, both County Executive Parris Glendening and County councilmember Richard Castaldi would be ineligible for reelection, as would five of the other eight council members. The proposal would not prevent the county executive from running for a county council seat or for councilmembers from running for county executive.

Opponents contend that in a democracy voters should not be denied the right to reelect a candidate. They also believe that persons in their second and final terms would become lame ducks not responsible to anyone, including the voters.

Advocates argue that incumbents use their office to aid their campaigns and garner excessive financial support from those seeking governmental favors, particularly, from developers who seek rezonings and thereby become "professional politicians who ignore voter wishes."

Question A would require the county to establish a contingency reserve fund equal to three percent of the current expenses of the county general fund, the basic expenditure account for the county. The contingency fund would have to be fully funded by July 1, 1996. The fiscal year 1993 budget already sets aside a lesser amount of money for this contingency fund, although charter does not currently require this reserve. A three percent set aside of the current county budget would amount to $30,600,000.

If adopted, the contingency reserve could only be used to meet a sudden, unexpected or unforeseen condition that creates an imminent hazard to life, health or property and that requires immediate action. In FY 1991, the county suffered an $80 million deficit and was forced to borrow.

Question B would change the date that the proposed budget is submitted by the County Executive to the County Council from March 31 to April 15 and change the deadline for County Council adoption of the budget from June 1 to June 15. Public hearing dates would be delayed.

State Questions

in her best interest, or in order to protect her from physical or emotional abuse.

The opponents contend that this exception essentially eliminates any requirement for parental notification. Proponents disagree, arguing that the exceptions provided are reasonable and that other provisions of Maryland law also apply to informed consent.

The second objection raised by opponents is the provision allowing late term abortions to protect the life or health of the mother or in cases where the fetus is affected by genetic defect or serious deformity or abnormality. Opponents fear that these exceptions, particularly that for "health of the mother," open the door to late term abortions. Again, proponents disagree, claiming that the exceptions are reasonable.

Proponents also contend that by requiring abortions to be performed by licensed physicians and by empowering the state to adopt health and safety regulations governing abortions, the proposed law regulates abortions to assure that they are performed in a safe manner.

Other State Issues

Questions 1 and 2 would amend the state constitution to permit the use of six member juries for civil trials. Six member juries are used in the U.S. District Court in Maryland on civil cases but are not permitted in state courts.

Two other questions, numbers 3 and 4, deal with when jury trials can be requested in civil cases. At present, if the amount of money in dispute is $500 or more, a person has the right to request a jury trial. Approval of these two amendments would increase to $5,000 the minimum amount of disputed money required for a jury trial.

Question 5 extends the time period for counties to draft a charter to 18 months from 12. This provision does not affect Prince Georges County, which has already adopted a charter.

Group Appointed To Study County

County Executive Parris Glendening announced the formation of a Prince Georges Government Operations Commission to review all operations of the county government and the public school system in preparation for the county's FY1994 budget. He named 24 business and community leaders to help deal with the current economic crisis facing the state.

The Commission was proposed by the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce at its Second Annual Economic Summit last November. The Commission is apolitical, with no elected officials or county government employees as members. Research work will be provided by the management firm, KPMG Peat Marwick.

Phase One of the Commission's work will involve a comprehensive review of all administrative operations of the Prince Georges County public schools. Funds for this phase were budgeted by the executive and approved by the county council. Phase Two of the Commission's efforts will review the rest of county government.

Greenbelt business leaders appointed to the Commission are Dr. John Klineberg, Director NASA Goddard Space Flight Center and Robert Lohfeld senior vice-president, the OAO Corporation.

Condolences to Edward Karlander and family of Lakeside on the death of his son and their brother, Eric.

Juan Carlos Peredo, of Ridge Road, is a freshman at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute where he is majoring in engineering.

The McFarlands of Fayette Place recently had a pleasant visit from "pioneer" Greenbelt-er Dot Wood Passavanti and her husband Tony, of Jacksonville, Florida, and Dot's sister-in-law Theo Trehwella Wood of Utah. Dot, Theo, and Kathleen and Henry McFarland were all classmates in Greenbelt High School's class of 1944.

The visitors were amazed at all the changes in Greenbelt and environs in the past 30 years.

While reminiscing, Dot mentioned that in August 1939 her younger brother Robert Wood was the first baby boy to be born in the little Greenbelt Hospital. The hospital was located on the second floor of a row of houses converted into doctors' offices on Ridge Road at the top of Gardenway, just across from the present McCarl dental offices. The hospital operated from 1939 to 1942.

It's twins for Laura and Mike Horstkamp of 45 Court Ridge Road. Evan Michael and Katlyn Rebecca were born October 8 at George Washington Hospital. Evan weighed in at 7 lb. 6 oz., Katlyn weighed 6 lb. 12 oz. Waiting at home to greet the twins was big sister Sarah, who celebrated her second birthday on October 6.

Pvt. 1st Class Suja T. Weatherston has graduated from the power generation equipment repairer course at Fort Belvoir, Virginia. The 1991 ERHS graduate is the grandson of Helma Brunson of Winterwood Place.

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class James McCann, son of Louann McCann of Ridge Road, recently returned aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Ponce, homeported in Norfolk, Virginia from a two-week relief effort to hurricane stricken South Florida.

USS Ponce helped to provide logistics support and hurricane relief assistance to communities affected by Hurricane Andrew. He is a 1983 graduate of Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Get well wishes to News Review staffers Lucille Howell and Louise Kramer. Hope to see you both out and about soon.

Carolina Tristan, a 4th grader at St. Hugh's school who was sponsored by the St. Hugh's Knights of Columbus Council, won a statewide competition in the Quincentennial Coloring Contest. Third and fourth grade children used crayons and colored pencils to put wind in the sails of Columbus' three ships.

Caroline and Chelsea Briansky, St. Hugh's third grade winners, were christened winners in the parish competition, each getting a $50 savings bond. Their colored drawings left port for the K of C State competition where the winners get a $100 savings bond. Congratulations!

Dem. Club Donates Funds

The Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club of Greenbelt devoted its meeting of October 16 to the upcoming elections.

In preparation, the club has been soliciting donations from Greenbelters to the campaigns of Presidential candidate Bill Clinton, Senator Barbara Mikulski and Congressman Steny Hoyer. As a special incentive, the club offered to match from its own treasury any donations received. Roy Dahl, club treasurer, commented "Community participation far exceeded our expectations, particularly since this is the first time we've attempted such a project."

This effort concluded when club President Ann Castaldi welcomed representatives of the three campaigns and a capacity crowd of active and new members.

President of the Maryland Senate Thomas V. "Mike" Miller accepted checks totalling $1,620 on behalf of the Clinton/Gore campaign. Miller commented that no other Democratic Club in the state has put forth the effort and enthusiasm that was evident in Greenbelt.

Castaldi also presented checks totalling $490 to Len Lucchi for the Mikulski campaign, and $745 to Tim Sullivan for the Hoyer campaign.

Ann Castaldi expressed her thanks to all of the Greenbelt residents who made political donations through the Democratic Club. "It was heartwarming to see the five and 10 dollar checks come in" she said, "when we added it all up, and matched it with club funds, our contribution to the Democratic Party was significant!"

In a separate action, the club donated $500 to Maryland For Choice representative, Theresa Dudley.

Greenbelters wishing to spend one hour on election day working at a local polling place should call Micki Weidenfeld at 345-2327 or Ann Castaldi at 345-7185.

SENIOR HOUSING CO-OP ON GCC'S AGENDA

A mailing has gone out recently to members of Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative (GCC) announcing the date for the next annual meeting, to be held Saturday, October 31, at 9:15 a.m. at the Greenbelt Library. Among items on the coop's agenda, besides reports from the board and managers of the supermarket and the gas station, is an issue that was brought up previously in the last few years—the possibility of founding a new housing cooperative for senior citizens.

The Housing Committee of GCC has explored several options during this time, such as a controversial suggestion to construct a several-story apartment building behind the library and adjacent to the renovated Center School. Other locations have also been studied and discarded by the committee, which is headed by Jim Cassels. Among these were the Candy Cane City area, a site near St. Hugh's in the lake park and a location on Hamilton Place opposite the Greenbelt Homes service building.

Now, according to an informational enclosure in the letter to members, the Housing Committee has been negotiating with the owner of a "sound, beautiful, well-located elevator building" in the city on the possibility of purchasing the 178-apartment structure for a housing cooperative for persons at least 55 years old. An engineering study of the building has already been made, the committee reports, and an appraisal is awaited.

At the October meeting, GCC members will be asked to study a proposal and, if they approve it, to authorize the board to lend up to $50,000 from the reserve fund for a projected new senior housing cooperative. The one-year loan would help to pay settlement costs for the building.

An election will also be held to fill the expiring terms of Joe Timer and Tom Lammons as members of the GCC board. Both are seeking re-election.

placement in public session at a meeting to be held on October 20 in Greenbelt.

Green advised that the decision of his group was made the morning following a public hearing in Glenn Dale on Thursday, October 15. According to Green, the decision had the support of everyone who attended except Delegate Mary Conroy, who walked out after she failed to obtain any support for her choice, Bowie resident Terry Devaney. However, Delegate Joan Pitkin, who also participated in the meeting and whose preference, according to Green, was Glenn Dale Civic Association President Perry Cowgill, expressed reservations about the selection process because there was no real discussion about the candidates or opportunity to hear pitches on behalf of the various candidates.

Greenbelt Only

Green also advised that before the group selected their candidate, Central Committee member Thomas X. White moved that consideration be limited to only Greenbelt candidates in accordance with a recommendation made by Richard Castaldi, Chair of the Greenbelt Democratic Coordinating Committee (GDCC). The motion did not receive a second. "We felt that we should give consideration to all the candidates," Green advised.

In a letter to the Central Committee, Castaldi advised that while Greenbelt comprises 25 percent of the district, it has never had the benefit of having one of its residents serve as a State Legislator. Further, Greenbelt candidates were not selected to fill vacancies on two previous occasions. Green noted that even the GDCC could not agree on one person to recommend.

Candidates Speak

By the October 15 hearing, three Greenbelters remained as candidates: Antoinette M. Bram, Roberta B. McCarthy and Adrian R. Gardner. Bram, who ran unsuccessfully for a delegate seat in 1990, emphasized her experience as a city council member, her educational background, her dedication to serving the public interest with integrity and her ability to make decisions while taking the heat. McCarthy, emphasized her ability to work with numerous people to solve problems in such civic activities as Chair of the Labor Day Festival Committee and Moderator of her church and her legislative experience as a county attorney and as attorney for the City of Bowie. Gardner, a lawyer who is executive director of the Minority Business Opportunities Commission for the County Executive's Office, emphasized his interest in remaining a resident of the county and his work in democratic campaigns since 1979.

City council member Edward Putens, who had initially expressed interest in the vacancy, withdrew because it would conflict with his present employment, and a contemplated change in employment did not materialize.

Supporters Speak

Other candidates who spoke at the October 15 public hearing included Cowgill, two Bowie council members, Gary Allen and Fred Robinson, Bowie residents Katie Costello, Terry Devaney, Richard Nacewicz and Ronald Skotz, and Lanham resident Ray Krasnick. One candidate, James Richardson, Jr. of Bowie, was unable to attend the hearing.

After hearing from all the candidates present, the elected officials heard from other persons appearing on behalf of a candidate. Twenty-six persons spoke. Of these, seven supported Robinson, six Allen, six Bram, five Cowgill and one each for Hubbard and Nacewicz. Those Greenbelters appearing on behalf of Bram were: Suzanne Plogman, Sharon Alfaro, Eunice Coxon, Harriet Phelps and Maurice Love.

Two of the issues raised concerning the selection were that the candidate should not be a resident of Bowie since the two other delegates and the Senator are Bowie residents and that the selection should not be a female since the two other delegates are women. "I've never heard it said that there are too many men," countered Coxon to the woman's issue, to which White mumbled, "I have." As to the location issue, those supporting Bowie candidates urged the selection of the best candidate without consideration of location.

Dissenters Meet

Upon hearing the decision of the 23rd District elected officials, a meeting of district politicians dissatisfied with the outcome was held in Bowie on Sunday, October 18. It is reported that that group tried to unite behind one candidate, but was unable to do so. The best the group could do was come up with three names, Devaney, Cowgill and Gardner, and these were not unanimously supported.

Be Wise, Immunize

October 25-31 is National Adult Immunization Awareness Week. Diseases like flu or measles seem relatively tame by contemporary standards, but physicians say thousands of Americans still die needlessly every year because they are inadequately immunized against preventable diseases. Once is not enough.

Immunization is now a rite of passage for most school-aged children. But childhood vaccinations don't provide a lifetime of protection against certain diseases, according to the American Society of Internal Medicine (ASIM). Some immunizations must be supplemented periodically with "booster shots." Other vaccines need to be administered yearly due to the appearance of new strains of virus that are resistant to previous vaccines.

The society advises adults to get immunizations updated.

State Charges Luskins With Deceptive Ads

The Consumer Protection Division in the office of Maryland Attorney General J. Joseph Curran, Jr. has filed administrative charges against Luskin's, Inc., accusing the Columbia-based retailer of using deceptive advertising promotions featuring travel certificates for purportedly "free" airfare to Hawaii, Florida or the Bahamas for which consumers actually have to buy hundreds to thousands of dollars of merchandise and hotel accommodations to get "free" airfare.

The charges state that the Maryland General Assembly has specifically prohibited merchants and promoters from offering prizes if consumers are "required to purchase goods or services" in order to get the prizes.

Although the Luskin's ads stated at the bottom that "Minimum Hotel Stay Required" for the certificates to be redeemed, consumers were not given important material facts about the complicated conditions they had to fulfill or significant expenditures they had to make in order to use the certificates, according to the charges.

Earlier this month, Luskin's filed a complaint with the Harford County Circuit Court seeking an injunction to block the Consumer Protection Division's challenge of its airfare promotion. The retailer contended that it had altered its initial offer.

A public hearing on the charges against Luskin's has been set for November 13 at 9:30 a.m. at the Office of Administrative Hearings, Green Spring Station, 10753 Falls Road, Lutherville. Any consumers with personal knowledge of the charges may qualify as interested parties and participate in the hearing. Persons wishing to qualify as interested parties should write to the Maryland Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division, 16th Floor, 200 St. Paul Pl., Baltimore, Md. 21202.

Mary Ann Baker, organizer of the first event in the Arts Center's music series, said she was extremely happy with last weekend's Oktoberfest and especially pleased with how much people enjoyed it. The Greenbelt Fire Department was decorated in the blue and white of this German holiday. Traditional German melodies were played and Bavarian dancers demonstrated and led the crowd in energetic and beautiful numbers. A shoe slapping contest drew skillful and/or innovative performances. Next for the music series will be music of colonial America with David and Ginger Hilderbrand set for January 30.

Greenbelt Children Show Off Pets at Festival

by Sandy Smith

The Girl Scouts of Cadette Troop No. 3030 organized and ran the 1992 Labor Day Children's Pet Show. It was a big success with every pet winning a blue ribbon for its unique characteristics and qualities. This year there were dogs, cats, turtles, gerbils, hermit crabs, guinea pigs, a snake, fish, bunny, hamster and iguana. Among the winners were:

Siret Kork whose cat Smokey was judged the calmest; Jen Logsdon with Fluff the cat with the best personality; Samantha Kling whose cat Puff won for longest whiskers; and Kateri Hill with the cat Snow judged to have the prettiest coat. Teresa Arnold's guinea pig, Ginger was named the friendliest. Meghan Barnes' guinea pig, Guinea, was judged to be the squeakiest. Victor Cameron's hermit crab Sebastian was judged both the shyest and the most active (probably trying to escape the crowd). Katie Schreiber's hermit crab Oomet had the most colorful shell. Rachel Brooks was there with spike the hermit crab determined to be the smallest.

Among the dogs, Keisha owned by Stephanie Klarman was a winner with the longest hair. Anne Richard's cairn terrier AT was judged both the friendliest and the shortest. Donna Hillier's Louis Francois, or Louis for short, was judged to be the fluffiest. Lauren Schreiber's dog Burns was the prettiest. Princess, owned by Carla Zamudio was judged to have the prettiest eyes. The dogs brought by Nathaniel, Kara and Julia Snyder were all winners.

Lynn Hull's gerbil Mika was judged to be the fastest, and her gerbil, Blackie, to be the shyest (a good pair). Dina Goldberg-Strassler brought her box turtle Kelly who was judged to be the cutest. Jesse Goldberg-Strassler had Tzav 2, the box turtle with the best shell.

Anthony Lednies' Iguana Edigy was deemed the most original pet. Ari Goldberg-Strassler brought his beta fish, named Beta, which was the prettiest fish. Drew Baldauf's Stripe was the cutest hamster. Jackie Tull's Sunny Slinky, a garter snake, was the skinniest. John Norden's bunny, Mulberry, had the prettiest eyes.

In the rush of registering a record number of pets in a record time, a few of the pet records may have been displaced (or names misspelled). If your pet was in the show and not listed, please call Corita Jones, 474-8827. A later article in the News Review will list all pets not covered in this story. We regret this error and hope that the pet owners will be understanding. We know the dogs will be forgiving and the cats will hold a grudge.

Cub Pack 202

by Lucy Nuaimy

We finally became Webelos. Our den is now known as the Scorpions. To start the year off we have met with a forest ranger at Greenbelt Park to learn about different types of trees. At the monthly pack meeting, Paul Carey, Colin David, Mike Faherty, Ryan Hyde, Chris Logsdon, Alex Saunders, Brett Wilson and Michael Wilson did a super job of presenting the colors and telling what each color in the U.S. flag stands for.

Mike Hyde, Assistant Webelos Den Leader, attended Basic Leader Training in October.

excitement in the upcoming election. He attributes this enthusiasm to the hotly contested presidential race and debates, the two congressional contests—one in the newly created 4th Congressional District; the other in the redrawn 5th Congressional District, which includes Greenbelt—and the state and county referendums. Drawing particular attention in the county are questions on limiting the terms of the county council and county executive and on designating a property tax cap (see separate story).

Antonetti envisioned that 80 percent of the county's eligible voters will cast ballots on November 3, "higher than the 77% in 1984, he noted. The request for absentee ballots has been higher than expected, with ballots already being returned.

County Executive Parris Glendening observed, "This strong voting base will increase our voice in Annapolis and on Capital Hill." According to Glendening's office, reports from the State Board of Elections indicate that "almost one-quarter of all new voters registered in August of this year in Maryland were from Prince Georges County. Voters in Prince Georges and Montgomery County will now total approximately one-third of all voters in the state."

When Greenbelters enter the voting booth on Tuesday, November 3, they will vote their preferences for U.S. President, U.S. Senator from Maryland, Congressman from the 5th Congressional Legislative District, various judges and state and county referendums.

Fifty-four percent of District 5 is new. To comply with the Federal Voting Rights Act, re-districting by the state legislature in late 1991 carved away part of Prince Georges County's District 5 and created the new majority-black District 4. The remaining portion of the county (including Greenbelt) plus all of Charles, St. Mary's and Calvert counties and a portion of Anne Arundel County now comprise District 5. The district now has a population of 597,681 with Democrats having an edge of 1.6 over Republicans in voter registration (Dec. 1991 Figures). This compares with a 3.2 to 1 in the old district (Oct. 1988 Figures).

Tax Counselors Needed

The Department of Family Services is seeking volunteer tax counselors to assist older County residents.

Anyone with an aptitude for tax matters, a sincere desire to help elders, and willing to donate four day-time hours per week during tax season (February through April 15) may serve as a tax counselor. Individuals who meet these requirements will receive 27 hours of classroom training on current tax laws starting Oct. 26 Call 248-6606.
