Council Resolution on Cameras In the Center Spurs Discussion

by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council meeting on April 9 lasted just short of an hour and a half, consisting mostly of several traditional proclamations, a request regarding pedestrian safety on Lakeside Drive and the introduction of two resolutions. One of those is related to the installation of a new surveillance camera system in the public areas of Roosevelt Center.

As a complicated subject, it received extensive comments both from members of council and citizens in the audience. The full council was present, with Assistant City Manager David Moran standing in for absent City Manager Michael McLaughlin.

Center Cameras

The first resolution was for the negotiated purchase, installation and maintenance services for a surveillance camera system for Roosevelt Center with the Avrio Group Surveillance Solutions, Inc. of Easton at a cost of $38,062. Accompanying staff comments noted that purchase of the system is being recommended because of the inherent technical complexity of the project, an area where there is little or no in-house staff expertise.

The recommendation follows staff exploration of a number of options for improving and upgrading the current camera system at Roosevelt Center. Because of improvements in camera technology, staff felt it made more sense to replace the existing cameras.

Even though there usually is little or no discussion of items introduced for first reading, it was clear there were questions on the minds of both councilmembers and citizens in the audience relating to the ultimate choices for upgrading Roosevelt Center camera system.

Bill Cornett, based on his personal experience with residential surveillance systems in his local neighborhood, had specific suggestions regarding the camera lens configurations and locations to achieve the maximum area coverage and the greatest flexibility in recovering crime scene images. He urged that a more central and elevated location for the cameras be considered. He recommended a system labeled IPICS fish-eye, a high resolution camera with a See CAMERAS, page 6 forward zoom capability.

Cornett also suggested that council consider similar cameras for the Spellman overpass location.

Councilmembers, however, raised concerns regarding privacy and the potential for "hacking" of the proposed internet system by unauthorized individuals. They also questioned whether audio would be captured by the proposed system, heightening privacy concerns.

Another citizen, Edward James, spoke generally in favor of installing upgraded cameras, noting that he had been involved with the Greenbelt neighborhood watch. He also suggested that the system include alternative power sources in case of an overall power system failure affecting Roosevelt Center. A major burglary in the Center had occurred during such a power failure, he recalled.

Moran indicated that staff would take all of the comments into consideration before the item returns to council and would

by Frank DeBernardo

The "Greener Greenbelt Initiative: Your Ideas, Our Future" will host an open house Saturday, April 28 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. to introduce its project to plan for the future of Greenbelt's historic area. The open house will take place in Roosevelt Center.

The open house will include information tables, children's activities and exercises designed to elicit information from Greenbelt's residents about their concerns for the community's future in four areas: preservation, livability, sustainability and affordability.

"Greener Greenbelt Initiative: Your Ideas, Our Future" is a joint venture of the American Institute of Architects-Potomac Valley Chapter (AIA-PV) and Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI), the housing cooperative which owns and operates the original New Deal-era homes of Greenbelt. The initiative is funded with a matching grant from the American Institute of Architects and GHI.

The open house is the first in a series of activities designed to encourage and promote active participation in the Initiative from GHI residents, Old Greenbelt residents, civic and business leaders and others interested in the future of this historic community. The activities will culminate in a "charrette" - a weekend-long brainstorming and visioning event September 28 through 30 that will bring together citizens, leaders and architects to collaborate on a feasible plan that reflects the community's vision for a livable, affordable and sustainable future for Greenbelt.

"Our hope is for maximum participation in the planning process," explained Jim Cohen, GHI chair of the Initiative's steering committee. "Only by hearing from all quarters of the community will we be able to design a plan that addresses the challenges of this historic, yet

Md. Peace & Justice Honors Founders Donn and Webb

by A. Neil Deo

Since January 2007, Greenbelt residents Bert Donn and Esther Webb and their organization, Maryland United for Peace and Justice (MUPJ), have been recognized for their peace and environmental contributions, including special recognition by Maryland's State Senator Paul Pinsky.

In the course of peace and justice work, including petitions and protests, Senator Pinsky has come to know Esther Webb and Bert Donn as friends, voters and members of MUPJ.

On March 29 the Maryland Senate passed Pinsky's resolution, concurrent with a proclamation in recognition of decades of peace, justice and environmental work by MUPJ (and its nonprofit arm, Institute for Positive Action). House of Delegates member Doyle Niemann will present the resolution at the upcoming 22nd annual conference at Paint Branch Unitarian Universalist Church (directions at www.PBUUC.org) on Saturday, April 28.

Greenbelt residents Bert Donn and Esther Webb helped start MUPJ 23 years ago. MUPJ will also honor stalwarts Donn and Webb with its first-ever Recognition Awards at the April 28 conference.

Co-convenor of the MUPJ conference, Tony Langbehn, who lived in Greenbelt before moving to Bowie, said, "It is good to honor Esther Webb and Bert Donn for the work they've done over the past decades.' 10 00 so at this 22nd annual meeting seems appropriate, as the April 2007 workshop schedule

Walt Petrie, developer of Greenbelt Station North Core, presents $10,000 to Sylvia Lewis for the Greenbelt Foundation. Lewis, chair of the organization, is accompanied by Foundation board members, from left, Thomas X. White, Barbara Simon, Dan Hamlin and Kap Kapistan. Marilyn Coolidge, second from right, is a partner with Petri Ross Ventures. She accompanied Petrie for the presentation.

Petrie Ross Ventures has contributed $10,000 to the Greenbelt Community Foundation. In a recent ceremony attended by Foundation Advisory board members. Petrie Ross Chairman Walt Petrie, accompanied by parter Marilyn Coolidge, presented the check to Foundation Chairperson Sylvia Lewis. The company "is very much a part of the fabric of this community and cares about the city of Greenbelt," said Petrie. "We're proud to make this donation in support of ongoing efforts to enhance opportunities for the residents of Greenbelt."

"Just as the founders of Greenbelt had a vision for the future of Greenbelt, Petrie Ross Ventures continues to demonstrate a vision for the future of this community," said Lewis. "We greatly appreciate their continued investment in the enrichment of the city and its citizens."

Petrie Ross Ventures is currently developing Greenbelt Station, an 80-acre development near the Greenbelt Metro Station.

The Greenbelt Community Foundation is a fund within the Prince George's Community Foundation, under the umbrella of the Community Foundation for the National Capital Region. The mission of the Greenbelt Community Foundation is to support and promote efforts to enrich the quality of life in Greenbelt.

Attending the donation ceremony were Foundation board members Tom White, treasurer; Barbara Simon; Dan Hamlin; and Kap Kapistan.

Is City Robin Hood In Reverse?

Here come the tax increases. Although city council members said that the new Greenbelt Station development would lower our taxes, it's doing just the opposite. Or at least that's what the city manager is now saying.

What on earth was the city council thinking when it gave wealthy developers $10 million of taxpayer money, about half the size of the city's entire annual budget? They certainly didn't listen to citizens who warned that these decisions would increase taxes.

And what do we get for having the city taxman reach further down into our pockets? The sketch on the front of last week's News Review says it all – an ugly, "upscale" monstrosity about as un-Greenbeltish as it gets. It appears that the sheriff of Nottingham is now in Greenbelt.

Irresponsible

We are writing to encourage our city leaders to demand involvement in the north core Greenbelt development project. From the paper's account, Petrie stated that it is "not intended to be a family community." This is an irresponsible attitude and clearly these developers know nothing about Greenbelt.

We have come to cherish both the environmental ideals as well as the desire to preserve the concept of community imbued by the city. Let us hope that pure greed does not override community planning. The Hamma Family

Use It or Lose It!

Today is Saturday morning, April 14. The Saturday before taxes are due! Many people are not at work and are using their last free day to finish and mail their taxes. So one would expect long, long lines at the Post Office. Well, those lines may very well have shown up at the new Post Office in Greenbelt East but the Post Office in the Municipal Building in Old Greenbelt was totally empty. Can you believe that? It was great for me and saved me a lot of time. But it also bothered me that my fellow Old Greenbelters are not making more use of this jewel in their midst.

You know the saying "use it or lose it." So, if you want to save time, if you want to help yourself and at the same time help your neighbors: make full use of this jewel in our Center. The Post Office is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Hope to meet you there. through eminent domain, postpone the issuance of any debt for the ICC, defer any ICC-related transfers from the Transportation Trust Fund to the Maryland Transportation Authority and refrain from issuing design or construction contracts."

Earlier approvals of the ICC came at a time of state budget surpluses but next year the state faces a structural debt of close to $1.5 billion. Base Realignment and Closure expansions will lead to substantial growth in and around Ft. Meade and Aberdeen and the collective infrastructure needs could cost $6 billion, which have not been funded and it is not at all clear where the money will come from. Other transit and highway priorities of interest to Greenbelt residents, including long-term funding for Metrorail and Metrobus, building the Purple Line and adding rail to the Wilson Bridge will be squeezed - and possibly squeezed out - by the estimated $3.1 billion required to build the ICC, including interest on the nearly $2 billion in debt the state plans to issue.

No one likes highway gridlock but the state's own studies show the ICC would actually boost traffic on parts of I-95, I-495, I-270, I-370 and on many heavily trafficked local roads. The ICC would also be an environmental disaster – destroying some our region's last and best wetlands and forests, crossing streams 77 times and increasing fuel consumption, air pollution and greenhouse gas emissions.

The ICC is not a done deal, it's a bad deal. The new O'Malley administration offers hope that the ICC can be stopped but our "environmental" governor needs to hear from us! Please urge him to take a "breather" on the ICC so we can evaluate other transportation priorities in light of limited budgets and increased understanding about global warming. Call 800-811-8336 or send an email to governor@gov.state. md.us. Please sign the "No ICC" petition at www.sierraclub.org /dc/ sprawl/petition.

Not the Public's Job

In its April 12 article on the recent city council budget worksession, the News Review reported that Mayor Davis "challenged [Mayor Pro Tem] Roberts to identify what he would cut, not just say that the budget should be cut." These words are familiar because citizens asking council not to raise taxes in recent years have been similarly challenged by the mayor to specify what should be cut from a proposed budget. But it's not the obligation of citizens to prescribe what should be cut. City administrators have the expertise and are paid to determine how to manage with the funds available. Greenbelt families have budgets too and they have to figure out how to manage with whatever funds are available. If council really cares about its taxpaying citizens, it will instruct the city staff to find a way to accommodate a budget that does not require a tax increase, rather than implicitly asking struggling families faced with ever-increasing taxes to find something to cut out of their own household budgets. Corrections

The letter in last week's paper entitled "Is City Robin Hood In Reverse?" lost its signature in a final edit oversight. It is reprinted here.

The article on the Springhill Lake fires in the March 29 issue erroneously implied the smoke smell from an earlier car fire nearby might have caused the report of a building fire at 9150 Edmonston Road. The units that arrived on the scene just past midnight had found no fire. There was no connection between the two fires.

The News Review regrets the errors.

On Screen Art Imitating Life

"The Lives of Others," which received the Oscar for best foreign film, opens Friday at the Old Greenbelt Theatre. Ulrich Muehe portrays an agent of the East German secret police who convinces an actress, played by Martina Gedeck (The Good Shepherd), to inform on her lover.

Unlike "Good Bye Lenin!" and other recent comedies about life under Communist rule, the director rejected suggestions to take a lighter approach. His decision was supported by Ulrich Muehe, who discovered that his ex-wife (and one-time co-star) had informed on him to the Stasi in the 1980s.

In German with English subtitles, the film is rated R for nudity and sexual situations and runs 137 minutes.

"Time-out" on ICC

Recent articles in the News Review have highlighted fresh attempts to block construction of the Intercounty Connector (ICC). Three lawsuits have been filed to challenge the economic feasibility and environmental impact of the ICC and 35 state legislators sent a letter to Governor O'Malley urging him to order a "time-out" on the ICC. Senator Pinsky and Delegates Ross and Healey (our District 22) signed this letter, which urged Governor O'Malley to "suspend all activities aimed at acquiring property for the ICC, withdraw state lawsuits aimed at taking homes and real property

God explains to us, in the Qur'an: "Be sure we shall test you with something of fear and hunger, some loss in goods or lives or the fruits (of your toil), but give glad tidings to those who patiently persevere; who say, when afflicted with calamity: 'To God we belong, and to Him is our return.' They are those on whom (descend) blessings from God,

Golden Age Club

by Shirley Egenreider

Once upon a time, long, long ago back in 1957, in the town of Greenbelt, a group of individuals decided it would be a good thing for the "older" folks to get together to form a club. After electing Carrie Hall and Allen Morrison as their leaders, they met in people's homes. Then Warren Leddick, who was the director of Recreation, offered the club a room at the Youth Center.

Word spread around the Washington area about the club and soon individuals from the District, Langley Park, Riverdale and Hyattsville started attending. The membership became the largest in the county in the 80s but, alas, it became too large and was soon limited to Greenbelt individuals only.

The Greenbelt Golden Age Club, as it is now known, is the oldest and longest-running club of its kind in Maryland. The Greenbelt Golden Age Club celebrated its 50th anniversary this week with a spectacular luncheon at the Hilton Garden Inn in Greenbelt.

Grad Night Coming, Help Is Still Needed

The Eleanor Roosevelt High School Grad Night 2007 Committee reminds parents that it is nearly the end of the school year, so preparations for Grad Night 2007 are really picking up. Graduation is June 1.

Grad Night is an all-night, alcohol-free celebration of graduation for all seniors.

Parents of seniors should be looking for the contract that seniors and their parents will have to sign prior to being able to buy tickets for the party. Students should bring it home soon.

Help Needed

Junior parents are invited to volunteer now, a good time to see what it will be like for current juniors next year when they become seniors.

Senior parents are reminded that the committee still needs many volunteers to make this night another in a string of Grad Night party successes.

Volunteers are needed to provide some of the food, decorate the building and help staff the party through the night, among other projects.

The next two Grad Night 2007 Committee meetings will be Monday, May 14 and 21 at 7 p.m. at the Greenbelt Youth Center.

Those able to help are asked to email the co-chairs right away to learn how they can help: Pat Crosson at pjonescrosson@msn. com or Barbara Duhanney at bnewby@skadden.bne.

Collective Bargaining

Also introduced for first reading was a resolution to approve a collective bargaining agreement between the city and the Fraternal Order of Police Lodge No. 32. Councilmember Edward Putens introduced the resolution for first reading. If approved, the resolution would take effect July 1 for a period of three years.

It provides a 19 percent pay increase (for sworn rank and file officers) over three years, including cost of living adjustments. The agreement also expands the boundaries of the city's takehome car program and provides several other enhancements, such as specialty pay for officers with special training or responsibilities.

Moran said that the proposed agreement is fair and reasonable. The tenor of the negotiations was professional and efficient. If the resolution is adopted by council, members of both bargaining teams will sign the agreement.

Audit

The last item on the agenda was council's selection of an accounting firm to audit the city's financial records for Fiscal Year 2007. The current auditing firm, Clifton Gunderson, has been retained for the last two audits.

Although staff felt it would be inappropriate to make a recommendation, they noted that the firm has provided excellent service to the city. Putens moved that council select Clifton Gunderson for the FY07 audit. The motion was seconded by Councilmember Konrad Herling and approved unanimously.

Proclamations

In keeping with its designation as a "Tree City USA," the mayor and council issued a proclamation urging Greenbelt residents to celebrate both Arbor Day and Earth Day on April 21 by supporting efforts to protect the city's trees and woodlands throughout the coming year. Charles Jackman, chair of the city's Advisory Committee on Trees (ACT), and Bill Phelan, assistant director of the Greenbelt Department of Public Works and staff liaison to ACT, were on hand to receive the proclamation and to provide an overview of this year's Arbor Day plans.

Activities celebrating Arbor Day and Earth Day on April 21 will include an official opening of the new Skate Park adjacent to the Community Center, a Public Works Department open house, a guided tour around Greenbelt highlighting the several champion or prestige-class trees within the city, tree plantings and a rain garden demonstration. commemorating National Public Safety Telecommunications Week from April 8 through 14. The proclamation honors and expresses the appreciation of the police department, the city council and the citizens of Greenbelt for the work of Communications Supervisor Alicia R. Coyle, Communications Specialist II Jessica M. Houle, Communications Specialist II Shaniya R. Lashley-Mullen, Communications Specialist I Quashema M. Lucas and Communications Specialist Marcia E. Brown for their dependable and exceptional service during the past year. Sgt. David Buerger, patrol operations, and Captain Tom Kemp also participated.

Sgt. Buerger also received a proclamation honoring Greenbelt's participation in the annual Maryland Chief's Challenge Campaign, which will run this year from April 3 through June 3. The campaign stresses increasing compliance with Maryland laws on seat belt and child safety seat use.

Another perennial proclamation for this time of year is the celebration of the Maryland Municipal League (MML) Municipal Government Month in April. In recognition of this event, the city will fly the "Municipal Government Works" flag in front of the Municipal building. Beverly Palau, the city's Public Information and Communications coordinator, will manage the month's activities for the city, including the "It's Municipal Government" competition among all of Greenbelt's elementary schools, scheduled for Friday evening May 4.

Moran received the proclamation on behalf of Palau.

The last of the five proclamations celebrates the 50th anniversary of the Washington Metropolitan Council of Governments. Greenbelt is a long-term member of COG and the mayor and members of council participate in its programs.

Although not a subject of a proclamation, Councilmember Leta Mach noted the recent MML award given to the Greenbelt Artful Afternoons programs. These take place on the first Sunday of the month in the Greenbelt Community Center.

Petitions/Requests

Cornett made a request to council that they consider the placement of signs along Lakeside Drive asking drivers to slow to 15 miles per hour when pedestrians are present in the roadway. The issue of pedestrian safety along Lakeside Drive is a longstanding concern because of the lack of sidewalks along this narrow residential street. Cornett noted he had seen such signs in other communities and thought they should be considered. Davis noted that his request would be referred to city staff is possibly the "broadest and most comprehensive organized by MUPJ."

History

MUPJ was created by residents of Greenbelt and co-founders Ron and Carol Solomons of Baltimore based on the foundations of the Greenbelt Peace Committee. The Peace Committee was not immediately accepted by their fellow Greenbelters, but Donn, Webb and many well-wishers kept the banners of hope and freedom flying through this difficult period.

According to Bert's wife Marjery Donn, the difficulties of those early years of what is now Prince George's Peace and Justice Coalition persuaded its forerunner, the Greenbelt Peace Committee, to find ways of being accepted in Greenbelt's public spaces. At least one group succeeded in keeping the Greenbelt Peace Committee from joining in the city's flagship Labor Day parade. Undeterred, the Peace Committee rented space in front of the former school, now the Community Center, and joined the Greenbelt Labor Day festivities from that corner. Soon thereafter the Donns, the Solomons and Esther Webb (a member of the Society of Friends and a Greenbelt institution for peace in her own right) decided to go statewide with Maryland United for Peace and Justice (www.MUPJ.org).

Marj Donn remembers attending the first annual conference which was hosted by a local church almost a quarter century ago. The Greenbelt Peace Committee then became a county chapter of MUPJ. In the past several years the reincarnated Prince George's Coalition for Peace and Justice has marched with their banners, placards and smiles to loud and welcome applause in Greenbelt's Labor Day Parade.

The MUPJ annual conferences allow Marylanders to meet face to face after coordinating their activities, mainly through phone, email and public communications all year long. Leslie Cagan, cochair of United for Peace and Justice (NY) will give the keynote address this time. A wide array of workshops offers something for virtually everyone.

Donn Honored

Bert Donn, a retired scientist who had worked at NASA, has lived in Greenbelt with his wife since 1962. The Donns have contributed for decades through systematic, determined and creative participation in peace, justice, environmental and artistic endeavors Donn has been intimately connected with the history, growth and successes of the Greenbelt Peace Committee, Machar (the Jewish Humanistic Society of Washington) and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). This year Bert Donn has also been honored by the county chapter of SCLC. In recognition of many years of commitment to the Prince George's County chapter of SCLC, Donn was awarded a "Member Dedication and Longevity Award" on January 14. Previously, in 2003, the SCLC of Prince George's County had also awarded Donn its Presidential Award. Both plaques adorn the Donn home in Greenbelt and he took them down for our interview.

"I feel happy because [my] efforts are being appreciated," said Donn in an interview on Saturday, April 14. During that week alone he had submitted a "Nonviolence Report" to the county's SCLC via its president MacArthur Bishop on Tuesday. On Wednesday he was with a delegation in an important Congressman's office, reminding that elected official to carry the voters' message to the President.

Marj Donn, who is well known in the Greenbelt Writers Group and other artistic circles, also volunteered as a judge of the poetry contest among the three categories in which Maryland high schools participate each year. Other Greenbelt residents, Jim Link and Marjorie Gray, also volunteered their time as judges for the 2007 Fred Benjamin Peace Awards. Link will read the winner's essay at the conference during the Fred Benjamin Awards ceremony after the midday lunch.

New Directions

At the present time, the Donns, Esther Webb and Greenbelters past and present, Tony Langbehn and Nancy Boardman, are contemplating 2008 and the next decades for MUPJ. The Baltimore co-founders (Ron and Carol Solomon) are leaving the state of Maryland and new partners will shape the future of this historyladen community organization.

The annual essay, poetry and art contest for high-schoolers will continue to be funded through a family bequest of another Greenbelt resident, Ron Benjamin. Winners receive a check for $250 each and runners-up receive smaller checks of $25 each, for a total of $1,000 in prizes this year. The annual conference itself and its newsletter, annual workshop preparations and conference keynote speaker, is not as secure as the Peace Contest. More than funding, the group needs "participation and pushing urgent environmental priorities" said the Donns. Bert Donn believes that on the local level, the peace and justice groups need to visit our representatives often and have them "listen to the voters." Donn emphasized that more people and groups,

INFORMATION SOUGHT IN SPRINGHILL LAKE FIRES

A few weeks ago, the Springhill Lake Community experienced electrical fires due to a wiring problem that has since been corrected. Unfortunately, there have been several additional small fires recently that have been suspicious. Investigators of the Prince George's County Fire Department have determined that these fires are unrelated to the original electrical fires.

The City of Greenbelt, the Prince George's County Fire Department, the Springhill Lake Management and the entire Greenbelt community are concerned that someone is threatening the safety of Greenbelt residents. Springhill Lake management has added extra security patrols and is working with local authorities to track and prosecute those involved. The city is asking the community to band together and help identify anyone who could be involved in these suspicious fires.

If you have any information at all, no matter how minor you may feel it may be, please contact the Prince George's County Fire Department Arson Hotline at 301-772-7766.

Information can be shared anonymously. Please help us keep you, your family and your community safe.

Companion Animal Comm. Receives Award from COG

by Sabine Hentrich

Who said, "The greatness of a nation and its moral progress can be judged by the way its animals are treated"? If you guessed Mahatma Ghandi, you would be correct. Who regulates and educates about the humane treatment of companion animals residing in GHI? If you guessed the GHI Companion Animal Committee (CAC), you would, again, be correct.

Since 1999, when they were called the "Pets Subcommittee," the all-volunteer GHI CAC has been looking out for the cooperative's animals. Most importantly, they offer free education and support (i.e., "How can I keep my dog from barking all day?" "How do I get my cat to use the litter box?") to companion animal guardians residing in GHI, thus helping them care for their furry, fuzzy, scaly or feathered best friend humanely and appropriately.

The late Joyce Abell was instrumental in starting this innovative, progressive, cutting-edge program within GHI. Further, she is credited for changing its name (particularly the historically loaded word "pet") broadening the scope of its involvement as a full GHI committee. Kris White serves as the current chair and Anja Bull, Debbie Cooley, Amethyst Dwyer, Midge Cruz, Cam MacQueen, Diane McFadden and Kiki Theorodopulos are members.

Committee Achievements

A few of the committee's achievements include making hunting and butchering animals illegal in GHI; distributing oxygen masks for dogs and cats to local fire departments; organizing the annual educational Pet Expo (which promotes adoption and teaches animal guardians about animal care and behavior) having an educational booth at the Labor Day Festival and running a grief support group for people who have lost a beloved companion.

Further, CAC has helped educate the public about some common misconceptions on companion dogs. For example, a myth exists that large dogs should not live in small houses. However, size may or may not matter. For instance, just because Great Danes are huge dogs does not mean they are unsuited to live in a GHI unit. (As a professional certified pet dog trainer who knows her breeds, this reporter actually would much prefer to live next to a 150 lb. Great Dane than next to a 15 lb. Parson Russell Terrier.)

alarm systems. With the help of CAC, GHI was one of the first communities to make it illegal to tether and maintain dogs in the yard, thus revolutionizing the way we treat our four-legged best friends.

Members who neither keep a companion animal nor care much about them, may ask themselves if this committee is a giant waste of time and energy. Think again; these rules and regulations do affect the entire community. According to statistics from the Humane Society of the United States (http://www.hsus.org) dogs who live in the backyard are more likely to injure or even kill other animals and people (particularly children) than dogs who live in the house as part of the family.

Dogs who live in the backyard are prone to behavioral problems like incessant barking, fence jumping or digging under the fence and, most importantly, aggression. These types of behaviors make it difficult for the rest of the community to enjoy an otherwise quiet and peaceful neighborhood where the majority of people treat their companion animals as part of the family.

For their achievements, including getting every GHI dog out of the backyard and into members' homes, CAC was recognized this year for its services to the community. COG animal services awards honored CAC with the 2006 Community Partnership Award (seven organizations nominated in this category). Former GHI president Julia Eichhorst, along with Kris White and Midge Cruz, received the award on March 2 in Washington, D.C.

Although they are rightfully proud of their achievement, CAC members are always thinking about the future. Currently they are working on implementing the "Red Scarf program," which encourages guardians of timid and unpredictable dogs to outfit their pooches with a red scarf so other people know not to approach or pet these dogs.

CAC is also educating the community on disaster preparedness (including having an evacuation plan for companion animals) in the light of Hurricane Katrina. (Many people there, particularly

tured; one dog was returned to the other equipment was taken to the warehouse and sanded in preparation for painting.

> The facilities maintenance crew began renovation of the restrooms at Schrom Hills Park; plumbing fixtures, partitions, soap and paper dispensers and light fixtures were removed. Supplies were purchased for the drywall contractor and a portable restroom was placed for use by park visitors. Crew researched the layout and wiring plans for the new security cameras at Roosevelt Center.

Social Animals

Most importantly, CAC has focused on the fact that dogs are highly social animals who quickly deteriorate behaviorally if they are forced to live out their lives as yard ornaments or the elderly, died alongside their animals as they refused to evacuate without them).

CAC will have a booth at this year's Greenbelt Pet Expo on May 12 in the Greenbelt Community Center when visitors may ask questions about animal care. Members will be happy to answer questions on appropriate interactions between children and animals, bite prevention, management and enrichment, the approximate cost of animal ownership and more.

High Winds Disrupt Service in Center

by Judy Bell

Greenbelt, along with many other communities, experienced a spring noreaster, with 2-1/2 inches of rain on Sunday, April 15 and winds up to 50-60 miles an hour Monday, April 16 resulting in power outages, downed trees and the closing of Crescent Road.

Electric power was disrupted in the Center area and the south end of old Greenbelt for approximately three hours in the morning. A telephone call to Pepco resulted in a recorded message stating that the wait for an operator would be one hour and 45 minutes.

A tree fell on power lines near the firehouse, with electricity going through the tree and splitting the base, which then caught on fire, causing Crescent Road to be closed for 4-1/2 hours, according to Public Works' Brian Townsend. At least three large trees, including a white pine on Gardenway near the playground, blew over causing substantial damage, according to Matt Berres at Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI). No landmark trees were impacted and there was no major damage to property.

A tree fell across the sidewalk leading up to the overpass after the B-W Parkway. There were a number of smaller trees, mostly maples, that were either damaged or destroyed. Berres advises that if members notice tree limbs hanging or touching the house to let GHI know. "Be careful about not building up mulch around trees; keep it at a two or three inch level," he added. Too much mulch on top of the root scan cause trees to rot at the base, he said.

Johnson of School Board Meets with ACE

by Mary Moien

Rosalind Johnson, member of the Prince George's County School Board met with the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) at its March 27 meeting. Johnson began her remarks with a wide ranging list of updates from the county and Board of Education. She showed ACE the new school identification badges with a bar code. It will allow the schools to better track attendance and even be used to check out books from the library. She informs them that the board is working with the Brode Foundation and four other school districts to help them in the professional aspects of their positions in both process and content.

Johnson described a new High School Consortium under the direction of Dr. Cris Williams that will be working on issues such as school safety, daily learning and improving the daily visibility of school administrators around the school.

She is very interested in the "Small Schools Initiative." This program would help place smaller schools within communities, offering a different high school environment. Although each school would have a special focus, they would be community schools, not magnet schools. They could house 300 or 600 or up to 900 students. It is not clear at this time how Greenbelt would be affected by this initiative. Johnson indicated that she is offering a May Forum on school issues at Northwestern High School geared to Spanish-speaking students.

AIMCO Meeting

AIMCO (owners of Springhill Lake Apartments) was another topic she touched on. Johnson reported that a meeting is planned in April to further discuss the AIMCO offer of $20 million toward new schools in Greenbelt West. This figure is far less than the $128 million that has been estimated to provide a new school for the many children who are expected to reside in the Greenbelt West area after the completion of several new projects. She pointed out that the development in Greenbelt West is being declared as "Transit-oriented Housing" which allows it to have lower impact and surcharge fees. This meeting is slated to be a "closed session." One confusing point was a discussion about the School Task Force. Johnson concurred that the County Council is not interested in a county wide task force but that the Board of Education believes there is currently a viable Greenbelt area School Task Force in place and operating. ACE members assured her that this was not the case and that they were awaiting information with the plan of having ACE/City Council representation on a Task Force proposed. She promised to go back and speak to the board about this and also with County Councilmember Tom Dernoga's office and inform ACE of any progress in this area.

Student Awards

The annual ACE student awards ceremony will take place on Monday, May 14 at the council meeting. ACE has sent out requests for nominations to all the Greenbelt schools. Two students are nominated from each school. As in the past, each student award winner will receive a tee shirt, certificates, book gift certificates for the elementary and middle school students and $750 scholarship awards for the two Eleanor Roosevelt High School winners.

Kindergarten Early Registration Open

The Prince George's County Public School (PGCPS) system is currently offering early registration opportunities at all elementary schools for kindergarten students for the 2007-2008 school year. While new students may be registered anytime, the school system is encouraging families to make a special effort to register now through April 27.

Maryland law mandates that children registering for kindergarten for the next school year must be five years old by September 1, 2007. Only parents or court-appointed guardians may register a student. At the time of registration, parents or guardians must provide proof of residency and birth verification for each student. The Maryland State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene also requires that students complete a series of immunizations, a physical examination and lead screening prior to attending school.

Early pre-kindergarten opportunities are also available at schools offering this program.

For details contact the local school or visit www.pgpcs.org.

Kindergarteners Excel in Math, Reading

More children are entering kindergarten ready to learn in Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS), according to a new state report. In fact, the number of children entering kindergarten fully prepared for learning increased by eight percent over last school year and jumped 23 percentage points since the baseline year of 2001-2002. These figures are provided by "Children Entering School Ready to Learn: School Readiness Information for School Year 2006-2007," a report released by the Maryland State Department of Education's Division of Early Childhood Development.

"Clearly, children who experience positive learning experiences at a very young age are more successful in school," said Superintendent of Schools John Deasy. "This is the foundation that continues to drive progress in Prince George's County Public Schools."

African American kindergartners demonstrated a seven percentage point growth from 54 to 61 percent of students ready for

Last Day of School For Students June 14

The last day of school has been adjusted based on public schools closures for four days during the winter. As a result, the last day of school for students will now be Thursday, June 14 and the last day for teachers will be Monday, June 18. If schools are closed again due to inclement weather, these dates will again change. school, which matches the scores of African American students in Maryland as a whole.

Overall, PGCPS kindergartners demonstrated an eight-percent improvement in mathematical thinking skills and scored a four percent jump in language and literacy.

Children who attended PGCPS pre-kindergarten programs before entering school showed a six-point improvement in school readiness. To continue that progress, the Prince George's County Board of Education approved funding for 88 additional pre-kindergarten classes for next school year in its Fiscal Year 2008 operating budget.

"Prince George's County public school children are making progress and the Board of Education is investing in their futures by funding programs that accelerate learning," said Board Chair R. Owen Johnson, Jr. "When exposed to quality educational experiences at a young age, all children can learn and be successful in school."

Board of Education Holds Open Meeting

The Board of Education meeting on April 26 at 7:05 p.m. will be open to the public. Public participation is encouraged. Interested persons may speak for two minutes by registering with the board office by 4 p.m. that day by calling 301-952-6308. The board meets in the Sasscer Administration Building, 14201 School Lane in Upper Marlboro.

Contest Open to Local High School Artists

Congressman Steny H. Hoyer (D-MD) encourages high school art students who reside in Maryland's 5th Congressional District including Greenbelt to participate in the 26th Annual Congressional Arts Competition for a chance to have their artwork displayed in the U.S. Capitol for a year.

"This competition provides our young people with a valuable opportunity to showcase their talent and creativity on a national stage," said Hoyer. "I strongly encourage high school students in the 5th Congressional District to participate in this rewarding competition, which recognizes gifted young artists all across the country."

Through the annual Congressional Arts Competition, Members of Congress showcase the artistic talent of high school students within their districts. Hoyer sent letters to all of the high schools throughout Maryland's 5th District announcing the Congressional Arts Competition and outlining the rules for artwork submission.

To be considered for the Annual Congressional Arts Competition, all artwork must be delivered to his district office in Greenbelt by 5 p.m. on Friday, May 4. The Greenbelt address is: U.S. District Courthouse, 6500 Cherrywood Lane, Suite 310, Greenbelt, MD 20770. Students interested in participating can also call Congressman Hoyer's Waldorf District Office at 301-843-1577 with any questions.

After entries have been submitted by the required date, a panel comprised of members of the 5th District arts community, including art teachers and professional artists, will review the artwork and select one piece to represent the 5th District in the U.S. Capitol, where it will hang for one year. All other entries will be displayed in Congressman Hoyer's Waldorf District Office. The judging is scheduled to take place during the week of May 7.

Once a winner is selected, he or she will be invited to attend a ribbon cutting ceremony in Washington, D.C., in June of this year.

Students Excel at ERHS

by Mary Moien

Individual students as well as several school groups at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) have recently been honored for their accomplishments. The Chamber Orchestra received a Silver Medal at the Chicago Heritage Music Festival. At the same festival, the Chamber Choir won the Gold Medal for best Chamber Choir, the first place Adjudicators' award for the Best Choir at the festival and one of the choir members, Joel Sparks, won the Maestro Award for the best vocal soloist at the festival.

ERHS 10th grader Holden Lee is a prize-winning mathematician. The American Mathematical Society sponsored a math contest called "Who Wants To Be A Mathematician" for high school students in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area. Students had to qualify based on an entrance exam. Holden was the winner of the entire contest, taking home the grand prize of $2,000. His current math teacher, Andrea Brown, attended the competition with Holden.

The Air Force ROTC Cadets unit marched in this year's St. Patrick's Day Parade in Washington, D.C. This was their second year of participation in this event which included approximately 100 units in the parade down Constitution Avenue.

One of the ERHS ROTC Cadets, Baron Mason, was recently awarded the rank of Eagle Scout – the Boy Scout's highest honor. Only two percent of all Boy Scouts achieve this prestigious rank during their time in scouting.

The Girls' Basketball team recently won the State Championship. They were later honored at the State Capitol in Annapolis by State Senator Paul Pinsky and Delegate Justin Ross.

Service Academy Forum Monday

Congressman Steny Hoyer will host the 26th Annual U.S. Academy and Military Career Forum at the Show Place Arena in Upper Marlboro on Monday, April 23 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. A brief program will begin at 7 p.m. with remarks from Commander Michael DeRosa, assistant director of Admissions and Financial Aid for the Merchant Marine Academy, and Congressman Hoyer.

Every year Congressman Hoyer nominates candidates from the 5th Congressional District for admission to all four United States service academies: the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. (Army); the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Col.; the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis; and the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, N.Y.

This forum provides students an opportunity to learn more about careers in the military and will feature representatives of the U.S. Service Academies, local university ROTC programs and military service recruiters.

For information visit http:// www.hoyer.house.gov or call Betty Rogers in Hoyer's Greenbelt office at 301-474-0119.

Hoyer Honored For His Service

On Wednesday, April 18 Congressman Steny Hoyer (D-MD) was honored as the first recipient of the Prince George's County Community Foundation Lifetime Achievement Award for his lifetime commitment of service to the community. Hoyer, who has represented parts of Prince George's County both in Congress and the State Senate for a total of 40 years, received the honor at the 2nd Annual Prince George's County Community Foundation Civic Leadership Awards Dinner in Upper Marlboro.

Congressman Hoyer was recognized by the showing of a video chronicling his career of service and leadership.

Greenbelters Join 2007 Backyard Bird Count

by Don Comis

Greenbelt and the U.S. and Canada all shared in the 2007 Great Backyard Bird Count's (GBBC) historic record: 81,193 checklists documenting more than 11 million birds of 616 species. The previous record was 60,616 checklists in 2006.

Greenbelters set their own record for the 10th anniversary of the backyard bird count that relies on individuals to count birds in their yards or neighborhoods for at least 15 minutes on at least one of four days. This year it was February 16-19. Greenbelters submitted nine checklists with a previous high of five. They counted 1,060 birds belonging to 42 species.

The publicity in the News Review helped bring about Greenbelt's share in this year's record participation. Participants remain anonymous in the website records but I know that Peter Blank was one of the participants and he was reminded by the News Review article.

I of course participated and was another first-timer. I've written articles in the News Review to get more beginners like myself involved in birding and bird counts, having been convinced of the need for them while participating in bird counts at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC). This year's backyard count proved that even knowing a few birds can be helpful on a count. Take the robin that we often take for granted. How many can't identify a robin?

That is one of 32 species I can now identify and was among the dozen that I started out knowing before trying to get serious about birding in recent months.

And that knowledge helped me put Greenbelt's large robin flock – large for Greenbelt anyway – on the map. During the 2007 GBBC, the American Robin ranked as the most numerous species for the first time ever. Participants counted more than 2 million robins. The previous record for robins was 337,973.

Robins The flock of 53 robins I con-

At 2 million plus, the American Robin was the unlikely star of the 2007 Great Backyard Bird Count in the U.S. and Canada. Greenbelters counted a flock of 53 robins among 983 birds belonging to 41 species.

tributed to the robin record pales compared to the nearly 1.7 million robins reported in a mangrove forest in St. Petersburg, Fla., but still it helped complete one small part of the robin migration puzzle. John Fitzpatrick, director of the Cornell Lab of Ornithology in Ithaca, N.Y., said: "Literally, there has never been a more detailed snapshot of a continental bird-distribution profile in history Imagine ornithologists and ecologists 250 years from now comparing these data with their own! It used to take scientists years to gather large-scale information about bird population and distribution - and GBBC does it in just four days each year, thanks to . . . birders reporting their counts online."

National Audubon Society president John Flicker added: "This record breaking turnout is proof of a powerful formula – birds plus fun equals a lifelong connection to nature. It turns kids, parents and grandparents into more than citizen scientists; it helps make them citizen stewards for the health of our planet." The GBBC is a joint project of Cornell and the National Audubon Society.

Every pair of eyes is helpful, because you just might be in the right place at the right time and be the only one to see and record birds like that large robin flock that came to the Roosevelt Center area just as I got there. They were perched on trees everywhere, but conveniently for me with my amateur counting skills, they kept lining up along the edge of one wall of the Greenbelt pool-gym complex. This made it easier for me to count them. Again, we know that flock had to be bigger than 53 but bird counters are usually taught to be conservative.

Another Greenbelt resident had earlier reported seeing a flock of about 40 or 50 robins in her yard, so I suspect it was this flock I was lucky enough to be the only one to both see and record during those four days last February.

Even the humblest of birds that we take for granted because they are so easy to identify, robins, can add joy to life, beyond the scientific and personal satisfaction of counting as many birds as possible.

Help the environment and yourself and volunteer for the International Migratory Bird Day count at BARC on May 12. Send an email to Fred Fallon at fwfallon@earthlink.net, Ed Clark at Clarke@ars.usda.gov or me at DonaldComis@msn.com.

Remember you can always help experienced birders spot the robins they might otherwise miss!

Flocks of the human kind were also out in large numbers to observe local birds. Michel Cavigelli (center, pointing) leads a recent bird walk at BARC for the Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group. The walk had a record attendance of 16 people – and one charming neighborhood calico cat who joined the walkers (not in photo).
