As Council Comity Deteriorates, City Budget Is Adopted, 3 - 2

by Diane Oberg

For a while, it looked as if the Greenbelt City Council would not adopt a budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 at its June 5 regular meeting. There was even discussion of what would happen if the budget did not pass that night, which was the last regular council meeting before the June 10 deadline established in the city charter. But after a little over two hours, council finally approved the budget on a 3-2 vote with Councilmembers Alan Turnbull and Rodney Roberts opposed.

Process

The budget adoption process consists of three steps. First, council approved a series of motions amending the budget proposed by City Manager Michael McLaughlin back in April, to reflect council's decisions. These were presented at a public hearing at the May 22 council meeting. Then council, by motion, formally adopts the budget as amended.

The last stage of the process is for council to pass an ordinance establishing tax rates and appropriating funds for the next fiscal year. Normally, passing an ordinance requires two readings. The first reading simply announces the ordinance, generally without discussion. This reading serves to notify the public of council's intent. Council can, with the consent of four councilmembers, suspend the rules to allow first and second readings at the same meeting. Because this was the last council meeting before the deadline for passage, the budget ordinance was proposed for approval under suspension of the rules.

The Easy Part

Although tedious, the first stage, adopting the changes, was easy. On the revenue side, six changes were moved and adopted. The only one not to pass unanimously was a proposal not to raise the senior citizen and youth fares on the Greenbelt Connection (the city bus service).

Councilmembers Rodney Roberts and Edward Putens voted against that motion—not because they wanted to raise those fees, but because they felt that none of the bus fares should have been increased.

On the expenditures side, again just one change did not pass unanimously. Roberts voted against the changes to the public safety budget, although he did not explain his vote. Councilmember Alan Turnbull voted for the changes although he lost his fight to reword the item for rental cars for the police department to indicate that more cars could be rented if the funds expended remained the same.

Jessica Mealey Chosen "Md. Woman Who Dares"

by Sabine Hentrich

Some readers might remember reading about Greenbelt resident Jessica Mealey, a 13 year-old student at Thomas G. Pullen Arts Magnet School who was featured in a Greenbelt News Review story in June of last year.

On March 15, Jessica was the youngest of 35 women honored as a "Maryland Woman Who Dares." This honor is given yearly as part of Women's History Month by the Maryland State Department of Education and the Maryland Commission for Women.

These organizations put together biographies, quotes, and photographs of (predominantly adult) women of achievement in a publication which is used in schools, organizations, and libraries.

Jessica's entry centered on her belief that the winning awards given to much older contestants encourage teenagers to participate in competitions. She highlighted the importance of positive role models, especially ones who pioneered in their field. "I admire Mary Cassatt for her boldness and independence among women of the mid to late 1800s..." wrote Jessica.

The committee assigned the cover art design for this year's edition of the display kit to a proud Jessica. In creating the computer-generated cover art, Jessica focused on the women's diversity and included honorees of various ages, professions, and social/ethnic backgrounds.

by Virginia Beauchamp

Three members of the city council - Mayor pro tem Alan Turnbull, Thomas White, and Rodney Roberts - will present the views of the City of Greenbelt at a public hearing at 7 p.m. in Upper Marlboro on Monday, June 19 before the Prince George's County Council. They will offer, in part, the city's response to the Preliminary Greenbelt Metro Area Sector Plan and the Proposed Sectional Map Amendment (SMA), which were presented last month to the county council by the Prince George's County Planning Board of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC).

The plan proposal and accompanying SMA are the culmination of a more than two-year process involving a professional team headed by project director Joe Chang of the county's Park and Planning staff; area stakeholders, including the three nearby municipalities, Greenbelt, College Park, and Berwyn Heights; and interested citizens. The results of their work, involving four charrettes and numerous public

Kenilworth Ave. Proposal Is Subject of Public Hearing

by Elaine Skolnik

The State Highway Administration (SHA) will conduct an informational public meeting on Wednesday, June 21 dealing with proposed modifications to the US 1/MD 201 (Kenilworth Ave./Edmonston Rd.) Corridor from the Capital Beltway to MD 198 (see map). The meeting will run from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. at High Point Senior High School, 3601 Powder Mill Road in Beltsville. SHA notes that "no formal presentation will be given."

In existence since the late 1980s and early 1990s, then tabled in 1996 and reinitiated in mid-1999, the project is currently in the Project Planning Stage.

According to SHA, this stage includes agency and public involvement, as well as engineering and environmental studies. It involves the development and review of "all reasonable alternatives," including the No-Build alternative.

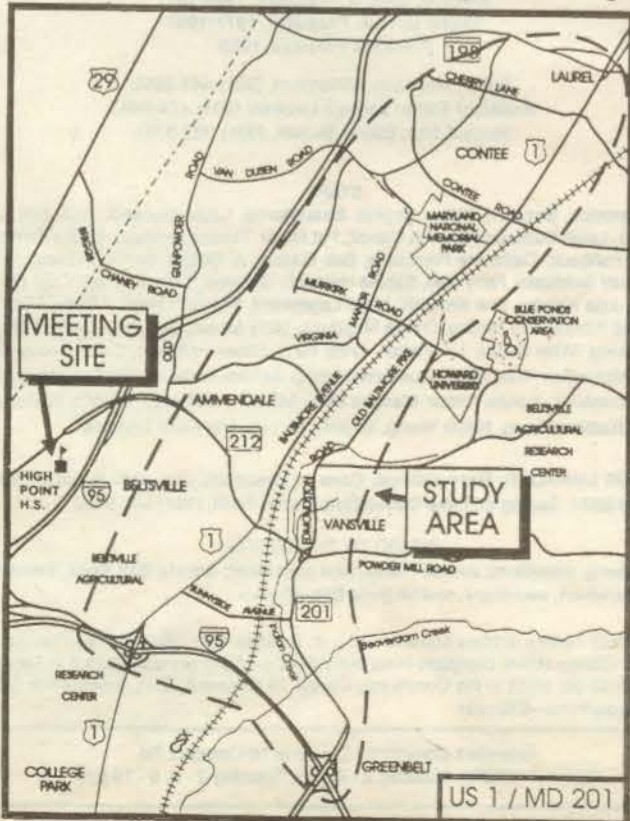

Display areas will be set up at the June 21 meeting explaining the purpose and need for the project, the conceptual categories being considered (for example, limited-access or open-access) and potential environmental impacts. A slide presentation will be shown continuously during the meeting and SHA representatives will be present to discuss the project and record comments from the public.

History

According to SHA, several preliminary concepts developed during the first stages of the project included: no build; extend US 1 to six lanes with center left turn movements; extend MD 201 as a six-lane divided curbed road from I-495 to Contee Road; and/or extend MD 201 from Baltimore Pike to Contee Road.

At the time - the early 1990s - the concepts addressed the potential for construction of an Inter-County Connector (ICC). Although the Prince George's and Montgomery County Councils do not currently support the ICC meetings, are contained in two publications, a 256-page book and a 76-page environmental supplement. Free copies of the proposals are available at the Greenbelt city office and at the Greenbelt library.

Before the public hearing in Upper Marlboro, displays concerning the reports will be on view in the first-floor lobby of the County Administration Building. The meeting itself will take place in the Council Hearing Room, also on the first floor.

Members of the public may speak at the hearing, with each speaker allotted no more than three minutes. To be listed on the roster of speakers, call the M-NCPPC Public Affairs Office at 301-952-4584. Technical questions concerning the reports may be directed to Joe Chang, M-NCPPC Project Planner, at 301-952-4065.

Following the hearing, the public record will remain open until July 5 during which written comments may be presented. In order to make use of this extra time for response, the Greenbelt City Council has scheduled a work session on Wednesday, June 21, to develop its final report on the Sector Plan and Sectional Map Amendment.

Pedestrian Safety Is Celebrated this Month

by Gerald Madison

The Pedestrian Safety Month began as a joint effort between the Senior Citizens Advisory Committee and the City of Greenbelt in April of 1998, after repeated concerns were expressed in an open forum in the fall of 1997.

At the last public forum there seemed to be a new twist on the problem of pedestrian safety. This time it was "GETTING ALONG TOGETHER" with bicyclists, skateboarders and in-line or roller skaters.

Most of the concerns pertain to pedestrian and bicycle traffic merging at the Roosevelt Center, at crosswalks, on the lake trail and on sidewalks in particular. Some of the concerns are already regulated by law, but because the concerns are low priority they often get overlooked.

When a pedestrian sees cyclists or skaters coming it is best to step aside and let them pass. The problem is when pedestrians do not see cyclists coming up from behind. It is the cyclist's responsibility to let the pedestrian know they are approaching by bell, horn, or calling out so it is not a surprise to the pedestrian.

Cyclists or skaters that come upon a group of pedestrians likewise should slow down. Of course paying attention to the posted areas that do or do not allow bikes, skaters, boarders, etc. need to be followed. Cyclists and skaters need to realize that public areas are not places for new tricks and air stunts. All it takes is one small mistake and not only the daredevil but innocent bystanders and pedestrians can be hurt as well.

(Note: Gerald Madison is Chair Elect of the Greenbelt Senior Citizens Advisory Committee.)

Agenda Established For Four Cities Session

The Four Cities Coalition will meet on Thursday, June 22 at 8 p.m. in the College Park Municipal Center, 4500 Knox Road. Composed of city council representatives from Greenbelt, Berwyn Heights, College Park and New Carrollton, coalition members will discuss agenda items submitted by each municipality.

Currently these include participation in Jaeger tract acquisition, Greenbelt Road neighborhood conservation project, the street sweeper schedule and the Rt. 1 Corridor Sector Plan update. Noise complaints related to the Art Attack Concert at the University of Maryland has also been proposed as an agenda item. Other suggested issues are the state energy grant program, and the development of property adjacent to the New Carrollton Metro/Amtrak station and zoning enforcement.

The public is invited to attend the session.

Electricity Questions? Get Answers Here

The state's four investor-owned utilities will be open to electric retail competition on July 1, 2000. Those include customers of Allegheny Power, Baltimore Gas & Electric, Conectiv Power Delivery and Potomac Electric Power Company. Some electric cooperatives will open to choice in 2001, and all electric cooperative customers will be able to choose a supplier by July 1, 2003. Municipal electric utilities have the choice whether or not to participate in electric competition, and none have chosen to participate at this time.

With less than a month to go before the start of electricity competition, consumers should consider calling the Public Service Commission's electric Choice Answer Center at 1-800-800-4491. Staff there will take and fulfill requests for information brochures as well as answer questions. Or contact the Electric Choice website at www.md-electric-info.com.

Tremendous Turnout For Blood Drive

The Greenbelt Recreation Department and the American Red Cross express thanks to the donors who contributed blood at a tremendous turnout last Monday, June 12. Sixty-two people donated blood which was the largest total in the history of our blood drives. It ran contrary to the experience of the Red Cross, which usually sees a drop in donations during the summer.

The Red Cross personnel did an outstanding job in serving the large number of donors. Their professionalism is to be admired.

The next blood drive in Greenbelt will be held on September 11, from 2 to 8 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center. Appointments to donate blood can be made by calling Janet Goldberg at 301-397-2212.

Students Discuss Responsibility Issues

As part of the Eleanor Roosevelt High School Character Education Program, all classes stopped regularly scheduled lessons on March 20 to discuss the topic of responsibility. A selection of vignettes depicting real life situations were used by classroom teachers as springboards for 35-minute classroom discussions.

One scenario explored the question of finding a lost wallet on the street with IDs and $300 cash in it. Another used the real life situation of doing a group project and how each member's responsible behavior is critical to the success of the project. Still a third scenario asked students to ask four questions of themselves when making decisions responsibly. These four questions were: Is it legal? Does it feel right? Would my role model do it? Would I like to see myself on the front page of the newspaper doing this? If any of the above four questions are answered "no," then the activity should not be done.

Moien — McMichael

Suzanne Marie Moien and James Patrick McMichael were married on June 3 at St. Hugh's Catholic Church, followed by a reception at La Fontaine Bleu in New Carrollton.

Suzanne, the daughter of Mary and Barry Moien of Woodland Way, is a recent graduate of the University of Maryland and is employed at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. James, the son of Lynn and Stephan McMichael of Hillside Road, is a Deputy Sheriff with the Arlington County Sheriff's Department. Both the bride and groom are graduates of Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Kathleen Brown, sister of the bride, served as the Maid of Honor. Kathleen and her husband, Michael, both long-time Greenbelters, traveled home from Santa Barbara for the pre-wedding and wedding festivities. Other bridesmaids included Jennifer McMichael, sister of the groom, and Corita Jones, daughter of Elaine and John Henry Jones of Ridge Road. After a honeymoon in the Poconos, the newlyweds are at their new GHI home on Ridge Road.

Greenbelt Elementary Celebrates Earth Day

by Pauline Santorelli

On Wednesday, May 24, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Greenbelt Elementary School (GES) held its Annual Earth Day Celebration. Accompanied by Science Teacher Beth Stewart, and Pauline Santorelli, students and parents helped to clean the school courtyard and surrounding grounds. They picked up trash, pulled weeds and planted flowers donated by their families and businesses around town.

As a prelude to this event, Imani, Greenbelt's youth development group, asked Santorelli, a Garden Club representative, to talk with them about the history of the school courtyard, which can be viewed from the library, several classrooms, and the science rooms. She explained that the evolution of the courtyard was the result of much community work, involvement, and pride.

In September, 1997, the Greenbelt Home and Garden Club expressed an interest in assisting Greenbelt Elementary School in redesigning their school garden courtyard. Their plan was to guide the students, teachers, and parents and transform the courtyard into one that was aesthetically pleasing and functional. At that time the school was five years old and the courtyard had never had the proper soil or plantings installed.

The Greenbelt Home and Garden Club initially gave the school a donation of $300 towards the purchase of materials needed for the renovation. A team from the club met weekly at the school courtyard to enrich the soil and plant a variety of perennial flowers, shrubs, and trees. They came up with a detailed two page report on the state of the courtyard with a listing of the present plantings and recommendations for future improvements. At a meeting with school staff members, the Garden Club helped the school organize several Saturday and Thursday evening work sessions that were appropriately named "Dig It." Here is where many parents, students and teachers worked and planted together to make this a beautiful and welcoming gathering place.

One project that many Imani students remembered was Daffodil Day. Each student brought in a daffodil bulb to plant in the courtyard. Each spring blooms of the daffodils as well as the iris delight the eye and enliven the heart of the beholder. These wonders are followed by azaleas, black-eyed susans, autumn joy sedums, mums, and several trees, one of which was donated by Carolyn Goff, former principal of the school, in memory of her son. Another favorite spot in the courtyard is the fragrant herb garden. This garden was donated by Leroy Wilton, the owner of Smile Herb Shop, in College Park. Many teachers who hold "Reading Buddy" sessions and "Read Alouds" there say that the students enjoy and try to identify the many scents that are growing in the herb garden.

Santorelli looked about the courtyard as she was speaking and pointed out to the students that there was a lot of work that needed to be done to get the courtyard in shape for the upcoming June activities. She gave advice as to what was a plant and what was a weed, of which there are many.

On Wednesday Santorelli was on hand to give further advice and guidance as well as encouragement. The courtyard is now ready for the annual Volunteer Breakfast and the sixth grade celebration.

GREENBELT CELEBRATES PEDESTRIAN SAFETY

WALK SMART DRIVE SMART

PROBLEM:

You are at risk of an accident when you first step off the curb because drivers may not see you until you are right in front of them and it's too late to stop.

ADVICE:

CITY BUDGET

Opposition

Council comity deteriorated when it came time to vote to adopt the budget as it had just been amended.

Turnbull stated, as he had promised previously, that he planned to vote against the budget adoption. His concern was not with any one specific expenditure but rather with what he perceived as an inappropriate proposal by McLaughlin and the city staff. When other jurisdictions, and the nation as a whole, are enjoying record revenues, he felt it was not the appropriate time for the city to raise taxes and "deplete the general fund balance." He complained about the "unresponsive reception" from the other councilmembers that made his attempt to propose changes to the budget "a futile effort."

Councilmember Rodney Roberts announced his intention to vote against the budget because it included funds to make the museum curator a full-time position (it is currently a part-time job). Because this provision was included in McLaughlin's original proposal, it was not voted upon separately. Although the position would be partly funded by grants, those grants would phase out, leaving the city with a continuing and increasing expenditure without an identified source of funding. A full-time curator, he argued, is not an essential position that justified increasing people's taxes.

Councilmember Edward Putens also threatened to vote against the budget to force Turnbull to propose specific cuts.

Councilmembers Putens and Thomas White and Mayor

Judith Davis expressed frustration at Turnbull's repeated comments that taxes should not be raised again. When citizens complain to her about the tax hike, Davis said, she asks them to tell her where they would cut expenditures by the roughly quarter million dollars that the tax increase will bring in. In different ways, all three pointed out that council has been reviewing the budget since early April — if Turnbull had proposals to avoid a tax hike, why did he not bring them up during the budget review he was asked. The proposals he did present, White noted, were relatively small and some increased, rather than decreased the budget.

Turnbull replied that it is not possible for council to do what he is asking. Such cuts, he said, must come from the city manager's office. If revenues are flat, the budget should reflect that. His concern, Turnbull said, is with "efficiencies unfound" and "creativity untapped" and the need for council to indicate to staff that it wants more thoughtful ways of doing business.

He called the idea that cutting the budget would require cutting people, a "rhetorical fallacy." A caring organization does not do that, but instead manages change over time to let attrition do the job. As for the real changes he hoped for from his stand: "Tomorrow morning is when that takes place" — when the city manager starts thinking about the next budget.

Putens argued that he would rather pay to increase recreation, arts and other programs for youth than to have to pay for more police later. "Let's do it the right way," he said.

White picked up on the mayor's statement about the budget cut needed to avoid a tax increase. In order to keep a level tax rate would require eliminating either people or programs, he said. "Show me," he challenged Turnbull. Even after two public hearings, and any number of worksessions he said he had never heard a proposal from Turnbull worth more than $7,000. White said he challenged Turnbull to state specifically the changes he wanted to the budget so council could consider them. We have got to adopt the budget, he said. "I think I've fulfilled my responsibilities."

Roberts tried to calm his colleagues, expressing his regret that the budget discussion had involved so much tension. "It doesn't get us anywhere to make this into a personal thing," he said.

In the end, the budget passed on a 3-2 vote with Turnbull and Roberts opposed. The motion to suspend the rules passed unanimously, with Turnbull carefully noting that his vote merely reflected his acknowledgment that there had been adequate public notice as to what council planned to do. The ordinance setting tax rates and appropriating funds passed by the same 3-2 vote as the earlier budget adoption motion.

Pedestrian Safety

Gerald Madison, on behalf of the Senior Citizens Advisory Committee, asked council to consider actions to encourage the safe co-existence of bicyclists, skateboarders, and in-line skaters with pedestrians. He noted that the police department had held a bicycle rodeo over Greenbelt Day weekend, but unfortunately no one attended.

McLaughlin noted that the annual pedestrian safety campaign is starting, with banners to be hung later that same week. The city is running safety videos on channel B-10 and will soon be running pedestrian safety ads in this newspaper. Turnbull called for greater enforcement. Previous efforts had focused on how pedestrians could look out for themselves. He called for having "an equal measure of enforcement."

An ordinance to grant a $127,000 contract for new lights at Braden Field was unanimously approved.

Non-English Speakers Helped by WSSC

Continuing efforts to improve customer service, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) recently began a new phone interpreter service to better assist non-English speaking customers. The service enables any WSSC employee to reach interpreters fluent in more than 120 languages by making one phone call. The customer and interpreter are then conferenced together.

For assistance, WSSC customers can call 301-206-4001, or 1-800-634-8400 weekdays from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. To report water or sewer emergencies, customers can call 301-206-4002 or 1-800-828-6439, 24-hours a day, seven days a week.

project, SHA notes that the connector remains on their respective master plans. Past and present Greenbelt city councils have vigorously opposed the ICC, pointing out that any widening and extension of MD 201 would result in funneling traffic from the ICC into Greenbelt. Currently Governor Parris Glendening also opposes the ICC.

Because there was a lack of consensus on the original project's Purpose and Need statement, the project was tabled. The Federal Highway Administration did not agree on the Contee Road terminus for MD 201. The Prince George's County master plan called for extending MD 201 to MD 198 in Laurel; however, there were environmental concerns dealing with Indian Creek as well as strong opposition from the local community.

When the project was reinstated in 1999, the goals included "upgrading MD 201 to four or six lanes to provide commuter access to the District of Columbia and upgrading the US 1 Corridor to facilitate local and/or commuter traffic." The focus also included "smart growth/concentrated growth and priority funding areas."

At the upcoming June 21 meeting SHA will "acquaint the public with the need for the project and the progress of the study to date."

Comments/Requests

Written comments and requests to be included on the project mailing list may be submitted to Monty A. Rahman, P.E., Project Manager, Project Planning Division, Mail Stop C-301, State Highway Administration, P.O. Box 717, Baltimore, MD 21203-1717, or by calling 1-800-548-5026.

Hearing impaired and non-English speaking persons who wish to attend should notify Rahman at the above address or telephone number at least five days before the meeting. The teletype number is 1-800-735-2258. SHA notes that "To the extent that this is feasible and possible, an interpreter will be provided."

Just what is that manly fragrance in after-shave? Herbs contribute essential oils to many common products. Come get a whiff of some of them at this free informal, drop-in station for all ages in the National Herb Garden at the U.S. National Arboretum on June 17 - 18 from 1 to 3 p.m. For information call 202-245-2726.

Internet Access Co-op Needs Volunteers

The Greenbelt Internet Access Cooperative's (GIAC) fourth annual meeting was held on June 6 at the Greenbelt Community Center. Douglas Love, Mary Camp and Peggy Bates were re-elected as directors, joining already seated directors Neil McLeod, Norma Van Allen and Gilbert Lee. There are still three vacant director positions.

To keep the cooperative running smoothly help is needed in many different areas including advertising, mailings, recruiting, answering trouble calls, solving technical ISP problems, maintaining and expanding the website, accounting, bookkeeping, auditing the accounts, attending regular monthly meetings, helping with the monthly classes and serving on various committees.

To qualify as a director, one must be a member of GIAC with email capability (not necessarily greenbelt.com) and a willingness to volunteer several hours a month to help keep GIAC running. A director is not expected or required to have technical expertise, just a willingness to help. Some volunteer positions receive discounted internet service. Special projects (computer related) are welcomed.

If interested in helping (either as a director or as a volunteer) contact 301-419-8044 (voice mail) or giac@greenbelt.com. Find out more about GIAC by visiting the web site at www.greenbelt.com/giac.

City of Greenbelt
COMMUNITY MEDIATION BOARD
The City of Greenbelt has re-established a Community Mediation Board-under the auspices of the Prince George's County Human Relations Commission. This Board is comprised of city residents who have volunteered to receive mediation training and be available to mediate disputes between neighbors.
Mediation consists of a step by step problem solving process that results in the involved parties agreeing on a fair solution. Mediation serves as an alternative to litigation and brings both parties to the table on an equal basis. A mediator does not act as an advocate of either party. He/she reserves judgment and does not voice opinion.
Types of problems mediated may be noisy neighbors, barking dogs, trespassing children, blocked driveways, family feuds, littering, loitering, neighboring property neglect, small claims matters, etc.
Mediation services will be available at the Greenbelt Community Center on the second Tuesday and fourth Wednesday of each month. Any Greenbelt citizen who wishes to make use of this free service should call the Human Resources Officer, City of Greenbelt, 301-345-7203.

drama teacher Christopher Wolfe started the "Thespian Club," in which she enthusiastically participates. The group is currently preparing their play writing entry — a piece centered around teenage life and conscience — for an upcoming Kennedy Center contest.

Jessica, however, also enjoys the extracurricular activity "Teen Court." "The whole court is made up of children, except for the judge. They are youth cases, children caught for their first offense, and the jury gives them a disposition," Jessica explains. She enjoys acting as defense attorney during these Teen Court sessions. Wanting to help people, particularly teenagers, also led Jessica to apply to become a member of the Greenbelt Youth Advisory Board, to which she was appointed last year.

The board organizes activities such as the Easter food drive. Most importantly, the board tries to identify teenagers' problems and come up with possible solutions. Jessica argued, for example, that "most teenagers don't have a place to 'hang,'" and suggested opening up additional rooms in the Youth Center to attract teens to meet there instead of at Roosevelt Center. In addition to participating in these organizations, Jessica is also an active member of St. Hugh's Catholic Church.

For fun, Jessica loves such simple pleasures as a stroll through the mall, a nice movie and a good book. The "Harry Potter" series, written by J.K. Rowling, for instance, won her heart.

GAVA Art Classes Offered for Summer

Puppetry for children and drop-in art for teens are the two new programs for youth, 12-16, the Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts (GAVA) is offering this summer at the Greenbelt Community Center. The puppet classes are for children 8 to 10 years and are in two sessions, July 17-28 and August 7-18. During each two-week session the class will meet in the mornings to produce a puppet play by creating rod puppets and scenery. At the end of each session the children will give a public performance of their production. Sandy Gray, the instructor, has had in-depth experience teaching puppetry to children and has served as a volunteer teaching assistant with GAVA. Young people ages 12 - 16 who have had experience or are interested in puppetry are encouraged to volunteer as assistants in the classes. (See accompanying ad in this issue for details about the program.)

The Youth Art Drop-In for ages 11-16 will take place on Wednesdays, noon to 3 p.m., July 5 through August 9. The program will focus on drawing, painting, and crafts. Greenbelt artists Barbara Stevens and Tom Baker, both of whom have taught for GAVA previously, will be among the instructors. This is a drop-in program: no registration is required and the fee is nominal.

Other GAVA art programs in July are classes in ceramics for children ages 5 through 16, including the Teen Ceramics Open Studio program. Animation classes produced with GATE (Greenbelt Access Tele-
