City Council Defers Decision On Proposed Curfew Law

by Barbara Bonham Young

After detailed discussion of the proposed curfew law proposed by the Public Safety Advisory Committee at a worksession November 6, the Greenbelt City Council decided that the issue deserved another public airing. Mayor Judith Davis noted that a previous public forum drew almost no citizen participation. The next hearing has not yet been scheduled.

In response, Advisory Committee Chair Dorry Ipolito stressed that the next meeting should be heavily publicized. The councilmembers expressed thanks to Ipolito, to committee vice chair Kelby Brick and city liaison Consuella Harris for researching the law and other issues in preparing for the worksession.

"This is not a question of the city being a super-parent, but is a social responsibility the city has toward its youth," Ipolito said in urging adoption of the curfew. The committee's proposal is based on that of the city of Laurel. Davis noted that while the Youth Advisory Board favors the curfew, the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB), headed by Kevin Hammett, opposes it.

CRAB Opposed

CRAB opposed the curfew until it can be demonstrated that "there is a significant/concrete problem and that a curfew is the appropriate and best solution to that problem." CRAB suggested providing more or later activities for young people and/or a counselor to do outreach.

In response to councilmember Alan Turnbull's question as to why Greenbelt needs a curfew when the county already has one, Ipolito responded that the city, as a chartered municipality, isn't covered under the county ordinance. City Manager Michael McLaughlin said that the county's ordinance could cover Greenbelt if the city took official action authorizing adoption of the county provisions.

Greenbelt Police Patrol Commander Lt. Thomas Kemp stated that the Laurel Police Department had found its curfew to be a "positive tool." He added, "We feel also that it would be a great tool to use, and that for the protection of juveniles and citizens, we should know everybody who is out in Greenbelt late at night. . . ." Kemp explained that a curfew could make the nature of a police stop more clear.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts said that after seeing the low Laurel statistics on curfew enforcement, he was concerned that possibly "We're going to enact a law that we're not going to enforce." Councilmember Turnbull stressed that police enforcement should involve "the softest of touches" but noted also that "the unenforced law breeds contempt."

Urging council support of the curfew, Ipolito said, "Today we have a violent culture - kids have lousy parents and sometimes no parents. . . . We have a responsibility, and this is a quality-of-life issue. Either the curfew law is an acceptable tool or it's business as usual."

Need for Statistics

Questioned about the availability of statistics, Kemp said, "We don't have specific statistics at this time, but we could go to our daily log and reports for a general idea of the statistics."

Mayor Davis commented, "I know our police are professional, but I feel a small concern that we could end up finding ourselves having people say we're only stopping kids that look like they're up to no good - that we're profiling or stereotyping or harassing." Kemp responded, "We have to rely on the good faith of the officers."

CRAB member Konrad Herling spoke against a curfew law. "I think that at least part of the answer is the environment that we are helping create. . . if there are more people in the environment, people at the New Deal Café, at a movie theater event, for example, that changes the tenor of an area and is part of the answer."

He noted that the city is working with Springhill Lake in this way and said another key is to be proactive with parents, and that problems with juveniles deserve longer-range solutions.

Resident Sheldon Goldberg said what he was hearing was "contradictory." He asked rhetorically whether the curfew was to protect the community or to protect the children.

"Student" Scientists Need Volunteer Assistance

by Pauline Santorelli

As a Greenbelt Elementary School science teacher, Pam Bauer facilitates student scientists as they invent, create and synthesize. Bauer was born and raised in Bowie and received all of her undergraduate education in the Prince George's County School System. She received her bachelor of science degree from Bowie State and her masters of education from Loyola College in Baltimore.

Bauer taught for six years at another Prince George's County Elementary School for Katherine Curl, now principal of Greenbelt Elementary School, as a teacher and science coordinator.

In 1999, she left the teaching profession to pursue a career in accounting. While working for three years in the private sector, Bauer was compelled to finish her masters degree in Education. Still feeling the need to become more involved with education and children, she began tutoring in the evenings.

During her three-year hiatus from teaching, Bauer and Curl remained in touch through phone calls. Curl was persistent in acquiring Bauer. She wanted her to join the Greenbelt Elementary School (GES) Team. One day she even called Bauer and insisted that she drop whatever she was doing and come to tour GES. Bauer came but wasn't ready to re-enter the world of teaching. This perseverance on See STUDENT, page 4

Greenbelt School Principals Are Excited over Successes

by Nelda Young

"We are excited" was the phrase that local principals and school officials repeated over and over at the Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) meeting on November 6. This annual meeting, chaired by Leta Mach, has been held the last few years to inform the city of issues at each school.

All of the Greenbelt schools were represented. Participating were Eleanor White, executive regional director of Prince George's County Public Schools Region 2; Sylvester Conyers from Eleanor Roosevelt High School; Judy Austin and John LaPolla from Greenbelt Middle; Darul Watkins from Robert Goddard Middle; Linda Sherwood and Jan Reed from Springhill Lake Elementary; Kathy Curl, Paulette Watkins, Wendy Geagan, and Beth Novick from Greenbelt Elementary; Phyllis Gillens and Mary Ford from Magnolia; and Liz Whelan from St. Hugh's Catholic School. As the 14 representatives spoke of their schools' accomplishments, problems, and needs, their peers and the ACE members listened, asked questions, and offered suggestions.

Dr. Eleanor White, of Region 2, which includes all of Greenbelt's schools, spoke of goals for 2003 in the Maryland State Board of Education's initiative New Millennium - Rigor and Relevance. Among other things, they hope to raise the state MSPAP scores at least six points by June 2001.

According to White, Dr. Iris T. Metts, Prince George's superintendent of schools, wants to see a six point increase in the California Test of Basic Skills given to students in grades two, four, and six and to see 75% of test takers scoring higher than 50% on part II of the test. The school board is seeking to decrease the dropout rate from 2.5% in the county to 0.5%. And, to keep up with the technology of the twenty-first century, all schools need to complete wiring for the internet.

A facility audit to find pressing physical needs in the schools is underway with a report due by December 15. In particular renovation plans for Greenbelt Middle School should be out by January 1.

High Marks

Eleanor Roosevelt High School received praise from White for the very high marks their students received on test scores. She also praised the school for having 700 students in advanced placement (AP) courses. Sylvester Conyers, the high school's principal, is looking at ninth graders to see what preparation is necessary to have more students in "AP courses in the twelfth grade."

John LaPolla, vice principal at Greenbelt Middle School (GMS), told of interdisciplinary teams of students who plan activities within the school. For example, they might study history by looking at a museum, how exhibits are presented, the research needed to put on exhibits, and then the students build a museum. Currently nine expeditions are planned. The school is seeking to enrich the curriculum by offering more advanced courses including ninth grade curriculum, the French immersion program, and classes in French, Spanish, and Russian.

Rising Expectations

Judy Austin, also a vice principal at the middle school, spoke about the overall rising expectations there. By encouraging reading they see increasing verbal knowledge. The Harry Potter books are currently being read at the school. After praising the books for being good teaching tools that reach across several dis-

Pioneer John D. Martone Wins Top Boxing Honor

by Barbara Likowski

Greenbelt Pioneer John D. Martone will be inducted into the Washington, D.C. Boxing Hall of Fame on Friday, November 17 at Martin's Crosswinds in Greenbelt. A banquet will follow.

In 1938 Martone moved to 13U Ridge Road with his parents. In all, he lived at seven different addresses in Greenbelt. The family were members of Greenbelt Community Church.

Martone's parents were athletes; his dad, John (Shorty) Martone, had been a boxer and his mother, Anne Martone, was single women's tennis champ. Martone was a Junior Golden Glove Champion in 1945. He also played American Legion baseball.

He was a member of the graduating class of Greenbelt High School in 1948. It was at Greenbelt High where he met his wife Pat, who was from Branchville. "He discovered me in Mr. Manifold's history class," Pat laughed.

While at Greenbelt High, Martone was a member of the "Grizzlies," Greenbelt High's sports teams.

THANKS

The members of St. Hugh's Council of the Knights of Columbus appreciate the generous contributions of the citizens of Greenbelt during our recent Tootsie Roll Drive for the mentally handicapped. Our thanks also to Greenbelt Co-op, K-Mart and Greenbelt Safeway.

Mike Rousseau and Joe Ritondo, co-chairmen

THANKS

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your lovely cards and phone calls when I was hospitalized recently. They certainly gave me a lift when I wasn't feeling up to par.

I'm recuperating nicely now so, again, thanks very much.

Martha Kaufman

Thanks for Blood

The blood drive on November 6 at the Community Center was a success and helped replenish the depleted American Red Cross supply. 70 people donated blood.

At times there was a long wait, which caused some people to leave before donating. To accommodate these people, and others who could not make the November 6 blood drive, a special blood drive will be held on Monday, December 4 from 2 to 8 p.m. at the Community Center. As usual, the blood drive is sponsored by the Greenbelt Recreation Department and the American Red Cross.

Thanks again to the people who came to donate their blood and to the Red Cross personnel who worked very hard to handle the large turn out.

Appointments for donating blood are recommended for December 4. Call me at 301-397-2212.

No Power

I don't know if it's just the center city, or a larger area, but Greenbelt has been having some major electricity problems lately. In the previous two weeks, I can recall at least three power outages, and that's just because I gave up counting. I have been to third-world countries with more reliable power than this.

If you're like me, these power failures reset your alarm clock, and make you late for work. Your morning coffee isn't waiting for you because the coffee maker's clock is flashing 12:00, and you never get those important messages on the answering machine. You spend a long time resetting all the clocks in your house; I have eight of them, including all the appliances.

Now we would understand these outages if they were the result of storms, or high winds. We would understand if it was a 105 degree summer day with all the air conditioning running, or a sub-zero day with GHI's electric heaters all running constantly. But this is not the case. We are subjected to recurring power failures with no logical cause. In the center city, we depend on electricity for everything, we don't have gas or oil to heat our homes and our water.

Only together as a community will our voices be heard by PEPSCO. Only with the help of our City Council and city staff will decisive action be taken to eliminate these outages. We must all write and call PEPSCO to voice our dissatisfaction, and demand they appear at a public forum in the city to explain what's happened, and what they're doing to remedy it.

Aaron Johns

Thank You Greenbelt

At Eleanor Roosevelt High School, graduation evening means Grad Night, an alcohol and drug free all-night celebration. Grad Night signifies both the culmination of high school and the conclusion of a year long cooperative effort run by dedicated parent volunteers that brings together graduates and Greenbelt in a fun, safe, and unique celebration.

Some 525 members of the Class of 2000 celebrated graduation May 31 by attending the eighth annual Grad Night held at the Greenbelt Youth Center and the Aquatic Center. The class wishes to thank members of the Greenbelt community including the Greenbelt City Council, the Recreation Department staff, and the Aquatics staff and to express appreciation to the 140 parent volunteers at Grad Night and to the 250 parents who helped throughout the year to arrange and support this evening of fun.

The Class of 2000 also wishes to express appreciation to Grad Night sponsors and supporters including the local business sponsors in Greenbelt and Beltsville: Giant, Safeway, SuperFresh, Shoppers Food Warehouse, Co-op, Costco, Sam's Club, Weis, Three Brothers, Einstein Bagels, Baltimore Beverage, Popeyes, Cetrone's Pizza, Chevy's, Code, Subway, Chesapeake Bagel, TGI Friday's, China Pearl, Cluck-U Chicken, Gringada, Raulins, McDonalds, Jaspers, Deer Park Water, Denny's, Checkers, and Dominos. Apologies to any sponsor omitted from this list.

Resident Hopi Auerbach opposed the curfew, characterizing it as "morally wrong because it's a violation of children's civil liberties."

Another resident, a father accompanied by his two daughters, opposed the curfew and said, "I want to keep the responsibility for my children to myself."

The appropriate age for a curfew was discussed at length. As written, the proposed curfew law would apply to persons 18 years old and under. Councilmember Edward Putens said he sees children out late on the streets who are 9 and 10 years old. He concluded, "There's a problem here, and it's not going away." He suggested the possibility of applying the curfew to age 16 and under.

No date was set, but the mayor said there will be a later meeting on the topic of "youth safety late at night." It may be held when the weather is warmer, she said — by which time police should have some statistics.

ERHS Grad Night Support Needed

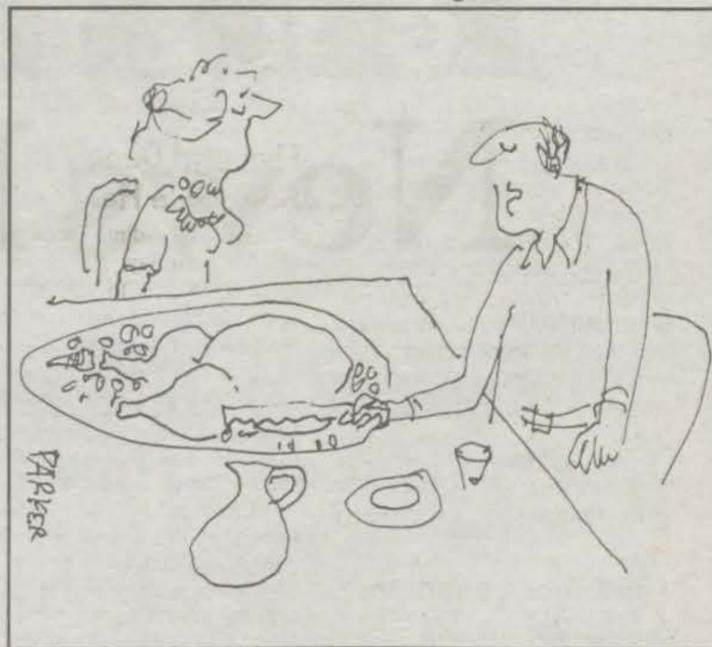

Since 1993, the parents of the Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) senior class have organized an after-graduation celebration. The intent of this activity is to provide an alcohol-free and drug-free all night event for the graduating seniors. Support of the entire ERHS community is needed as students come from throughout the northern part of the county.

Parents, teachers, community leaders, and students are again working to provide a memorable and entertaining evening of alcohol-free and drug-free fun after graduation. There are currently more than 750 seniors in the class of 2001. The committee's goal is to raise $35,000 (approximately $45 for each graduate) to cover the cost of prizes, food, dancing, carnival games and sports. To accomplish this ambitious goal, help is needed.

Donations of cash, give-away items, gifts, and gift certificates to offer as door prizes and activity prizes are welcome. Monetary contributions are tax deductible and will be used to purchase prizes, games, activities, and food. Checks should be made payable to "ERHS Grad Night '01." Donations should be sent to the Eleanor Roosevelt Grad Night Committee, c/o Karlene Gentiles, 7601 Hanover Parkway, Greenbelt, MD 20770.

If donations or gifts or other merchandise need to be picked up by committee members, call LaDonna Monaldo at 301-776-8262.

Greenbelt CARES

Teresa Smithson, and Robyn Strauss, crisis intervention teacher, conducted the first session of the Peer Leadership Development Group for second and third grade students at Greenbelt Elementary School, on November 2. The group will continue to meet for another seven weeks.

During October, 24 families on average per week were seen for counseling services at CARES. The weekly average of individuals was 53; the weekly average of youths was 21. Approximately 67 students received tutoring assistance.

New Year Committee Seeks Volunteers

The New Year 2001 Committee is busily working on this year's celebration. Plans are being finalized for activities in four locations — the Community Center, the Youth Center, the Arts Center and the movie theater. With all of these different venues operating at the same time, many volunteers are needed — and there are plenty of positions available.

Come to the next committee meeting on Monday, November 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center, and become a part of this year's celebration.

Our Neighbors

Greenbelt resident Angela Aiken, a student at Sweet Briar College, is currently participating in the "Transforming Communities" semester at American University's Washington Semester Program. The Washington Semester Program attracts students from more than 250 U.S. universities and nearly 20 international countries. With a reputation among top-tier schools as being the "academic" internship program, the semester experience consists of an internship, seminars, and an elective class or research project.

Get well wishes to former News Review staffers Otilie Van Allen and Martha Kaufman.

Toy Drive & Parade

The ninth annual toy drive and parade at Beltway Plaza Mall will be held Saturday, November 18, 2 to 4 p.m. Santa will be accompanied by special guests. After the parade, activities will be held inside the mall.

Five and Dime Book Sale Here

A "five-and-dime" book sale is set for Saturday, November 18, from 10:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and again on Monday and Tuesday, at the Greenbelt Library.

Friends of the Greenbelt Library, which manages the Novel Ending used book store in the library, is holding the sale in the meeting room downstairs.

Hard-backed books will sell for one-fourth the regular price, while paperback books will go for one-fifth the upstairs price. Magazines will be a real bargain for those who dote on issues of National Geographic, Audubon, Natural History and Nature magazines.

"The best books for sale are in our upstairs bookstore (off the Children's Department side), which is open the same hours as the library," explains Barbara Tanen, co-manager. "This sale is designed to sell off a giant backlog of materials that won't be going into the bookstore."

Special Books

There will be a table set up with oversized books at slightly higher prices, she says, but they are still bargains.

Sale Continues

For those who can't make it Saturday, the sale continues Monday, November 20 and Tuesday, November 21, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

FOGL

Friends of the Greenbelt Library is a non-profit group which has managed the bookstore here since October 1984, when the store opened on the first floor level where the library switchboard used to be.

Children's programs — such as the Summer Quest reading program — as well as special events for children and adults are financed with money earned by FOGL.

"Falling to Peaces" For Free at Theatre

On Saturday, November 18, at 3 p.m., in response to the tremendous reception the film received at this past weekend's "Filmathon" film festival, the Old Greenbelt Theatre will be hosting a free screening of the locally-made feature film, "Falling to Peaces" by husband and wife filmmakers Matthew Grove and Ellen Bartola, who hail from Reston, VA.

The free screening is the first in a series designed to promote local filmmakers while increasing the public's awareness of the unique moviegoing experience the Old Greenbelt Theatre offers, as a neighborhood, single-screen, art deco theater.

"Falling to Peaces," a drama comedy starring Delaney Williams ("Homicide") and Holly Twyford (Shakespeare Theatre), focuses on the dynamics of father/son relationships. A truly independent effort, the film was shot entirely on location in the Washington metro area and used only local talent for its cast and crew. More information on the film is available at www.andersinternational.com.

Filmathon a Success

The Filmathon, sponsored by the Friends of the Greenbelt Theatre (FOGT), which ran 14 hours of films on Saturday and Sunday brought in more than $7,000. The final tally is not complete as FOGT is still calculating expenses and receiving donations.

The City Paper had a full page on the Filmathon in last week's issue, Arch Campbell of Channel 4 announced the Filmathon twice on news programs, and the theater was covered by Channel 8 News. About 100 people were always present in the theater, though individual people came and left.

One of the independent films, Falling to Peaces, will be shown again Saturday at 3 p.m. An almost full length film, Falling presents what happens to an extended family that is thrown together for a weekend.

Anyone interested in contributing to the Filmathon may send a check made out to the City of Greenbelt, with Filmathon noted on the memo line and mailed to the city at 25 Crescent Road.

Curl's part was rewarded when, at the beginning of the 1999-2000 school year, Bauer agreed to replace a third grade teacher leaving for medical reasons. That third grade class became known as "Bauer's Best."

Bauer says, "It is rewarding to witness students' natural ability to wonder and ask questions. It is through science that children explore the world in which they live. It is important for students to experience success regardless of academic abilities. If children feel excited about their investigations they are self-motivated and this increases time on task."

Self-esteem

Bauer continued, "An important aspect of student success is a committed volunteer who makes a difference in the self-esteem of the child. All of our students need good role models."

Students use the scientific method during investigations. This format includes question, hypothesis, materials, procedure, results, and conclusion. Volunteers can facilitate in small group investigations providing support and guidance. Bauer has a long list of opportunities for volunteers who enjoy working with children. She needs someone who can help guide students through the thought process leading to scientific questions and help the students evaluate the big picture. Anyone who would like to help the students calculate data, work on student team issues, set up lab experiments, prepare trays, and do the grunt work, would be more than welcome in the Science Lab.

Bauer has asked for help from the community in finding guest lecturers. This would help to motivate the students in preparation for the annual science fair. The science fair has been very important to all the students (K-6) and staff at GES. This March, she plans to have 100% student participation in the science fair. The students become very excited about their projects and sometimes need more help than they can receive at home. In the past, the staff at GES has been generous with their time in and out of school,

The Music Faculty at Washington Bible College announces a faculty recital on November 17, at 8 p.m. at Miles Chapel on campus. Performers include Carol Wolfe-Ralph (pianist), Aurelius Gori (baritone), Matthew Edwards (pianist), David Reynolds (guitarist), Wendy Harton (violinist), and Janice Wood (pianist). but it would be extremely helpful if there were more volunteers to help the students with their research and backboard preparation.

Judging of the science fair is always a rewarding experience for those who volunteer because you haven't seen anything until you've seen the smile and pride of a child explaining his or her very own science project.

In January the students will begin the process of choosing their science fair questions and projects. There are 607 students at GES who would welcome as many volunteers as possible to come and experience the joy of giving to a child who is anxiously waiting to receive.

Council Meets New ERHS Principal S. Conyers

by Maria Piazzola

A reception for Sylvester Conyers, the new principal of Eleanor Roosevelt High School preceded the October 23 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council. Later, representatives of the police department presented a report showing a decrease in crime at Eleanor Roosevelt High School and other Greenbelt schools.

Councilmembers, city staff, parents and Roosevelt students arrived half-an-hour before the regular meeting to meet and congratulate Conyers. During the meeting itself Conyers addressed those present to thank them and answer questions.

"I'm very proud to say I'm the principal of ERHS," Conyers said. "I look forward to attending more meetings to engage in dialogue with ACE and City Council about issues facing Greenbelt."

In response to questions from council about student safety, Conyers promised to work with police and the Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) to curb pedestrian safety problems and campus safety problems.

"Anything to protect the safety of young people," said Conyers. "You don't want to wait until after the fact, when a student is hurt, because you will always regret not taking measures beforehand."

Safety Report

After a short discussion about pedestrian safety, two police officers from the School Resource Officer Program presented a summary of their End-of-Year Report about criminal activity and arrests at ERHS and other Greenbelt schools. Cpl. David Buerger reported that over the past year the number of criminal violations has decreased. Only 68 arrests were made during the 1999-2000 school year compared to 105 from the previous year.

The report also shows that the number of trespassers and truants has remained constant in the past school years, while the number of

Greenbelt Teachers Honored by Students

The sixth edition of Who's Who Amongst America's Teachers, 2000 includes 28 local teachers. All of the teachers were selected by their former students who themselves are listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students, or the National Dean's List. These are publications which recognize 5% of the nation's high school and college students. The students were requested to nominate the one teacher from their entire academic career who "made a difference in their lives" by helping to shape their values, inspiring interest in a particular subject and/or challenging them to strive for excellence.

Teachers from Greenbelt schools honored include: Marcia Donahoe Marino, Greenbelt Elementary School; Sandra Mueller Hansen, Springhill Lake Elementary School; and John Andrew LaPolla, Jr., Greenbelt Middle School.

From Eleanor Roosevelt High School: Joseph Kenneth Bernstein, Norman Monroe Brett, Richard James Carrington, Brenda Lee Chapman, Terri Lynn Collins, William Aaron Coon, Mark Allen Fielding, Catherine Anne Haisfield, Coit Taylor Hendley, III, Garland Hicks, William Lawrence Hunter, Sr., and William Allen Kurtz.

After graduation he attended the University of Maryland on a boxing scholarship. Martone fought both amateur and professionally from 1945 to 1964. A D.C. policeman, he was known as the "fighting cop" and won top Golden Gloves awards.

For a time Martone worked at the Co-op grocery store.

There were three generations of Martones in American Legion Post 136. John Martone, his father, who fought in World War II; John D. Martone, who fought in the Korean War and John Martone, II (John D's son), who fought in the Vietnam War.

The Martones celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1998 with a big party at the Greenbelt American Legion. They have seven children, a dozen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Although John and Pat Martone left Greenbelt in 1977, Greenbelt always called them back. In 1995 Martone founded and is president of the "Old Grizzlies" (taking the name from Greenbelt High's sports teams). Once a year the "Old Grizzlies" have a reunion of old friends from Greenbelt and the surrounding Greenbelt area. Most of them played on Greenbelt High School teams. Between 35 and 40 men attend each year. They have kept in touch with each other over the years and have

IRS Wants to Pay Income Tax Refunds

The Internal Revenue Service is trying to locate Marylanders who are due tax refunds from their 1999 and prior year federal income tax returns.

According to Sam Serio, an IRS spokesman for Maryland, 1,329 federal refund checks, totalling $905,915 were returned by the postal service marked "Undeliverable." The check amounts range from a low of $1 to a high of $16,542 with an average unclaimed federal refund of $683. The following individuals with a Greenbelt zip code are on the undelivered refund list:

Andrew M. Amatucci, Donell Barbee, Gloria Bell, Meghale A. & Arnica Ford, Katrina L. Haynie, Dora E. Martinez, Anant & Shilpa Padmanabhan, Young & Sook Hui Park, John R. Pendleton, Anita U. Rao, and Andrea Varbero.

Anyone who is expecting a 1999 or prior year federal refund check, and who has not already contacted the IRS, should call 1-800-829-1040.

breakfast together every other month at the Greenbelt American Legion. John's honor should be another reason for the "Old Grizzlies" to get together!

Sokol Honored by Greenbriar

Faye Sokol, a lady from the old south, has been memorialized by the Greenbriar Community Association with the planting of a white dogwood near her former residence. Faye died recently in Alabama after a long illness, but will be remembered for the many detailed letters written to her friends over the years.

Faye and her husband Charlie were original owners in the 1970s and lived in Greenbelt until Charlie's retirement from the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. Greenbriar will nurture this tree just as Faye nurtured the community when it was young.

ciplines, Austin made a request for donations of new or used copies of Rowlin's books.

Forty Greenbelters attend Robert Goddard Middle School. Daryl Watkins, principal, said that their "drop everything and read" program is building interest in reading. She said the kids pull out a book and read in the cafeteria, if they are allowed to read a book of their own choice.

Liz Whelan, principal at St. Hugh's Catholic School, said the school is in the middle of a six year evaluation. During the next three years they hope to integrate technology with reading and math. They are attempting to increase reading and writing in the school. In fact, a computer resource newsletter is being written by the children. Community service is increasing, with activities ranging from visiting the Adult Care Center in Greenbelt to raking leaves.

Overcrowded

Springhill Lake Elementary School needs all the help it can get, according to Principal Linda Sherwood. The school is overcrowded with 900 students and expecting up to 100 more in impending moves from Landover to Springhill Lake Apartments, resulting in transfers from Greenbelt Elementary, their present school. The school is short on staff, toilets, and space. Their test scores remain steady—by never dropping below the norm, they don't qualify for help. And they are not wired for the internet.

Having painted a grim picture, Sherwood went on to tell of perspective. In the spring they will stitch 24 quilts from cloth and then hold a multi-cultural dinner. (Greenbelt Middle is also an expeditionary learning school, and they are making quilts as well. Their theme is: Are we there yet? At the end of the year they will host a culture fair.)

Needs Support

Greenbelt Elementary is a newer school so internet wiring went in when it was built 10 years ago. They have Pentium III's in every classroom. What Wendy Geagan, the school's technology specialist, said they need is a support system to keep the computers working. They have been complimented for using their technology money well — they bought computers.

Having heard from everyone present Mach suggested that the formal meeting conclude and the participants continue their discussions in small informal groups over refreshments.

Awards

Two Greenbelt schools, Greenbelt Elementary School and Greenbelt Middle School, recently were awarded a $3,000 grant from the superintendent of schools for improving their 1998-1999 MSPAP scores. President Kathy Curl said Greenbelt Elementary's award will buy multi-cultural literature books. The series (54 sets of 30 books each) will be used for reading aloud, literature circles, and springboards for discussions.

Judy Austin said the Greenbelt Middle grant will go toward student incentives for a reading breakfast club.

Mentioning books triggered ACE Chair Leta Mach's suggestion that books be purchased at Bookland in Beltway Plaza through ACE's Buy a Book Plan. Bookland has a list of the books that the schools would like to receive and the store offers to deliver the books to the schools.

The suggestion was made by Mach that if students were planning to give their teachers a holiday gift, the teachers might appreciate contributions of books to the school library rather than something personal. Also grandparents who have everything might appreciate receiving a card that says a library book has been donated to the school in their name.

by Emory Harman

The Greenbelt Lions were very active in the community in recent months.

They collected over 350 pairs of eye glasses and contributed $1,000 each to the Lions Eye Bank, Lions Camp Merrick School for the Deaf, and Lions Club International Foundation.

The Lions participated in the Greenbelt Labor Day Parade by sponsoring the bikes and trikes of the Concert Series for the New Millennium. Admission is free.

Hass and pianist James Jenkins will perform American art songs from the twentieth century, featuring composers Samuel Barber, John Duke, Charles Ives, Lee Hoiby, and Carrie Jacobs-Bond.

The church is located about five minutes south of the Beltway on Baltimore-Washington Parkway (I-295) toward Washington. Take the exit "Annapolis Road (MD 450)"; drive west on Annapolis Road toward Bladensburg; the church will be on the left at the corner of 53rd Street.
