Peters Presents County Grants For Arts Center and Foundation

by Thomas X. White

Except for council consideration of a proposed city charter amendment on council voting requirements for its regularly scheduled meetings (story appeared last week), the Greenbelt City Council faced a fairly light agenda at its meeting of September 25. All councilmembers were present and Assistant City Manager David Moran stood in for the city manager who could not attend.

At the head of the agenda were several presentations. County Councilmember Douglas J.J. Peters formally presented a county grant of $25,000 for the Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) and another $25,000 for the newly organized Greenbelt Community Foundation (GCF).

Both grants were part of the county's approved Fiscal Year 2006 Supplemental Operating Budget. This budget includes funding for nonprofit community organizations to assist in providing programs and services to county residents.

Accepting the grant on behalf of the foundation, Sylvia Lewis thanked Peters for providing support for the newly-established organization. She said "it will help tremendously to highlight our initial efforts and encourage residents to support the foundation as it works to provide a new funding mechanism for improvements to the quality of life in Greenbelt."

The foundation was organized this year with a mission to support and promote cooperative endeavors and projects to enrich the quality of life in Greenbelt. The foundation has an advisory board of 10 Greenbelt residents. It will review and consider grant proposals from community and cooperative organizations for projects supporting its mission.

The grants could provide start-up or seed funding for new community service initiatives, assist cooperatives and local nonprofits in the development and provision of services and contribute to ongoing efforts to enhance opportunities for Greenbelt residents. The foundation will launch an information and education program within Greenbelt, solicit grant proposals for worthwhile community projects later this year and make its first grant awards for projects in mid-2007.

With Peters leaving the county council at the end of this year, city councilmembers used the opportunity to express appreciation for all his efforts on behalf of the city and its residents. Lavish praise was accorded Peters by all members of council, each noting particular projects where his advocacy and steering of financial assistance had been critical to success. These include the skate board park now under development, county funding of

by Carol Griffith

In probably one of his last thoughtful gestures toward the city of Greenbelt, Douglas J.J. Peters, retiring Prince George's County councilmember for District 4, awarded the Greenbelt Arts Center $27,500 at a reception on Friday, September 29.

Many of those involved in the theater and the arts and their supporters, were joined by Mayor Judith Davis and Councilmembers Leta Mach, Ed Putens and Konrad Herling for a champagne reception held at the Arts Center.

Norma Ozur, president of the GAC board of directors, welcomed Peters, stating she was "as happy as can be" to accept the "wonderful, wonderful" gift of the award, noting that there were many projects that could be accomplished with such a sizable sum. She presented Peters with two tickets to the current production of "The Women" and a brochure listing the 2006-2007 events at GAC.

Peters explained that $25,000 was left in the supplemental budget and another $2,500 was his annual contribution to the arts center. He had asked several members of the city council for their suggestions of a recipient before deciding on the Arts Cen-

School Board Candidates Give Their Views at ACE Forum

by James Giese

The Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education sponsored a candidates forum for school board candidates on September 26. Of the 18 candidates now in the race for the nine-member elected Prince George's County Board of Education, 16 attended the forum and spoke. An audience of less than 40 attended and many in the audience were associated with one or another candidate.

While all 18 candidates are running at-large within the county in the November 7 election, eight of them are seeking election to one of the four designated at-large seats, and the other 10 (two per district) are seeking election to the five seats designated as district seats. The at-large candidates ran at-large in the non-partisan primary election. The district candidates were on the ballot only within the district in which they resided at the primary election. However, all voters at the general election will have an equal voice in choosing the district candidate for each district.

The eight at-large candidates are (in order of votes gained in the primary) Donna Hathaway Beck, Ronald L. Watson, Gloria Lawlah, Jeana Jacobs, Nathaniel B. Thomas, Howard W. Stone, Kenneth E. Johnson and Alicia Darensbourg. The 10 district candidates are (in alphabetical order for each district): Rosalind A. Johnson and Robin Barnes

Shell, district 1; Heather Illiff and Amber Waller, district 2; Pat Fletcher and Reginal L. Williams, district 3; Steven Morris and Linda T. Thomas, district 4; and Kate Costello and Owen Johnson, Jr., district 5.

The forum was also broadcast live on Greenbelt's municipal channel 71 and will be rebroadcast from time to time before the election (see this paper's city advertisement for cable listings). Tapes of the broadcast may also be obtained for viewing at the Municipal Building. In addition, the College Park and Berwyn Heights municipal cable channels also intend to broadcast the forum as well as the county's cable channel.

The format of the forum as determined by ACE and its chair, Raymond Peterson, did little to bring out the views of the candidates or how they differ in policy positions. Each candidate was given two minutes to introduce himself or herself. In that amount of time the candidates had little time to do much other than give a quick resume and explain why they were seeking the office. This initial period was followed with a question being asked of each candidate but for the most part each candidate was asked a different question. Following that the candidates were given one minute for a wrap up.

Greenbelt Ramblers Will Play Sunday at GHI Picnic

by David Morse

The Greenbelt Ramblers, a collection of red-hot Washington area musicians, will be livening up the Greenbelt Homes (GHI) members annual picnic this Sunday with traditional old-time country music in a variety of styles.

Lead vocalist Karen Collins (fiddle, rhythm guitar), a coal miner's daughter from southwest Virginia, grew up listening to country music. The influence of Loretta Lynn, Hank Williams and other country greats is evident in her original songs.

Collins is fiddler and vocalist with the award-winning Cajun band "Squeeze Bayou," as well as with the popular acoustic country quartet "The Blue Moon Cowgirls." Both groups appear on her CD "Backroads & Bayous."

Collins has attracted critical acclaim in a number of publications. Said "Blue Suede News," a magazine covering the American roots music scene, "Karen Collins has one of those classic country voices. She is one of those artists who specialize in digging up rarely sung classics."

Matt Levine (lap steel guitar, banjo, vocals) also plays with "Squeeze Bayou" and has performed with local bluegrass and country bands, including "The Slim Jims," "Vintage Blend," "The Dixie Cannonballs" and "Cliff Waldron & The New Shades of Grass."

Geff King (bass, vocals), a self-described Baltimore County refugee now living in Greenbelt, has been playing country-western and bluegrass music for almost 30 years. He also plays bass

It's Not Magic

It's Friday in Greenbelt and you find the Greenbelt News Review at your doorstep, in the lobby of your apartment or condominium building, at various public buildings and at private businesses throughout the city. Ever wonder how this locally-produced, independent, free newspaper appears week after week keeping people who live and work in Greenbelt aware of what goes on in our lively town?

Well, it's not magic. Rather, it results week in week out from volunteer efforts of many of your friends and neighbors. News gathering; reporting on city and community events; capturing in print and photography the lives and stories of Greenbelt and its residents; chronicling the vibrant history and culture of our city; providing a vehicle for your letters (celebrating, praising, even condemning); publishing city, business and community notices on events, information and advertising important to the social and economic health of the community – all these activities make up the weekly cycle of labor performed by dedicated volunteers.

Maintaining this cycle of activities and assuring that all parts work seamlessly together requires a continuing source of talent and service. That work begins each Monday and continues through Thursday morning. Different tasks are performed on different days – receiving ads on Monday, typing and editing on Tuesday, proofing and putting the issue to bed on Wednesday and final proofing on Thursday morning before the issue is sent to the printer. Of course news gathering, reporting on meetings and events, along with photography, occur whenever an event is scheduled and sometimes when it's not. Writing feature stories and taking feature photographs can take place at any time. And there are a variety of administrative and business tasks, many of which are not tied to a specific day. Selling and/or designing ads is an ongoing need. The important thing is that participants can pick and choose where they might be able to help.

The paper is always in need of volunteers in all areas of its mission – a need becoming more critical recently as key volunteers are often away from the city for job, personal or other reasons. If you have thought of volunteering or offering your talents or services to the paper, now is a good time to take that step. You could begin within your area of interest, gradually learning the routine and the tasks. And if you're new to Greenbelt and even if you're not, volunteering at the News Review is a great way to learn about the community.

We are the second oldest cooperative in Greenbelt – now celebrating our 69th year. Through all these years, providing a window into the life of the community has been our joy and our commitment. If you would like to take part in this important work, you will find us a welcoming team.

Lakewood Residents Offered Little Help

Troubled with recurrent flooding on their property, residents of Orange Court in the Lakewood Development applied for assistance from the city's Department of Planning and Community Development. In response, Paul De Sousa, a planner with the county's Environmental Services Division, made an on-site inspection.

In a memo to the city, De Sousa stated that the county does not get involved with ground water issues on private property. However, he indicated that his office staff would meet with property owners on how best to remedy their ground water problem.

Among suggestions supplied by his office were to direct surface water away from house foundations, to install yard drains and connect downspouts to an underground drainage system, to grade and maintain existing earthen swales and to fill and compact sink holes in homeowners' yards.

Although De Sousa recommended having ground water tested for chlorine, George Rogala of the Greenbelt Recreation Department, who had been asked to carry out such a test, said that from earlier experience he knew that his equipment could not measure the small amounts of chlorine contained in domestic water.

Greenbelter Reads Poem at UM Sat.

There will be a presentation of poems from the first edition of "Echoes," published by Prince George's County poets, at the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center in the Prince George's County Room on Saturday, October 14 from 4 to 6 p.m. This third and final presentation will feature Maryland Poet Laureate Michael Glaser.

Greenbelt's own Marjorie Gray will offer a reading of her poem "Moon Talk" at the presentation.

"Echoes" will be available for purchase at the event.

On Screen

Love Again at 60!

From the director of "Desperately Seeking Susan" comes a romantic comedy set in a Florida retirement community. Dyan Cannon, Joseph Bologna, Sally Kellerman, Len Cariou and Brenda Vaccaro portray five widowed residents who meet at a bereavement support group and encourage each other to re-enter the singles scene.

All five of the lead actors in this ensemble cast were born in the 1930s and have starred in too many films to name. But you have to admit you're curious to see Sally Kellerman reprise her famous topless scene from the original "M*A*S*H."

Director Susan Seidelman's mother Florence encouraged her to do the film. Florence Seidelman, who herself lives in a Florida community not unlike Boynton Beach, co-wrote the script.

Unrated (not loaded with sex or violence but some nudity and adult situations), the movie runs 105 minutes.

Letters to the Editor

GLAD to Help Lake

I want to thank 9-year-old Mark Capotosto for his letter (October 5) which told of his concern for our beautiful Greenbelt Lake. Yes, Mark, it was the worst summer for our lake. The algae or whatever it is was terrible and the fish and beavers seemed to think so too. And it did smell bad.

We are going to try to do something about this perplexing situation.

On Friday evening, October 20 at 6 p.m., we will have a potluck supper at Buddy Attick Lake Park picnic area. Look for a sign that says GLAD (Greenbelt Lake Assistance & Defense). Everyone is welcome. The meeting is free and we are not a committee.

We will be listening as Bill Phelan (assistant director, Public Works) tells us how we can help the problem. We hope many people will be there.

And we will be thinking and sharing ideas about how we can help get our beautiful Greenbelt Lake back to its original freshness.

Thank you, Mark. At 9 years old you saw a problem and decided to do something about it. That's more that most adults can do.

P&J Peace Month Workshop Tuesday

On Tuesday, October 17 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. the Prince George's Peace & Justice Coalition will hold the first of two planned Peace Month workshops at the Community Center. Preceded by a light supper, at 6 p.m., the first workshop topic is "Dealing with Difficult Conversations: Have Your Feelings or They Will Have You."

The program, led by Linda Nunes-Schrag, is interactive, experiential and free, though contributions toward food are appreciated. Nunes-Schrag is the former director and trainer of Creative Response to Conflict in the capital area.

Feelings matter and are often at the heart of difficult communications and hence are hidden or disguised as problems. Unexpressed feelings take a toll on self-esteem and relationships. Participants will learn how feelings get translated into judgments, attributions, characterizations and problem solving. They will practice in pairs or in groups to own up to and affirm feelings, to learn how to handle another person's feelings and to discover another side to oneself.

A second workshop entitled "Prejudice Reduction, Dealing with Differences" will be held on Thursday, October 26. These workshops are co-sponsored by the City of Greenbelt.

For more information call Marjorie Donn at 301-474-1353.

Explore Habitat Trips to Bolivia

On Friday, October 20 Explorations Unlimited will host a presentation by Jean Cook about her Habitat for Humanity trips to Bolivia. Cook and other members of her church helped almost complete two houses for two families who had been living with other family members up to that point.

The "Global Village" is a division of Habitat for Humanity which reaches out to foreign countries to help people who are unable to provide proper housing for themselves and their families. A secondary goal is to present Americans as caring people who want to help and thus to overcome some of the negative feelings about Americans.

Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center, Room 114. Everyone is welcome to attend and questions are encouraged. Call 301-397-2208 for details.

New Knights Installed at St. Hugh

by Austin Conaty

On Saturday, September 23 the St. Hugh Council of Knights of Columbus held a ceremonial installation of officers after the 5 p.m. mass.

During the installation, District Deputy Thomas Lank installed District Deputy James Ragusa. Chaplain Fr. Walter Tappe presided over the installation. The 2006-2007 officers for the St. Hugh Knights of Columbus are: Grand Knight Larry Hilliard, Deputy Grand Knight Larry Yore, Chancellor Kenday Kamara, Warden James Hill, Financial Secretary Paul Rall, Treasurer Chuck Hatcher, Advocate Paul Sabol, Inside Guard Bill Donahue, Outside Guard Mike Rall, Lecturer Ted Elsasser, Recorder Terrence Leid, One Year Trustee Sean Bailey, Two Year Trustee David Lockwood and Three Year Trustee Austin Conaty.

After a blessing of the food by Fr. Tappe, all enjoyed a meal prepared by Gloria Winfrey, followed by presentations by Lank, Fr. Tappe and Hilliard. Master of Ceremonies Charter Past Grand Knight (PGK) Joe Griffith kept the program flowing and the attendees entertained. PGK Griffith was presented an award for his leadership over the past 15 years in the St. Hugh Council.

In 1882 a young Catholic priest Fr. Michael J. McGivney, curate at St. Mary's Church in New Haven, envisioned an organization to help Catholic families deal with the untimely death of the family breadwinner. Out of his vision the Knights of Columbus was founded. The Knights of Columbus is currently the largest Catholic, family, fraternal service organization in the world and boasts a members-only insurance program that is among the strongest in the industry.

Did you know?

Islam is considered by its followers, as a way of life rather than just a religion, as it gives guidance in every aspect of human life.

"O you who believe! Let not a group scoff at another group; it may be that the latter are better than the former. Nor let (some) women laugh at others; it may be that the latter are better than the former. Nor defame nor be sarcastic of each other, nor call each other by offensive nicknames. How bad it is to insult one's brother after having Faith. And whosoever does not repent, then such are indeed wrongdoers."

Firefighter Staffing Cutback Rescinded

The City of Greenbelt learned Wednesday, October 11 from County Councilmember Douglas J.J. Peters' office that the proposed county staffing cutback at the Greenbelt Fire Department has been rescinded. Peters advised that the decision would benefit any department that was going to have its staffing cut. The five affected departments mentioned at Monday night's council meeting were College Park, West Lanham Hills, Hyattsville, Baden and Greenbelt.

Greenbelt Chief Brian Rudy had approached both council and Peters' office seeking help. The county was prepared to eliminate their staffing of fire stations from 3 to 5 p.m.

the School Resource Officer programs for Greenbelt schools and supporting the city's efforts in land use and development issues in Greenbelt West. Peters also was an advocate with the Board of Education on Greenbelt Middle School maintenance and improvement programs.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts thanked Peters for "not only your monetary support for city programs, but, because you have always been there for Greenbelt when needed."

Mayor Judith Davis pointed out that Peters was most helpful at critical stages for development issues by simply deferring to the city's wishes when Greenbelt projects were being considered by the county council. Topping off council's plaudits for the outgoing county councilmember was a presentation of the much-coveted replica statue of the Mother and Child statue in the Roosevelt Center that he could take with him in his new position in the Maryland Senate, where he will represent District 23.

Proclamation

Next up was the mayor's proclamation designating the week of September 25 to 29 as Race Equality and Inclusive Communities Week in Greenbelt. The proclamation is part of a National League of Cities goal of showcasing what cities across the country are doing to promote racial and ethnic equality and to make their communities more inclusive year-round.

Steve Hammett and members of the Greenbelt Community Relations Advisory Board were on hand to receive the proclamation. They had also been present for the unveiling of a newly constructed "Inclusive Communities" sign in front of the Municipal Building earlier that evening.

After the presentations, proclamations and administrative reports, only three items remained for council action. The city's response to a petition by Clement Lau in June requesting additional swim lane space at the Aquatic and Fitness Center for the Greenbelt Swim Team was expressed in a staff memo that had been communicated to Lau at the end of August.

The memo describes how much time and lane capacity is already provided to the swim team (currently more than 200 hours of free use and more than 50 hours of paid use of swim lanes). Staff recommended that additional time could be provided after the outdoor pool is closed to the public, with the swim team covering the cost of any necessary staffing. Council approved the staff recommendation with a vote of four to one.

Council action was also requested to approve an award of a bid for replacement of the leaf vacuum used by the parks crew to collect leaves in the fall. With only two bids received, staff recommended that council approve the low bid award to Mid-Atlantic Waste Systems of Clinton for a price of $20,212 for a leaf collector and leaf container. The award was lower than the $30,000 budgeted for the item in the city's Replacement Fund. Council unanimously approved the award.

ter after discovering that GAC was in real need of new lights. He said he was sad to leave Greenbelt, as he will now be state senator for District 23, as Greenbelt has a "different feeling" from other towns - "in a good way."

Davis told the group that at the last city council meeting, councilmembers had expressed their thanks to Peters for his years of assistance and presented him with a small replica of the Mother and Child statue. She described Peters as "extremely responsive as well as a genuinely nice person" and noted that the city has lost a county councilmember but gained a friend in Annapolis.

Herling "profoundly thanked" Peters, noting his previous assistance to GAC in renovating the center and called him a "good and decent man who's made a great town even greater."

Potomac River Lecture Offered

The United States Botanic Garden will present a free lecture, "Our Potomac: From Great Falls through Washington, D.C.," on Thursday, October 19 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Join photographer Roy Sewall for a photographic journey along the Potomac River. The photographs are part of Sewall's new book of the same title.

Follow the Potomac downriver to see its remarkable transformation from raging falls surrounded by lush forests to an idyllic setting for many of Washington's great attractions. The book was inspired by Sewall's affection for hiking and bicycling along the river and the adjacent Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. Copies of the book will be available for sale after the program.

The U. S. Botanic Garden is located at the foot of the U.S. Capitol, 100 Maryland Avenue. Pre-registration is required. To register, call 202-225-1116 or visit the online event registration at www.usbg.gov/education/events.

No Shows

Two candidates were absent, Gloria Lawlah and Alicia Darenbourg. According to city staff liaison to ACE, Wendy Wexler of Greenbelt CARES, Darenbourg, who placed last among the at-large candidates, did not receive an invitation until the day before. It was not until the Saturday before that the Board of Elections completed its count and determined Darenbourg had beat out Anthony Lester Lee for the eighth at-large slot on the ballot by 116 votes. She was unable to adjust her schedule at that late date to be present.

Lawlah, who has retired as a state senator, filed as a candidate for the school board but announced prior to the primary election that she had decided to withdraw because there were many good candidates and she had filed only because she had understood that few were running for the board. According to Nelson Hernandez in an article in the Washington Post on October 26, she decided to withdraw shortly after failing to receive the endorsement of the teachers union.

Her decision to withdraw was made too late for her name to be removed from the ballot. Also, Wexler said that she was told that Lawlah never filed a withdrawal with the Board of Elections.

Lawlah did respond to The Washington Post with information for its voter's guide. As a result of that and her established name recognition, she placed third in the primary election, receiving 31,878 votes. Since then she has been unclear as to whether she is or is not a candidate. Lawlah said she would reach a decision this week, according to Hernandez.

Wexler said that Lawlah did agree to attend the forum but never said that she was a candidate. Hernandez reported that she also did not attend a later forum sponsored by the Greater Marlboro Democratic Club in the Largo-Kettering Library.

Diverse

The 16 who did show were diverse in background, although many were education related and expressed genuine interest in contributing toward the betterment of the community. They all expressed themselves ably. There was much support and no criticism for the new school superintendent, John E. Deasy.

Ken Johnson was a three-term member of the previous elected school board (which was disbanded by the state legislature) and served three years as its chair. Howard Stone is the vice-chair of the current appointed school board (Judy Mickens-Murray, another member of the current board and unsuccessful candidate in the primary for a district 3 seat, is still seeking election to the new board as a write-in candidate).

Four candidates emphasize their records as PTA activists – Beck, Fletcher, Waller and Williams. Another four point to their success as products of the school system, having graduated from a county high school – Owen Johnson, Rosalind Johnson, Morris and Nate Thomas. Five have been former teachers – Owen Johnson, Rosalind Johnson, Morris, Linda Thomas and Nate Thomas. Illiff and Nate Thomas have been involved with nonprofit educational support organizations while Linda Thomas was a principal of a charter school. Costello and Shell are attorneys. Both Ken Johnson and Howard Stone have been involved with government management – Johnson with the Department of Agriculture and Stone as chief administrative officer for the county under Wayne Curry.

Others point to unique talents that they would bring to the school board. Jacobs' work with the Department of Correction involves the educating of incarcerated juveniles. Watson is a business and management consultant skilled in information technology. Shell is a school ombudsman for Howard County. Illiff is a member of the College Park advisory committee on education. Fletcher is a mental health worker. Owen Johnson was a high school coach. Jacobs is a hearing examiner for the school board. Watson holds a doctorate degree in systems engineering.

Questions

A wide variety of questions were posed but only one or two candidates were permitted to answer each question. Some of the issues raised were the effect of the No Child Left Behind Law on those students not seeking to further their education in college, involvement of parents in the schools and in the conduct of the school board, the continuance of magnet schools and focus programs, the need for cohesiveness among the board, the effect of charter schools on school resources, the need for technology training and utilization in the schools, the renovation of Greenbelt Middle School and the importance of maintaining Eleanor Roosevelt High School as the "flagship" high school of the county. None of the answers to these questions raised controversy.

Probably the most interesting question was posed to Shell. She was asked about curriculum issues that have been raised on the teaching of evolution and creationism. Shell has a Master's Degree in Christian Counseling from the Washington Bible College. Acknowledging that she was a Christian, Shell advocated giving children the chance to hear the many variables and options on the creation of the universe and for them to discuss the many

ACT Registration Deadline Nears

College-bound high school students can take the ACT college admission exam on December 9, the next national test date. The deadline for postmark or online registration is November 3. The late registration deadline is November 16. (An additional fee is required for late registration.) Students can get registration materials from their high school counselor or they can register online on ACT's student website (www.actstudent.org). There is a registration fee.

ACT scores are accepted by virtually all colleges and universities across the nation, including the Ivy League. The basic ACT exam includes four parts: English, reading, mathematics and science. An optional writing test is also available. Some colleges require or recommend a writing score but many do not.

The basic exam takes three hours to complete, plus an additional 30 minutes for those who opt to take the writing test.

Seminar Thursday On Schizophrenia

The National Alliance for the Mentally Ill Prince George's County chapter will present its October workshop on Thursday, October 19 from 7 to 9 p.m. Speaker Denise Niner, LCSW, of the National Institute of Mental Health will present "Schizophrenia and Related Schizo-affective Disorders."

The workshop is free and will take place at the Hanco Building at Beckett Field, 8511 Legation Road, New Carrollton. For more information call Jane Kelley, 301-577-6026.

different theories of creation. She felt there is a need to allow parents to have a voice in the matter.

Fletcher was asked a similar question. She said that the goal of education was to expand children's minds and to allow all children to make their own choices. The children need to be taught about evolution and creationism so that they are capable of making the decision themselves. She felt that this was also true of other sensitive issues such as slavery and Naziism.
