Candidates Speak Out On Traffic Calming Needs

In this final issue before the election, we publish the answers to the last of the six questions we posed to the seven candidates running for election to the city council. Responses were limited to 200 words and if a response exceeded that amount, it was cut off at the 200th word. Here are the answers to the fifth question:

In an effort to attack such problems as speeding and stop sign running, the city is installing speed bumps, roundabouts, bollards, bike lanes, and narrowing roadways. Do you support these measures? If so, where are they needed?

Edward V.J. Putens

Yes, I do support these "traffic calming" measures. As a Council member, I have voted for them. For example, the roundabout supported by Council for Hanover Parkway will help the new residents across from Schrom Hills Park to make safe left turns onto Hanover, currently a dangerous situation. The narrowing on Breezewood Drive makes the road safer, and attractive too.

Council has also supported other traffic safety measures, including the traffic light at Greenbelt and Mandan Roads and the guardrail on Greenbelt Road at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Just this week Council acted on the use of cameras at traffic lights to enforce those who "run" red-lights, all in the interest of pedestrian safety, especially for our children.

Such measures will not work everywhere. Speed bumps may help on some streets, but not others, and some people do not want them on their streets. Each street is different. We should consider traffic calming proposals on a case-by-case basis, with the initiative coming mainly from residents themselves. Contrary to the question, I do not regard bike lanes as a traffic calming device. I favor bike lanes where safety and roadway conditions permit, as part of a city-wide system.

Thomas X. White

Yes, I support the measures listed in your question to address speeding, ignoring of traffic signals and control devices by motor vehicles, and other measures to make Greenbelt a more pedestrian and bicycle friendly place.

In response to a similar question posed to the candidates in the 1997 City Council election, I indicated that:

"My objectives are to minimize the impact of motor vehicles in our neighborhoods and improve safety by applying Greenbelt concepts."

During the past two years, the city's traffic calming program has progressed with the design of a roundabout for Hanover Parkway at the entrance to Schrom Hills Park, a paved trail from Greenbrook Lake to the Schrom Hills Park, design and construction of traffic calming features on Breezewood Drive in Springhill Lake and the establishment of an annual Pedestrian Safety Month in June to bring attention to the issue.

If reelected, I will urge continued progress to finish Hanover Parkway; address specific neighborhood concerns that have been identified by the Boxwood, Lakewood and Lakeside communities; develop plans for actual construction of traffic calming devices for Cherrywood Lane; recommend automated cameras for enforcement of traffic signals at appropriate locations and move forward on the city's comprehensive trail.

Judith Davis

I fully support traffic calming devices which are warranted. (See QUESTION 5, page 20)

Almost 10,000 Registered To Vote in City Election

by Elaine Skolnik

The seven candidates competing for five seats on the Greenbelt City Council are winding up their campaigns this week and trying to spark voters' interest in next Tuesday's council election. On November 2, there will be 9,916 residents eligible to vote in the city's four precincts. Currently the population of Greenbelt is about 21,200.

It is expected that the turnout in the thirty-third city council election will be somewhat higher than the disappointing counts from the 1993, 1995 and 1997 elections. In 1993, only 24.5% of the 8,842 eligible voters trekked to the polls; in 1995, the results were a little better - 25.1% of 8,003 registered voters; but in 1997 only 21.5% of 9,722 registered voters cast ballots. Since city elections are held in off-presidential year contests, lower registration and turnouts are not unusual. Precinct 8's dismal voter turnouts during the foregoing years was a major factor in reducing the overall city's average voter turnout percentage.

Many Greenbelters yearn for the days when signs were permitted on lawns as constant reminders of an upcoming city election. Voluntary sign restrictions went into effect in 1991, encouraging candidates to display small signs on wooden poles at designated locations in various parts of the city.

At the close of voter registration this year, 9,916 city residents were eligible to vote in the upcoming council election. Greenbelt East's Precinct 13, with its 3,520 eligible voters, is the largest of the city's four precincts, followed by 2,471 registered voters in Center's Precinct 3, 2,119 in North End's Precinct 6 and 1,806 in Springhill Lake's Precinct 8. Only Precinct 6 showed a decrease in voter registration from 1997 (see chart).

The Greenbelt Connection Dial-A-Ride will be transporting voters free of charge to and from the polls next Tuesday between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Call 301-474-4100 for a ride. The bus will also make pickups at Green Ridge House at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. (see ad).

Election night reports and results will be televised around 9 p.m. on Channel B-10 after the polls close.

Upcoming Election Offers Up Subtle Shades of Differences

by James Giese

Ho hum, there's a city election coming up. At least to date, this year's race for the five seats on the city council seems to have sparked little excitement. All five incumbents plus two challengers are seeking election with the top five vote getters being declared the winners. And if tradition holds forth, the leading vote-getter will become mayor, although the charter places that decision in the hands of the five persons elected to the council. The mayor is a full member of council in Greenbelt, and has no special powers or duties other than being the chair of the council at its meetings.

So far, no strong issues or differences seem to have developed among the candidates. There are, however, subtle shades of difference that may be enough for some voters to pick one over the other. Personalities, which ones you like and which ones you don't like, will also be a factor. For some, votes on past issues will be important and how each candidate voted or might have voted.

Most observers of the political scene believe that all five of the incumbents will probably succeed in their reelection bids, and, if a challenger wins, it will be considered an upset. However, in the last election in 1997, the one candidate who failed to be elected lost by only 11 votes. If lack of interest on the part of voters results in poor turnout, surprising results are possible. Although recent history indicates that it is unusual for an incumbent not to be reelected, there have been occasions when an incumbent has lost a reelection bid.

Race for Mayor

For most of the candidates just getting elected to the council isn't enough. The race for mayor draws great interest as well. Since tradition dictates that the top vote-getter be elected mayor by the council and since each candidate hopes that he or she will be recognized as being the best representative of the electorate, the candidates work hard for every vote possible in hopes of grabbing the brass ring. While former mayors Gil Weidenfeld and Antoinette Bram enjoyed multiple terms as mayor, it has not always been that way, with the title switching among incumbents after each election. At the last election, four of the candidates were within four percentage points of each other in having the highest percentage of votes cast. A few votes changed one way or another could easily have affected the outcome.

The Challengers

Both challengers to the incumbents are making their first bid for city office. Robert Auerbach, a retired librarian and teacher, has been a longtime resident of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. and more recently Green Ridge House. He has been active in a variety of community organizations since 1963 including the Greenbelt Citizens for Fair Housing, the (See ELECTION, page 5)

Lower Student-to-Teacher Ratio Is Due to Grants

by Nelda Young

Grant money is being used to lower student to teacher ratios at Greenbelt Elementary School (GES). This announcement was made by Kathy Curl, principal, at a recent Advisory Committee on Education meeting at the school. Administrators and teachers spoke with enthusiasm about the programs currently being implemented at the school. Fifth and sixth grade math teacher Donna Sturgill, who said she has been at GES since "before water," expressed her excitement about the mathematics program there. She spoke highly of Dr. Gladys Whitehead's vision for Prince George's County and the rewriting of the scope, curriculum guides, and new text for math. (Dr. Whitehead is head of the Prince George's County School Math Department.)

Sturgill is pleased in particular that the lower grades now have fewer students per class and does not mind that her classes are full. If the students have a good foundation in the lower grades, she says, they will be ready for algebra in the sixth. She is a firm believer in teaching the basics, memorizing, practicing applications, solving real life applications (formerly called word problems), and connecting math to the real world.

Not to be outdone, Beth Stewart, science coordinator at GES, does not mind getting her hands dirty while teaching. Her students plant flowers and watch them grow besides solving problems. She said, "They love doing science projects; it's the parents that panic."

Reading Programs

Several special reading programs are used at GES. Literature Circles enhance the children's reading comprehension.

Reading Recovery is a 12 to 20-week program in which the teacher and student work together one-on-one for 30 minutes daily. Because of the amount of time allotted, only four children can be taken. Reading Recovery teacher Diane Eades told of a student progressing from knowing four letters at the beginning of the school year to being able to read (See ACE, page 11)

FLASH

The Greenish liquid that appeared earlier this week in the stream by the Braden Field tennis courts is not harmful. City Manager Michael McLaughlin reports that experts from the Maryland Department of Environmental Resources stated there is no need for concern. It is a dye and not a petroleum-based product. The liquid is expected to dissipate in time on its own. The city has been able to soak up some of the liquid which has made its way to the forebay of the lake.

Benefits of Telework

by Elaine Skolnik

"Telework - the Workplace of the Future...Is Here Today," a presentation prepared by the Maryland Department of Transportation (MDOT), will be shown on Greenbelt cable B-10 at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, November 2 and Thursday, November 4. Featured is an interview between former Greenbelt Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, MDOT's telework coordinator, and Bowie's former Mayor Gary Allen.

Although the program will be shown late on election day and the following Thursday, voters are urged to fill out the telework and city questionnaires at the polls or take them home to be returned later to the City Office, 25 Crescent Road.

Telework means working from a home (telecommuting) office, a telework center or a satellite office. In his presentation Weidenfeld emphasizes the benefits of telework to the public, the employee, and the employer. Telework, he said, benefits the public by reducing traffic congestion, motor vehicle consumption and energy consumption. Neighborhood security is also enhanced because of the presence of teleworkers who remain at home during the day.

Weidenfeld pointed out that employees benefit from telework by reducing their commuting time and costs, by increasing productivity, morale and job satisfaction, by balancing job and family responsibilities, and by improving their ability to manage job priorities.

Employers' benefits from implementing telework opportunities for their employees include a reduction in office space and costs, an increase in employee productivity, morale and commitment and an improvement in their ability to attract and retain employees.

Telework reduces requests for sick leave and complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

In Maryland, telework has been recognized by the governor and the state legislature. Maryland Delegate Joan Pitkin, who represents Greenbelt and Bowie, sponsored bills that led to the establishment of telework programs for state agencies. MDOT's mission is to promote telework programs for the state, the private sector and local government organizations.

Weidenfeld noted that "MDOT expects to eliminate eight million vehicle trips annually on our roadways through teleworking within four years. This will result in 200 million fewer vehicle miles driven during commuter hours each year."

For more information call Weidenfeld at 1-410-865-1281.

New Deal Café Needs Your Help

You know the story. Stone soup. You know how it goes. You take a big pot of water, and put the stone in it and push the pot toward the back of the stove.

Eventually, someone says, "You know, the soup would taste better if it had an onion," and someone produces an onion. Into the pot it goes!

Similarly with potatoes, carrots, peas, beef, etc. That's how you make stone soup.

The New Deal Café is making stone soup. They're shutting down for three weeks starting October 24 so they can "put all our efforts" in the NEW New Deal Café in the Roosevelt Center. The problem is the New Deal Café has no money other than the approximately $7,000 they've raised so far.

The facility they have has no tables, no major appliances, and most importantly, no stoves. The New Deal has been told that the minimum kitchen they need will cost $45,000, to say nothing of furniture, tables, etc. If you can help the New Deal Café come "Back to the Center," please call 301-474-5642.

Greenbelt Peace Committee and the Greenbelt Greens. Most recently he has been active in the opposition to the Parkside annexation and in the Committee to Conserve and Restore Indian Creek.

Kelby Brick, the other challenger is an attorney who resides with his wife and six-month old son in Greenwood Village in Greenbelt East. He is a member of the Greenbelt Public Safety Advisory Committee. As a former board member for the Maryland Association of the Deaf and as legal counsel for the National Association of the Deaf he has been a civic and rights advocate for these associations.

The Incumbents

Judith Davis, a recently retired sixth-grade school teacher, is completing her third term on the city council and first term as its mayor. A resident of Greenbriar since 1975, Davis is a past director of Greenbriar Phase 1, member and chair of the Greenbelt Advisory Planning Board, and carnival chair for the Labor Day Festival Committee. Prior to her election to council she served on the Advisory Planning Board for ten years and as its chair for five years.

Thomas White has served on the city council longer than any other person in Greenbelt's history. He is completing his 13th term. White has been Mayor pro tem four times, including this current term. The mayor pro tem, by tradition, is the councilmember who received the second largest number of votes in the city election. White has never been elected mayor, however. A medical technologist, White is associate vice-president for a pharmaceutical research and manufacturers association. A resident of Greenbelt since 1959, he and his wife Helen raised seven children here. He has been active in GHI as a boardmember and committee member and was a boardmember and founder of the Save Our Community Committee.

Edward Putens, a manager with the Food and Drug Administration has lived in Greenbelt with his wife and three children for 32 years in three different homes in different neighborhoods. Currently completing his ninth term on council he resides in Greenbrook subdivision. He was the first person elected to the council from Greenbelt East where he was a co-founder of the Greenbelt East Advisory Coalition. Putens is a former chair of the Community Relations Advisory Board, former board member of the Windsor Green Homeowners Association and is current president of the Greenbrook Estates Homeowners Association.

In the last election, Rodney Roberts placed last among the four incumbents seeking reelection. However, he was only 84 votes behind the leading candidate. A change in voting by just 42 voters could have changed the election outcome.

Roberts is a Greenbelt native of 41 years who is currently serving his fourth term. He owns and operates his own small business specializing in on-site repairs of vehicles and equipment. A resident of GHI, he first became active in city affairs as a leader in the Committee to Save the Greenbelt, which sought to have the city buy and preserve as open space Parcels 1 and 2.

Alan Turnbull won his election to a first term on council in 1997 by beating out Konrad Herling by just 11 votes for the fifth slot on the council. Political observers will be interested to observe how he will do in his second election campaign, now that he is an incumbent.

A native Prince Georgian, Turnbull first came to Greenbelt as a student at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Now a resident for nine years in GHI with his wife and 14 month-old daughter, he is a planner for the River and Trails Conservation Program of the National Park Service in Washington. Prior to seeking council office, he served on the GHI board of directors where he was also president at one time, on the Advisory Planning Board, and as a founder of the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition and the New Deal Cafe.

Greenbelt.COM Update

by Patty Merryman

At its 3rd annual membership meeting on June 8, members of the Greenbelt Internet Access Cooperative (GIAC) (greenbelt.com) filled six vacancies on the board of directors. Newly-elected were Dan Andrews, Ed James (one-year term), Gilbert Lee, Neil McLeod, Shawn O'Neil and Norma Van Allen. Founder Doug Love was honored as GIAC Member of the Year.

At the annual Board meeting immediately following, Directors appointed officers for the upcoming year. The newly-elected officers were Brian Schieber, president; Gilbert Lee, vice-president; Bill Dupree, secretary; and Doug Love, acting treasurer. Volunteers were also appointed to fill principal roles and committees.

Since the annual meetings, a number of important role and organizational changes have occurred. The Schiebers moved away from Greenbelt, leaving the office of president vacant; Peggy Bates was elected treasurer; the Volunteer Incentive Program (VIP) was discontinued, and most routine administrative and technical duties were outsourced. The role of system administrator remains vacant.

Anyone interested in helping GIAC fulfill its mission by filling one of the important leadership roles of president or system administrator should contact the cooperative at 301-614-8545 or giac@greenbelt.com. No special technical skills or experience are required for either position, just time and enthusiasm. Transitional orientation and support (from former principals) will be provided. A full description of the goals and activities of the cooperative may be found online at <www.greenbelt.com/giac>.

Candidates Offer Solutions for Unclogging Area Highways

Here are the answers to question six from the seven candidates running for city council:

The City has opposed widening Edmonston Road to Sunnyside Avenue and the Inter-County Connector, yet the highways that criss-cross Greenbelt are increasingly congested. What should the city do to seek relief from our clogged arteries?

Edward V.J. Putens
As with the Inter-County Connector, the answer to clogged arteries is not a bypass operation! Our main roads are crowded, but let's not make the problem worse. Widening Edmonston would alleviate some north-south traffic congestion, but also encourage drivers to use Kenilworth Avenue/Edmonston Road instead of the BW Parkway or Route 95. Edmonston would soon be clogged. This would also mean more vehicles on Greenbelt Road, Crescent, Cherrywood, and other streets as more drivers seek access to Edmonston.

We have made significant changes. Examples: State highway improvements on Kenilworth, at Council insistence; intersection widening at Hanover Parkway and Greenbelt Road; eliminating the dangerous left turn from Greenway Center onto Hanover.

There are no easy solutions, but we can do more. Let's focus on the safety of pedestrians and cyclists, such as by creating an overpass across Kenilworth at Crescent. We also need better coordination of traffic lights. One gradual solution is encouraging changes in driving habits. We can expand use of the Greenbelt Connection, and "The Bus" to and from Metro. We can support mass transit oriented development around Metro. We can encourage telecommuting, as a way to earn a living without driving to the office every day.

Thomas X. White
Greenbelt's location at the juncture of several State and Federally maintained highways is at the same time a blessing and a curse. They provide us with good access to points north, south, east and west.

I believe that we have reached the saturation point for paved highways devoted primarily to single occupant, gas-powered vehicles. Greenbelt's relief from gridlock depends upon Prince George's County, Maryland State Highway Administration, Maryland Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration and the National Park Service making a radical change from the current culture that places such a premium on more paved lanes for automobiles, to a more rational, environmentally sound and economic approach for the movement of people and goods.

Remnants of this outmoded culture include the so-called Intercounty Connector, the proposed extension of Md. Route 201 (Kenilworth Ave.) to meet that Connector, and now the recently proposed dumb idea to build a full interchange on the Beltway to serve a fantasy mall development on the Greenbelt Metro site.

To the extent that these pro development facilities cause adverse environmental, safety, economic and Quality of life impacts for Greenbelt and its citizens, I will continue my strong advocacy for a saner policy and smarter solutions.

Judith F. Davis
The city must remain constantly vigilant to any proposed road improvements. Some actually would relieve traffic congestion at specific intersections, but many large projects recently proposed, such as the Inter-County Connector and the extension of Kenilworth Avenue, would increase the likelihood of inappropriate development, harm environmentally-sensitive areas, and would funnel a great deal more traffic onto local roads. Our main artery, Greenbelt Road, is a state highway, under the jurisdiction of the State Highway Administration.

To combat gridlock, Council members must be involved at all levels of government to make our concerns known, to network with other leaders, to locate and create coalitions of like-minded elected officials and citizens' groups. Council and staff must actively participate in planning workshops and sector planning groups. Through what we do in Greenbelt, we can be a model for other jurisdictions.

We must keep Greenbelt's environmental and quality-of-life goals and priorities always in the forefront and in the public eye. It is a never-ending, difficult battle. The City, with leadership of its Council and the support of its citizens, needs to remain focused, determined, and persistent. It is our safety, our future, and our legacy we protect.

Kelby Brick
(continuation of joint answer for questions 5 and 6)

One such possibility is the use of regional telecommuting centers that can be used by workers of different employers. Even without the use of such a center, I am able to spend more than half of my time on the job telecommuting from home. Telecommuting centers make the technology which makes this possible available to more workers. Part of the council's work in supporting such centers should include outreach to local and regional employers to encourage and convince them to take advantage of the technology.

Another area for addressing congestion is as simple as doing more to promote public transportation. THE BUS system has already started a route in Greenbelt but the route and schedule have not been well publicized. We also need to offer other incentives for public transportation such as having commuter shops (i.e., florists, and dry-cleaners) next to metro stops. The Metro purple line proposal (connecting the green line to the red line around the beltway) deserves a closer look as many people do travel along the beltway to and from work.

Alan Turnbull
Widening roads and building new roads doesn't solve traffic problems (if they did, Los Angeles would be paradise). Trying to fix roads by enlarging them just makes room for more cars and leaves us with even uglier and more dangerous roads. Greenbelt must seek practical, "green" solutions instead: preferential carpool parking at Metro... easier information about bus routes... improved signal timing... free The Bus service for City residents. Only the County can address the root cause of congestion by putting the brakes on the vast, scattershot developments being built all around us. All of that new sprawl forces its residents onto our roads because there are no viable walking, biking, or transit options for the people who live there - and no neighborhood-oriented shopping and services, either. The problem is bigger than Greenbelt, and we shouldn't let anyone pave over us in a misguided attempt to solve it.

Rodney M. Roberts
This question should be what should we, as citizens, do to seek relief from our clogged arteries. Studies of the ICC show that if it were built, it would provide no real relief for the Beltway. Unfortunately, the City of Greenbelt has no planning and zoning authority so we can't control the root cause of traffic congestion, too much poorly planned, auto-dependent development. There are some things we can do within Greenbelt. The City should purchase the Sunrise Property on Hanover Parkway to provide needed parkland in Greenbelt East and preclude more traffic on Hanover Parkway.

Bob S. Auerbach
It is true that congestion is increasing in and around Greenbelt. The solution is not more and wider streets and highways. The solution is to discourage the use of cars and encourage numerous alternate methods of transportation. Buses and bicycles are the most practical of these alternatives within Greenbelt. Quite a few buses serve Greenbelt especially the three systems: Metro, the Greenbelt Connection and the new The Bus. We must work for free rides on all three bus systems. Our city should subsidize every bus line.

More important than free rides is frequent and reliable service. All buses must be modern, clean, comfortable and wheelchair accessible. Shelters are needed at each bus stop. But even with shelters and benches it is no fun to wait for a bus that never comes. Frequency and reliability are the two key words.

If buses are to be frequent and reliable and free where is the money to pay for all the buses and drivers? The answer is parking meters or permits. They are a big source of revenue for most cities in the United States. Let's have them here.

City Gets County Grants For Art, Therapy, Center

by Sandy Smith and Barry Bernstein

During the Greenbelt City Council meeting October 11, county grants to local organizations were announced. The new Greenbelt Arts Coordinator addressed the council and City Clerk David Moran provided an update on the approaching city elections. The council also made a decision in favor of an additional questionnaire dealing with telework to be given to voters at the polls on November 2.

County councilmember Audrey Scott announced grants to Greenbelt for Fiscal Year 2000, including $35,000 (up $10,000 from the previous year) for the Greenbelt Community Center, $12,000 for Greenbelt art programs and services, and another $12,000 for therapeutic recreation. The Community Development Block Grants program authorized $99,000 for Springhill Lane street/sidewalk improvements. City nonprofit groups, including the Advisory Committee on Education, Greenbelt Concert Band, Greenbelt CARES Youth Services Bureau, Community Ministry, and other groups which support arts and youth in the community, received more than $27,000. Council and staff thanked Scott for her work on behalf of the city.

"You've been very helpful to our community... I am looking forward to this Thursday (Lakewood Storm Drainage Project picnic) when city council can thank you in person," Mayor Judith Davis said.

Scott also noted that a letter given to all nonprofit organizations receiving funding should return the 501(C)3 form given by the IRS in order to receive funding.

"Last year, $4,000 was not given out because a group did not return the form," Scott said.

Arts Coordinator

Nicole DeWald is the city's new Arts Coordinator. Hank Irving, director of recreation, introduced DeWald and said that in this new position DeWald will be responsible for directing a broad-based community program in the arts. He mentioned her wide-ranging education and experience covering teaching, arts programming, gallery management, and grantsmanship; she has a master of fine arts from the University of Maryland. DeWald expressed her enthusiasm for and interest in Greenbelt and congratulated the city in creating this new position to support the arts in the community.

"I wish to congratulate you (City of Greenbelt) in starting this position," DeWald said.

"We are looking forward to you being here... all the art programs in the (city) work well, but we needed someone to bring it all together," Mayor Davis said.

Election Update

City Clerk David Moran gave a brief update on the upcoming city elections. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on November 2. Seven candidates have declared for the City Council elections and voter registration is now closed. The Board of Elections will provide information to voters. Moran reminded Greenbelters that voting stations are different in this election than those used in the general election.

Absentee ballots are available on for those people who cannot attend on election day. Interested people can come to the city office with their name, address, the reason why they want an absentee ballot. The ballot must be completed by noon on November 1.

Telework Questionnaire

Council unanimously approved a request by Gil Weidenfeld, former mayor and councilmember, to place an additional questionnaire dealing with telework at the voting stations on November 2. Involved in promoting telework-ing in the state, Weidenfeld currently works for the Maryland Department of Transportation. He requested that the city show the video of his interview with Bowie Mayor Gary Allen. The video, which was produced for the Bowie Cable Network, dealt with "Telework of Maryland." Weidenfeld suggested it would be appropriate to show the video on Telework America Day on Wednesday, October 27.

"Not Now, Darling" to Play at Theatre

by Laurie Hardman and Kim Kash

The doings up on the fourth floor at Bodley, Bodley and Crouch Furriers, are outrageous, darling! Ray Cooney and John Chapman's "Not Now, Darling," a riotous, oh-so-fluffy comedy opens at the Greenbelt Arts Center November 5 and runs week-ends until November 20.

The play is set in the late 1960s in the private 4th floor salon of Bodley, Bodley and Crouch, an exclusive London West-end furrier with an esteemed reputation. The salon is plush, with a liquor closet big enough for a case or two of bubbly and some half-dressed models besides. Partners Bodley and Bodley are husband, Gilbert, and wife, Maude, who have been married for twenty years. Arnold Crouch, the third partner, is a bona fide, straight-laced bachelor. Working together for fourteen years, the partners have established their business relationships, but they also have picked up a few personal quirks along the way. To Arnold's dismay, Gilbert has a roving eye and continuously forms "associations" with various salon models and customers right under his wife's nose. Arnold, on the other hand, tries to turn a blind eye to Gilbert's behavior so he can live contentedly in his safe little world and admire his one true love in secret. All this comes to an uproarious halt when Arnold is left to sort out Gilbert's latest philandering escapades. Madcap mistaken identities and unexpected guests send Arnold scurrying in order to maintain order in the midst of chaos. Gilbert is on the run to save his skin, but Maude has a few surprises of her own.

The production is directed by Keith Brown and produced by Laurie Hardman. The cast features Jim Adams, Jeff Landou, Tracy Collier, Rachel Zirkin, Millie Ferrara, Patrick Ready, Eugenia Sorgnit, Charles Shapiro, Carissa Price, David Dieudonne and Allison Payne. First Friday Movie To Be Iron Giant

by Larry Hilliard

St. Hugh's school parents have organized a First Friday Movie Club (FFMC) that takes advantage of monthly half days, the school's proximity to the theater, and theater operator Paul Sanchez's willingness to bring in some family-oriented films. Building a new generation of "Greenbelt Theater-Goers" who can't wait to see quality films at our local theater will pay off in the long run. The home school community has also taken advantage of the FFMC dates and other school days where the children are looking for an after-school special event to hold additional promise.

The First Friday Movie Club feature for November 5 at 1:30 p.m. will be The Iron Giant. This movie has more than enough imagination and sparkle to interest kids and adults, and it nicely balances its action-adventure aspirations with a solidly-crafted sense of moral purpose.

Thanks to the parents who helped out as FFMC chaperones on October 1. We had 77 go through the turnstiles for Muppets in Space.

The first (March 5, 1998) First Friday Movie, Space Jam, drew 55 St. Hugh's parents and school children and coverage from the Greenbelt Gazette, photos in the Greenbelt News Review, and same day coverage on the FOX 5 10:00 News. They had pizza, soda, popcorn . . . and, most of all, a great time!

Montpelier Displays Artists Work

An exhibit of paintings of human figure as done by Jo Weiss Le, Diane Hollowell, and Barbara Barrett will be on exhibit in the Montpelier Cultural Arts Center's Library Gallery from November 3 through December 28. A public reception to honor the artists is scheduled for Friday, November 12 from 7 - 9 p.m.

These three artists have been meeting every week since 1991.

They originally came together along with others who have since moved on, to share the cost of a model. Their meetings also gave them the opportunity to explore ideas together and to work on larger projects. It offers an unusual opportunity for the viewer to examine three different stylistic approaches to the same thing — not only the same model but oftentimes to the same pose as well.

Parent volunteer Mike Mullaney waits for the First Friday Movie Club showing of Muppets in Space with Peter Carrera, Tim Mullaney, and Nathaniel Carrera.

Safety:

Very unfortunately, the number of assaults in Greenbelt has doubled in the past five years, and the number of rapes over the same period has increased by over 400%. We have the right to feel safe and secure within our own home community, and it is the duty of our City Council to make sure this happens.

We need to bring attention to these numbers and the underlying problems contributing to the general rise in crime in Greenbelt, and develop strategies that will reduce crime. We also need to work with other communities outside of Greenbelt to reduce crime in the whole region.

We need to involve the whole community in facing this problem. However, crime is not the only safety issue facing Greenbelt. There are other safety issues that need to be addressed. They include fire safety, environmental safety, emergency evacuation planning among others.

Education:

Schools in Greenbelt score among the lowest in the state on standardized tests, and our schools need the attention of the City Council such that they may work toward a goal of constant refinement and improvement. Our schools need to implement newer and more innovative curricula so that our children can succeed in this rapidly changing world.

The City Council needs to be more active in the area of education. To date, the council has adopted an attitude of benign neglect; there have been no innovative plans to improve education.

The Environment:

Greenbelt is widely known for its preservation of the environment. This is one of the things that makes Greenbelt special. One of the broader solutions for the environment is increasing the use of public transportation. Kelby Brick is a strong proponent of using the Metro system for transportation. He uses the Metro to travel to work. Access to public transportation for Greenbelt citizens needs to be improved.

There have been discussions on developing the wetlands owned by Metro and building a huge mall. Brick questions why we are talking about building new malls on green land when there are already other paved properties that can be demolished and rebuilt or renovated instead. This includes the New Carrollton and Landover Malls. It makes more sense to make over currently developed properties to meet the needs of local residents, instead of using environmentally valuable wetlands to build new commerce centers.

Property Values:

Brick's analysis of the safety, education, and environmental problems that currently face Greenbelt concludes that these are large contributors to the underlying reasons for stagnating property values in a booming real estate market. By addressing the cure for the disease, true improvement will occur. When safety, education, and environmental issues are successfully addressed, then the world at large will hold Greenbelt in higher esteem - and property values will no longer stay flat.

Scholar Recognition for ERHS Seniors

Maryland's best and brightest high school seniors were honored at Villa Julie College on Saturday, Sept. 18, when the college hosted Distinguished Scholar Recognition Day. The day-long program was sponsored by the Maryland Higher Education Commission.

The program featured performances and exhibits by some of the state's most talented high school students, workshops on financial aid, opportunities for students to learn about Maryland colleges and universities, and a recognition ceremony hosted by the Secretary of Higher Education, Patricia S. Florestano.

Invited were seniors who have qualified as finalists and semi-finalists in the Distinguished Scholar program, which offers students a $3,000-per-year scholarship for up to four years as an incentive to go to college in Maryland.

Students apply as juniors; to qualify, they must have a grade point average of at least 3.7 on a 4.0 scale or demonstrate superior creative or performing talent. National Merit and National Achievement finalists are offered Distinguished Scholar scholarships automatically.

This year scholarships were offered to 356 achievement finalists and 79 talent finalists. Scholarships are over-awarded because, historically, some finalists decide to go to college outside Maryland. Scholarships not accepted by finalists are offered to semifinalists. Distinguished Scholars from Eleanor Roosevelt High School are:

ERHS Students Excel in County SAT Scores

by Mary Moien

Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) seniors continued to earn the highest Scholastic Achievement Test (SAT) scores in the county last year. Data released by the Prince George's County school system showed ERHS test takers averaging 538 points in verbal and 538 in math for a combined score of 1076 out of a possible 1600.

During the 1998-99 school year, the average score for seniors throughout the county was 889. ERHS students' scores were higher than both the state average (1014) and the national average (1016). The ERHS scores represent a steady increase from 1055 in the 1996-97 school year and 1070 in 1997-98. However, the scores are slightly lower than the mid-decade scores at ERHS of 1078 in 1994-95.

County Characteristics

Scores by student gender and race were available only for the entire county, not by individual school. Boys outscored girls, 902 to 879, due to higher math scores by the boys.

African Americans, whites and Asian/Pacific Islanders were the three major racial groups in the county who took the test. Although scores in the county were higher for whites than for African Americans, the latter group compared favorably with state and national averages. County African American seniors had an average score of 849, only slightly behind the state and national African American averages of 857 and 856 respectively.

White county seniors, with an average score of 1083, surpassed both the state average (1079) and the national average (1055) for white students.

Asian/Pacific Islander seniors, with the smallest numbers of the three major racial groups taking the test, did not compare as favorably with the state and national scores. Their county combined score was 1013, compared with 1097 for the state and 1058 for the nation for their group.

Questionnaires at Polls Seek Feedback from Voters

by James Giese

Two questionnaires will be available to voters to complete after they cast their votes for members of the Greenbelt City Council at the polls on November 2. There will be tables at each precinct with copies of the questionnaires, pens or pencils and boxes in which to place completed forms. Those wishing to complete the questionnaires (voluntary, and not related to the official city election) may do so by completing the forms at the polls.

Besides the boxes at the polls, respondents may take or mail their completed questionnaires to the city offices at 25 Crescent Road. Poll workers are expected to remind voters after casting their ballots that they can fill out questionnaires but should not try to pressure anyone to do so, council directed.

City Questionnaire

The city questionnaire, also printed in the News Review, has been a tradition at city elections for over 25 years. It is used primarily to encourage voters to evaluate the quality of city services. This year's will be no different. After a short section to obtain demographic and work travel information, it asks for evaluation of services.

To be evaluated this year are public safety, public works, community development (code enforcement), recreation and Greenbelt CARES (social services). Evaluation of two non-city services are also sought — cable television (private, but city-franchised) and education (Prince George's County Board of Education). The city is also asking voters and others to give general comments about what they like best (and least) about Greenbelt and what improvements they would like to see in public works, police services, and recreation. Other questions deal with the use of the Internet and the city website www.ci.greenbelt.md.us.

Telework Questionnaire

Former Mayor Gil Weidenfeld got council agreement to approve a second questionnaire dealing with telework. Weidenfeld, who is telework coordinator for the Maryland Department of Transportation (MDOT), but was appearing as a private citizen, told council that the difference between telecommuting and telework was that while both involved work through computer and telephone connection away from the office, telecommuting meant working at a person's home while a teleworker could be working either at home or a nearby workstation. The purpose of either, however, is to avoid commuting to an employee's office.

Weidenfeld noted the significant reduction in traffic during rush hours during the summer months because many commuters are on vacation. Similar results can be achieved by people working at or near their homes one or more days a week. (Weidenfeld, himself works at his home one day a week, avoiding a commute to MDOT at Baltimore-Washington Airport.) He told council that 50% of all workers in the metropolitan Washington area are information workers, and that it didn't matter at what location they worked.

Telework not only reduces traffic congestion and the need to build roads, Weidenfeld said, it also reduces pollution and increases the quality of life for employees by enabling them to have more time with their families.

Council agreed to make the questionnaire available at the polls after Weidenfeld agreed to arrange for someone other than the city to do the tabulation.

The telework questionnaire is intended to be completed by those voters who work, whether regular, self-employed, temporary or contract workers. Questions relate to location of work, method of transportation and distance in miles and times of daily commutes.

Respondents are asked if they either presently telecommute or are interested in doing so. They are also asked if they favor state legislation to provide financial incentives to promote telework and if they favor the city council's promoting of telework.

While the election questionnaires are not a statistically accurate method for gauging the opinions of Greenbelters, they are looked at with interest by city officials. It is felt that the surveys represent the thinking of members of the community who are most interested in the manner in which the city is governed — those who not only take the time to vote, but who also are willing to express their opinions by filling out the questionnaires.

words by mid-October. Reading specialist Cynthia Hall works with the teachers on these programs.

Talented and Gifted (TAG) Coordinator Monica Pittman (who is also the school librarian) helps the teachers in a TAG pilot program. Begun this year, both TAG and other students are exposed to TAG lessons tiered for each grade level. Greenbelt Elementary School is one of nine schools participating in this pilot program.

Crisis Intervention Counselor Cici Cardano says she now has a time out room where disruptive children can finish their work.

Computer Learning

GES is ready for the 21st century; it is now connected to the Internet by Ethernet T-1 wiring. The school has 47 MacIntosh II Ci's "souped up" computers, that are the only ones in the school which are Internet capable, in the computer lab. The Dell 486s that were in the lab are now in the classrooms. The LC2 computers have been put in the kindergarten classrooms. Also the school has 12 Pentium computers which were acquired last year. Currently 15 more Pentiums are on order, which are paid for by a Technology in Maryland (TIM) grant.

With parental permission students will use the computers to do research, writing assignments, and some statistics. Teachers themselves have to learn how to use the new computers before they can help the students. That's no problem. The Technology Literacy Challenge Fund pays for one third and one fifth grade teacher to attend a three-hour class each month. GES also received funding from Technology in Maryland Schools.

GES is not all work and no play. Field trips are learning experiences, and GES students go out frequently. The principal actively encourages these events. Once, after a field trip, when the subject of landmarks came up, a student proudly announced, "I know what a landmark is; I saw the Washington Monument."

The Arts

Thanks to Greenbelt's County Council Representative Audrey Scott, Greenbelt received a $2,000 grant for the Greenbelt Arts Center and two schools, one of which is GES. By writing skits and performing, the students practice their written and oral skills plus gaining confidence in themselves. On Greenbelt Day they plan to perform a play at the Arts Center that they have written.

Another performing group is Leslie Bird's fifth and sixth grade chorus, The Troublemakers. In participation with Partners Around the World, they plan to present social performances this year, perhaps at Children's Hospital.

A big effort is being made by the school to get the parents involved in their children's education. Testing Coordinator Chontell Richardson spoke of the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program (MSPAP) nights that will be held monthly at GES this year. At these meetings suggestions are made for enrichment projects that parents and children can do together at home to help their children to be successful on the MSPAP. The next meeting is scheduled for November 16.

RE-ELECT ED PUTENS to CITY COUNCIL

Dear Greenbelt Voters,

As we approach another City election, we have both continuity and change. When elected in 1981, I was the new kid on the block; now 18 years later, I'm one of the senior members on Council. It seems like only a few years ago, but I notice that my children are much bigger than they were then and I find myself looking up, rather than kneeling down to talk to them.

Over these 18 years, Greenbelt has built a reputation as a successful and well managed City. This reflects our impatience to keep improving and making things better. We have held up under difficult financial times and have still managed to move forward with the Community Center, the renovation of the Roosevelt Center, and so many other accomplishments. A lot of credit goes to our dedicated and hard working employees. We have held off some of the crime problems affecting neighboring areas, thanks to new ideas and the best police department in both the County and the State. Your support has made this all possible.

I have been honored to serve you over this time. I hope I have earned your trust, and ask for your support again on November 2nd.

STILL WORKING.FOR YOU!

Biographies of Candidates

The biographies of the candidates are reprinted below for the benefit of voters. Biographies were prepared by the candidates.

Alan Turnbull

Alan Turnbull is a native Prince Georgian who first came to Greenbelt as a student at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Alan and Wendy have made a home here for nine years - first in University Square apartments, and currently in a GHI home on Ridge Road. Daughter Barbara is 14 months old.

Turnbull works as a planner for the National Park Service in Washington. In the agency's Rivers and Trails Conservation Assistance program, he works with an 80-person nationwide effort that helps communities identify their natural and cultural assets and devise ways to protect them from development.

Before being elected to the City Council two years ago, Turnbull was active in Greenbelt Homes Inc. (GHI), a 1600-unit housing cooperative with a $7 million annual budget. He served the GHI community as president and vice-president while on the Board, and also was elected to the Audit Committee. He has served on the City's Advisory Planning Board, was a member and chair of the Greenbelt Recycling Advisory Committee, and was instrumental in founding the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition. In addition, Alan and Wendy were among the initial founders of the New Deal Café.

Turnbull is a gubernatorial appointee to the Maryland Heritage Areas Authority, a State commission that administers a program to conserve and promote historic and natural resource areas managed by local governments. (Greenbelt is part of one such area, the Anacostia Trails Heritage Area, currently taking shape in northern Prince George's.)

Turnbull has volunteered personal time and effort on regional issues including opposition to the USDA Sunnyside project; the defeat of the Inter-county Connector; and as an environmental representative on a county task force examining ways to manage growth and economic development in Prince George's County.

Graduating with honors from the University of Maryland, College Park in 1987, Turnbull earned a bachelor's degree in geography and won that department's Anderson Award. His hobbies (prior to fatherhood and the City Council) included bicycling, backpacking, home improvement, gardening and playing the mandolin and bass.

He was elected to the GHI board of directors, the GHI Audit Committee, and served as the treasurer of GHI. He was one of the founders of the Greenbelt Save Our Community Committee (SOCC), a citizen organization that was instrumental in preventing the location of a planned three school complex on Parcel I west of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, an action which ultimately led to the city's open space acquisition of both parcels I and 2.

White grew up in Washington, graduated from Gonzaga College High School and attended Georgetown University for one year before enlisting in the U. S. Navy and serving for five years as a Medical Corpsman. In 1959, he enrolled at the University of Maryland, and moved with his family to Greenbelt. Kelby Brick Kelby Brick is an attorney who has been active in numerous civic and rights advocacy organizations. This is his first campaign for election to office. He is a member of the Greenbelt Public Safety Advisory Committee, a former Board Member of the Maryland Association of the Deaf (MDAD) and currently works as legal counsel for Government Affairs to the National Association of the Deaf (NAD), the oldest and largest organization representing people with disabilities in the United States.

Brick graduated from Gallaudet University (in Washington, DC) with a BA in government and went on to Temple University Law School (in Philadelphia) becoming the first deaf person ever to graduate from that law school.

As Legal Counsel, Brick represents the NAD chiefly in the areas of education, rehabilitation, employment, and transportation through interaction with legislative and public policy issues. This includes working with Congress and other federal agencies as well as numerous other civic organizations. Specializing in legislation, rule-making and policy processes, Brick's duties also involve coordinating collaborative efforts of key organizations representing consumers, parents, educators, administrators, and other professionals.

When Brick was on the board for MDAD, he supervised state-wide advocacy efforts initiating and maintaining ongoing contacts with key players in state legislative and public policy affairs. His accomplishments include the enactment of new state legislation requiring hearing screening for all infants born in Maryland and therefore enabling parents early on to be better informed on the needs of their children.

He is, additionally, an active member of the Consumer Action Network and the Coalition of Organizational Representatives. Brick has proven adept at bringing communities together to effect regulatory and legislative changes at the state and national levels. Furthermore, he has been called upon by groups across the country to speak and conduct workshops on a variety of issues including public policy, community empowerment and activism. - FREE RIDES ON ALL BUS LINES that serve Greenbelt. Make all buses safe, clean, comfortable and above all frequent and reliable. Pay for extra buses with parking meters and permits. At Greenbelt Lake care from outside Greenbelt help fill the parking lot on weekends and July fourth.
- CONSERVE AND RESTORE INDIAN CREEK. (See my large ad on last page.)
- ADDITIONAL BIKE PATHS, walkways and pedestrian crossings. Install calming and detection devices. Promote car sharing and a bridge over Kenilworth.
- CHOICE VOTING SYSTEM for Council elections. This is also called preferential voting and proportional representation. Vote 1,2,3 etc. This will end block voting and will attract more and better candidates.
- DOUBLE THE SALARY of our mayor and councilors. The mayor now receives $6,000 per year and the councilors $5,000 each. Doubling the salaries will cost the city $26,000 more each year. This not much when one considers that the annual budget is over $15,000,000 per year. Members of Council often spend several nights a week on city business. In recent years almost all councilors have been older, single or have no young children to care for. Let us make it possible for those with low incomes to serve on Council.

The Council supported his initiative to use video cameras in strategic areas in the city as a pilot project to reduce crime, and to add a second School Resource Officer for Greenbelt schools. He also proposed the City's new Public Safety Advisory Committee. Putens also successfully initiated the Four Cities Coalition among Greenbelt, College Park, New Carrollton, and Berwyn Heights, to expand inter-city cooperation on issues and projects of common concern.

Putens has been employed by the Federal Government for 27 years and has received many awards and commendations. Since 1987 he has been with the Food and Drug Administration. He previously served in a variety of management and staff positions for the Department of Labor, the Office of Personnel Management and the U. S. Postal Service.

Putens has taken a leading role on senior citizen concerns and initiated establishment of the Senior Task Force, which led to establishment of the permanent Senior Citizen Advisory Committee. He has been active in efforts to control development and address the traffic concerns arising from proposed developments. He was the leader in the eventually successful effort to have a traffic light installed at Greenbelt and Mandan Roads and a guard rail installed at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Until 1993, Putens was the only Council member living in Greenbelt East, and has worked actively with the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee (GEAC) of which he was a co-founder.

Prior to his Council service, Putens was chairman of the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB), which developed the proposal to establish the City's Crime Prevention Committee. He was one of the original members of the Windsor Green Board of Directors, and served on the board for eight years. He currently serves as board president of the Greenbrook Estates Homeowner's Association.

Putens has also been active in a variety of community organizations. He is a member of Citizens for Greenbelt and a charter member of the Greenbelt Consumer Co-op. Putens is a member of the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum, the

Election Day Procedures

Voting on election day, Tuesday, November 2 will be held from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., at four polling places—the Greenbelt Municipal Building (Precinct 3 - Center); the Police Station, 550 Crescent Road across from Attick Park (Precinct 6 - North End); Springhill Lake Recreation Center (Precinct 8 - Springhill Lake) and Greenbriar Community Center (Precinct 13 - Greenbelt East.)

Greenbelters will elect five council members, all at large, for a two-year term. In order to be elected, a candidate must receive 40% of the votes cast. If fewer than five candidates receive such a vote, a run-off election will be held one week later on Tuesday, November 11.

In a run-off election, the ballot will consist of those unsuccessful candidates receiving the greatest number of votes, with up to twice as many names as there are positions to be filled. Candidates polling the greatest number of votes are declared winners of the percentage of votes received.

The 40% requirement for election was introduced in 1967. Earlier, only a majority vote was required, frequently resulting in run-off elections. Since 1967, no run-offs have taken place. The last run-off election in 1965 pitted Richard Pilski against Clifford Simonson. Pilski won by one vote.

If all five council members are elected on November 2, there will be an organizational meeting of the new council on Monday, November 8 at 7:30 p.m. (this meeting is set by charter.) If there is a run-off election, the organizational meeting will be held on Monday, November 15.

Upon being sworn in, the newly elected council will choose the mayor. If council numbers follow tradition the top vote getter will become mayor.

Voters will also be asked to complete a city-prepared information questionnaire and a telework survey.

Application for absentee ballots may be obtained in the city clerk's office in the Municipal Building until noon Monday, November 1. Ballots must be returned to the city clerk no later than 6 p.m. on election day, November 2. Any qualified voter who is unable to vote in the election because of religious beliefs, physical condition or absence from the city on election day, may vote by absentee ballot. Ballots may be obtained at the clerk's office and completed at the same time.

Serving on the Greenbelt Board of Elections are Judith Ott, chair, Jean Cook, Lida Churchville, Keith Chernikoff and Dorothy Lauber.

A Greenbelt Gardener

by Rosie Rhubarb

Autumn is the time of year to plant spring flowering bulbs such as daffodils and tulips. Planted now they get a good start getting their roots established before the cold weather sets in and then they will bloom in the spring.

These bulbs are some of the best flowers in the garden. They require almost no care, are virtually free of pests and diseases, grow well in shady gardens, and provide color just at the end of winter when the sight of a flower is welcome. These bulbs flower and have their leaves above ground in the weeks before the leaves grow out on the trees so they can grow well in yards that are shady from May till November.

There are bulbs that bloom from January until April. The earliest two, snow drop and winter aconite, are not much grown around the city, but are wonderful for those very late winter days. Winter aconite looks like a big buttercup with a skirt of green leaves under it. Snowdrop looks like a bell composed of six white petals.

Crocus is another small flower that blooms early in the season. They are purple, light purple, yellow, white, or striped in color. The light purple ones bloom early followed later by the purple ones that bloom at the same time as the earlier daffodils.

Daffodils are the classic spring time flower. That daffodil smell is wonderful and some of the later blooming varieties have scents that are unlike the traditional daffodil smell but also pleasing. Most daffodils are yellow or white. Planting early, mid, and late season varieties can extend the blooming time so they bloom four to six weeks in the garden.

Tulips seem to come in all colors of the rainbow and some also are more than one color. The different shapes and bloom times add variety to the tulip bed.

The queen of fragrance in the spring bulb bed is the hyacinth. Their delicious smell can drift on a good breeze for several feet. They come in a number of colors.

Planting

Planting bulbs is not hard work. They need a well drained site so do not plant where water sits or flows as streams during or after rainstorms. As a rule of thumb, bulbs are planted at a depth three times their height. Dig deeper than you want to plant to add bone meal and fertilizer to the soil before you plant. Like onions, the pointy end is up and end with the dry looking threads (which are the roots) is down. Dig individual holes or a bed at once, which ever you prefer.

Bulbs look good in garden beds, regular shapes, or placed irregularly near shrubs or in the lawn. Daffodils and crocuses look good planted in the lawn.

Tutors Needed

The Greenbelt Moving Ahead Program (GMA) is seeking tutors in math, science, reading and study skills.

For more information call Janet Goldberg at 301-397-2200 or after 2:30 p.m. at 301-307-2212.

The smaller bulbs, such as crocus, snow drop, and aconite, can be planted by the dozen.

They cost less than the bigger bulbs and make a better display when planted in numbers.

Plant at least a dozen daffodils or tulips together to get a good effect.

Question #5: Traffic Calming

well-engineered, and resident-approved. To those who think traffic signals and stop signs are the only remedies, I say signals are very expensive and neither signals nor stop signs slow speeders along the entire roadway. Traffic calming devices create a sense of less width — a driver slows down in reaction to this perception.

Residents throughout Greenbelt have asked for help to slow speeders and improve dangerous sections of our streets. Our Planning Department is well-aware of various methods available that could be implemented and investigates each request, determining possible solutions and prioritizing according to the severity of the problem. A required part of this process is the involvement of all the residents affected by any changes. The neighborhood must favor what is proposed before the Council approves a plan. How quickly changes are made depends on this planning process and funding availability. Traffic calming projects are listed in the Capital Projects Fund which is voted on every year. In some of our neighborhoods, Community Block Grant funds, which recently funded Breezewood improvements, are available.

Police officers cannot be everywhere to enforce laws — alternatives must be utilized.

Kelby Brick

These questions are two parts of the same issue. The traffic-calming measures such as speed bumps, bollards, bike lanes and the like are all useful and increasingly necessary measures. They encourage drivers to slow down and yield to pedestrians, make easier for residents to cross streets or get to bus stops, and promote cycling as an alternative to driving. But apart from their intrinsic value, these measures are little more than stop-gaps taken to deal with the larger problem.

The larger problem of clogged traffic arteries and congested roads that run through and serve Greenbelt is not one we can address solely by ourselves. We must work collectively with other communities and jurisdictions to develop practical and innovative ways to address the problems of increasing traffic and congestion. (See continuation under question 6.)

Alan Turnbull

For streets where motorists speed or otherwise threaten public safety, I support efforts to modify those roadways for "traffic calming." We deserve the streets we live on to have sidewalks, shade trees, and crosswalks, and to be free of hazardous traffic. I helped found the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition in order to achieve the bike lanes now linking the far end of Cherrywood Lane to center city. I'm eager for the City to complete that job with similar improvements on Hanover Parkway, including a roundabout at Schrom Hills Park. Problem streets in every neighborhood were flagged by our traffic calming study, and we should move forward with appropriate projects as funding and opportunities allow. However, I do believe that speed bumps specifically are inappropriate for traffic calming, because their main effect is merely to divert traffic onto other streets; they tend to solve one area's problems by shifting them elsewhere.

Rodney M. Roberts

Yes, I support traffic calming measures. However, I see bike lanes as a transportation issue. New technology such as speed detecting photo lights may replace the speed bumps; and hopefully, the controversy that goes along with them. As far as placement of traffic calming measures, the City Planning Department has a procedure that citizen and neighborhood associations can use to evaluate and obtain appropriate traffic calming measures to suit their particular needs.

Bob S. Auerbach

The installation of traffic calming and detection devices such as bumps, roundabouts, chokers, cameras are worthwhile at many locations. They are especially needed on Hanover Parkway and other arteries in Greenbelt East. Other parts of Greenbelt would also find these measures helpful. The police and the residents of the immediate neighborhood are the ones who know where they are needed most.

The best approach to eliminating violations such as speeding and stop sign running is to cut the number of vehicles on our streets and highways. The best way this can be done is to encourage those with two good legs to walk and use bicycles. Greatly beneficial in sharply reducing traffic in Bremen, Germany has been car sharing and rental. Sharing is a sure way to cut the number of cars. The main solution, mass transportation, I discuss in question six.

The next question is the sixth and last of this year's questions. The News Review has again posed vitally important matters and kindly allotted much space to the answers. This is much appreciated by at least this candidate.

Access Road in Greenway Center Declared Surplus

by James Giese

The road traveled by many to enter Greenway Shopping Center from Hanover Parkway is about to be declared "surplus" by Prince George's County. Officially known as Parcel "F", Liber 5279, folio 755 in county land records, this road runs from Hanover Parkway into the shopping center behind the Exxon gasoline station and beside the former ChiChi's restaurant, soon to become a Chinese restaurant.

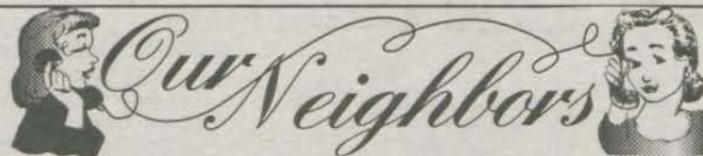

At its October 11 meeting, the Greenbelt City Council advised the county that it was not interested in buying the land, but asked the county to contact the city again if no one else wanted it. Whoever owns the land will be responsible for maintaining the roadway. The land cannot be used for any other purpose than access to the shopping center.

The issue arose after the city decided to ask property owners to make road repairs. It turned out the property had not been sold by the original owners, Western Development, with the remainder of the land in the shopping center. This was probably an oversight. However, instead of turning the land over to the new owners, the road's owners simply stopped paying taxes on the property. By default, the county then became owner of the land.

When the city contacted the county Department of Public Works and Transportation to fix the road, its director, Betty Hager Francis, advised City Manager Michael McLaughlin that the road is used as a private entrance and not a public road. Therefore, the Office of Central Services must either maintain it or sell it. That office then notified the city it will put the property up for sale. Other governments have the first right to purchase when land acquired as a result of delinquent taxes is put up for sale. McLaughlin told council that it is his understanding that the owners of the shopping center will likely acquire the land and assume maintenance responsibilities.

Should anyone else be interested in acquiring it, he or she should keep an eye out for the legal notice of a tax sale.

Our Neighbors

Two Greenbelt students are recipients of scholarships worth $6,000 each for two years at Prince George's Community College (PGCC) awarded by the Apartment and Office Building Association of Metropolitan Washington (AOBA):

West Brooks, a recent graduate of Eleanor Roosevelt, received a full scholarship to attend Prince George's Community College. This is not a scholarship solely rewarding students for their academic achievements; AOBA wanted a program that recognized students for their community involvement, and ultimately, a career. The second full scholarship to PGCC went to Bonita Austin, Breezewood Drive, Springhill Lake. Congratulations to both.

Congratulations to former Greenbelt resident, Jon (Greer) Jenkins who has graduated from the Marine Corps Boot Camp at Parris Island, SC. Family members joined to celebrate with him at a recent party while he was on leave.

Congratulations also to Kurt Nelson, a senior at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, who was selected as a National Merit semifinalist.

Jenne and Gary Hibbs are coming to town from Canton, MI, to attend Gary's 20th reunion at Eleanor Roosevelt High School on October 30. Gary is executive director of Henry Ford Village at Dearborn, MI. Last month the couple welcomed their fourth child, Nathanael David. Grandma and Grandpa Hibbs are looking forward to their first visit with their 16th grandchild.

Walter and Leonie Penney, of Northway, celebrated their 47th anniversary October 11 with son Walter and daughter Olga and their spouses.

The 1999 Hammill Award by the Prince George's Volunteer Coordinator Association recently honored Greenbelter Elaine Goad for her volunteer work as coordinator of the county's "Pets on Wheels" program. She was honored at the association's fourth annual recognition dinner.

Navy Seaman David J. Grego, son of David J. Grego of Ridge Road, is one of more than 370,000 active-duty sailors celebrating the Navy's 224th birthday this month. Grego is currently deployed to Yokosuka, Japan, aboard the 1,200 personnel amphibious command and control ship USS Blue Ridge. The ship provides command and control facilities for a Navy amphibious task-force commander, the Marine assault-force commander and their staffs. The 1997 graduate of Coleman High School in Coleman, WI, joined the Navy in July 1998.

The second loop is 15 miles through the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC). This is a family ride that will accommodate most riders. It is mostly level flat terrain with both on-road and off-road routes. Cyclists ride as a group with a police escort to discover firsthand some of the fine bike/ped facilities in place in Prince George's County.
