Labor Day Festival Will Offer Sights, Sounds, Tastes for All

by Frank DeBernardo

The smell of fried dough and cotton candy will soon be mixing with the sounds of "oldies" and children's laughter. The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival is almost here!

On the weekend of August 31 to September 3, the parking lot of the Roosevelt Center and the lawn of the Community Center will be transformed into a carnival of fun, food, friendship and frivolity as the citizens of Greenbelt and surrounding areas gather to celebrate their unique community spirit during the 53rd annual festival.

While the festival culminates with Monday's annual parade down Crescent Road, displaying the wide diversity of Greenbelt's organizations and citizenry, the whole weekend is chock full of diverse activities and entertainment designed to attract folks from all areas of the Greenbelt spectrum. In this article, events from Friday and Saturday are featured; next week, an article will feature Sunday and Monday's programs. A complete schedule is included in the insert accompanying this issue.

The Legendary Orioles will bring traditional pop mixed with gospel and blues to the stage on Saturday, September 1 from 9 p.m. to mid-

Friday

Tradition and novelty mark this year's weekend activities. As a prelude to the opening ceremonies on Friday night, the Greenbelt Concert Band will kick off the program with a concert from 6 to 7 p.m. The opening ceremonies from 7 to 7:45 p.m. will feature the announcement of this year's Outstanding Citizen Award, honoring an individual who, because of extraordinary civic contributions of time and talent, has helped make Greenbelt great. A reception will follow immediately in the Municipal Center.

As usual, the Miss Greenbelt pageant will run throughout the weekend at the Festival's main stage in front of the Aquatic and Fitness Center. The 38 contestants in three categories (Miss Greenbelt, Junior Miss Greenbelt and Little Miss Greenbelt) will be introduced on Friday night, August 31 at 7:45 p.m. Winners will be announced on Sunday evening at the final presentation of contestants from 6 to 9 p.m.

At the Greenbelt Arts Center, "MacBeth: Life on the Heath," a fresh 1/2 hour adaptation of Shakespeare's play, will debut at 8 p.m. (The performance will be repeated on Saturday and Sunday at 5 and 7 p.m.) Saturday

The evening ends with a performance by "Stoked," a Maryland-based hard rock band featuring the music of contemporary punk and metal bands such as Green Day, Iron Maiden, Aerosmith, AC/DC and Pearl Jam.

Buerger Updates Council On Center Police Patrol

by Thomas X. White

Sgt. David Buerger of the Greenbelt Police Department reported to the Greenbelt City Council on the increased patrol activities in and around Roosevelt Center at the council's August 13 meeting. The Center initiative was in response to citizen concerns following an assault that occurred early this summer near the Crescent Road and Gardenway intersection and the likely use of the Gladys Spellman Overpass as an escape route for the fleeing assailants.

Buerger reported to council that the increased police presence has been successful. It has been obvious, he noted, that, ". . . some of the troublemakers were not hanging out (in the Center) as they would like."

In addition, three people were recently arrested on the Spellman Overpass for distribution and possession of drugs (marijuana) and alcohol.

The Roosevelt Center merchants have given Buerger positive feedback on the increased police presence. However, he qualified these accomplishments with the sense that the "troublemakers" may have just taken their activities into other areas of the city. Some councilmembers suggested that the nearby wooded areas may be alternate locations for such activities.

Increased Presence

In response to council questions, Buerger said police presence for the center area has been increased by about $2\frac{1}{2}$ to $3\frac{1}{2}$ additional hours per day. In response to a question from Councilmember Rodney Roberts on how much longer that increased activity could be sustained, Buerger replied, "As manpower allows, balanced against priorities in other areas of the city.'

He noted that the emphasis being directed to Roosevelt Center comes after a huge focus earlier this year with arson in the Springhill Lake subdivision. He estimated that the department conducts about four enhanced operations of this nature every

Crime Data

Council also pressed Buerger for better crime statistics and a better analysis of reported crimes or other incidents as to time of day, type of incident, location and possible use of Global Positioning System technology.

Buerger responded that such an analysis would be difficult to achieve with the department's current (mainly manual) system because of time and manpower constraints. Since automating the city's crime tracking system is a priority goal, there may be a possibility for getting such an analysis for part of this year.

The discussion also touched upon current staffing for the department. Buerger noted the

Council Revises Election Laws for Next Election

by Thomas X. White

the Greenbelt City Council at its regular meeting on August 13 as a result of recommendations from the city Board of Elections. The Board of Elections recommended in March 2006 that the city code be amended to address the board's authority to decide if an absentee ballot submitted without a "secrecy" envelope should be counted or deemed invalid. It also recommended conditions for runoff elections and city requirements for gift and expenditure reports from organizations working for or against a ballot question both requiring charter amendments.

Council unanimously adopted an ordinance to clarify the authority of the Board of Elections to determine whether an absentee ballot without a sealed "secrecy" envelope should be deemed invalid. The intent is to provide the Board of Elections with the

Two charter amendments and discretion to determine that an an ordinance were adopted by otherwise valid ballot should not necessarily be rejected. This would mean that a violation of privacy would not automatically occur if the secrecy envelope is either omitted or not sealed.

The revised regulation would not weaken the language that warns voters to place completed ballots in a blank sealed envelope and then place that envelope in the absentee envelope provided. The adoption of this ordinance at this meeting allows enough time for the new provision to be effective for the upcoming November city elections.

Charter Amendment

Also adopted unanimously was a charter amendment resolution to revise the charter by adding language in Section 31 relating to the trigger for a run-off election. The current language reads, "If, however, fewer than five (5)

Letters to the Editor

THANKS!

A benefit concert for Friends of New Deal Café Arts (FOND-CA) last Saturday, August 18 raised over $475 for new sound equipment for the Café from donations from those who attended. FONDCA would like to thank the performers, all of whom donated their time and musical talent, making the concert possible: Ali Michelle, Rowan Corbett, Andy Luttrell, Adam Day, Ashraf Dawod, Lea and members of ilyAIMY. Thanks also to the organizers: Richard McMullin, Rob Hinkal and Ashraf Dawod; to Jeff Sieracki, who donated his work at the sound equipment; and to the FONDCA volunteers and Café staff and volunteers, all of whom worked together to bring off a wonderful concert!

This is the second benefit concert FONDCA has held this year and we wish finally to thank everyone who has come to the concerts. We hope to hold another one this fall!

Barbara Simon, President Friends of New Deal Café Arts

THANKS!

Thank you. It's quieter now. The Greenbelt Elementary School (GES) PTA would like to thank Lowe's Home Improvement for the $5,000 grant for school maintenance. The PTA used the grant to acquire and install sound deadening equipment for the school cafeteria. With a project that took over a year to complete, many people participated. A special thanks goes to the school maintenance team, particularly Alexander Johnson and to Vincent Curl and William Dallas of the Prince George's County Schools as well as Yankowsky and Associates of Bowie. These panels not only offer a more pleasant lunchroom but effectively expand the school, offering a place where whole grade levels can meet and listen to speakers.

Concerns about City Animal Shelter

I want to make it clear that I am writing as a pet owner and pet lover and not as a member of GHI's Companion Animal Committee. I feel compelled to express concerns about the Greenbelt Animal Shelter. My comments arise from my own observations.

The most disconcerting is the recent deadly outbreak of the Parvo Virus. What steps does Animal Control take to prevent the spread of disease among the shelter populations and to prevent potential pet adopters from spreading disease to other pets? What level of veterinary care do the shelter animals receive?

Another matter of great concern is the turnover of employees of Animal Control. What is the explanation for this unusual staff turnover? One hopes that it has nothing to do with conditions at the shelter but with so little public information available, the facts are hard to assess.

More than a year ago, I had become aware that messages left at Animal Control's number 301-474-6124 did not get returned. This is a violation of the department's own mission and values statements. Active steps to find homes for adoption are not vigorously undertaken. The Animal Control website showing adoptable animals does not get updated. Flyers with pictures of adoptable animals do not get posted at the Co-op grocery store, the Greenbelt Community Center nor other local venues. Videos of adoptable animals do not get shown on local Greenbelt Channel 71. Several responsible adult citizens approaching Animal Control as volunteers have been turned down. And there is no outreach to our community that is so rich with animal lovers.

To my knowledge, Animal Control gives no accountability to the community for animals that fall under its care. I cannot find documentation of the number of animals held at the shelter at any one time, the number of new drop-offs and captures, how many animals have been euthanized and how many have been successfully adopted. This data should be available to the public.

I know animal issues are of great interest to all the pet lovers in Greenbelt. People are ready to volunteer their time to help in any way they can. As citizens, we'd like to have the Animal Shelter be more accountable to the community.

Utopia Film Fest Extends Deadline

As entries continue to arrive, Greenbelt's Utopia Film Festival 2007, slated for the weekend of October 26 through 28, has extended its deadline for submissions until Friday, August 31. Entry forms and more information can be found at www.utopiafilm-festival.org.

Utopia, a grassroots film festival sponsored by Greenbelt Access Television (GATE) and chaired by filmmaker/actor Chris Haley, encourages local filmmakers to submit all types and lengths of cinematic art, including features, documentaries, animation, music videos and experimental works.

"The excitement of meeting and promoting new movie makers never gets old," said Haley, who has premiered two of his own short films at previous festivals.

Last year's festival included a number of independent featurelength films and documentaries, including "Plagues and Pleasures on the Salton Sea," "The Pact" and "Invisible Children."

This year's festival will include a new feature: "Docs in Progress," in which documentary filmmakers will screen unfinished projects and receive audience input on their work.

Utopia 2007 will be held in several venues, including the historic P&G Old Greenbelt Theatre, the Greenbelt Municipal Building, the Greenbelt Arts Center and for the first time, will include a special Saturday evening program at the Beltway Plaza Cinemas.

Corrections
In a school story on rules and regulations in last week's paper information was given that students in grades 9 through 12 must maintain a grade point average of 2.0 in order to participate in extracurricular activities. What should have been added were the words "with no failing grade in the previous quarter."

Give Blood, 1-800-GIVE-LIFE

On September 21, school will be closed for a teacher inservice day and not for Yom Kippur.

In the July 26 article on Bus Service in Greenbelt, the Call-a-Bus number was incorrect. The correct number is 301-499-8603.

In the page 7 Community Events article "GHI Taxes to Increase, Input Session Set" in the August 16 issue, the percent increase in the 2007 Maryland state appraised value of GHI property was misstated. The increase is 200 percent. The increase reported is about 200 percent, not 250 percent.

Thomas Brown Hieber

Longtime Greenbelter Thomas Brown Hieber died August 15, 2007. He was 93 years old. His wife Mildred Ressler Hieber preceded him in death on January 9, 1999; they had been married for almost 60 years.

Mr. Hieber was born on May 18, 1914, in Pittsburgh, Pa. He was the fourth of eight children (seven of whom grew to adulthood) born to Dr. Charles and Isabella Hieber.

In 1922 his mother was ill with an unknown malady (possibly complications of childbirth) when his father caught a flu sweeping the region and died within a week. Two years later his mother succumbed to her illness. Thus, by age nine, Tom was orphaned and the family was irrevocably split apart: he, his younger brother and two younger sisters were sent across the state to live at the Scotland School for Orphans of Veterans of Foreign Wars (near York); the youngest, a preschoolaged sister, was adopted by an outside family; and two older brothers (aged 15 and 17, deemed too old by the orphanage) were left on their own.

On the completion of his secondary education, Tom returned to Pittsburgh and entered the jobhunting fray at the height of the Great Depression. Despite, or because of, this and the obstacles he had overcome in childhood, he scrambled to set a course for a secure future. This included such things as working in and managing ice cream stores and going to school to become a secretary.

But it was at the ice cream store where he met Mildred Ressler and his future was to be shaped in unplanned ways. Although Mildred already had a boyfriend, her initial shyness sprang more from the "unusual" things Tom said, e.g., that storm clouds of war were gathering exactly as they had prior to the Great War (WWI) and we were headed for a second world war (in 1936).

Sundays 10 A.M. Municipal Building

Nonetheless, they courted for four years, wed in 1940, honeymooned in Washington, D.C., and within months settled into the area. Tom had accepted a civil service job that paid less than his already modest wages but offered security and greater opportunity for growth. It was a career that began at USDA, transferred to Treasury and spanned 33 years.

After the birth of their first child in 1942, the family settled into Greenbelt. Tom obtained an associate degree in accounting from Southeastern University by attending night classes while supporting a growing family of five, on the salary of a GS-5. Except for brief career relocations to Colorado and Georgia in the 1950s, the family remained in Greenbelt. Federal service began as a grade 2 and topped out as a 15, by which time the family had four children.

Throughout his working years he served in various capacities at the Greenbelt Community Church and always supported Mildred in her many charitable activities.

At age 50, Tom took up golf and, as a southpaw, complained that all of the books were written by right-handers. At age 66, however, he shot a hole-in-one. And, at age 77, he repeated it.

In retirement, he joined the Lions Club and served as president. He especially enjoyed playing Santa Claus for the club's fundraisers.

As Mildred's health declined, he was her sole caregiver, performing household chores and taking her out every day even after she was termed medically fragile. During all of her hospitalizations, he stayed with her eight hours a day, seven days a week.

Following her death, he moved to Florida briefly, then returned to Greenbelt very glad to be back. He enjoyed going to the New Deal Café, watching Jeopardy, cable TV college courses and visiting with his great-granddaughter.

A son, Thomas W. Hieber, preceded him in death in 2001. He is survived by daughters Marion L. Vaughn, of Halethorpe, Md., and Janet E. Hieber, of Greenbelt; and son James C. Hieber, of Springfield, Va.; three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Memorial contributions may be made to the Greenbelt Community Church, 1 Hillside Rd.

As we see the flowers bloom and trees turn green, it reminds us of the one who created the serene nature in perfect harmony. It is our job now to keep this harmony in our dealings as well, as the Creator reminds us: "The sun and the moon follow courses (exactly) computed; and the herbs and the trees bow in adoration. And the skies He (God) has raised high, and He has set up the balance (of justice), in order that you may not transgress due balance. So establish weight with justice and fall not short in the balance!" - The Holy Qur'an, 55:5-10

Does the Bahá'í Faith have clergy? There is no clergy in the Bahá'í Faith. Because the human race has entered upon the age of its maturity, each individual is able to explore the revelation of God and to decide on the issues of life through prayer, reflection and consultation with others. To make this possible, the Bahá'í scriptures have so far been translated into some 800 different languages.

NOTICE OF CHARTER AMENDMENT RESOLUTIONS

At its regular meeting of August 13, 2007, the City Council adopted two resolutions to amend the City Charter. As required by state law, these resolutions will be posted in their entirety for 40 days, until September 22, at the Municipal Building, as well as on the City's Web site at www.greenbeltmd.gov. Copies may also be requested of the City Clerk. Each charter amendment will be come effective on October 2, 2007, unless a proper petition to submit the amendment to the voters on a referendum is filed as permitted by law. This notice is given to provide fair summaries of the two resolutions, as also required by state law.

Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2007-1

A Resolution . . . to Amend the Charter of the City of Greenbelt . . . by Amending Section 31, Titled "Election of Council" to Clarify a Certain Requirement for Holding a Runoff Election: Section 31 of the City Charter lays out a number of situations in which a runoff election would be required to determine which candidates had properly been elected to the City Council. It indicates that if fewer than five candidates receive the required minimum number of votes (equal to 40% or more of the number of voters voting in the election), a runoff must be held. The amendment to the charter specifies that this would apply only if more than five candidates are running. In a case where only five candidates were running, no runoff would be required if not all five receive the minimum number of votes.

Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2007-2

A Resolution . . . to Amend the Charter of the City of Greenbelt . . . to Empower the City Council to Require Reporting of Contributions and Expenditures Made for the Purpose of Furtherance of or Opposition to Any Ballot Question: Section 21 of the City Charter empowers the City Council to provide for the reporting of contributions and expenditures made either in support of or in opposition to the nomination and election of candidates running for City Council. The amendment to the charter would also allow the City Council to require similar reporting of expenditures made in support of or opposition to any issue, principal or proposition submitted to the voters as a ballot question at an election. It is noted that this is enabling legislation only. It does not legislate a requirement for such reporting. It authorizes the Council to require such reporting if Council later chooses to take action to do so.

For additional information, contact Kathleen Gallagher, City Clerk, at 301-474-8000 or kgallagher@greenbeltmd.gov.

Council Recognizes Peters, DeWald and Counselors

by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council gave a tribute to Greenbelt's former Prince George's County Councilmember Douglas J.J. Peters at its regular meeting on August 13. Peters was elected last November to the Maryland Senate representing the 23rd Legislative District. This was the first opportunity for council to provide official recognition for his efforts on behalf of the city while he was a member of the county council. (From Bowie, Peters' county council district included Greenbelt but his senate district does not.)

For Peters' success in garnering most of the funding for the new Greenbelt Skate Park, council presented him with a commemorative skateboard and an autographed skateboard helmet.

In addition to those tokens of appreciation, council heaped praise on the former county councilmember for all of his efforts. They expressed hope that the city could continue to rely on his support in the Maryland Senate, even though he is no longer an official representative of the Greenbelt area. Peters expressed his gratitude for council's recognition and noted his strong support for Greenbelt, pointing out its strong commitment to the environment, the focus on walkability fostered by the city and the remarkable array of facilities available to Greenbelt citizens in the city center.

City Employees

Besides this recognition for Peters, several city employees were also praised for their achievements. Among these was Nicole DeWald, the city's arts supervisor, who received a Maryland Municipal League Award of Excellence for creating the city's innovative Artful Afternoon program. In addition, council noted that this was also recognized by the National League of Cities.

Later in the meeting City Manager Michael McLaughlin noted that Greenbelt's Resource Advocate Christal Parker Batey had recently been honored by Maryland Governor Martin O'Malley for her accomplishments in the state's Volunteer Maryland Program.

CARES Staff

Although not exactly a presentation, Dr. Liz Park, Greenbelt's director of Social Services, introduced to council one of two recently hired Greenbelt CARES Crisis Intervention Counselors (CICs). Glenda Bullock-Willis, a licensed professional counselor, most recently worked for the Prince George's County Board of Education in the After Hours Drop-in Counseling Center and as a drug and alcohol assessment counselor. In brief introductory remarks, Bullock-Willis expressed how impressed she was with the level of caring that Greenbelt has for both its employees and its citizens.

Blanca Brana, also recently hired, was unable to attend the meeting. She is a recent graduate of Argosy University, with a Master's degree in counseling. She is fluent in Spanish.

Park also introduced Shireen Blair, another licensed professional counselor, noting that she is the longest serving CIC with the city. With the new additions, the city now has a full complement of CICs.

used to be.

Construction is expected to cost $41 million, with $25 million coming from the State of Maryland and $16 million coming from the county, said McCrave. The new building will house 990 students. (In 2005, the latest figures available, 895 students were enrolled.)

Uniforms

Greenbelt Middle School starts this year with several changes, including school uniforms for students and a pending new school program of International Baccalaureate (IB).

The impact of uniforms may take a few days to sink in. Wearing khaki pants, eighth-grader Aziza Mansaray of Greenbelt said she liked what she was wearing. On the other hand, Darrius Dancy also of Greenbelt and in the 8th grade, said he didn't like any uniform.

Greenbelt Middle School was designated an International Baccalaureate school at the end of last school year. As yet there are no changes to the curriculum. The school is in the application process along with other schools in the system, according to school Principal Judy Austin and School Board Representative Rosalind School Superintendent Dr. John Deasy greets Greenbelt Middle School students Darrius Dancy and Aziza Mansaray on their first day of school.

Johnson.

Finally, most of the maintenance issues identified last year have been dealt with, according to Prince George's County Public School Facilities Manager Vince Curl. "We put in carpet, did plastering, replaced windows, fixed urinals," he said, reading off a list. Curl estimated that 95 percent of the items on the list were completed on time.

The High Cost Of the Iraq War

by Judy Bell

Twelve determined citizens turned out in a drizzling rain at noon on Thursday, August 16 to report the amount of money being spent on the Iraq war. The site of the gathering was outside the Federal Courthouse on Cherrywood Lane.

This demonstration was part of a nationwide effort by MoveOn. org Political Action to let people know that $456 billion has been spent in Iraq, costing each American household $4,100. To illustrate the amount that has been spent locally, several people held up a huge handwritten check outside the courthouse, spelling out $1.3 billion for the fifth district alone. All of the local media was invited but none chose to attend except for this representative from the News Review.

The group stood outside in the rain for about a half hour, then ventured into the building to deliver their message to Congressman Steny Hoyer's office, where two more people joined them to deliver the report.

MoveOn.org Political Action is entirely funded by 3.2 million members. There are no corporate contributors, no foundation grants and no union money.

NAMI Holds Family To Family Program

candidates receive votes amounting to 40 percent or more of the persons voting in the election, a run-off election shall be held to fill the vacancies remaining."

This provision is modified to read: "If, however, fewer than five (5) candidates in a field of six (6) or more candidates receives votes amounting to 40 percent or more of the persons voting in the election, a run-off election will be held to fill the vacancies remaining.

This provision is intended to make clear that if there were only five candidates on the ballot, then holding a run-off would be unnecessary. This provision would take effect on October 2, 2007, assuming it is not petitioned to referendum.

The final item was a charter amendment resolution to provide the same type of reporting of campaign expenditures and contributions currently required of candidates in city elections for groups or organizations that work for or against any issue, principle or proposition submitted to a vote at any city election. In the case of this charter amendment, council and the city staff consider it to be enabling legislation only and that it would not affect the upcoming 2007 elections because there would not be sufficient time to develop the appropriate ordinance necessary to change the Election Code to set forth specific regulations.

The intent is that with the approved charter amendment in place, the council, staff and the Elections Board would have until the 2009 election cycle to decide whether actual provisions should be developed to extend the reporting requirements to groups or organizations. The Board of Elections recommendation for the Charter change also recommended that any requirements developed for groups or organizations provide that the amount of expenditures or contributions required to trigger a filing should be high so that the burden would not be placed on small groups. This charter amendment resolution was also adopted unanimously.

Art Contest Focuses on Local Reservoirs

For those who like to draw nature and wildlife, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) is sponsoring an art contest with a theme of picturing life at Triadelphia and Rocky Gorge Reservoirs. The two reservoirs are home to wildlife, provide recreational opportunities for the public and are an essential source of water for WSSC customers.

The contest, seeking depictions of life supported by Triadelphia and Rocky Gorge reservoirs, is open to anyone with artistic ability. Each contestant may submit one original work in each of the following categories: animal life, plant life, recreation and water use by people, each at the reservoirs.

Artists may choose their medium – oil, water colors, pastels, pencil, pen and ink, charcoal, etc. For complete contest rules contact Dawn Forsythe at 301-206-8233 or dforsyt@wsscwater.com.

Contestants must submit entries before October 31, 2007.

There will be prizes in each category; winners will receive $250 for first place, $100 for second place and $50 for third place. In addition, WSSC may use artwork submitted in exhibitions, webpages and educational material.

remnant and restored marsh and wetlands along the Anacostia River in northeast Washington, Participants in the class can learn about the definitions and types of wetlands and the roles they play. Students can explore how wetlands impact the atmosphere and their influence on both local and global econo-

wetlands. Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens and the Anacostia River serve as a great case study on the nation's shifting attitude toward wetlands. Before 1610 Nacotchatank Indians camped along the shores of the river, harvesting abundant fish, bird and plant resources, especially wild rice. Descendants of European settlers farmed and grazed the rich soils along the river, reducing the wetland's size and health. As the nation began moving toward industrialization, wetlands were often feared as a source of pestilence and disease and they were drained and filled.

Prior to roads, waterways were key economic drivers. The Anacostia wetlands were filled with dredge spoils taken from the river bottom to improve navigation. After roads and highways were developed, wetlands and rivers became convenient dumping grounds for waste, industrial activity and sewage overflow. Over time, blight and contamination left these areas uninhabitable. Forgotten and impaired areas like the Anacostia River flowing behind the nation's capital, are getting renewed interest in protection and restoration. Students in the course can opt to review a park wetland case study or select a wetland in their area to determine the value of both natural and reconstructed wetlands.

Schools (PGCPS) has announced that record levels of student achievement have pulled 11 elementary schools out of "School Improvement" status. Twice as many schools exited School Improvement as occurred a year ago after meeting all federal mandates for Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP) for two years in a row.

PGCPS students have raised their scores in reading and mathematics on the Maryland School Assessments (MSA) for four years in a row - reaching the highest achievement levels in the school system since 2003.

Springhill Lake Elementary school is one of 17 Schools-in-Improvement which made AYP and are now in position to exit Improvement status next year.

Overall, there are 56 elementary and middle schools in Schoolin-Improvement – down from 63 a year ago.

Greenbelt Pioneer Returns to 60 Court

by Bill Wilkerson

It was early afternoon on my birthday, August 20, when my wife Dianne called upstairs to say she noticed someone had pulled into 60 Court in a gold colored PT-Cruiser and that two people were taking pictures of our house and our neighbor Elizabeth Kubiczek's house. Being curious, we went out to see what was going on. Maybe they just appreciated our big flowering red Lord Baltimore hibiscus?

We quickly learned that the lady in the PT-Cruiser was Ruth Morgan Raffaeli, who grew up as part of the original Morgan family who had occupied Kubiczek's house in 1937. Raffaeli was taking pictures with her son on her way back home to Strongsville, Ohio near Cleveland. She had been visiting another son who lives in Port Republic in St. Mary's County, Md.

We talked for over an hour about her recollections, what had happened since we arrived in 1979 and what court favorites Dora and Dick White (formerly of Unit G) had told us about the court history they knew of since they moved around 1967. Raffaeli is a pleasant person with whom to talk.

Family History

Raffaeli recalled that her family, the Morgans, moved into Unit G on October 17, 1937, when she was nine years old. She said they were the 25th family to move into Greenbelt. They moved from Edenburg, Texas to D.C. for one year and then to Greenbelt. How she remembered the date they moved in is beyond me.

Raffaeli had the small bedroom facing the service-side that Kubiczek uses as a guest bedroom/reading room. Raffaeli lived in the house for about 13 years until around 1950 when she got out of college. While she was in college she lived at home during breaks from college dorm living and in the summer when she was home from the University of Maryland College

One interesting memory she relayed was that her father used to have a vegetable garden where Kubiczek's parking space is now located. I have always theorized from cracks in the pavement that the parking lot had been enlarged in the past on both sides to its existing configuration with 12 parking spaces. She recalled everyone in the court had low privet hedges.

Raffaeli also said that she still owns some of the original Scanlike furniture her family bought at the Co-op. She recalled that the kitchen had a black counter top. We told her Penny Koines has the only original kitchen left in the court, but its black counter is gone.

She said that the brick and block walls in Unit D, E and G's service side yards were built after her family moved away. She said that Unit G had a maple tree similar to the tree in Alice Mitchell's yard and as described to us by Dora. We had a service-side maple as well, which was taken down in the 80s after its roots blocked a storm drain.

Raffaeli told us her parents were Eva and Arja. She had a brother Earl now deceased. This is the first coincidence that came out of the conversation. Kubic-

zek's daughter Eva lived with her before going off to college. Neighbors, Ghosts

Raffaeli next related the occupants of each unit from her era as follows (if I have it correctly). I am guessing most of these families did not decide to purchase their units when the Federal government got out of the rental business and the housing co-op was formed in 1953. Names of ghosts who once played in the yards, ran up the steps from school, laughed in the park, or helped mothers with laundry, were uttered that had perhaps not been heard in the court for over 54 years. Four more coincidences came to light during this discussion.

The Brennan's lived in Unit A, where Penny Koines now resides. Jimmy, one of the boys, got infantile paralysis, supposedly from the swimming pool. Raffaeli met him (in his wheelchair) at a reunion.

The Benefiels lived in Unit B with their two sons, Le Grande (now deceased) and Harry (who Raffaeli met at one of the reunions), where Peter and Cathy Brady now live. Mrs. Mitchell lived with two daughters in one of the honeymoon cottages, Unit C, where Bill Wrigley now lives. This is the second coincidence because Alice Mitchell (no relation) lives in Unit E now. The Fickes, a mother and son, lived in Unit D, where Emma Yang lives. The Thomases lived in Unit E, where Alice Mitchell lives now.

Anne Childress lived in Unit F (our house). We had met Anne's older brother Larry during a specially arranged visit by pioneers in 1987 (coincidence #3). He came to tour his old (our) house from Silver Spring with his wife. Raffaeli ran into Anne in Alabama and may have her email address. Anne now lives in Florida.

The Morgans lived in Unit G as related above. The Domchicks lived in Unit H where Ray Pauley lives. Mr. Domchick was an in-law of the Gussios, a pioneer family who lived nearby at 62A Crescent until her death about ten years ago and his (Salvadore) death two years ago.

This is another coincidence because I recall that a Donna Domchick had power of attorney for Howard Slaymaker (owner of Unit F before us) to sign documents relating to the sale of his MOU to us in 1979, since he had moved to Arizona with his daughter before the settlement.

The Burkes lived in Unit J where Nancy Solomon and her two boys, Aaron and Isaac, live now. Raffaeli met Bobby Burke at the last reunion of the pioneers. Ellen Gussio had organized the reunions but is doing so no longer. Raffaeli said she feels that apparently there will be no more pioneer reunions.

The Greens lived in Unit K where Jennifer Green lives now with her daughter Sara. Apparently this is yet another coincidence because Jennifer is not related to the Greens whom Raffaeli grew up. Raffaeli did not know Jennifer's grandmother, Mrs. Drennen, who lived in the house up until about 1977 or

Goodbyes

We showed Raffaeli the 50th Anniversary of Greenbelt History Book (1987) and she said she had not seen it before. She said perhaps next time she would contact us ahead when she gets to the area and maybe request a tour by Kubiczek. We took a few pictures and we all felt uplifted by the nice talk. Raffaeli enjoyed meeting someone with talk about her memories. We felt lucky to have been able to meet her by chance and hear about our court history from 1937 to 1950. She said it felt like it was just yesterday that she lived here. Time flies.

Wildlife on Virginia Trail Also Found in Greenbelt

by Don Comis

When I read an article in The Washington Post about springtime birds and other fauna and flora that could be seen driving from Alexandria to Virginia Beach following Virginia's new statewide Birding and Wildlife Trail, I bet myself that almost every animal or plant mentioned in the article could be found without ever leaving Greenbelt.

Sure enough, on close examination, I found we have all five of the birds shown in photos in the article, starting with my noisy friend, the red-bellied woodpecker who has the cover shot. We have the Canada geese, the hermit thrush, the northern flicker and the great white egret pictured in the article.

Birds

As far as the other birds mentioned in the article, we have the yellow bellied sapsuckers the article leads off with, as well as the: yellow rumped warblers, killdeer, meadowlarks, blue grosbeaks, indigo buntings, eastern bluebirds, swallows, eagles, ospreys, crows, tufted titmice, mallards, red winged blackbirds, red-headed woodpeckers, hairy woodpeckers, pileated woodpeckers, great blue herons, red tailed hawks, cormorants and seagulls.

And we have the dickcissels, grasshopper sparrows and peregrine falcons, at least on the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC).

Doug Bolt, who leads monthly bird walks at BARC, says he has seen the American bittern mentioned in the article at Lake Artemesia. "However, I think I recall someone seeing one around Greenbelt Lake," Bolt says.

It is only the brown-headed nuthatch that we might be missing.

That would mean that 30 of the 31 birds mentioned or photographed in the article can be seen in the Greenbelt-Beltsville area.

In fact, we have at least 112 more bird species not mentioned in the article: A U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) list of birds in Greenbelt Park lists 139 birds, many of them just occasional to rare visitors to the park or just "flyovers." (http://www.mbr-pwrc. usgs.gov/id/framlst/Nps/grbe.htm). And Peter Blank has recently counted 128 species in Greenbelt woods, 18 of which were not included in the USGS list. This Greenbelt to at least 158, counting the egret which was not on either list.

As far as plants are concerned, while we don't have the cypress swamps mentioned in the article. we have plenty of the shaded woodlands mentioned. In fact, Greenbelt Park constitutes one of the largest tracts of forest inside the Washington Beltway, not to mention the extensive Greenbelt Homes, Inc., city forests, forests on BARC and other government lands outside the Beltway. The Greenbelt Park forest includes Virginia pine and oaks, often with an understory dominated by American holly, mountain laurel or blueberries.

Bees

But we don't have to go to Greenbelt Park to see Mountain Laurel of course – the native plant also grows on "Parcel 1" woods owned by the City of Greenbelt and in yards such as that of Suzanne Batra in Old Greenbelt. in Greenbelt.

Meadowlark

Batra, a bee scientist now retired from BARC, recently gave me a tour of her yard with its native plants and homes for native wild bees. "Greenbelt may have about 200 wild bee species," Batra said. For insects, the Post article whimsically mentioned only two butterflies named for punctuation marks, the comma butterfly and the question mark butterfly, both of which are found in Greenbelt, along with thousands of species of other insects, including beetles, flies, ants, wasps, moths and other butterflies.

Batra suggests that while insects aren't as conspicuous as birds, for example, they rule the world, starting with beetles. She suggests checking out the "gorgeous green tiger beetles" in the woods of Parcel 1.

As for the spring peepers mentioned in the Post article, we have them and at least nine other species of frogs and toads in the Greenbelt-Beltsville area, according to Linda Weir, coordinator for the North American Amphibian Monitoring Program at the USGS Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Laurel.

Turtles

Weir says she expects that this area would also have the red-eared slider turtle pictured in the article, as well as the Eastern painted turtles mentioned. "I'm not sure about spotted turtles, though they are found at Patuxent." We also have species not mentioned such as the box turtle and snapping Snakes? We have black, garter and other snakes.

For mammals, the article mentions beaver, rabbits and deer. As shown on its website, Greenbelt Park has deer, beaver and rabbits as well as 11 other mammals including skunks, flying squirrels and little brown bats. Lutz Raestaetter, who leads bat walks around Greenbelt Lake, said that he has seen at least two species brings the total bird species in of bats flying around the lake. "In all there are eight species in this area out of 47 in the entire country," Lutz says.

> We also have raccoons, red and gray foxes, opossums and various mice and shrews.

> With coyotes in every county in Maryland, we may have to add coyotes as possible mammals in Greenbelt.

Fish

We have all of the fish mentioned in the article: largemouth bass, bluegill, American eel and catfish. In fact, according to Phong Trieu, an environmental planner with the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments in Washington, D.C., we have 21 species of fish in Still Creek which flows mainly in Greenbelt Park, as counted by biologists between 1998 and 2000. There are 31 fish species in Beaverdam Creek and 36 in Indian Creek, both of which are partly Mayor Judith Davis announced the scheduled dates for two upcoming Open Community Forums on public safety concerns and solutions focused on Roosevelt Center, Gardenway and the Spellman Overpass. The forums will be held August 28 at 7:30 at the Greenbriar Terrace Room and September 15 at 11 a.m. in the Municipal Building.

The two forums will be conducted by representatives of the city's Community Relations Advisory Board and the Public Safety and Youth Advisory Committees. Davis emphasized that the focus should be on the general area of the Center and Gardenway and not necessarily the overpass itself. McLaughlin agreed. He said the focus will be a broader look at crime and public safety issues.

Kayaks and canoes that can be carried to the water's edge will still be allowed.

People who need to remove boats from mooring areas can call the WSSC Brighton Dam Visitor's Center at 301-774-9124 to gain temporary access to the ramps. Car and truck access to boat ramps at the Triadelphia Reservoir remains open.

Avrio Systems contractors work to install one of the new video security cameras at the Roosevelt Center. When the work is completed there will be one stationary camera and three with pan/tilt/zoom capability. According to City Manager Mike McLaughlin, the cameras are expected to be operational in about one week.

Windsor Green Celebrates Its 30th Anniversary

by Marat Moore

On August 7 residents of Windsor Green celebrated 30 years of community with food, awards for their numerous volunteers and longtime residents and a Moon-Bounce for the kids. The event, held at the Windsor Green Community Center, was combined with the National Night Out that focuses on crime prevention. Greenbelt police praised the community's neighborhood watch program – now in its 14th year – as a model program.

"We're the eyes and ears of the community and we're working to make Greenbelt a safer place," Randall Evans, head of the mobile watch neighborhood patrols, told the group gathered outside as a soft dusk fell.

Mayor Judith Davis and Councilmembers Ed Putens and Konrad Herling, along with several police officers, participated in the awards ceremony, which honored the 33 households who have lived in Windsor Green more than 25 years and 46 residents who have volunteered for five years or more. Davis read a proclamation passed by the Greenbelt City Council to mark the community's anniversary.

Windsor Green is a 654-unit residential community in Greenbelt East located off Greenbelt

Road across from Eleanor Roosevelt High School at the intersection of Greenbelt Road and Frankfort Drive. The first residents arrived in July 1977. Now Windsor Green – with diverse styles of townhomes – has around 1,700 residents and 52 acres of common area. It also has a very large swimming pool and a wading pool.

Derrick Thompson, a member of the Windsor Green Board of Directors, moved into the development in 1980 and noted that 33 homes have been occupied for more than 25 years.

"We're much more demographically diverse than we were in 1980," he said, adding that he enjoys the physical environment – "the open spaces, playgrounds, trails, tennis courts and the children."

The five-person board of directors has developed a five-year plan for recreation and the grounds. They rely on volunteer committees in the areas of architectural control, finance, land-scaping and grounds and recreation. One project, Thompson said, is an azalea walk that will be accessible to people using wheelchairs. It's due to open this fall. New trails are also being constructed.

Community art will be on display here during the Labor Day Weekend

Artful Afternoon Focus Is On Photos, Jewelry Making

The city's regular Artful Afternoon for September falls during the big Labor Day Festival weekend, from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, September 2 at the Community Center. Featured this month will be a wearable fashions art workshop with Artist-in-Residence Gina Mai Denn who will help participants create festive accessories to show off on the festival midway.

The second feature is the Community Center's version of a "dark ride," allowing people to print their own souvenir photo in the darkroom with artist/instructor David Ashman. Also offered are the Artful Afternoon open studios with artists-in-residence, Art Gallery and historical exhibits. This will be a chance to cool off at the Community Center during the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival while enjoying free community art shows and cool hands-on arts.

Art-Fun

From 1 to 3 p.m. Denn will lead a crafts program to create wearable art. All ages are welcome.

There will also be a workshop led by artist/instructor Ashman where attendees will make a souvenir photo in the Community Center darkroom. No experience is needed for participants to use the black and white negatives that will be provided or bring their own to create the photos. Workshop times are by age with workshops for ages 10 to 13 at 2 and at 3 p.m.; and age 14 to adult at 2:30 and at 3:30 p.m. This "dark ride" is guaranteed not to cause motion sickness!

The Community Center Art Gallery features the exhibit "Formed and Transformed: Works by the Greenbelt Community Center Artists-in-Residence," which will be on display through September 27. Current and former artists-in-residence exhibit work reflecting a benefit of working in a community studio: the inspiration the artists find in one another's works. The show is coordinated by Artist-in-Residence Loraine DiPietro. The Gallery is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sunday whenever the room is not reserved. To confirm access call 301-397-2208.

Reception Sept. 18

A reception for the show will be held on Tuesday, September 18 from 6 to 7 p.m. The reception will be followed at 7:30 p.m. by a Greenbelt Museum lecture on "Cooperative America" with Leta Mach as the speaker.

The historical exhibit space in the Community Center will display the Greenbelt Museum's new show, "Sublime on a Dime: Fashions from the Great Depression to WWII." The show illustrates the ingenuity of Greenbelters in creating style during hard times.

Additional Artful Afternoon activities continuing from 1 to 5 p.m. include an afternoon of open studios and whimsical sculpture displays scattered throughout the Community Center. Tours of the historic 1930s home operated by the Greenbelt Museum at 10-B Crescent Road are available for a nominal fee.

For more information on the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival, including the Community Art show sponsored by Greenbelt Association for Visual Arts (GAVA) and the Community Photo Show, visit http://greenbelt.com/laborday/Schedule.htm.

Artful Afternoons are held the first Sunday of every month from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center, with hands-on art projects, performances, open studios and more.

Auditions Aug. 26-28 For Maryland Chorus

The Maryland Chorus will hold community auditions on August 26 to 28 at the University of Maryland College Park. The 2007-08 season will include Choral Collage, October 7; anniversary programs on December 1 and 2; a spring classics showcase on April 6; and Haydn's "The Creation," on May 2. Rehearsals and concerts take place at the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center. Call 301-405-5571 or email umchoirs@umd.edu for details.

Botanic Garden Talk Highlights Key Plants

On Friday, August 31 from noon to 1 p.m. Dr. W. Hardy Eshbaugh, ethnobotanist, will give a lecture on "Ten Plants that Changed the World." The program will take place in the Conservatory Classroom of the U.S. Botanic Garden. Visitors are invited to join a journey through time considering plants that have changed human life. Domesticated plants have been here for no more than 12,000 years but without them civilization as it is known today would not exist.

Looking to the future, modern science and scientists are transforming some domesticated plants into new forms that hold even greater promise for the future. This program is free. Pre-registration is required and may be made by calling 202-225-1116.

Wildlife Refuge Offers Public Programs

The Patuxent Wildlife Refuge Visitor Center will host two public programs in the coming week. On Sunday, August 26 everyone 10 or older is invited to join in "Earth Walk," a guided hike that focuses on the ecology of the Patuxent River.

Children ages 5 to 7 are invited to "Metamorphosis" on Tuesday, August 28 from 1 to 2:30 p.m., to explore how animals change or "metamorph."

All events are free but reservations are required; call 301-

Camp Fire USA Hosts Greenbelt Youth at Camp

More than 30 Greenbelt youth, ages 5 to 17, spent their summer with Camp Fire USA at Camp WoHeLo. "WoHeLo" was coined by the founder of the Camp Fire organization nearly 100 years ago and stands for Work, Health, Love – the values the organization espouses.

Campers spent six weeks living those values and exploring the five Camp Fire USA Trails: Trail to Knowing Me, Trail to Family and Community, Trail to Creativity, Trail to the Environment and Trail to the Future. Older youth also participated in Points of Light Leadership Training, Teen CERT Training and Camper in Leadership Training.

All campers learned by doing. They camped out in the woods, created art masterpieces, went swimming, visited local natural and historical sites, honed their writing and reading skills, used math in everyday activities, learned about themselves and their communities, developed friendships and became self-reliant in many new situations.

The youth were assisted by teens from Camp Fire USA Teens in Action from Bishop McNamara High School and from "Young Neighbors," a program of the Center for Ministry Development that teaches teens the importance of community service by giving them hands-on experience with programs in their community.

These older teens provided one-on-one contact with the children, providing assistance with reading, building friendships and just being there for them. The children worked side by side with their young neighbors in community service projects at United Communities Against Poverty (UCAP) in Capitol Heights. UCAP provided the host site for the camp and partnered with Camp Fire USA to make sure the children had an amazing summer.

When asked about her camp experience, 16 year old Jessica Smith stated, "This was the best summer of my life. I learned a lot about me and I built my self-confidence.' Smith and her high school friends participated in the camp as Campers in Leadership Training.

Jean Lanier, age 10, commented, "Camp was the best! I liked reading and swim-

Even the teen counselors were impressed by the camp program. Counselor Jaleesa Johnson of Crofton stated, "I came to camp expecting to help the children. Yet what really happened is that they gave me the best summer of my life. They taught me so much and I will really miss the kids." Philip Dupree of Bowie, a recent graduate of Bishop McNamara High School, was not sure about how he would do with the children. But after six weeks of day-to-day time with them, he is now dealing with his own emotions about not seeing them every day.

On the last day, campers begged Rosemary Pezzuto, executive director of Camp Fire USA and Camp WoHeLo camp director, to keep Camp Fire going all year. Pezzuto will work with community leaders in Greenbelt to find funding to make sure the children's request is answered.

Local Teens Complete CERT Training

Some very ambitious teens from Greenbelt and Bowie completed 40 hours of emergency readiness training during their time at Camp Fire USA's Camp WoHeLo this summer. Participating in the special training were Springhill Lake residents Jessica Smith, Antonio Harrison, Patrick Bostic, Onterio Lowery, Kendrick Bostic and Aron Mason.

The Teen Community Emergency Response Team (Teen CERT) program educates students about disaster preparedness for hazards that may impact their area and trains them in basic disaster response skills, such as fire safety, light search and rescue, team organization and disaster medical operations. Using the training learned in the classroom and hands-on exercises, Teen CERT members can assist others in their schools, neighborhood or workplace following an event when professional responders are not immediately available to help. Teen CERT members also are encouraged to support emergency response agencies by taking a more active role in emergency preparedness projects in their community.

The program was sponsored by Camp Fire USA under the direction of Executive Director Rosemary Pezzuto in collaboration with Calvin Hawkins from the Prince George's County Office of Emergency Management. Instructors from local police, fire and medical communities assisted with the training. "It was amazing to watch these young people who had no training in emergency intervention take the information that they learned in the Teen CERT program and apply it to mock emergency situations," said Pezzuto during a recent conversation. The teens used their skills in a real life situation when they helped with a camper who was injured while running. "They knew right away what to do and did it with the highest level of expertise. We are very proud of these young people and their accomplishments."

During their training, the teens George's Fire Academy, learned how to triage injured individuals in an emergency, rescue individuals from a collapsed building, use and maintain fire extinguishers, extinguish fires and administer basic emergency first aid before the arrival of emergency personnel.

During a drill at Elks Camp Barrett in Crownsville, the teens were able to recognize signs of terrorism, evacuate victims from a remote area, display first aid skills and much more.

Camp Fire USA has scheduled attended classes at the Prince a number of Teen CERT courses for the fall and winter.

Want To Help?

Many Greenbelt families and youth enjoy a meaningful relationship with Camp Fire USA where they develop work skills, a helping attitude and love for themselves, others and the environment.

Camp Fire USA provides after-school and out-ofschool time programming. The programs include small groups, camping and environmental education, child care and service-learning, confidence building in younger children and handson, youth-driven leadership experiences for teens and young adults.

Additional community support and participation is always a benefit.

To help sponsor these activities or to participate in any way, call Patuxent Area Council Executive Director Rosemary Pezzuto (301-346-7860) or visit the website www.campfireusapatuxent.org.

New Lighting System Installed At Greenbelt Arts Center

by Joan Jacobs

Not quite two years ago, a Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) supporter proposed to the theater's board of directors a matching fund campaign to raise a total of $16,000 to bring a new lighting system to the theater. The board, aware of the need for the improvement, accepted the offer immediately. On March 31 GAC Treasurer Sandy Irving of Greenbelt announced at the annual membership meeting that the goal had been reached.

replace the venerable but failing lights which had served the theater and its patrons for many years. Donors from as far away as Illinois and Alaska remembered the theater and gave their support. Chief among the donors were Gilbert and Jaylee Mead who for many years lived in Greenbriar and worked at the NASA installation in Greenbelt. After retiring and moving to Washington, D.C., the Meads continued an interest in Greenbelt and its theater.

32 channels, replaces a 24-channel system of which seven channels were no longer functional. The new system was installed in July, just in time for the opening of the musical Oliver! The versatility of the new system was evident from the first performance, adding to the quality of this and all future productions. Oliver! closes its run on Sunday, August 26 after a 2 p.m. performance.

Private Reception

In celebration of this major improvement, GAC is hosting Over 100 donors including a a private reception on Saturday, number of Greenbelt businesses August 25 to thank those who had responded to the need to contributed their time, talents and treasure to make Greenbelt's community theater better than ever.

Next up the Arts Center will offer two shows free to the public over the Labor Day weekend: A short, saucy adaptation of Macbeth and "The Adventures of Rose Red and Snow White," a play for children. Performance times for Macbeth are Friday, August 31 at 8 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, September 1 and 2 at 5 and 7 p.m. Rose Red and Snow White will be performed Saturday and Sunday, September The new equipment, boasting 1 and 2 at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Make plans to spend the holiday weekend at the 53rd Annual Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. A special Labor Day program pull-out is included in this issue. With the program in advance you can check out your favorite games, activities and food choices and make sure you enjoy them all!
