by Mary Moien

The annual meeting of the entire membership of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) will be held on Wednesday May 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center and continued on Thursday, May 22, 7 to 10 a.m. and 4 to 8 p.m. Highlights of the meeting will include election of officers, a review of the past year's activities and a discussion about changes in the monthly fee structure. New voting procedures will be in place, significantly shortening the hours of voting on Thursday May 22.

To date, Board of Director incumbents Julia Eichhorst, Joyce Abell, Chuck Hess and Sue Ready have filed to run for the board again. Barry Byers has filed his intention to run as well. (Byers was incorrectly listed as running for the Nominations and Elections Committee in last week's paper.) For the Audit Committee, incumbent Hopi Auerbach has filed as well as Darlene Romanowski and Jan Reyes. For the Nominations and Elections Committee, Roger Brown and incumbents Andy Carruthers, Deborah Cooley, and Elizabeth Wellborn are candidates.

Voting

The Nominations and Elections Committee has announced voting changes for this year's annual meeting. The committee reports that "in order to make elections run smoothly, take less time for voters and cost less to the cooperative, . . . paper ballots [will be used] in lieu of either the older mechanical voting machines or the newer computerized ones." As in the past, voting will take place on Wednesday night immediately following the meeting. However, on Thursday voting will take place at the Community Center only during two periods - from 7 to 10 a.m. and 4 to 8 p.m.

NASA to Use Methane Landfill Gas for Heating

by Virginia Beauchamp

The Goddard Space Flight Center (GSFC) is literally tethered to the earth by a new fivemile-long pipeline that was opened Thursday, May 8 in a ribbon-cutting ceremony led by NASA Administrator Sean O'Keefe and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Administrator Christie Todd Whitman. The pipeline connects GSFC with a Prince George's County landfill at Sandy Hill in Bowie.

Methane gas from the landfill will provide 100 percent of the heating needs for the 31 buildings on the 1,270-acre Goddard campus 95 percent of the time, according to GSFC officials. Technical changes to make this new energy source available have included modification of two boilers at the GSFC central heating plant and construction of a gastreatment facility at Sandy Hill. Both changes were brought about by a Texas company, Toro Energy, Inc., of Dallas. Toro initiated the project two years ago with a proposal to reduce energy use in an environmentally sound manner without increasing operating expenses. The project involved coordination between NASA, EPA and the county.

At the ribbon-cutting ceremony, O'Keefe heralded the value of this practical enterprise to one of NASA's key missions - "understanding and protecting our home planet." He described how the space agency "monitors and studies our planet from our unique vantage point in space . . . This project directly benefits the Earth by removing a significant amount of methane, a greenhouse gas, from the environment," O'Keefe said.

Still a Bargain

Last week's News Review front-page budget news caught my eye. City Manager Mike McLaughlin has proposed a 9 percent increase in the city's budget for public works.

I have lived in Greenbelt for 15 years. Mike Mullaney told me, "Greenbelt was the center of the universe as we know it." He was right. As planned communities go, Greenbelt remains visionary and progressive. This year the City of Greenbelt was again awarded a commendation for its accuracy in accounting. Hence, I do not question the figures cited by McLaughlin. No small feat in our Enron era of accounting scandals. The Public Works Department consistently performs outstanding work. We see the benefits of their labor in our clean streets, beautiful flower beds and recycling (even during inclement weather). I believe we are fortunate to have the opportunity to sustain and reward these employees. So, we have now learned that to maintain the vision FDR and Tugwell had for Greenbelt will require additional funds? It's still a bargain.

Sarah E. Powell

(Ed. note: The city has not received awards for accuracy in accounting. Its accounts, however, are audited annually by an independent Certified Public Accountant The city has regularly received awards for distinguished budget presentation and for its excellence in financial reporting. These awards relate to how information is presented but do not verify the information's accuracy.)

Clarification

Renee Landon is no longer code enforcement officer for Springhill Lake (SHL) as reported in last week's article, "Springhill Lake Residents Air Their Safety Concerns." She is now responsible for Greenbelt East but remains on the SHL Neighborhood Improvement Committee. Also, the city code enforcement office is responsible for enforcing only building and housing code violations, not health code violations which are the responsibility of the county health department.

The Greenbelt police did not attend the April 29 public forum on SHL issues at the request of the Public Safety Advisory Committee, whose members felt that residents would be more open to airing their complaints if police were not present, according to Police Chief James Craze. by Rosie Rhubarb the general type you like and need. Several plants each of tomatoes and peppers will produce what a family will need.

Flowers

Local garden stores have a large selection of flowers offered for sale. For more variety and to grow flowers not available in stores, May is the month to start most annual flowers from seeds planted in the ground. Taller flowering plants in particular don't seem to be much offered for sale as plants. Several are fairly easy to start from seed: cosmos, zinnia, tithonia (orange daisy shaped) and cleome (looks like something from Star Trek). Marigold and morning glory are also fairly easy to start from seed.

Plants for the shady garden include: impatiens, coleus, begonia, torenia. Summer flower garden favorites include marigold, salvia, zinnia, cosmos and petunia.

When shopping for plants, buy healthy plants that will continue to develop strong leaves and stems and thus will produce many flowers for weeks this summer. When choosing a plant look for healthy green leaves. Avoid plants with yellowing and browning leaves, grayish spots, bugs, fuzzy patches or webs. Also avoid plants that have a lot of roots sticking out of the bottom of the pot. This is a sign that the plant is pot bound and has been stressed.

Do not worry about having a lot of flowers on the plants just yet. At this stage you want the plant to put its energy into producing good leaf and root growth. Pinching the flowers off before planting in the ground will direct the plant's efforts to producing a stronger plant.

Corrections

In last week's page 5 water polo photo caption, Hannah Betman's name was misspelled. The News Review regrets the error.

The News Review has learned that there were not "more $ for flowers" as our public works budget headline claimed last week. While street landscaping was $30,700 over budget last year according to Assistant Director Bill Phelan, parks landscaping was under budget by more than that amount. There was no additional expenditure for labor, Phelan said, just a shift in focus from parks to streets in Greenbelt East and Springhill Lake over the past few years.

Information Omitted

In last week's story on Earth and Arbor Day and the Public Works Open House, recognition was omitted for the fine work being done by the members of the Advisory Committee on Trees. They organized the Arbor Day planting, assisted with the planting and are generally responsible for the city's continuing status as a Tree City USA. The committee members are Charles Jackman, Jennifer Sager and Bob Trumbule.

In Memoriam: Mary MacQuillan Friends of Mary MacQuillan always count on for help, often were saddened to learn of her recent death on May 4, 2003, in Johns Hopkins Hospital following a brief illness and delicate arterial surgery.

Mary and I had been close friends since 1969 when she and her husband became neighbors on Lakeside Drive. Their lovely daughter Jennifer was in my third grade class that year. Our children quickly became good buddies and it was fun watching them grow up together. We functioned somewhat as surrogate extended families to each other, which was especially nice since all of our relatives lived far away.

Mary and I were colleagues at Greenbelt Center School for many years where she was a teaching assistant in the Hearing Impaired Program. She and her supervising teacher and dear friend, Mary Gary (deceased), worked together patiently and tirelessly like a welloiled machine. This remarkable team, totally dedicated to their special-needs students, was greatly admired by the entire staff. Even after her retirement, Mary frequently substituted in the Hearing Impaired Program at Thomas Clagett School where her talents were so helpful.

She was smart, funny, upbeat, enthusiastic, hard-working and noncomplaining. She was an outstanding wife, mother, grandmother, teacher, neighbor and friend.

MASS SCHEDULE:

Mary was someone you could before help was even requested. She could drive you to the airport, let your dog out if you were away for a few hours, remove unwanted papers and leaflets from your front door and even place trash in your trash can if you were gone for weeks. Once when we were away, the Lakeside area had a power failure following a severe storm. Of course our sump pump could not kick in and our basement was flooded. Mary came over with towels, a mop and bucket and saved us from a dreadful mess.

Everyone should be lucky enough to have had a friend like Mary.

Mary and her husband Tony were children in World War II England. They experienced hardships that most of us have only read about. However, this revelation did not come forth in any complaining fashion. That would have been "anti-British, stiff-upper-lipism" that I always enjoyed teasing them about. My nosy prodding produced the information about their early years.

In a fairly recent Christmas card, Mary indicated that they had just completed a rather difficult fect for January 2004. These changes will be discussed at the meeting. The GHI Finance Committee proposed a revision that was accepted by the cooperative. Currently there are hundreds of different monthly fees for houses that are fairly similar. It was often difficult for GHI to explain why there were so many different monthly fees. According to the Finance Committee report, "Members are confused and suspicious when they discover that the monthly fee for their unit is significantly different from a neighbor's whose house appears to be almost identical." The committee proposed changes meant to be fairer, easier to administer and easier to explain.

The new fees will be guided by a 50/50 formula. The first 50 percent of the total costs will be equally distributed and include services that all members benefit from equally. These include management costs, trash, common area maintenance, etc. The other 50 percent of the fee will be based on the square footage of the unit and how that influences maintenance costs, taxes and insurance.

According to Julia Eichhorst, GHI Board President, the change in fee structure is meant to be "budget neutral," that is, there will be no overall change in the total fees collected. However, individual units will have changes, some increases and some decreases. In response to a question about specific unit increases, Eichhorst indicated that some homes, including some original homes with basements and homes with attached garages, may experience more substantial increases. She also stated that members who may be facing larger than nominal increases in charges will be notified by mail and have a chance to meet to discuss the changes.

Inside the bakery/café is an atmosphere of soft colors and lighting, hard wood floors and classical music. Tables, chairs, umbrellas for the planned outside seating area, bakery and dessert showcases and the ordering area are all in place for opening day. Dishes, real china, are being uncrated, washed and put in place. The hard-working duo is not alone in their excitement - they report a full staff has been hired after some 300 applications were processed. Atlanta Bread prides itself on exceptional service - something these two seem eager to offer even before opening.

In a show of welcome, the eatery-bakery has been inviting passersby to walk in and look over their shining, soon-to-be opened place of business. The sign said "Opening Next Week. Come and Look." A front corner has an artificial fireplace with sofas and stuffed chairs for socializing. There's also a large dining area with ample-sized tables.

There will be classical music, a hallmark of the Atlanta Bread Company chain. In keeping with their commitment to the community, one local charity has already been selected and others are being considered to receive the day's left-over baked goods at closing every night.

Open and approachable, Belasco and Van Der Vaarst were engaged in paperwork and planning their next tasks when this reporter stopped by to see what was going on. The pair is working long days as they approach the actual opening, to be followed by an official grand opening June 14. They offer visitors menus filled with sandwich, salad and soup offerings. Cases just inside the door will hold breads, muffins, bagels, cheesecakes and other dessert items. The eatery will accept major credit cards and the University of Maryland's University Meal Deal card.

Menus are available online at www.atlantabread.com. In addition to breads and desserts, there is a signature "Loaf of Soup" served in a sourdough loaf "bowl" and a wide variety of specialty coffees, smoothies and other beverages.

Haley Hilliard Is Winner In Anglers Tournament

by Austin Conaty

Saturday, April 19 was a cool and breezy morning down at Greenbelt Lake. The St. Hugh Council of the Knights of Columbus sponsored a Youth Fishing Tournament from 9 a.m. until noon. Nearly 20 young anglers braved the weather to cast for the winning fish in one of the tournament categories. Veteran fishing enthusiast Chuck Hatcher was passing along tips to the youngsters including how to tie the hooks on the line, how to bait the hook, how to cast and what to do when the fish goes for the bait.

The winning fish was an 11.5 inch trout caught by Haley Bo Hilliard who was later presented with a first place ribbon (pictured above). (Haley's brother Harrison was the tournament winner last time around.)

Hot dogs and snacks were provided. Local families with entries in the tournament included the Hilliards, the Baileys, the Ables, the Winfreys, the Nordbergs, the Brambles, the Noves, the Martins and the Reichelts, who were visiting from Idaho.

County Releases New School Requirements

Prince George's County Public Schools released age and other requirements for children seeking to enter pre-kindergarten, kindergarten, and first grade next fall.

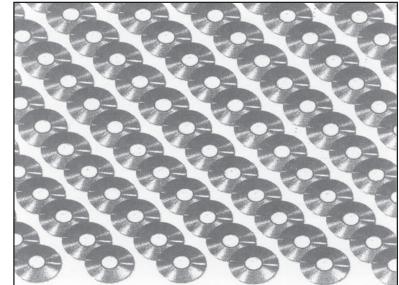

For the 2003-2004 school year, children entering pre-kindergarten must be born between December 1, 1998 and October 31, 1999. Kindergartners must be born between January 1, 1998, and November 30, 1998. First grade students must be born between January 1, 1997, and December 31, 1997.

In 2001, the Maryland State Board of Education adopted recommendations which changed the entrance cut-off birthdates for school children from December 31 to September 30. This change is being phased in until the 2006-2007 school year when all students must be the required age by September 30.

State law also requires that all children must now attend kindergarten or another approved program before being admitted to first grade. There are a few exemptions allowed. These are five-year-olds enrolled in one of three alternative program settings - full-time in a licensed child care center, fulltime in a registered family day care home or part-time in a Head Start five-year-old program, or five-year-olds enrolled in an approved home-school instruction program.

For more registration information contact the Pupil Accounting and School Boundaries Department at 301 952-6300 or email at pasbt@pgcps.org.
