Volunteers Begin 66th Year Publishing Greenbelt's Newspaper

The News Review is unique – the longest running, all-volunteer, cooperative weekly newspaper in the United States – and has been featured in numerous books and television programs, as well as graduate theses and other student papers on Greenbelt, planned towns and the cooperative movement. Some of these researchers have focused on the paper's four-year David-and-Goliath struggle against a $2,000,000 libel suit in which the paper was finally vindicated by the US Supreme Court in 1970. The News Review decision supported freedom of the press and the case is still studied and quoted as a significant legal precedent.

In a town of many co-ops, the News Review is the next to the oldest.

Originally a letter-sized mimeographed publication consisting of 16 pages, then titled the Greenbelt Cooperator, the paper began publication on November 24, 1937 – six weeks after the first families had occupied their homes.

For those who have wondered how the paper gets out each week, the staff is largely volunteer (or, at least, minimally paid with member dividends) and, in the Greenbelt tradition, organized as a labor cooperative. The paper is unconnected with the city government, the other cooperatives in the city or with Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI). The paper gratefully accepts support from any segment of the community – from the city in the form of advertising and in housing for its operation, the Co-op grocery and GHI in corporate ads, and from the citizens when the financial pinch gets too tight. However it has been mostly self-supporting.

History

The early pioneers recognized the immediate need for a news medium to keep people informed of local events and to provide a forum for the exchange of views. They laid down the principles that still guide the actions of the present News Review – a non-partisan, nonprofit cooperative endeavor, whose aims are to print the news accurately and fairly and to respect the Greenbelt "good neighbor" philosophy of life.

Office Space

In January 1938, the federal government (which owned Greenbelt at that time) made space available at the town commercial center, free of cost and also loaned much-needed furniture, typewriters (we still have some) and office equipment. The paper moved its office five times before coming to rest in the present quarters in the Community Center.

Proofreader Solange Hess prepares to distribute the cake at this year's annual meeting in October which was held in the News Review office.

With the withdrawal of the federal government from town, GHI, through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Greenbelt Development Corporation, continued the federal policy of providing free office space for decades with the paper reimbursing the corporation for out-of-pocket expenses.

For many years the paper operated from offices in the basement of Parkway Apartments.

In February 1996, the News Review moved to fresh, new, above-ground space in the old Center School, newly renovated and opened as the now-familiar Community Center.

Free Delivery

An important development in the history of the newspaper was the decision to deliver the Cooperator free of charge to every home in town, beginning with the issue of September 7, 1939. The policy of free distribution remained unchanged except for an unsuccessful effort to go to a subscription basis in 1953. Successive boards of directors have considered that the most important thing is to get the paper to each household in the city.

As We Are

Although some readers may recall when the News Review had only two pages, the standard size today is 12 or 16 and may be as large as 28 pages. The deciding factor each week is the number of inches of advertising, which determines the number of pages that can be paid for.

At present 11,000 free copies of the News Review are distributed weekly to homes in Greenbelt including Greenbriar, Greenbrook, Greenwood Village, Windsor Green, Greenspring, Hunting Ridge, Belle Point, the Lakes of Greenbelt Village and the Greenbelt office buildings and shopping centers. We are attempting to find a means to deliver again to Springhill Lake.

City, Developer Still Disagree Over Trees at Golden Triangle

by Mary Moien

At the November 25 Greenbelt City Council meeting, the Greenbelt police were commended for their activities during the sniper scare. Several Greenbelt families were recognized for their excellent recycling habits and issues surrounding plans for the Golden Triangle were discussed.

Golden Triangle

Celia Craze, city planner, reviewed detailed site plans for two proposed buildings for the Golden Triangle area of Greenbelt Road. In early November the city council had discussed plans for this project and had voted to oppose the plan. One major reason for the opposition was a shortage in the amount of green space that would remain on the property.

At its November 21 meeting, the Prince George's County Planning Board considered the plans and directed the applicant and the city to meet in an attempt to resolve differences regarding details of the plan, most specifically the issue of woodland conservation. Representatives of the applicant have said it is impossible to reduce the number of parking spaces to save more woodland. The city maintains that a way must be found to retain woodlands. Craze commented that the applicant has not understood the significance of the woodland issue. The applicant has offered to plant more trees in the landscaped areas but does not see that it is the amount of land, not just the number of individual trees, that is the issue.

The city held a meeting with the representatives of the developer on November 22 to revisit the issues; however, no further agreement was reached. Craze indicated that the city should expect that the County board will approve the application at its next meeting. Council decided to reaffirm its stance on the plans, redocumenting the issues, as providing additional possible means to compromise. Hearing that the board will most likely approve the plan over the city's objections, Roberts commented that this is "part of a bigger problem in Prince George's County." He stated that the county wants quality development but won't uphold what he considers to be minimum standards for building.

Police Commendation

Mayor Judith Davis presented Greenbelt Police Chief James Craze with a certificate of appreciation for the extra efforts all of the police expended during the sniper crisis. City resident Janet Richards had suggested that the police be recognized for their extra presence, which helped ease some of the anxiety. A certificate will also be given to each member of the police department.

Recycling Awards

November 15 was America Recycles Day and the city had a number of activities centered around that day. One of those activities was the "Recycle Right" program. The public works staff selected five households who had the "best set outs of recycling materials." Neal Barnett of the Greenbelt Recycling and Environment Advisory Committee (REAC) announced the award winners. They were Irene and Evan Owens, Laurel Hill Road; Pat Davis, Westway; Ann and Victor Boswell, Research Road; Alla and Gary Lake of Chartwell Place; and Pam and Josh Hamlin of Ridge Road.

Each family came forward and was presented with a special blue recycling bin with their address painted on. In addition, there was a T-shirt that announced "America Recycles." Public works staff member William Smith, who had helped with the selections, was also on hand for the awards.

City staff liaison Cindy Murray also reported on other recycling activities during November. She mentioned that the recycling

Greenbelt New Year Colorful, Musical, Yummy, Fun for the Entire Family

by Dorothy Sucher

Greenbelt's New Year's festivities start with a bang this year when fireworks go off in a colorful display on Braden Field. After that everyone will move indoors to one of four locations. There is so much fun to be sampled that the big problem will be deciding what to do first.

Greenbelters with a yen to welcome the New Year sporting a wild and wonderful coiffure will want to head for the Sculptural Hair Salon, a unisex event in the Community Center's theater rehearsal room upstairs. According to Chris Cherry, recreation coordinator at the Community Center, "This was a very popular event in past years. Some of the creations are really spectacular – almost architectural. It's hilarious. Sometimes you don't recognize your own nearest and dearest once they've emerged." A squad of hairdressers will be on hand to weave pipe cleaners and other decorations into spectacular coiffures, often applying color that lasts just for the night.

The News Review asked Cherry whether he would be volunteering his admittedly sparse locks for this treatment. He replied, "No, I don't have enough for them to work with. An artist needs good materials. I don't offer much of a canvas for that kind of art, but I'd be willing."

Events will be taking place all over the city – at the Community Center, Youth Center, Greenbelt Arts Center and the movie theater and will appeal to all ages.

Plan Ahead

This is an early notice for ads and articles for the News Review issues for the weeks that include Christmas and New Year's Day. In order to meet those print deadlines there must be changes in the schedule that will affect our advertisers and those who send us notices of events as well as other material.

Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve fall on Tuesday, our usual editing and final ad deadline day. On those days we usually work until the wee hours of the morning to complete the tasks. The next evening we meet to proofread and finalize the layout of the paper. The printer gets it on Thursday in the early afternoon after we do a final check in the morning.

This Year

Ads and copy for the paper of December 19 – the final issue before Christmas – need to be in our hands no later than Tuesday, December 17.

Christmas week – all ads and copy for the December 26 issue must be in the News Review office no later than 10 p.m. on Sunday, December 22, earlier if possible. Special holiday hours will be Sunday from 2 to 5 and 8 to 10 p.m. Proofreaders and make-up staff will work on Monday night so they can spend Christmas Eve and Christmas Day with their families. The paper will be printed on Thursday, December 26.

New Year's week – The same schedule will hold for the January 2 issue. One more point – stories or ads featuring activities on Fridays and Saturdays should be published a week ahead so that people will have time to plan to attend.

The News Review Thanksgiving week schedule was an unhappy surprise to a number of organizations needing ads, notices and news articles that came to us too late to get into the paper. The affected groups and advertisers lost the exposure they needed that week. Most know we try to accommodate everyone's needs as much as possible, so plan ahead.

Letters to the Editor

The Greater Good In Perpetuity?

How does an elementary school, located outside the city limits yet serving many Greenbelt residents, threaten the protection of our future and the greater good of our community? Children are not only a renewable resource, but with any luck they grow up to be the wage earners who pay our Social Security and become the future good citizens and voters entrusted with the stewardship of our quality of life. In truth, the nurturing and molding of the next generation takes more than good luck; it takes a corporate commitment of resources to their welfare and education. Our public budgets and political actions show how underfunded and undervalued we find our youngest and most vulnerable of our citizens.

Do we citizens of Greenbelt find our public schools to be places where each of our children develops a positive self-image, respects and appreciates people's individual differences, acquires a life-long love of learning, learns to solve problems with peaceful solutions and learns a sense of responsibility for contributing to their world? If we did, then perhaps more than two of the 13 children who reside in my court would be attending or plan to attend a public school here in Greenbelt. How can we say that a school with these values (as stated in the Friends Community School Handbook) does not contribute to the good of our community and serves only a few?

How many members of the coalition to acquire the Jaeger Tract send children or grandchildren to public schools here in the city of Greenbelt? How many of us would like to see our grandchildren live here in Greenbelt but for the thought of where to send them to school? How many parents of school-age children living here in the city of Greenbelt are thinking of moving because they have no confidence in the local public schools?

What gives the city government such entitlement to land use outside our city? Why is increasing the size of a park by less than 2 percent more important than allowing a small school to survive and grow? Would not more Greenbelters become more intimately connected to the Jaeger Tract through the stewardship of Friends Community School? Now our city council is asking the National Capital Parks and Congress to take away this land because the seller sold it to someone else. It seems that if the park really wanted it to begin with, they would have acquired it years ago. Is this course of sour grapes action really in the best interest of our future? Not for my vote!

Foursome to Sing At the New Deal

Greenbelters Diana McFadden and Izolda Trakhtenberg will be joined by Zoe Mulford and Diana Sunday for an evening of music and song at the New Deal Café on Friday, December 13 from 8 to 10 p.m. The evening will feature original and traditional songs and tunes with a bit of holiday cheer thrown in. Vocalist, guitarist, fiddler and local singing teacher Trakhtenberg will perform original music as well as some old favorites. She gets the audience into the act by teaching them fun songs everyone can sing together.

Joining her on stage will be North Carolina transplant and singer/songwriter Mulford.

McFadden and Sunday (members of the Kiva and Green Crown bands) both play enough instruments to populate an entire orchestra (mandolin, cello, guitar and drums to name just a few).

Join this foursome as they forge a partnership of song.

Editor's Note: See "Jaeger Tract History Is Rife With Numerous Frustrations" in the November 28, 2002, issue of the News Review for the history of why the Jaeger Tract was not included in Greenbelt Park from the start.

Volunteers Needed For New Year's Eve

With less than three weeks until New Year's Eve, it will be here in a rush and this year's celebration is planned to be the best ever. There will be music, magic, clowns, "get-involved" activities, a theatrical production and much, much more. The one thing that the committee could use, however, is more volunteer participation. The next committee meeting is Wednesday, December 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center. Stop in and become a member of this group or call Patti Brothers at 301-982-2312.

Café Caroling On Wednesday

Both bands have been extremely popular in previous visits to Greenbelt. For an alternative, try the Scottish Country Dancers. The experts help you to get moving in the right direction.

For Children

Events for younger children are clustered in the early part of the evening. One of the most exciting is sure to be the Magic by Magic Mike show which, according to Cherry was "wildly popular last year." In fact the room was so packed that people had to be turned away. This year there will be a 7 p.m. early show as well as a later one at 9 p.m. In between, Magic Mike will perform magic and other "how did he do that?" feats. He'll also be making his extraordinary balloon sculptures. Said Cherry, "Last year people were waiting in line for his custom sculptures which are really prodigious. He takes requests and just about anything you ask him to make, he is able to do." Last year Magic Mike created several bicycles each one made of many balloons. This event will be taking place in the Senior Classroom.

Other programs for children include New Year crafts construction in the art room, the Goddard Storytellers (for all ages) and a "let your imagination take you away" show by the Blue Sky Puppets. McGruff the Crime Dog will roam the halls meeting and greeting.

Games for Teens

Many of the events at the Greenbelt Youth Center are designed to get the older kids and teenagers involved. A disc jockey will be playing from 7 to 11:30 p.m. Also several giant "climb-on" games will be on hand, including an inflated obstacle course and a Giant Inflatable Twister. Twister, for those who remember the old game they used to play at home, promotes getting your arms and legs all tangled up with those of other people - a great way to break the ice! Both games are provided by Talk of the Town. A karaoke disc jockey, provided by Sight and Sound Entertainment, will provide music all night for listening and/or singing.

Listening to him should provide a nice, laid-back break especially since this is the place where Chef Lou will serving up his fabulous desserts and coffee.

Food

No one need go hungry at the New Year's Eve festivities. The Swim Team Boosters will be serving food in the "Barracuda Cafe" at the Community Center. Pizza will be available at the Youth Center.

At the Greenbelt Arts Center a show for children called "True Magic" will be offered at 7:30 p.m. All the performers are children. In the same venue at around 10 p.m. there will be music by a local rock band of Greenbelt teenagers, a group known as "Something Completely Different." One of the musicians, young Andrew Bronstein of 6 Court Ridge, celebrates his birthday on New Year's Eve.

At the Greenbelt movie theater GAVA-GATE will be offering a free show of animated film features and shorts, many created by young people in Greenbelt. Some are award-winners that should be seen.

Midnight

All the events are scheduled to end in time for people to converge near midnight at the Community Center auditorium, where noisemakers will be distributed. Then the countdown will begin, ushering in the Year 2003. Happy New Year, Greenbelt!

Discounted advance tickets are available now at the Community Center. Children under 5 are free.

In 1995 the paper had joined the '90s when it moved to a cold type - computerized process. This change enabled us to return to the longer page which allows more space for stories and photos. We also added green ink. The paper looked good, our readers told us.

In June 2001, the paper lost the composition shop at Chesapeake Publishing and moved to an all-electronic process. This involved a steep learning curve for the volunteer staff - a process that still continues. The paper contracted with graphic designer Lynn Eppard, who now does all the layout and preprint work for the paper in her home. And the paper looks even better though it costs more to produce.

Staff

There have been 39 changes in editorship during the paper's 65 years. For the last 30 years, the position has been held by Mary Lou Williamson. There are more than 65 staff members, most of whom have joined the paper as their contribution to their community. Some, like Williamson, have been volunteering with the paper for well over 40 years.

An ongoing project, augmenting the staff through an agreement with the Departments of English and Journalism of the University of Maryland to accept placement of student interns, is continuing to the News Review's advantage. Students have participated in the regular work of writing and editing copy for this paper. The program is sponsored by the Alred M. Skolnik Memorial Fund. This fund also provides for a yearly $100 Savings Bond to be awarded to an outstanding Eleanor Roosevelt High School graduate who lives in Greenbelt and is proficient in the field of writing.

As the paper enters its 66th year, it remains primarily a volunteer effort - without fail by neighbors for neighbors, from the editor to young carriers delivering the paper. Unchanged is the fact that contributions of time and effort are always needed from Greenbelters to assure the paper continues to serve the community. The current special need is for volunteers willing to visit local merchants to sell them on the importance as well as the benefits of putting advertising in our community paper.

Cinderella to Play Here in December
