Greenbelt Pink Ribbon Ride Raises $14,850 for Cancer

by Tiane Johnson

Residents from all over Maryland, Virginia and as far as New Jersey and Pennsylvania met in Greenbelt on Saturday, October 2 for the Bike4BreastCancer Greenbelt Pink Ribbon Ride to help raise money and awareness for breast cancer.

The Ride, which began and finished at the Greenbelt Community Center, included over 200 riders and more than 40 volunteers.

At the conclusion of the day, $14,850 was raised from registration fees and business sponsors to go to Y-ME, a national breast cancer organization that helps people with the disease.

Sylvia Lewis, who originated the event three years ago and coordinated it for the first two years, said the fundraiser has many objectives.

"The Pink Ribbon Ride helps to educate people of the need for awareness of breast cancer. Healthy lifestyle and early detection are very important. It also raises money for Y-ME, which provides support for breast cancer," Lewis said.

Elaine Brett, a breast cancer survivor and coordinator of this year's event, said she has learned a lot from participating in the ride.

"Participating in the fundraiser has exposed me to Y-ME, where I have become a volunteer and peer counselor. It has opened my eyes to other ways to help, not just money, but to help people think healthier. It has inspired me to ride my bike again. And I have been given a chance to know the wonderful people who contributed," she said.

Brett has been involved in the fundraiser since its creation. This year as coordinator she was in charge of the volunteer teams, business sponsors, registration information and marketing.

This year's event was bittersweet for Brett because it is her last year as coordinator for the Ride before she moves to Colorado. The committee, with Brett's help, is looking for a volunteer with time to dedicate to making next year's ride a success.

Julia Eichhorst, volunteer coordinator for the event, said finding volunteers was not difficult because people are always eager to help. "We almost had too many volunteers," she said. Their duties included helping at rest stops and developing routes for us. The ones that could not donate time gave money."

Eichhorst added that she is active in the Ride because "the people involved are great. I had a good friend who died of breast cancer and I participated in the breast cancer walk in Washington, D.C."

Year-long Priority

Even though October is designated as Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Brett said it should be a priority for women all 12 months.

Metropark and State Sign Consent Order over Work

by James Giese

The Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) Water Management Administration and Greenbelt Metropark, L.L.C., owners of the former A. H. Smith sand and gravel facilities north of Greenbelt Road east of the CSX railroad tracks have reached agreement on work Metropark has been doing to dewater old wash ponds. The agreement is in the form of a consent order executed by both parties on November 5. Subject to Metropark obtaining an approved sediment control plan from the Prince George's County Soil Conservation District, payment of $15,000 to MDE by Metropark, submission of a map prepared by Metropark engineers delineating an "ineffective" area of the 100-year floodplain for the property previously mapped by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and MDE's determination that the work to be done is in that area and will not cause adverse flood risks either upstream or downstream.

The work Metropark has been doing and will continue to do once all approvals are obtained is to dewater old wash ponds. These ponds were used during the sand and gravel operations to collect fine sediment from the water used to wash gravel. Over the years the ponds filled up with a material the consistency of peanut butter. The largest of the wash ponds is located on property FEMA maps designate as being within the 100-year flood plain. Metropark contends that this pond is not in the floodplain and is seeking a letter of map revision from FEMA.

The dewatering process, according to Metropark, involves

Adult Day Care Program Here Changes Ownership

by Barbara Hopkins

An agreement has been reached to transfer ownership of the adult day care program in Greenbelt from Baptist Senior Adult Ministries (BSAM) to To God Be The Glory Adult Care, Inc. (TGBTG), a non-profit corporation. At its regular meeting on November 22 the Greenbelt City Council agreed to transfer the lease for the adult day care center, which is located in the basement of the Community Center, in order to allow the sale of the business.

The city's lease with BSAM requires written consent from the city, as landlord, before the lease can be reassigned. For approximately one year BSAM has been trying to sell all three of its adult day care centers. TGBTG has agreed also to purchase BSAM adult care programs in Brentwood and Bowie.

BSAM is being sold to a for-profit company, Executive Director Peter Roberts told council. He added that if this sale to TGBTG were not accomplished, the day care centers would be closed by the new company. BSAM has run the program in Greenbelt for the past nine years.

TGBTG is receiving financial backing from To God Be The Glory Financial Services, a mortgage brokerage and property management company owned by LaWonne Booker. Booker, a senior cosmetologist, told council she plans to bring cosmetology services to the day care program.

Joining Booker in TGBTG Adult Care Inc. are Lenore Paris and Sandra Durham, who together have 20 years of experience in various facets of health

Pink Ribbon Ride Is Huge Success

For the past year I have had the pleasure of working with the Greenbelt community on organizing the Bike4BreastCancer Greenbelt Pink Ribbon Ride. I am not a resident of Greenbelt and found the experience rewarding and gratifying. The cooperation of the individuals who volunteered and participated and the businesses who sponsored the ride was amazing. The City of Greenbelt, including the mayor's office, the public works department, the police, the Community Center and others, demonstrated a true spirit of community in assisting with the ride and offering their services and showing their hospitality.

The Pink Ribbon Ride was a tremendous success! Over 225 cyclists from Maryland, Virginia and the District came to Greenbelt. There were even riders from as far as Pennsylvania and New Jersey! Over 40 volunteers (mostly from Greenbelt) made sure that riders registered and had a safe and enjoyable day. Over 40 local businesses contributed to the ride in many different ways. All of the money raised from the event will be donated to Y-ME of the National Capitol Region. (Y-ME provides educational programs and peer support for those touched by breast cancer.)

Thank you Greenbelt for your support and for being the great community that you are!

Correction

In last week's article on Doug Peters' Town Hall meeting in Greenbelt, Peters was reported to have said he would support the development of the Glenn Dale golf course on half-acre lots as has been proposed by the owner. What he said was that he would support the development of the Glenn Dale Hospital if the golf course was left as open space. However, zoning for the hospital is controlled by the state.

5K Run Raises Awareness And Funds for Heart Assn.

by Austin Conaty

This Saturday, December 4, at 8 a.m. the Prince George's Running Club (PGRC) will host the second running of the Greenbelt Wright Stuff 5K Fun Run & Walk. There are three goals for the race: to commemorate the Wright brothers' first powered flight in December 1903, to raise funds for and awareness of the American Heart Association (AHA) and to have fun walking or running in Greenbelt.

The AHA focus for the race this year is on Cardiac Health for Women. The AHA has a program called Go Red for Women, now in its fourth year. Participants in the race will be given brochures with important information about women and their hearts.

According to the AHA, heart attack and stroke are the No. 1 and No. 3 killers of women over the age of 25. The AHA explains, in the handouts that runners will receive, that women can take charge of their cardiac health by eating heart-healthy foods and exercising regularly. A limited number of AHA Red Dress pins will be given to women who register early for the 5K.

Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen Patti Brothers will be the official starter of the race. She will then get back to the much-anticipated pancake breakfast being held the same morning.

A variety of prizes for the race were provided by 94th Aero Squadron, College Park Aviation Museum, Modell's, Chef Lou's, Generous Joe's, the New Deal Café and ROADID.COM and others.

For more details about the race, visit the PGRC website at <http://www.pgrc.org>. For more information about heart attack and stroke prevention, visit the AHA website at <http://www.americanheart.org>.

The Stars Star at Owens Science Center

A series of presentations for children will be featured in December's planetarium programs at the Howard B. Owens Science Center, 9601 Greenbelt Road. There is a fee.

On Friday, December 10 at 7:30 p.m. and on Saturday, December 11 from 10 to 11 a.m. "Terrible Teddy" will be presented. Santa has made a teddy bear too big to fit in the sleigh. But Teddy doesn't want to be in a department store. Come learn how Teddy uses the stars to find his way back to Santa. A tour of the current night sky will follow the presentation.

Later Saturday, December 11 from 11:15 to 12:15 p.m. "Rudolf Flu" will be presented. Something is wrong at the reindeer stable. Santa's reindeer will be unable to fly on Christmas Eve! Come find out the lessons Santa's dog, Sirius, learns from his friends in the sky. A tour of the current night sky will follow.

Another Saturday show will be from 12:45 to 1:45 p.m., when "Susie's Snowflake" will be shown. "Susie's Snowflake" is an introduction to the easily recognized constellations in the winter sky. Susie is a young girl learning to study science using her five senses. Through exploration and examination she learns that snowflakes have six points. She also recognizes six bright stars in the night sky that she uses to make a snowflake. A tour of the current night sky follows.

Later from 2 to 3:15 p.m., a double feature of "Terrible Teddy" and "Rudolf Flu" will be shown at the final presentation.

Holiday Bazaar Raises Funds And Is Fun for Attendees

by Louise Piper

The sky was blue and the air crisp as the fall bazaar began at 9 a.m. November 13 in the Greenbelt Community Church Social Hall. The Christmas crafts table was festive and displayed the talents of creative church members. Among items on display were holiday ornaments, small decorated holiday trees, baby blankets and exquisitely made doll clothes.

The international table held baskets made in Bangladesh, holiday ornaments, olive oil from the West Bank, dried beans and utterly divine chocolate. Sales at this table support "fair trade for the developing world" and go directly to the artisans in foreign lands.

The Country Cupboard had jams, jellies, chili salsa, catnip and dog treats, framed cross stitch, brass animals, yoyo potholders and pins and holiday pens. The junior youth group made and packaged bath salts in blue and white candy cane and red holiday spice aromas.

The bake sale table was long and well provided. Bakers had been busy making carrot cakes, pumpkin pies, breads, brownies, cookies, cakes and candies in lots of flavors and varieties. With so many choices, it was hard to decide where to go first!

At 3 p.m. the live auction began. Forty auction participants vied for 77 auction items and services. Forty gift baskets were packaged in shrink wrap representing a variety of themes, including moviegoer, car lover, cat/dog lover, baby, chocolate lover, golf and others. Each basket was displayed by enthusiastic members of the junior youth group as it came up for consideration.

The services ranged from teeth whitening to oil changes to vacation lodging to gift certificates, as well as a soothing massage. There was lots of laughter as the auctioneer encouraged us to keep bidding. "It's only five more dollars!" "You wanted it a minute ago!" "It's for a worthy cause!" "You had it for a minute! Don't you still want it?" Each basket or service was awarded to the highest bidder to the applause of the lively crowd.

In addition, many tickets were sold for four baskets being raffled: Spiderman, Red Hat, University of Maryland and Redskins. Joy was evident as well when the raffle winners were announced.

It was a successful and interesting community event, open to the public. All in attendance appeared to have a good time and most walked away with some useful products or with their sweet tooth satisfied for at least awhile.

Surprise Party Honors Kliman

Friends and family of Greenbelt artist Ted Kliman gathered at the Community Center on Saturday, November 6 for a surprise 75th birthday celebration. The highlight of the event was a retrospective of Kliman's 25 years as an artist.

Kliman was born on October 26, 1929 in Philadelphia. He began his career as a documentary filmmaker. He always knew he loved art and would rise at 5 a.m. to paint. Twenty-five years ago he shifted careers and decided to focus on art, graduating from the Maryland Institute College of Art in 1979.

Kliman's son Tom organized the retrospective of his father's work, raiding houses and persuading people to loan their paintings for the one-day show. Tom described his father's paintings as seeming to float in space. Many of the canvases depict draperies in shades of black and white.

Kliman's wife, Itsy, prepared an album commemorat-

"The Reality of the divine Religions is one, because the Reality is one and cannot be two. All the prophets are united in their message, and unshaken. They are like the sun; in different seasons they ascend from different rising points on the horizon. Cowan and Hass Star In "La Perichole"

Singers Ingrid Cowan and Ole Hass performed the main roles in Jacques Offenbach's operetta, "La Perichole" last month at the Duke Ellington Theater, with the Washington Savoyards, the area's premier light opera company specializing in works by Gilbert and Sullivan. "Perichole and Paquillo are to be sung by a mezzo-soprano and a tenor so we jumped at this unusual opportunity to appear together in lead roles."

The "Washington Post" ran an enthusiastic review praising both singers and calling the production "bright and energetic." The two next appeared together on November 23 at noon in downtown Washington in a half hour concert at the Church of the Epiphany for the Noon Recital Series.

NO Plastic Bags

Newspapers and mixed papers should be bundled and tied or placed in PAPER BAGS for recycling collection. Plastic bags contaminate our recycling loads and should never be placed with your curbside recyclables — or at the Recycling Drop-Off Centers. Safeway, Giant and Co-op Supermarket still accept plastic bags for recycling.

Cardboard Boxes

Cardboard boxes, 3 feet or less, must be flattened and placed next to your recycling bin in order to be collected with curbside recycling. Larger boxes must be cut to size or taken to a Recycling Drop-Off Center.

WINTER WEATHER

REFUSE/RECYCLING COLLECTION

Walkways to your refuse containers and recycling bins must be kept clear of snow and ice in order for the collectors to provide service to your home. If you are unable to keep your walkway clear, place your refuse container and recycling bin at the curb for collection. GHI residents may place containers and bins by their parking lot.

"I would like to see it become a year-round event raising awareness about breast cancer. A lot of women are not getting mammograms. There is a desire to focus on the Black and Hispanic communities because they have high rates but not high testing."

As a breast cancer survivor, Brett said participating in the event is her way of sharing her experience with others.

"Women who have been through it want to help raise awareness and help other women who have it. Survivors take the experience and want to share our stories. I took a turn in life to be aware of being healthy and getting involved with prevention."

Raising awareness and promoting a healthy lifestyle are goals of the Ride, but for breast cancer research and services, money is an important factor.

"The proceeds go to help a number of Y-ME programs. One of the main services is the help line for people diagnosed with breast cancer by allowing them to talk to a breast cancer survivor. Other services include outreach programs that raise awareness about the disease," said Doris Parker, the Ride's liaison with Y-ME.

Sponsors

Some 44 business sponsors played an important role in raising money for the organization.

Major contributors were the City of Greenbelt, Comcast, Doctors Community Hospital, IKEA, Touchstone Consulting Group and Capitol Cadillac-Hummer. Atlanta Bread partnered with the Ride at the Labor Day Festival serving sandwiches, salads and smoothies while raising money and awareness.

The Ride was also a great form of exercise because it involved four routes for cyclists: (1) WB&A Railroad Trail Pink Route (40 miles), (2) Patuxent Wildlife Blue Route (20 miles), (3) Agricultural Center Yellow Route (10 miles) and (4) Greenbelt Lake Family Fun White Route (two miles).

"The Ride is a part of the community," Brett said, "so people are eager to be involved. Also, it involves cycling and that is a healthy form of exercise. The Ride promotes the idea of living a healthy lifestyle."

In regard to a setting best suited for the Ride, "Greenbelt is a great location for the Ride because it is beautiful and has great paths for cyclists," Lewis said. In addition to great routes, Brett said Greenbelt residents were a significant part of making the event successful.

"Greenbelt is a wonderful community. The people work together well. Mayor Judith Davis and every member of the city council came and helped. Greenbelt Public Works, the Police Department, the Community Center and other local organizations provided tremendous support. It was definitely a community effort. Greenbelt has been a very good experience," she said.

Over 60 prizes were awarded, including the use of a Hummer for a weekend, a $100 gift certificate from IKEA and gift certificates from Old Navy, Jaspers and Pleasant Touch.

With this year's event being a huge success, Brett said she will continue to help the Ride's committee even though she is relocating, because she wants to continue to raise awareness about the seriousness of breast cancer.

"One in eight women have the possibility of getting breast cancer. That's a round-table at a wedding. Awareness is important. My advice for women is to eat well, exercise, avoid stressful situations and to be aware of one's body and self."

Survey Members Join Pink Ribbon Ride

Greenbelter Cathy Burt and other staff members of the National Center for Health Statistics's National Ambulatory Medical Care Survey celebrated the survey's 30th anniversary by riding in the Greenbelt Pink Ribbon Ride on Saturday, October 2. The 20-mile ride took them through and around Greenbelt, not far from the survey's offices in Hyattsville.

Riders promoted breast cancer awareness and raised money for the Y-ME National Breast Cancer organization, which provides a 24-hour hotline, support services and educational programs for persons diagnosed with breast cancer. The riders were also celebrating 30 years of data collection from surveying office-based physician practice which monitors the health care provided in doctors' offices.

The survey found that on average, each day of the year physicians order over 48,000 mammograms to screen for breast cancer.

installing "wick drains." Cloth wicks are drilled into the wet material. The ponds are then filled with a thick layer of dirt, the weight of which forces the water out of the accumulated sediment, up the wicks, through a washed gravel drainage layer and out onto the surface where it either evaporates or is controlled run-off.

Work Spotted

After residents traveling on METRO trains reported to the city that earth-moving work was being done at the old sand and gravel facility, city staff checked with county and state officials and found that the work was being done without a permit. Metropark contends that documents it had received from MDE led it to believe that MDE had waived jurisdiction of the property as a pre-law mining operation. MDE, however, disagreed believing that Metropark needed to obtain an erosion and sediment control plan approved by the Soil Conservation District and a waterway construction permit from MDE. It issued a stop work order on October 14.

Metropark continued to perform work after that order was issued but did install a silt fence to control sediment runoff, applied for an approved erosion and sediment control plan from the Soil Conservation District and applied for a county grading permit and waiver to fill the FEMA-mapped floodplain. County approval was obtained October 28. The Soil Conservation District has also approved the erosion and sediment control plan, according to James Sterling of the Greenbelt Community Development office. Sterling says that work has been continuing on the property.

Metropark also appealed the MDE stop work order while MDE began preparing to file a civil complaint seeking a temporary restraining order to enforce its stop work order.

The $15,000 paid by Metropark to resolve the dispute will go to the Maryland Clean Water fund. No other work will be permitted within the 100-year flood plain without an MDE permit. Metropark agreed to withdraw its appeal of the stop work order.

Paris, Durham and Booker all

After becoming familiar with the Greenbelt program, Durham said, they will seek feedback from the community and address any needs expressed. She said they intend to listen to their customers.

Co-op Manager Describes Future Plans

by Mary Moien

The Greenbelt Consumer Co-operative (GCC), which runs the Co-op Supermarket, held its 20th annual meeting on September 30. Nearly 100 members were present to mark the occasion. Two seats on the board of directors were up for election and they were filled, by acclamation, by incumbents Joe Timer and Mimi Noorani. Dorrie Bates chaired the meeting.

Treasurer's Report

Treasurer Joe Timer proclaimed the co-operative to be in good financial shape. Sales broke the $10 million mark for the first time in the fiscal year ending July 31. This was in spite of a net loss of $55,000 due to the three day power outage during Hurricane Isabel. This year was also the first year of a new supplier – another co-operative, Associated Wholesale, Inc. (AWI) – an association which has worked out well.

The pharmacy is a “driving force” of the Co-op accounting for one-third of total sales. A giant one-day meat sale during the year also brought in $19,000.

GCC income for the year was $84,000 of which about 70 percent was returned to members as patronage refunds and the remainder added to the employees' retirement fund.

Manager's Report

Manager Bob Davis was applauded as he took the podium. He has been the manager since GCC began. He acknowledged Betty Price who had been an employee at the old and new Co-op for 34 years. He commented that he cannot believe he has been with the store for 20 years but that “it says so in the News Review, so it must be true.” He confirmed that it had been “a good year.” He discussed the new advertising program as well as remodeling plans.

The main advertising for the Co-op has traditionally been a two-page ad in the Greenbelt News Review. The ad was compiled manually by Co-op staff. Then the Co-op starting doing business with AWI; AWI had its own advertising insert that the company produced and would put the Co-op logo on. In March GCC began using the new ad format and it has been a huge success. In the five months prior to the new ad, sales were two percent higher than the year before. Starting in March there was an immediate increase in sales and they have averaged 11 percent since.

Davis acknowledged the long partnership between the Co-op store and the Greenbelt News Review, also a co-operative organization. They plan to keep the one-page advertisement in the paper highlighting specials as well as beer and wine sales.

BOGO

Davis discussed the Co-op's sale methods, especially referring to the “2 for” or “3 for” a certain price, as well as the “buy one get one free” specials. Older members and those living alone often can't use large numbers of the same item. He indicated that in all cases the consumer can purchase just one item. In the case of “buy one get one free” you can purchase one item at half price. There are no longer any coupons that need to be cut out to get sale prices.

Remodeling

Remodeling the store has been planned for several years. It was to begin last year, but the financial loss from the hurricane put the plans on hold. Now, plans are underway again. Although the remodeling plans were not discussed in detail, Davis indicated that a first-floor restroom is a top priority. The total remodeling could cost $750,000.

Building Lease

In response to a question from the audience, there was a discussion about the building that houses the Co-op. It is privately owned and rented to Scan, which rents it to the Co-op. There was an issue of spending such a large amount of money to remodel a building the organization does not own. The board indicated that the current lease has seven years to run with an additional 10 year clause. The board has been in contact with the owner to make him aware of the Co-op's interest in the building.

Newsletter

Members present were the first to receive copies of the new newsletter, “Between the Aisles.” Vice-chair Jill St. John will be in charge of the newsletter and it will be available in the store. Also discussed was the Co-op's website: <http://www.greenbeltco-op.com>.

Knepper Returns to City To Introduce New Book

by Virginia Beauchamp

It would be no surprise to Greenbelters that anyone digging around in the city's early history would come across references to Eleanor Roosevelt. And that's exactly what happened to Cathy Knepper, author of “Greenbelt, Maryland: A Living Legacy of the New Deal.” Returning to the city for a talk about her new book and a book signing on Tuesday evening, November 16, Knepper began her latest project by making just that link.

The new book, “Dear Mrs. Roosevelt: Letters to Eleanor Roosevelt Through Depression and War,” came about through Knepper's earlier research at the Presidential Library in Hyde Park for the Greenbelt book. There she found a tremendous collection of personal letters written to the First Lady during the years of her husband's presidency. Some 2,900,000 pages of such documents – 3,000 archival boxes – are in the library's collection, Knepper said.

A major problem was how to conceptualize such a vast collection and organize the letters into book form. Eventually she divided them topically into four major themes: The Great Depression, The New Deal, The War Years and The Home Front.

Throughout these years of stress to the nation, thousands of people looked upon Eleanor Roosevelt as their final resource for aid and assistance. They believed wholly in her empathy and kindness. They saw her as “a beacon of light,” Knepper said, “a source of hope, solace, advice and of civil rights and human rights.” Because the letters were so moving, Knepper knew she wanted to highlight them in her second book.

In reading through these volumes of letters, Knepper said she was struck by the fortitude of the people. The collection constitutes “the combined voice of the people themselves,” she said. In the course of the evening, Knepper read aloud sample letters that she felt characterized the general themes and voices of the times. But one letter she said she could not read in a public forum because it always made her cry.

Copies of “Dear Mrs. Roosevelt” will be available for sale at the Greenbelt Museum.
