Study Group Finds "Justification" For New City Historic District

by James Giese

The Prince Georges County Planning Department has found "substantial justification" for the establishment of a locally designated Historic District. This designation could provide a means of protecting and enhancing the architectural and historic significance of Old Greenbelt.

Planning staff presented the results of the study to the Greenbelt City Council and the board of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) at a joint meeting on July 12. GHI initiated the request for the study to learn about the pros and cons of such a designation.

Architectural Historian Howard Berger presented a slide show to illustrate the character of the historic community, which consists of all the homes and structures built by the Federal government between 1935 and 1941, plus some of the adjacent green space. These areas are currently regulated within the Langley Park-Greenbelt Master Plan, the county zoning ordinance, the county building permit process and the GHI Green Book that provides guidelines for construction (GHI homes, only). The area is also listed on the National Register of Historic Places since 1980 as an historic district, but its regulations only apply if federal funds are being used.

Recommendations

The planning officials, working with a committee of Greenbelt volunteers and staff, recommended boundaries slightly different from those of the National Register. The proposed district would add the right-of-way for Crescent Road between Parkway and Kenilworth Avenue. Old parcels 3 and 4, part of the green space designated in the National Register District, but which were substantially developed as housing subdivisions would be deleted. These parcels were adjacent to the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center on either side of Research Road.

"The community should benefit from a potential historic district, not be burdened by it."

— Planning Department Report

Beside the large, main historic area, the committee proposes designating three other small parcels—Greenbelt Middle School on Edmonston Road, the city cemetery off Ivy Lane in Capital Office Park and the Walker family burial ground and Indian Springs next to the Beltway on the Golden Triangle.

Recognizing that local historic districts traditionally focus on architectural review, the committee members emphasized that the significance of Greenbelt is found not only in its architecture, but also in its unique physical expression as a planned community. The Greenbelt Historic District should provide equal protection for non-architectural aspects such as green space and present road alignments and profiles. Concerned about incompatible adjacent development which could affect the low-rise character of Old Greenbelt, the committee felt that the historic designation should serve as an effective basis for recommending that improvements, if undertaken, are in a manner compatible with the community's historic character.

No Freeze in Time

The committee said that the intent of the designation should not be to freeze Greenbelt in time but to sensitively manage its growth allowing property owners substantial freedoms to improve and enlarge their homes. Implementation should be aimed at the most serious threats to the historic district's character, while minor work should be expeditiously handled. According to the report, "The community should benefit from a potential historic district, not be burdened by it."

Preservation Planner Robert Rivers, who is responsible for reviewing Historic Area Work Permits (HAWP) explained the process. There are three types of reviews. If the work does not require a county permit, there is no required review. However, property owners are encouraged to discuss their plans with the HAWP staff. If the alterations are considered to be not significant, then the HAWP staff can sign-off on the building permit and the matter is not reviewed by the Historic Preservation Commission (HPC). Carjacking in Beltway Plaza Occurs in Daylight Hours

A 31-year-old woman and her 13-month old daughter were forced from a moving car in broad daylight after being abducted and robbed at Beltway Plaza, said Greenbelt Police. The woman suffered minor cuts to her knees and right shoulder after being ejected from the vehicle. The infant did not appear to be injured.

The incident took place Thursday, July 21, at 6:43 p.m. in front of F & M Drug Store. It was the third report of an abduction from a Greenbelt shopping center in 11 days. (One of those complaints however, turned out to be false, police said.)

Police said the victim gave the following account:

After she had returned to her vehicle following a shopping trip, the woman had placed her daughter in the car. A man appeared and prevented her from closing the door, saying he had a knife and forcing her into the back seat.

The man then took the wheel and began to drive slowly through the parking lot. He stopped the car at a nearby Popeye's restaurant, police said, and demanded money and an ATM card from the victim. The victim gave money to the man but told him she had no ATM card, said police. She then asked the man to let her and her child out of the vehicle.

The man opened the right passenger door of the 2-door vehicle. The victim climbed into the front seat and began to remove her daughter, who was strapped in a child safety seat.

Then as the vehicle began to move forward, police said, he forced the woman out of the car with the child in her arms.

The man fled the scene in the woman's vehicle, a black 1987 See CARJACKING, page 12

Voter Registration Push

Voting is every citizen's right and privilege. To ensure that every eligible voter is registered to vote the Prince Georges County Government and Board of Elections have joined forces to increase the number of voters in the county. Their goal is to register 10,000 voters by the August 15, deadline.

Registering to vote can be as simple as a phone call. Residents may call 627-2814 24-hours-a-day, seven days-a-week to receive a voter registration form in the mail. The form must be filled out and returned.

Additionally County residents may register at the following locations: the Motor Vehicle Administration in Largo, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, with special Saturday hours 8:30 a.m. to noon on July 30, August 6 and 13; all Giant Food Stores in Prince Georges County on July 30, August 6 and 13; and all County police stations, fire departments, libraries and recreation centers.

For further information about registering to vote, call 952-3270.

Castaldi Endorses Mills

At a press conference on July 27, former candidate for County Executive Richard Castaldi endorsed his colleague on the County Council, Sue Mills for County Executive. Castaldi, who withdrew from the campaign due to the illness of his parents in Florida, stated that "Only one candidate in the race has the experience and capability to move the county in the right direction."

He noted that over 100 years of combined governing experience will be leaving the County Council next year due to term limits and that there will be no more than two members of the present council serving on the new council. He contended that of the candidates for executive, only Mills had the depth of knowledge and experience necessary for the office. "I'm convinced she will make the most constituent-responsive County Executive we've ever had," Castaldi said.

"I have discussed my platform with her," he told the press, "and I remain confident that only Sue is capable of delivering that agenda as County Executive." He cited her leadership experience to make improvements in education, reduce crime, expand job opportunities and provide the level of constituent service that has been her trademark.

In accepting the endorsement, Mills declared that Castaldi's decision to endorse her campaign was based on substantive public policy issues, particularly as relates to crime, improving education and reducing government waste.

It is expected that Castaldi Campaign Director Michael Herman and other campaign staff members will join the Mills campaign.

Council Sets Aug. Hearing On Bike Lanes for Crescent

by Diane Oberg

The August 8 regular city council meeting will feature a public hearing on the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition's proposal that the city pave the shoulders of Crescent Road and mark them as bicycle lanes.

The city's Bicycle Task Force reviewed the request. (Four of the six task force members are also coalition members.) The Task Force recommended that both shoulders of Crescent be paved between Lastner Lane and Northway. The project is currently included in the city's capital improvements program, but is not scheduled to be undertaken until the 1995-1996 fiscal year.

In making this recommendation, the Task Force noted that Crescent Road is heavily used by bicyclists, that the glare of the sun can make it difficult for motorists to see cyclists and that the present shoulder is not suitable for bikes.

The improvements would increase motorist safety, according to the task force, by eliminating the need to swerve around cyclists. It would also reduce pedestrian-bicyclist conflicts on the existing asphalt path.

The Task Force accepted the recommendation of the Advisory Planning Board (APB) that, to prevent bicycle-motorist conflict, parking be prohibited between Ridge Road (near the police station) and Northway. The APB made this recommendation in a report to the Council, in which it supported the bike lanes.

What Is Cost?

The cost of paving the shoulders is in dispute. The APB cited an estimate of $13,000. However, the capital improvements budget pegs the cost at $55,000, an estimate disputed by the Task Force.

Cost was a factor in the APB's support. Their report called the $13,000 estimate "not an insignificant amount of money considering the long list of unfunded capital projects." The board called for a supplemental appropriation from the capital accounts. However, the board, in its 1993 report said "We do not believe . . . that bicycle improvements should be made in lieu of other important safety related projects."

The Bicycle Task Force, however, argued that the project "has such urgency that it should be completed in the current year—this fall if possible."

Public Works Director Carl Hirsch said that the project is more complex than simply slapping a layer of asphalt on the shoulders. The city must be careful to ensure proper drainage of the expanded road surface. Further, the city should examine how the paving of the shoulders would affect the sidewalks proposed in the Crescent Road safety study. Hirsch was also concerned about exacerbating current drainage problems in the Northway area. He said his quick calculations indicated that the materials alone would cost $15,000. He argued preparation of the base is crucial. Liability and handicapped access issues also needed to be reviewed, Hirsch said.

Mayor Antoinette Bram questioned whether the issue was becoming more involved than it needed to be. She argued that council should press ahead with this issue as part of its commitment to support alternate modes of transportation. Councilmember Rodney Roberts asked whether the two inch thickness called for by the coalition was adequate (Hirsch preferred three or four inches, he said.)

Roberts was also concerned about the width of the paved shoulders. He feared that the paved shoulders would merge with the existing path to create a continuous strip of asphalt.

Stay With Budget

In a memo to council, City Manager Daniel Hobbs urged council to adhere to the budget priorities approved in May. Once it adopts the budget, Hobbs suggested, council should only make major changes in case of emergency.

One thing that most of the parties involved agreed upon was the need for public input. The lone dissenter was Councilmember Thomas White who said that council and staff were unlikely to have answers to the issues raised by the next meeting. He also objected to taking this project "out of turn." Roberts disagreed with that characterization.

Councilmember Judith Davis argued that the public hearing would provide an opportunity for citizens, both for and against paving the shoulders, to express their views to council. Putens' motion to hold a public hearing August 8 passed 4-1 with White opposed.

Senator Green to Host Lt. Governor Candidates

State Sen. Leo E. Green will host the candidates for Lieutenant Governor at his monthly District 23 Political Forum from 8 to 9 a.m. on Saturday, July 30 at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center's Gabrielson Lab Conference Room.

Sen. Bernard Fowler, Barbara Kreamer, Sen. James Simpson and Kathleen Kennedy Townsend are scheduled to attend the forum and speak on campaign issues. The floor will also be open to questions from the audience.

For further information on this event, please call Sen. Green's office at (301) 262-4420.

Pls Sin

While documenting damage to Greenbelt Park last weekend, I happened across a copy of the Friends of Greenbelt National Park petition, left by the trail-side for people to sign. I found and photographed evidence that our politically active deer are at it again! They left twigs in a pattern spelling "Pls sin." This is the third time the animals in the woods have become involved in local issues.

I remarked about this to a neighbor in my back yard one night this week. I wondered if the four deer in Greenbelt Park had done it. Last night as I took out the mulch, I found a note in twigs: "It wz us. The 4 dont care." Clearly, Greenbelt residents of all sorts are still leading the way.

Facilitate Biking

One of the greatest legacies left by the planners of Old Greenbelt was the sense of community fostered by "human scale" development - i.e., walkable paths to the grocery store, post office and friends. As the city has expanded, so has the scale of development. Thus, the perceived need to travel around our city in an automobile.

Studies demonstrate that utilitarian use of bicycles increases where adequate public facilities exist to support bicycling. Davis CA, has provided facilities and programs for bicyclists, including an extensive bicycle lane system. Twenty-five percent of Davis commuting is by bicycle. This is not just attributable to the large student population, because half of Davis bicyclists are non-student working citizens.

Now that Greenbelt has the only marked bike route in the state of Maryland, let's continue to improve our public facilities to facilitate bicycling and walking and return Greenbelt to a human-scale lifestyle.

Asphalt, O.K.

Environmental asphalt? You bet! It may seem like a contradiction in terms, but Greenbelt has an opportunity to lay some environmentally correct pavement.

People often equate pavement with environmental destruction. However, the paved bike lanes being considered for Crescent Road from Northway to Kenilworth Avenue will help clean our air, protect the water in Greenbelt Lake, and keep this a quiet and safe place to live and work.

Narrow, paved lanes will provide a safe alternative to the car, thus encouraging hesitant bike owners to try bicycling when going to Metro, the Center, or the Lake. Such short trips are by far the most polluting trips cars can make, since a car's catalytic converter doesn't start scrubbing your exhaust until the car has fully heated up. In fact, the first mile you drive pollutes the air more than the next twenty.

As for the visual environment, this project can even be done in a way that would increase the amount of green space by the roadside, because the proposed bike lanes will be several feet narrower in most places than the existing hard-packed gravel shoulders. If anyone is concerned about the aesthetic impact of the project, come to the Council meeting on August 8 and encourage the city to plant native shrubs and groundcover where now there is just loose gravel and crabgrass.

The Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition encourages the use of bicycles for everyday transportation in Greenbelt. Even if you don't use a bike, making it safer for those who do is one way you can help improve our environment. In this case, a little asphalt can do a lot of good!

Hopi J. Auerbach

Pave the Lanes

I urge the News Review and its readers to follow the lead of the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition and press City Council to pave the shoulders of Crescent Road between Lastner Lane and Northway for bicycle use as soon as possible.

As someone who alternates between riding a bicycle and driving a car, I expect to benefit from this opportunity for the two types of drivers to voluntarily separate, regardless of which mode of transportation I am using.

Don't take that to mean I believe in forcing bicyclists off roadways onto separate paths—but in this case I think most bicyclists will gladly move over if they have pavement to do it on. This will improve the safety of everyone using the road. And since the right of way has already been claimed for gravel, no additional greenspace would be sacrificed.

My only question: why wasn't this done years ago?

Park Acquisition Prohibitive

In a June 30 letter to State Senator Leo Green, US Senator Paul Sarbanes advised that it is prohibitive for the National Park Service to acquire the Parkside Subdivision of the DiCamillo tract located on the north side of Good Luck Road bordered on three sides by Greenbelt Park. A group of citizens known as Friends of Greenbelt Park have been seeking governmental action to stop the construction of 31 houses on the 7.7 acre tract.

Sarbanes advised that the property is not within the authorized boundaries of the park for federal acquisition. Without being designated, the property is not eligible for federal parkland acquisition funding. To become eligible, a boundary expansion would be necessary and that requires authorizing legislation by the Congress and approval by the President. After that, it would be necessary to obtain an appropriation of funds from Congress. Sarbanes called this a difficult and lengthy process that could not be completed in the timeframe required.

Sarbanes suggested other avenues for the Friends of Greenbelt Park and the Mayor of Greenbelt to explore. He cited the possibility of obtaining Maryland Program Open Space or federal Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act funds to acquire and preserve the land. He also suggested working with the Trust for Public Land to generate new local funding for land protection and to take full advantage of existing conservation programs. Sarbanes advised that he was also sending the Friends and the Mayor a directory of foundation grants for open space conservation.

NPS Letter

The Senator also sent Green a copy of a letter he received from F. G. Parsons, Acting Regional Director of the National Capital Region of the National Park Service (NPS). Noting that the site has been cleared since May 20, he advised that the NPS has been working with the developer's engineering firm to arrive at a storm water management plan that provides a greater level of on-site water quality protection and storm water flow management than the county requires.

The NPS has also expressed its concern to the developer of resident intrusion into the park and the possibility of erecting a fence. However, lacking any directive or similar requirement from the county, Parsons sees little probability of the developer providing such a structure.

Parsons believes that other problems are more in the realm of management inconvenience in the future planning and development of the area of the park near the housing development. There may be a need to relocate trails away from the site if it proves too visually intrusive to trail users.

by Joe Timer

An old adage is "The more things change; the more they remain the same." Ten years ago, the landscape of Greenbelt was changing rapidly with: the debut of the fourth building — 145,000 square feet — in Capital Office Park; plans for a groundbreaking for Martin's Crosswinds; plans for a new Chi-Chi's restaurant in Beltway Plaza and discussions of the City's annexing the Hunting Ridge Condo Association. On the personal horizon, Police Chief Frank Huston succeeded Chief William T. Lane, who retired after 30 years as a police officer. At the Labor Day Festival, Jose Morales was selected as Greenbelt's 12th Outstanding Citizen.

Morales was best known for his work with Greenbelt's youth and its senior citizens. He was a baseball coach and president of the Springhill Lake PTA. His senior activities included being president of the Senior Citizen Housing Committee and spending Saturdays driving Green Ridge residents to the store so that they could shop. (Incidentally the City's bus—the Greenbelt Connection—made its maiden trips on August 31 1984—the night Morales was announced as the 1984 Outstanding Citizen.) A resident of Springhill Lake, Morales revitalized that community's civic association and served as its president.

Morales' recognition subtly sent another message throughout Greenbelt. You don't have to have lived in Greenbelt all your life to warrant this recognition. A relatively young man himself, Jose Morales had lived in Greenbelt for eight years when recognized.

Moved

After 15 years in Greenbelt, Jose Morales moved to Puerto Rico, but the sense of community, civic involvement, and concern for others still lives in Greenbelt. Each of us encounters it regularly. Other outstanding citizens are coaching our youngsters and coordinating athletic events. Still others are quietly working to meet the needs of Greenbelt's growing senior population. Still others are addressing a myriad of issues including crime and safety, hunger and homelessness and the arts. Often, we take these volunteers and their efforts for granted. Some of these special Greenbelters have lived here for decades; others are relative new-comers. At least once a year, we have the opportunity to recognize those individuals whose concerns for others and for our community make Greenbelt a special place to live.

Submit nomination (Form on page 8) for this year's Outstanding Citizen by no later than August 9.

Host Families Needed

American Host families are being sought for high school students from Western and Eastern Europe, Asia, South America, Australia, and the former Soviet Union for the 1994-95 school year in a program sponsored by the American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE).

These exceptional students, ages 15 through 18, will arrive in the United States in August, attend a local high school, and return to their home countries in June of 1995. The students, all fluent in English, have been carefully screened by the local representatives in their home countries and have their own medical insurance and spending money.

AISE's main focus is teaching young people about the importance of the acceptance of other cultures. Cultural exchange is necessary to the continued betterment of civilization as we know it.

12-Hour Abduction Story Is False, Woman Says

Greenbelt Police now say a woman who claimed to have been abducted, sexually assaulted, and robbed was not telling the truth. The woman recanted, said police spokesman Officer George Mathews, after being shown evidence that implicated an associate in the incident.

The complainant, a nonresident had reported that three men had forced her into a car at gunpoint in the parking lot in front of the Beltway Plaza Giant Food store around 12:15 a.m. Thursday, July 14, according to police. The complainant said she had been held for 12 hours, during which time she had been forced to make a withdrawal with her ATM card and had also been sexually assaulted. She said she made her escape while the men's attention was diverted, getting into her car and driving away. Police composite sketches of the woman's alleged assailants, based on the descriptions she provided, appeared in last week's News Review.

It was the second of a spate of reports of abductions from Greenbelt shopping centers within an 11-day period. The routine investigation took an unexpectedly bizarre twist.

Retraced Steps

"The victim was asked to retrace her steps" said Mathews. "A picture was taken of the person using her card" at the ATM machine she indicated was the site of the forced withdrawal.

Our Neighbors

Congratulations to Boxwood resident, Sandy Smith, who received the Public Health Service's (PHS) highest award at the 1994 PHS Honor Awards Ceremony on June 23. She was honored with a PHS Superior Service Award for sustained and exemplary performance in directing the public affairs activities of the National Center for Health Statistics, the agency that monitors the nation's health. Sandy has worked for the National Center for Health Statistics, a part of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, for the past 29 years.

(Many ATMs have cameras which automatically photograph transactions.)

"She was upset when the picture was shown to her of the person using her card.

"Apparently, the person was known to her.

"When the detective said, 'We're going to put this picture on the evening news,' the complainant 'confessed at that point it was not a true story,' said Mathews.

"She may have figured we were going to find out one way or another and wanted to nip it in the bud."

Mathews said police don't know what the woman's motive was and that the affair is still under investigation. He said it was possible that she could be charged with making a false report to police, a misdemeanor.

He said that false reports are harmful because they make police spend scarce time and resources unproductively. "We get false reports more often than we'd like" said Mathews, "but they're not usually this serious."

Swim Team News

by Amanda Baldauf and
Christine Maher

Christine is back! Okay, now I can dry my tears. But, there is also some bad news. The Greenbelt Swim Team dropped to 2 and 2 on July 16, with a 277-263 loss to Belair Bath and Tennis. There were many close races, but BBT touched us out. Triple winners for this meet were Casey Connor, Brendan Gardes, Ryan Hardy, and Aruna Inversin. High point winners were Fernando Freire da Silva - 13 points, Amanda Baldauf and David Hardy - 12 points, Katie Hilton - 11 points, and William Lloyd - 10 points.

On July 23, we swam against Lancaster Neighborhood Swim Team. And we ended the season with a 3 and 2 record. We beat LNS 302 - 238, which places us second in Division A, going into Divisionals, which will be held at Greenbelt Pool, this Saturday.

Everyone swam really well on Saturday. Our coaches were very happy and proud. Triple winners include: Amanda Baldauf, Casey Connor, David Hardy, Katie Hilton, Aruna Inversin, and Katrina Schwartz. Ryan Hardy got 13 points, 10 point winners were Santiago Berdechevsky, Brendan Gardes, Lynn Hull, and Ben and Jeanne Kepler.

Considering this is our first year in Division A, we've done great. A 3 and 2 record is very impressive for a team that moved up from Division C to Division A in one season. On Saturday, July 30, we host Divisionals in which the top two swimmers from each team in each event swim against each other. If you know anyone on the Swim Team, come and cheer them on, because this is a very difficult meet!! We still have a chance to win Division A and Prince-Mont!

Just in case you have absolutely no idea who "Christine and Amanda" are our picture should be somewhere on this page. Amanda is the tall one and Christine is the short one. Aren't the caps great?!?! The other girls are Katie Hilton and Casey Connor, the other two swimmers on our relay team; we're on the left.

Homes Evacuated

Homes in the area of Research and Ridge Roads and the elementary school on Ridge Road were evacuated on Wednesday, July 20 about 10 a.m. when a gas line was ruptured. A contractor installing a utility pole near the corner of Ridge and Research Roads broke the gas line. Near by City public works crews called in the report to the fire department and the gas company. Washington Gas Light personnel shut off the gas and by 11:30 the damage had been repaired so that people could return to their homes or school.

Seniors Softball

by Jerry Conway

The Greenbelt Senior Softball team defeated Catonsville All Star Seniors for the second time this half of the 32 game series and obtained first place in the league of nine teams. We were playing great softball.

On Monday we lost our first game to Bowie 60's by a close score of 6-12. This was our worst fielding day and they took advantage by their youthful running, fielding, and hitting. Jerry Conway drove in four of the six runs with two doubles, one with bases loaded. We played 14 players on our team with three designated hitters. This proved to be a disadvantage. We are now tied with Bowie 60's for first place in the league.

We will either play in the Maryland Senior Olympics in September with 18 qualified players or we will be used on other teams to play in the Olympics. We need six more qualified players to enter that serious competition. Serving as manager and player is very challenging. We could use some qualified players in their early sixties. Come on out and play for the City.

Historic District Study Presented

staff would rely on the GHI Green Book guidelines so long as historic preservation guidelines are met. Staff decisions can be appealed to the HPC.

For major structures and additions, the HPC must review the project in accordance with design review guidelines of the county code and the U.S. Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation. Rivers described these guidelines as very broadly written. They have been left open to a certain amount of interpretation. Decisions to deny permits can be appealed to the HPC. From there, the matter can be appealed to the courts. The HPC must act within 45 days of receipt of application.

Local Input

The study committee has recommended the creation of a Local Advisory Committee (LAC). It would be composed of a representative group of property owners and community residents (at least 10) including GHI members, the GHI Architecture and Environment Committee, owners of single family residences and multiunit buildings, the owners and tenants of commercial buildings, churches and representatives of the City of Greenbelt. Each permit application would be referred to the LAC for comment. Should a public hearing be required on a permit by the HPC, the city is required to be notified, and if the city opposes the permit, it can be issued only if two-thirds of the HPC approve it.

Besides work permits, subdivision proposals that would affect an historic district are required to be referred to the HPC. These referrals would also be referred to the LAC and the city.

Tax Benefits

There are two preservation incentive programs that would benefit property owners within an historic district. Owners of contributing structures, i.e., buildings that are directly a part of the buildings of the historic era to be preserved (in Greenbelt, buildings built between 1935 and 1941), may be entitled to a Prince Georges County Historic Preservation Tax Credit of ten-percent of the cost of approved rehabilitation work and compatible additions to existing buildings. For new construction there could be a tax credit of five percent.

Maryland offers a State Income Tax deduction for the restoration or rehabilitation of "certified" historic residential property for either interior or exterior work. The deduction is allowable for 100 percent of the cost, amortized over a five year period at the rate of 20 percent each year for any property listed by the National Register. Therefore, Greenbelt property owners within the national historic district are already eligible to obtain this credit for "certified" rehabilitation work. Applications are made through the Maryland Historical Trust in Crownsville (Tel. 410-514-7600).

Course of Action

The study committee recognized that any effort to designate a local historic district requires substantial, if not overwhelming, support from affected residents and property owners. Therefore, it strongly recommended an education/public information program to inform residents of the historic and architectural significance of Old Greenbelt and the benefits and limitations associated with historic district designation. This effort could last for several years. During that time, the committee suggests a number of interim steps.

1. Nominate historic area as a National Historic District Landmark. This is the highest form of recognition provided by the Federal government. It is believed that Old Greenbelt would qualify. It would not add any additional governmental regulations to those that now exist.

2. Designate some specific historic sites. One site, the old Center School, is already designated. Other sites might be Roosevelt Center and the Greenbelt Museum.

3. Grant preservation and conservation easements for such elements as the network of inner walkways and gardens, the remaining portion of the surrounding green belt and significant buildings. Easements may have income, gift, estate and real property tax benefits for the donor, if the donor is a taxpayer. The Maryland Historic Trust accepts preservation easements to protect historic buildings and their surrounding property in perpetuity. Conservation Easements are accepted by the Maryland Environmental Trust to ensure the protection of open space areas such as farms and forest land, wildlife habitat, historic sites and property with scenic features. The county offers a similar program with tax credits up to 50 percent.

4. Designate roads in Old Greenbelt as a County Historic Road to form an additional layer of protection from what could be considered to be adverse road improvements.

5. Revise the GHI Green Book to be more in keeping with historic preservation guidelines.

Designation Process

As a designation process, the study committee first recommends that the city council sponsor a series of informational meetings. Initially, these meetings should be targeted at specific interest groups. If there is substantial support, the council should then develop a poll or referendum to solicit the opinions of all affected residents and property owners. If a clear majority support the proposed district, the city should request the HPC to conduct an evaluation. Before making its decision, the HPC would hold a public hearing, and that decision could be appealed to the County Council.

Questions

Mayor Antoinette Bram wanted to know if Research Road next to parcels 3 and 4 would be included in the district. Berger advised that that question had not been considered by the study.

GHI Boardmember Kathleen Weber asked how the historic district would protect the woodlands. Any proposed changes would be subject to review if a subdivision, site plan or building permit be required. Councilmember Judith Davis asked if ballfields would be permitted. Rivers said the matter was open for discussion. The green belt was to be used for woodland, farms and recreation areas.

GHI Boardmember Carole Levin asked how residents would know if they could build, the size of addition permitted, what roof lines would be required, etc. Rivers noted that the two sets of guidelines were broadly written. Rivers is responsible for reviewing permit applications and he reviews on a case by case basis. He noted that the Green Book guidelines do already somewhat restrict new construction to being compatible with the established architecture. Berger noted that there would be no moratorium on additions.

GHI Audit Committee member Ray Stevens asked what happens if an application is disapproved. Rivers noted that there is an appeal process to the HPC. Gail Rothrock, Prince Georges County's Historic Preservation officer, said that an HPC decision has never been appealed to the courts, although it could be. She also noted the two-thirds vote required if the city opposes and the review by the LAC. When Stevens asked if there would be a public hearing, Rothrock responded that every HPC meeting is a public hearing.

Police Raid Still, Proprietor Shot

by James Giese

May 1944—A still was found in the woods off of Southway. Police and federal agents raided the still and observed a man leaving the area. Later, a vehicle was seen pulling out of the area and three police officers and one federal agent gave chase.

Near the entrance to the American Legion home, the driver pulled his car into the side of the police car and fled into the woods. As the police took up the chase, he reached for his hip. This caused all four officers to fire. One bullet punctured the 27-year old man's lung and broke two ribs. He was removed to Leland Hospital for treatment where police charged him with two offenses and federal officials later placed more serious charges against him. Another man was subsequently arrested.

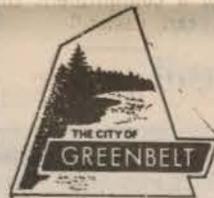

The man was from Washington. His car contained 600 pounds of war-rationed sugar, causing officials to undertake another investigation. The still could produce 25 to 30 gallons in a four hour period. The liquor could be sold for about $15 a gallon.

The still was first discovered by young Charles Landon, Jr. of Edmonston Road who, along with his mother, was looking for tomato plants at the dump when the boy noticed a path and followed it into the woods. He reported the discovery to Police Officer Buddy Attick. After Town Manager James T. Goebel, Chief George Panagoulis and Officers Attick, John Belton, and Robert Dodge visited the still, they called in federal officials.

The dump was the first town landfill. It was located in what became Greenbelt Park where the large open field near the entrance and first picnic grove now are located. At that time Greenbelt Road did not exist as such, and Southway extended to the west past the American Legion towards Branchville in the location that became Greenbelt Road.

HISTORIC DISTRICT

Levin then asked if it would take longer for simple things like shed approvals. Bram asked if there were cost implications. Berger said that there would be no added delays or cost implications.

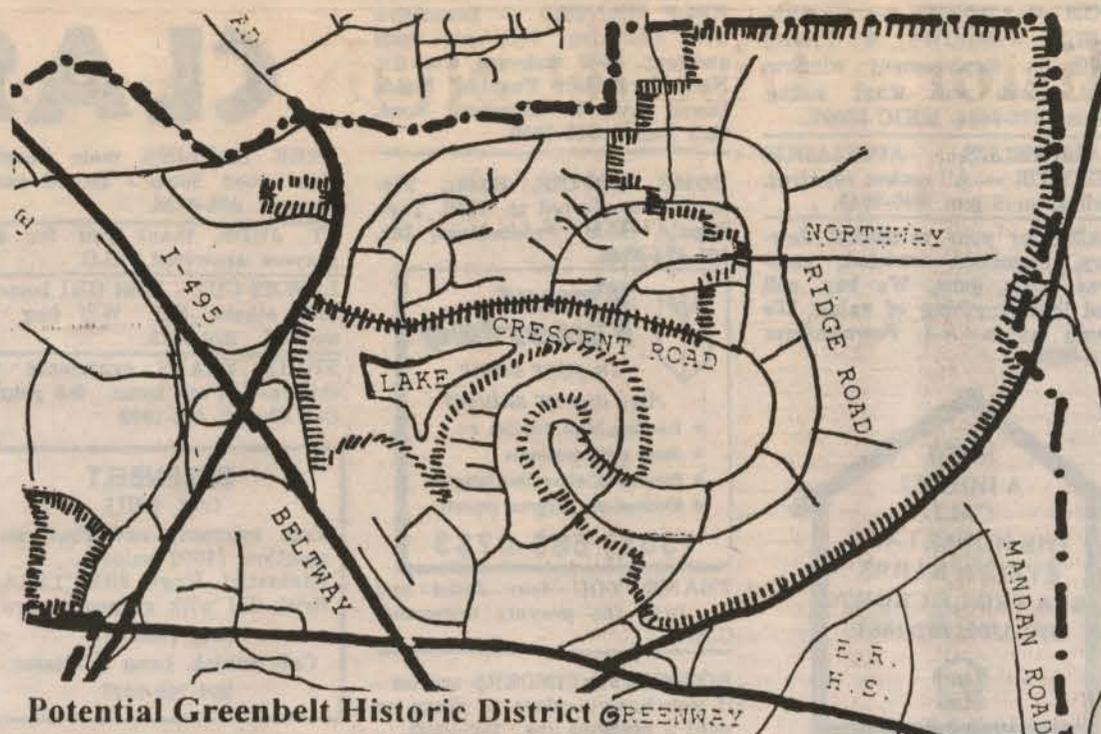

Advantages

GHI Boardmember John O'Boyle asked that the benefits and disadvantages be summarized. Berger listed three. The first two were that there would be an additional regulatory layer. As an advantage it would discourage work that would be detrimental to the historic district. As a disadvantage, it would limit the homeowners' rights to do with their property as they wish. The third would be financial incentives—the county tax credit program.

GHI General Manager Gretchen Overdurff asked what will happen to existing structures and additions that do not meet historic preservation guidelines. Berger advised that they would be grandfathered in.

James Maher of the GHI Architect and Environment Committee and a member of the study committee noted that routine GHI maintenance work during a year could receive blanket approval once the work program was established. This would avoid the necessity of submitting for review each time work was done.

GHI Boardmember William Phelan noted that there was support for the preservation of woodlands, parks, walkways and roads, but not for preserving the buildings. Is it possible to exclude the buildings from the requirements? Rothrock responded that the historic preservation ordinance is intended for the preservation of buildings. Council member Rodney Roberts said that he was very interested in the preservation of the buildings "It's part of the package."

Potential Greenbelt Historic District

GHI Boardmember Alan Turnbull noted that he had come to Greenbelt because it was the only affordable place that had appeal for him and his wife. As time goes by, he is optimistic that more people will come to value the architectural significance of these houses. He noted the efforts to be made to educate the public but asked how they could deal with the wishes of residents to make changes in the meantime. Berger suggested revising the Green Brook. Rivers suggested making people aware of the significance of the architecture. Rothrock suggested giving walking tours and getting more people to the museum.

GHI Audit Committee member Marsha Barrett asked why Schrom Hills Park and Greenbelt Park were not included in the district. Berger responded that they weren't considered and that Schrom Hills Park was outside Proposed boundaries the original community as conceived.

Next Step

The city councilmembers indicated that the report would be formally presented to the council at its next meeting. At that time it will probably be referred to city boards and committees and GHI for review and comment. Councilmembers indicated that they would rely on the GHI Board on this matter.

Councilmember Thomas White summarized the matter by expressing the hope that the "what's in it for me" mentality can be turned around. "I'm not kidding myself that there aren't political issues. The key is with the GHI Board. If GHI is willing to make a commitment the City Council can assist."

The View from Ridge Road

Returning

An internal clock set in childhood goes off early every summer. The alarm leaves me feeling lost and confused. Thereafter, my body can be found driving up to the light on Kenilworth, stretching in aerobics class, reaching for peanut butter in the kitchen, but my heart has been called to the water's edge. The longing is tangible; I could hand it to you.

It is time to be where my feet disappear under sand washed up by waves, with the familiar air that clears my thinking, adjusts my perspective and reminds me of another self inside. Living inland except for a week or two a year takes its toll on my soul. But there's one spot in the world that heals me, one that opens me up stem to stern, releasing secrets I forgot I knew until I stand on the sand dunes, inhale salty air, and look out to sea again. There, a young self calls to the older, weary, too-cynical one from the pounding surf. That voice holds authority over all the beaches I've waded in, sailed across, fished along, toasted sunsets to. Only one place releases me.

This, my husband says, is happening to him. We have returned to the bay where he vacationed as a boy. He knows the light here. The hill that winds into town and the yellow farmhouse his family rented are still here and comfort him because he knew them all before. I can see his spirit lift remembering what decades of travel, working, heartache and realization have not erased.

It takes time to get to know a place. Repeated visits create deep memories which can blend over time and absence, so that when we think back to the town, the winding roads, the crashing waves, the memories swirl together and become Place. Then Place becomes a touchstone and we need to get back to it, to find out if we've changed or if we've achieved at least some of the goals we gave ourselves.

He says, "You don't know how wonderful it feels to be here again. It's like being with an old friend." I smile. I know. He's absorbed and forgets he has watched me sit on the edge of the car seat, hand on the dashboard, window down to get the air in, hungry eyes devouring the reunion.

John takes us exploring every day, turning onto roads his parents never tried, taking us into towns he never saw when his parents were in charge of the vacation (and were tending to their own hearts' call). He takes our son out fishing in boats, perhaps getting another view of the peninsula, off-shore; perhaps planting seeds of Place in Michael's mind. By the look in John's eyes, he feels reacquainted, accepted by his old friend. And John has discovered his old self, although somewhat cluttered over by trendy restaurants, tee shirt boutiques and traffic.

Place is strong. It holds onto your dreams and keeps them for your return. Even as you are wondering if too much has happened to both of you, it recognizes you the minute you finally reappear on the hill.
