Controversy Erupts over Proposed Changes in Zoning near Glenn Dale

by James Giese

The Glenn Dale, Seabrook Lanham Master Plan and accompanying sectional map amendments are approaching final adoption by the Prince Georges County Council. Final citizen controversy is now focused on the possible rezoning to higher density of large tracts of land on either side of Greenbelt Rd. (Md. 193) in the Glenn Dale area.

On September 14, the county council held its final public hearing on proposed changes to the Prince Georges Planning Board adopted master plan and endorsed sectional map amendments. The council, which will hold a work session on the plan on October 20, is expected to take final action sometime thereafter.

At the public hearing, the big issue centered on a proposal to zone nearly all the vacant land along both sides of Greenbelt Road, totaling about 750 acres, from the R-E (Residential-Estate) zone to the R-R (Rural Residential) zone. Although both zoning categories are considered low density, the change could result in the area's eventually developing with more than twice as many housing units (from an estimated 638 to 1,388).

Supporters

Supporters of the zoning change are primarily the land owners, who feel that the county sectional map amendment zoning action in 1980 placing the land in the R-E category devalued their property. They argue that this situation should be rectified. Opponents were primarily suburban home owners in the Glenn Dale area who fear excessive development.

One property involved is well known to area golfers, the 125-acre Glenn Dale Country Club. Its owners, R. John Shields, et al., contend that the use of the property as a golf course and country club is no longer economically viable and that since the land is served with water, sewer, three roads and other adequate public facilities, it would support the higher density residential development. They also noted that much of the land around the property is zoned and developed at the higher density R-R.

Castaldi

County council member Richard Castaldi who represents much of the Glenn Dale area as well as Greenbelt, believes that there is merit to both sides of the issue. He feels that the centerline of Bell Station Road, a road running to the east and somewhat parallel to Greenbelt

Road, provides the dividing line between areas warranted for each of the two zones. On the east side, much of the land is developed in the R-R zone, providing justification for rezoning of the remainder, he said. To the west, he added, there is better justification in leaving the land zoned R-E.

"It's unfortunate that the Glenn Dale citizens have lined up on opposite sides on this issue," Castaldi said. "I hope that however the matter is resolved, the community will get back together."

Castaldi believes that there are more significant proposals for change that he opposes. These include the zoning of the northeast corner of the intersection of Greenbelt and old Annapolis Roads to the C-M (Commercial Miscellaneous) zone and some commercial and townhouse rezoning along old Annapolis Road, actions that would cause dramatic changes to the master plan and recommendations of the area citizen advisory committee. (The Prince Georges County Historical Society also strongly opposed commercial zoning at that intersection, which is near Marietta.

Local Amateur Astronomer Locates New Meteor Shower

by Doug Love

Greenbelt resident and amateur astronomer George Gliba has discovered a hitherto unknown meteor shower with some unusual properties.

While in West Virginia observing the meteors recent'y, he noticed that 12 meteors had fallen from the same area of the sky. Gary M. Kronk, noted authority on meteor observing, saw the same meteor shower while observing meteors that same night near St. Louis. Kronk found three historic observations of these meteors from the 1950s. He immediately contacted other astronomers and received confirming sightings from over 40 people.

But only Gliba was able to locate what astronomers call the radiant (the point in the sky from which a shower of meteors appears to radiate) of the shower, which has been named the Aries-Triangulum Meteor Stream.

Unusual Characteristic

Astronomers say that the new shower seems to possess an unusual characteristic: It may be grouped around an as-yet unobserved asteroid. If that is so, it would be the first such shower to be discovered.

Astronomers believe that meteors which fall in showers do so because they are in the gravitational pull of a larger body. A number of such showers, including the noted Perseid shower, have been definitely associated with comets. But no one has been able to sight a comet (a brightly illuminated, easily observable object) in this case. Hence the inference that a dark body, possibly an asteroid, is the cause of the shower.

Threat?

The possibility that an asteroid is driving the shower leads Gliba to another noteworthy speculation: Such an asteroid could conceivably be a threat to the earth. The meteor shower's orbit crosses the earth's orbital path around the sun and is "in synch" with the earth's orbit according to Don Haxton, president of the Goddard Astronomy Club. Gliba says the hypothetical body could even be somewhat associated with the asteroid which, according to a popular scientific theory, collided with the earth millions of years ago and caused sufficient climatic and ecological changes to extinguish the dinosaurs.

The Goddard club is planning to contact Dr. Eugene Shoemaker at Palomar Observatory and ask him to search for the asteroid. Shoemaker will be visiting Goddard in two weeks to give a lecture.

Candidates Respond

To provide voters with information concerning the eight candidates for city council, the Greenbelt News Review herewith presents their responses to the fourth of a series of questions that we are publishing in successive issues preceding the election. The order of the candidates' answers was determined by lot.

Question Number 4: "What cuts in spending or increase in taxes/fees would you support to maintain essential services or finance new proposals?"

Thomas X. White

An important aspect of "governing" is to balance between competing interests and decide which needs we can afford as opposed to what is nice to have.

The next Council will face the challenge of renovating Center School into a multi-generational Community Center. As everyone knows, the estimated expenditures greatly exceed the city's available financial resources.

I am committed to controlling the Community Center project so that it does not jeopardize the city's delivery of "essential needs." If reelected, my role of asking the hard questions will continue.

With that philosophical underpinning my positions are:

— No increases in taxes to finance new proposals.

— Support cuts in spending to maintain "essential services."

— Consider cuts in spending to finance new projects.

— Consider increases in taxes to maintain "essential services."

— Consider equitable increases in fees to provide certain services, i.e., user-related fees.

With your support, I am up to the challenge.

Hopi J. Auerbach

The City is not a country club. Grandiose recreational facilities cannot insure that Greenbelt's traditional community spirit will continue. The factors that make a town a real neighborhood are priceless.

Perhaps the City government can take steps to uphold the social qualities which make Greenbelt a home rather than just a development. But these are intangibles, such as having a population that is plain nice, and civic-minded and these things are not for sale.

The City must concentrate on providing services which cannot be bought privately. There is no more need for Greenbelt to be putting Holiday Health Spa out of business than there is for us to start a City-subsidized pizza-delivery service, and put Generous Joe's out of business.

Citizens do depend on the City to provide public police protection, transportation, schools and cultural opportunities. More extravagant recreational facilities will not help troubled teens.

Keith Chernikoff

Council members make judgments during budget review about spending cuts and tax increases. With all budgets, program and service costs are weighed against community benefits. The questions are "Can we afford it?" and "Can we afford not to?" Above all, we must continue to provide high quality, reliable services with fiscal accountability.

I refuse to second guess the incumbent council's decisions. One cannot indiscriminately advocate spending cuts or tax increases. I propose the council promote fiscal accountability through disclosure of estimated costs of new programs and services prior to council passage.

For example, adding a police officer costs approximately $50,000 a year, roughly a $.01 tax rate increase if costs cannot be reduced elsewhere. The questions become "Where can expenses be cut?" and "Are citizens willing to pay for this service?"

If elected, I will listen and respond to your voices on these questions as the council ultimately represents you

Antoinette M. "Toni" Bram

In the 1993 final Greenbelt budget work session, I refused to agree to increased City taxes! I foresee no change in this position during the next two years other than to what the City is already committed or, if necessary to abate crime. The economic climate of the nineties requires continued cost containment and other creative alternatives for tax relief. As current President of the Prince Georges County Municipal Association, I will monitor all County legislation and budget adjustments which could cause increased taxes in Greenbelt and will marshal support to hold the line and amend legislation. Being aware of ways to cut costs both within the City and through supplementary funding from Federal, State, and County agencies is a cornerstone of my fiscal strategy for budgets which do not cut normal services. New City initiatives must be of the highest priority with the expectation of being, at least, partially self-supporting.

Another Point of View

Fitness Center Rehab Loses Original Bathhouse Design

by James Giese

On Labor Day Greenbelters got their first opportunity to admire the conversion of the old swimming pool bathhouse into an exercise facility. Most were pleased with the results of this final phase of the swimming pool project, which provides users with a modern, elaborate fitness center.

I was not. My dissatisfaction with the results is that much the greater because the basic decisions that produced the end product were made when I was City Manager. I share greatly in the blame.

What is wrong? Simply put, the bathhouse was not restored to its original exterior appearance. The only justification for reconstructing the bathhouse was to preserve an original architectural feature of the planned community. Otherwise, the fitness center very easily could have been made a part of the indoor pool facility and the old bathhouse destroyed.

The building was badly deteriorated and not designed for winter use. It probably would have been less costly to design the exercise facility as part of the new indoor facility and to have torn down the old bathhouse. By doing so, David Almy, the architect, would have had greater freedom in designing the new building.

Larry Coffin, the city's landscape architect for the Roosevelt Center Master Plan, noted the prominence of the bathhouse in the original plan. Motorists driving into the major parking lot for Roosevelt Center viewed the white building at the opposite end of the lot. It was a prominent architectural feature. I came to appreciate the clean simple lines of the structure as I did sidestroke laps in the outdoor pool.

Unfortunately what we now have is a reinterpretation of the original building that lacks the original's clean lines and is significantly altered in appearance. The original building was white with some color trim. The use of white and other light colors was an important element of the Greenbelt plan. Our alabaster city was to be the antithesis of urban slums. The new building, however is red brick and beige with blue trim. Instead of gleaming across the parking lot, it is both unobtrusive and ordinary.

A Bad Imitation

The alterations go beyond color. Most significant are the boxes to conceal the mechanical equipment placed on the roof. These obstruct the view on three sides of the center tower and its portholes. Only the front elevation of the tower is preserved, but the boxes on either side of the tower spoil the building's clean lines from that side as well. Narrow glass slits replace the larger original rectangular one-story windows and narrow imitation board vinyl siding replaces the wide board siding on both wings. The original glass and metal store front was also redesigned so that beige metal strips now border the glass. In the rear, additional windows and doors have been added.

Many of these modifications were made to reduce the cost of a project that was exceeding its budget. I can understand the need to contain costs when available funds are strictly limited, but in this case an original purpose for the project was all but ignored.

From a historic preservation point of view, the only good result is that a structure exists which can be restored to its original appearance. Perhaps someday in an enlightened future, when money is plentiful and historic restoration achieves greater importance, it will become possible for some innovative designer to bring the bathhouse back to its original appearance, joining it to its modern addition in a better way. Perhaps at that time, other design mistakes of the past, such as the municipal building, the Youth Center, the medical center and the red brick apartments on Parkway and Crescent can be redesigned or rebuilt to be more compatible to the original design concepts for our planned community.

I hope that it will not be necessary to add to that list the renovated Center School.

Overlooked

To the Editor:

The Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition is pleased that our recent petition to the City Council was reported in the News Review (October 7, 1993). A central aim of our request, however, was overlooked by the story. Over 300 citizens joined us in asking Council to create safe and attractive bike lanes on existing roads leading to the Greenbelt Metro. This low-cost approach, used successfully in hundreds of cities and towns, lets motorists, pedestrians, and cyclists alike all feel safer and more comfortable. Bike lanes to Metro will cost very little and help recapture some of the pedestrian- and bicycle-friendliness Greenbelt has lost over the years.

It's Fall Clean-up
Time this Weekend

It's time for the annual Fall clean-up in Greenbelt Homes Inc. (GHI). Members can clean up their yards this weekend, October 16 and 17 and the city's special trash crew will pick up the debris during the week of October 18 through 22. For this event members can put their yard waste and other trash out on the curbside, instead of calling for a special trash pick-up, as people usually have to do to get rid of special trash.

If people clearly put yard waste into piles or containers separate from other trash, the special trash crew can compost the yard waste. This will help save the city money and help the environment.

This Sunday, as people are cleaning up, people can take their household hazardous waste to the Hazardous Waste Collection Day from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Retirement Seminar

A seminar on managing the financial transition to retirement will be held at the Greenbelt Library on Tuesday, October 19 until 9 p.m. The seminar, presented by Alan D. Reid, CFP, is open to the public.

According to Reid, the meeting will focus on all four keys to making a successful transition from work to retirement. Those are: managing taxes, creating adequate retirement income, medical insurance coverage, and "lifestyle" issues such as whether to sell a home. Reid said: "Too many people wait until the day before retirement to start thinking about these issues. By then it may be too late. The best time to learn the facts and make plans is a few years before retirement, when you aren't under so much pressure."

The meeting will focus on both pre-retirement decisions, such as when to start Social Security, and concerns during retirement, such as estate planning and providing for a surviving spouse.

R.S.V.P. prior to attendance by calling Alan D. Reid, CFP at (301) 345-0187.

Greens to Meet

Greenbelt Greens will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, October 19 in the meeting room above the Co-op Supermarket. The entrance is inside the store.

Beatrice Jernberg

Beatrice C. Jernberg, age 91, a Greenbelt pioneer, died on October 9. Mrs. Jernberg and her late husband Carl J. Jernberg were among the first three families to move into 11 block Ridge Road, moving into 11-M in April 1938.

Born in Ramona, Kansas, Mrs. Jernberg at the age of eight left with her family to homestead in New Mexico where they had several hundreds acres. She and her sister rode horseback to attend barn dances. At one of these she met her husband, whom she married after World War I.

In 1925 they went to south Texas and lived there until 1937, then came to Washington, D.C. when her husband got a job with the Federal government. They lived in Washington for about a year.

When the Jernbergs heard about Greenbelt, they were eager to move there. However, they were told they didn't have enough income to make it. Mrs. Jernberg said she could feed her family for a dollar a day and they were among those chosen to move in. "We never went hungry," her son remembers. His mother never lost her love for Greenbelt.

They moved in the early 50's to 60-A Crescent Road. But later moved away when Mr. Jernberg was transferred to Washington state.

He retired there and they moved back to their home in south Texas. Because of medical problems they decided to come back to Greenbelt to be near their family. They had an apartment on Crescent Road. Mr. Jernberg died in 1978 and Mrs. Jernberg continued to live there. For about eight years she lived in Green Ridge House, always keeping an interest in Greenbelt.

The oldest member of Greenbelt Community Church, Mrs. Jernberg and her family joined the church when it was meeting in the elementary school (across the street from where they lived.) She belonged to the Women's Guild of the church.

Mrs. Jernberg was a charter member of Greenbelt American Legion Post 136 Auxiliary and was also active in the Greenbelt Homemakers.

She is survived by sons, Dale L. Jernberg, Glenn Dale and Wayne D. Jernberg, Greenbelt; sister Beulah Carter, Miami, Fla.; 17 grandchildren; 35 great-grandchildren and a great-great-grandchild. A son Kenneth died earlier.

Services were held Wednesday at Gasch's Funeral Home, Hyattsville. Interment was at Fort Lincoln Cemetery, Brentwood.

On Friday, October 22, Greenbelt Community Church will host a sleep-out for the Homeless sponsored by Community Ministry of Prince Georges County and the Campaign to End Homelessness. Anyone interested is invited to come and spend the night on the grounds of the Community Church and help raise funds for several programs which benefit the homeless. The sleep-out will begin at 7 p.m. A simple meal will be served followed by a brief worship service and music and fun. Those spending the night will need to bring a sleeping bag, pillow and tent and may want to bring extras like a thermos, snacks, and musical instruments. Parent Support Group To Meet at St. John's

The purpose is to provide parents with guidance in the challenging task of raising a family in today's complex and changing economic and social climates.

Each Thursday a separate and different topic will be presented, followed by a sharing and discussion period. A key to the program will be the support obtained from discussions with other parents facing the same problems with the same reactions. It is not necessary to attend every session.

Presenters for the first month will be Dr. John Laughlin and Pearl Laughlin. The Laughlins are experienced family therapists who also sponsor workshops in spiritual wholeness. They will cover topics such as definitions of family life today analyzing the dynamics of one's own upbringing, step-parenting and blended families.

St. John's Episcopal Church is located at the corner of Route 1 and Powder Mill Road in Beltsville. For further information call St. John's at (301) 937-4292. Please leave name and number for a prompt return call.

Turkish Classical Music at U. of MD

One of the world's oldest and most sophisticated classical music traditions can be heard in performance when the outstanding Turkish music ensemble led by vocalist Meral Ugurlu makes its Washington-area debut at the University of Maryland Adult Education and Conference Center on Friday, October 22, at 8:30 p.m.

The performance is the finale for the Concert Society's series of performances devoted to "Women and Music in the Islamic World" A free panel discussion on women and music in the Middle East precedes the concert at 7 p.m. The free seminar features Ugurlu, ethnomusicologist Carol Robertson, author of the forthcoming Spirit, Gender and Performance; and Harvard ethnomusicologist Virginia Danielson, author of a forthcoming study of Egyptian singer Oum Kalthoum, the Middle East's most acclaimed artist of this century.

Turkey's unique art music was first developed in the thirteenth century for purposes of mystical worship by the Whirling Dervishes, the Mevlevi Order of Sufi Muslims. Taking Arabic and Persian classical music as their models, Turkish composers and theorists developed dozens of music scales and rhythmic patterns comparable to the ragas and talas of Indian classical music.

Bill Blais Brings "Androcles" To New Greenbelt Theatre

by Hopi Auerbach

The former real estate office next to the Greenbelt post office, downstairs from the Co-op grocery store, began a new life this fall. Greenbelt old-timers will also remember this location in its previous incarnations as an archery range and a bowling alley. Now, the space is home to the Greenbelt Arts Center, which is launching the new era with its production of "Androcles and the Lion".

Blais Brings Professional Experience

Greenbelt's own Steve Blais is directing the Greenbelt Arts Center's current production, "Androcles and the Lion."

Before serving in the Vietnam War, Blais had a career in the professional theatre. A member of Viola Spolin's Improv. Troupe, before she founded Second City, he also acted at the Merry Go Round Theatre in Florida.

Blais wrote an original play, directed one of Samuel Beckett's works, and has had many major acting roles, including the title role in "The Boyfriend", and the lead in "Bye Bye Birdie".

In directing "Androcles and the Lion", Blais is returning to a favorite old friend, because Blais himself has played Cen-turion in a past production.

Blais stated that he selected this play by George Bernard Shaw because, "It is the epitome of Community Theatre. It's fun, with a big ensemble cast, and gives us the opportunity to try lots of new things for the first time. It doesn't require all Oliviers."

He went on to say, "Community theatre is a wonderful thing. It is a joy to work with all different people: first-time actors, teens and kids, who all work at different things during the day. But they all come together in an effort to create a live theatre center for this community."

"Androcles and the Lion" will be performed again this weekend, October 15-16. For tickets or other information call the Greenbelt Arts Center at 441-8770.

Officers Save Boy's Memories of Mother

Two City of Greenbelt police officers were recognized with City Manager Awards at the Greenbelt council meeting of October 12. The diligent and conscientious investigation of a recent theft of computer equipment from a car by PFC Richard F. Sullivan and Detective Corporal Cody Carr led to the return of an irreplaceable computer disk and gave a child back the memory of his mother.

In March of this year PFC Sullivan investigated the theft of approximately $15,000 worth of computer equipment. During the course of his investigation he processed the crime scene for fingerprints left by the thief. The results were positive.

Detective Corporal Cody Carr, during follow-up investigation of the case, was able to locate several of the stolen items at a local pawn shop. A suspect was developed through the pawn shop receipts and fingerprint comparisons were made. The fingerprints developed by PFC Sullivan at the crime scene directly attributed to the arrest of the person responsible for the crime.

The wife of the victim of the theft had been diagnosed with a fatal disease. Contained within the stolen computer equipment was a pictorial autobiography on diskette of the victim's wife. The diskette was to have been left for the couple's ten-year-old son after her death. She died after the theft of the diskette and before there was time to make another.

Working with the State's Attorneys' Office, the officers were able to locate and return the missing computer items as part of plea negotiations with the defendant. A child who has lost his mother forever will now be able to keep her memory alive.

PFC Sullivan and Detective Corporal Carr were recognized for their compassionate performance of duty which will have a profound effect on someone's life.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed by the American Cancer Society to present information on cancer prevention and the need for early detection. Training and materials will be provided. Small monetary rewards will be offered. For further information call the American Cancer Society and ask for Leslie Hill at (301) 261-6000.

Library's Tugwell Room Has Special Displays

by Tom Simon

For the next couple months the Greenbelt Branch Library's Tugwell Collection will be host to two new displays: the community painting project by artist Michael McMullin and the architectural model of the planned Greenbelt community center featuring a proposed theatre designed by Greenbelt architect Kim McCarl for the Greenbelt Arts Center.

During the Labor Day Art Show this year artist McMullin invited viewers to add their own impressions of the festival to his canvas. The result is on display in the Tugwell Room this month and next.

The design for the theatre and concert hall is in the form of a wedge with a curved outer wall, entrance, and lobby and banked seating, centering on a proscenium stage. An outdoor courtyard is located between the theatre addition and the back of the community center. The model illustrates how the theatre design fits into the general design of the community center and of Roosevelt Center. It will be on display until December.

The Greenbelt Branch Library has two reports which have been in the news recently: "Creating a Government That Works Better and Costs Less," the Report of the National Performance Review, Vice President Al Gore's committee on reforming of the Executive Branch of government and the Turner Report on Prince Georges County government, which was released last month.

McCarl Dental Family takes a bite out of your tooth decay!

The Drs. McCarl have started a campaign to help you reduce tooth decay by the sealing of your teeth.

Many people have heard of dental sealants, a clear protective barrier that is painted on the chewing surfaces of back teeth and reduces the incidence of tooth decay. Sealants are not fool proof but through recent advances it is estimated that a sealed tooth is 54 times less likely to get a cavity. This is a painless and easy procedure for you. An entire mouth can be sealed in 20 to 30 minutes and lasts for several years.

Once thought only for children, current studies show that you continue to get cavities all through your adult life. Sealants are gaining popularity with adults who also wish to avoid decay on back teeth.

Now, with the assistance of a dental sealant manufacturer, the McCarls are able to provide for the month of October, 1993, a special offer to children and adults.

Adult -full mouth sealants	$75 usually $208
Child -full mouth sealants	$60 usually $208
Child -permanent teeth only	$40 usually $116

Call today for you or your children and "take a bite out of your tooth decay".

Bees' Target Hit Again

by Doug Love

Just before Tuesday night's City Council meeting, Konrad Herling was interviewing Mayor Pro-Tem and candidate for City Council Tom White, when a bee joined the conversation. Earlier in the interview, when Herling asked White if anything interesting had happened in this campaign, White alluded to Herling's previous meetings with bees when he himself ran for council. When one flew up his nose, he lost control and wrecked his car. On the present occasion, just at the conclusion of the interview, with only a minute of videotape left, the bee flew around Herling, breaking White's concentration. The incident was, unfortunately, lost to posterity, however, since the tape was backed up and the final question re-answered as if nothing had happened.

Council candidates being interviewed next Wednesday are warned that a nest of yellow-jackets may be located in the ceiling of the College Park Studios. Greenbelt Access TV has added bee swatting to the many jobs of the TV studio floor manager.

Greenbelt Museum Will Appear on Channel 22

by Sandra Lange

The Greenbelt Museum has been the subject of a number of articles and programs in both the print and electronic media over the past year. Coming up on Maryland Public Television (Channel 22) on November 15 is a special program on the Great Depression which features the Greenbelt Museum in a five-minute segment.

At its annual meeting September 23, the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum (FOGM) board welcomed Ann Denker, a student intern from the University of Maryland, who will be working at the museum several hours each week. Ann will be cataloging the museum's artifacts on the computer. Documenting the museum collection is an important step toward achieving full accreditation by the Association of Museums.

FOGM board president Lee Shields reported on special accomplishments over the past year:

- Inaugurating a FGM newsletter, now in its second volume, mailed quarterly to members.

- Developing several special exhibits, including a 1939 television set, Art Deco chrome and glass, 1930s and 1940s radios, and the current exhibit on Fiesta ware.

- Holding three flea markets with proceeds earmarked for the museum's endowment fund.

- Developing a computerized data base to track and improve membership.

- Developing an album of still photos of the museum for visitors who are physically challenged and cannot climb the stairs to the second floor.

- Completing the garage conversion to the FOGM office and establishing the files.

- Purchasing a computer with funds from the Maryland Small Museum Assistance Program.

- Participating in the Labor Day Festival Parade.

- Hosting a Valentine's Party to honor FOGM volunteers.

At the annual meeting FOGM elected members to their Board of Directors, as well as new officers. New member Judi Kerns joins incumbents Barbara Havelkost, Sandra Lange, Anne Meglis, Sally Sims Stokes and Linda Warner on the board. Officers are: Lee Shields, president; Sandra Lange, vice president; Dorothy White, treasurer; and Morris Levitt, secretary.

The museum is still in need of volunteer guides. Guides work approximately two hours each month, on Sundays, to provide tours of the museum for visitors. Training is provided. If interested call Linda Warner, 345-5357.

Investigator: Plane Was Not in Trouble

The Cessna A150 which crashed in Greenbelt on September 10, killing both persons aboard, was not in mechanical trouble, said the head of the federal government's investigation of the crash, nor was it running out of gas. "My examination did not reveal any evidence of mechanical malfunction," said Jeff Guzzetti, air safety investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, after inspecting the aircraft on September 15. He said that the plane still had fuel in it at the time of the crash. He also confirmed Greenbelt resident and flight instructor Alexander Barnes's observation that the flaps were not down. "The flaps were completely retracted," said Guzzetti, indicating that they were not deployed for a landing approach at the time. The investigation of the crash is continuing.

Castaldi believes that if the Glenn Dale Golf Course is put on the market the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission should consider purchasing it. "Golf courses make money," he stated, as compared to other kinds of recreational facilities.

Bounds
The Glenn Dale, Seabrook and Lanham Master Plan area includes all the area bounded on the northeast by Springfield and Hillmeade Roads, on the east by old Annapolis Road (Md. 450) and Greenbelt Road, on the south by the John Hanson Highway (U.S. 50), on the west by the Capital Beltway (I-95), and on the northwest by Good Luck Road plus the triangular area created by Good Luck, Cipriano and Greenbelt Roads. Greenbelt Road extends through or alongside the area from Cipriano Road to Route 50. Other major roads going through the planning area are the Lanham-Severn Road and Maryland 450.

The City of Greenbelt has not considered or taken any positions on the master plan or zoning proposals for the Glenn Dale area.

Greenbelt Grab Bag

by Punchin' Judy
This summer I spent a few days in Prague. It is a beautiful city and wandering through the streets to see famous landmarks was a real thrill. I must admit, though, that I also enjoyed a bit of shopping, particularly in department stores.

I didn't really need any new clothes - my closets are pretty well crowded, or maybe the politically correct phrase is "functionally stressed." However, it would certainly be a real boost to my fashion ego to own some part of a European wardrobe. Unfortunately, the dresses all looked remarkably familiar so I decided to purchase some underwear. (What do you mean I can't say "underwear" in a family newspaper? They do it in ads, don't they? Lingerie? Nah, real women don't say lingerie! Never mind, the word in Czech is "slipi".

The slipi having turned out to be a great success, I decided I should invest in a Czech T-shirt. I found a large number of imprinted shirts in a pile, pulled one out, and eagerly looked at the lettering. It said "Hail Redskins", for Pete's sake! In Prague! Most of the rest of the shirts had Mickey Mouse and other Disney figures, and I never did get a Czech shirt. What I ended up with was a silk scarf, but it looks like a Persian version.

I was very much impressed with myself for having had the opportunity to buy exotically foreign apparel until I read an article in a Washington paper. The story, in the financial section, stated that the department stores in Prague are owned by K-Mart. I traveled 4,000 miles to shop in a store the kind of which exists five minutes from home! You know what they say about pride galloping before a fall. Oh, well, my pride may have suffered, but at least I still have my slipi.

Another thing mentioned in the article was the surliness of the sales people. I never experienced any of that at all. Of course they didn't understand my language nor I theirs, so for all I know they might have been cussing me from St. Wenceslas Square to Cipriano Square, but I don't think so. And my slipi are doing just fine, thank you.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK
 Hello again !!!
 In the auto and truck repair industry, tires have always been a headache. They take up too much room, are cumbersome to stack and their disposal must be according to legal restrictions. However it is important to know how to keep them on your vehicle for the longest time without premature wear and tear.
 Tires, like any other auto and truck part have to be cared for and not taken for granted. Here are a few things to look for when you inspect your tires.
 1. During monthly inspections, look for dry cracks, splits, and screws and nails stuck in thread area. Also, look for curb scuffs.
 2. A lot of conditions can wear tread patterns on your tires. Besides alignment and other problems that can cause worn tread patterns, air pressure is also a major factor that often affects the patterns. If the tread is worn on both outside edges, the tire is under-inflated. And if the center of the tire is worn, the tire is over-inflated. Remember to always check the recommended tire pressure displayed on the side wall of the tire and to check air pressures of all four wheels. Also, remember that you will not get an accurate reading on a hot tire because heat changes the air pressure readings.
 Proper tire rotation and balancing can extend your tires' lives. And don't forget that spare tire.
TILL NEXT TIME
THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE.

Candidates Respond

Rodney M. Roberts

Currently, the city provides services under the funding categories of Public Safety, Public Works, Social Services, and Parks and Recreation. These are all essential to the quality of life in Greenbelt and, as of now, there is no need to raise taxes to maintain their funding. We need to maintain the programs we have now without increasing the already heavy burden on the Greenbelt taxpayer. I have opposed tax increases in the past and continue to do so. The only circumstances under which I would support raising taxes would be when we are legally obligated (as would be required to service outstanding debt) or if the citizens clearly show their desire to do so. Taxes will already need to be raised to fund the new community center and I don't think Greenbelt needs any more tax burden. People need to realize that we can't have everything we might want immediately.

Edward V. J. Putens

In these difficult times, I emphasize saving money and controlling taxes. Council has cut spending significantly. Ongoing cost-saving measures will save money without cutting personnel. Debt restructuring will repay current debt within 12 years instead of 20.

Some tax increases will result from voters' bond referendum decisions.

Make new programs self-supporting, where possible. Example: Licensing Fees could make our code enforcement program self-supporting. Encourage revenue-producing programs.

New expenditures should be accompanied by partial outside funding where appropriate.

— Expand police personnel, but continue successful pursuit of Federal grants.

— Plan the badly-needed performing arts theater, but raise some of the money from the State, foundations, businesses, and private donations.

— Expand Greenbelt Connection service to Metro, malls, and other major destinations, but benefitting businesses should contribute.

I would spend money to:

— Buy additional land for green space;

— Establish bicycle and pedestrian trails; and,

— Start funding Lake Park Master Plan improvements.

Community Service Day Is October 23

The 5th annual statewide Community Service Day will be held Saturday, October 23. "Make your Community Blossom through Community Service" is the theme for this year's effort, which serves as a day of volunteer recognition and a means to encourage first-time volunteers to participate in community-based volunteer activities.

Many counties and government agencies participate in this annual event by planning volunteer projects for people of all ages and abilities. Projects range from neighborhood clean-ups to food and clothing drives to benefit the less fortunate.

To find out how to be a part of Community Service Day call county coordinator Karen Napolitano, 925-5821.

Judith "J" Davis

This is the most difficult question facing the new City Council. No one wants services or programs cut—no one wants taxes raised. The Council will have to prioritize all project proposals and increases in services—then make fiscally responsible choices.

As a member of Council, I would:

— Urge greater cost-containment measures and productivity.

— Aggressively seek every applicable grant dollar.

— Obtain an equitable share of the tax differential from the County for services the City performs.

— Increase fees and fines where appropriate.

— Explore potential for collaboration with our business community for road improvement funds and program sponsorship.

— Seek private and State funds for Community Center improvements.

— Effectively use the community service hours now required of all graduating students.

— Encourage volunteer effort by individuals and organizations to assist city departments and programs.

Above all I will remain open and sensitive to citizen concerns, needs, and cost-saving suggestions.

School Zone Traffic Safety Workshop

The Maryland State Highway Administration (SHA) and the School Zone Traffic Safety Task Force will hold a School Zone Traffic Safety Workshop on Saturday, October 23 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Anne Arundel County Community College in Arnold, Md. The registration fee includes lunch.

The task force was established in 1991 to enhance school area safety for children throughout the state. For more details on the workshop or to register, call SHA's Eric Tabacek at (410) 787-5871.

Our Neighbors

Eric Silverman will celebrate his bar mitzvah on October 16 at Mishkan Torah Synagogue. Eric lives on Mandan Road with parents Harold and Lynda Silverman. He currently attends Thomas Pullen Middle School and for the past four years has played in the Greenbelt Little League.

The Washington Psychiatric Society recently honored Del. Joan Pitkin with its Community Achievement Award. This award is given annually to one recipient each from Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia who has been particularly active in advocating for the rights of the mentally ill.

Elect Judith "J" Davis

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

During the past fifteen years, I have served all of Greenbelt by being actively involved in our city's programs and development. I have always been firmly committed to enhancing the qualities that make Greenbelt the best home town around. My most important accomplishments during this period have been:

★ Greenbelt Advisory Planning Board

(1982 - Present) - Chair since 1988. Advocated increasing number of single-family homes, limiting signage, preserving existing greenspace, linking trails and expanding landscaping buffers. Contributed to the design of Schrom Hills Park, Capital Office Park, Green Spring, Greenbrook, and Greenwood Village. Helped defeat Sunrise Towers.

★ Greenbriar Condominium Phase I,

Board of Directors, 1979-Present. Served as President, Vice-President, and City Liaison

★ Citizens Advisory Committee for Greenbelt Master Plan

(1983-1987)

★ Greenbelt Labor Day Festival

Carnival Chair (1981 - Present) I obtained all permits and rides, worked with more than twenty-five non-profit organizations to set up booths and instituted a Community Information Day to encourage even more participation.

As the newest Council member, I will work to:

- ★ Make Greenbelt safer for our families and friends by modernizing police programs and equipment, expanding Crime Watch Programs, increasing public safety information and awareness, and installing adequate lighting in places where it is lacking.
- ★ Design and plan comprehensive solutions to the traffic and development challenges arising from the new Metro station and find answers to the traffic gridlock on Greenbelt Road.
- ★ Preserve existing greenspace, link pedestrian and bicycle trails throughout the City.
- ★ Enhance and promote recreational and cultural programs for all Greenbelt age groups and neighborhoods.
- ★ Maintain the services and commitment that has always set us apart from other communities while seeking alternative revenue sources and greater internal efficiency.

I'm proud to be a resident of Greenbelt and would welcome the opportunity to serve you as a member of your City Council.

I appreciate your support . . . remember to vote 4A for J on November 2nd.

Sincerely,

Judith "J" Davis
