10 ERHS Students Selected For Dinner at White House

by Paula Clinedinst

As part of National Women's History Month, First Lady Michelle Obama spent March 19 spotlighting women who are visionaries and visiting D.C. schools to promote the challenges women have faced and overcome. Later that night, the First Lady honored female students from area schools at a dinner at the White House. Ten of those students were from Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS). Juniors Devin Fendlay, Amber Ferguson, Kaila Lindo, Sindhu Nair and Katie Sheridan and Seniors Megan Cortez, Sara Harris, Natasha Lawson, Emily Moore and Joanna Tooley spent the evening at the White House, dining with not only Obama but also Sheryl Crow, Dominique Dawes, Fran Drescher, Alicia Keys, Phylicia Rashad and many other notable women.

Greenbelt resident Devin Fendlay was lucky enough to sit at the First Lady's table and talk with her. At the same table were actress Alfre Woodard and First Lady of Chicago Maggie Daley.

When the night was over Obama hugged Fendlay, a varsity cheerleader, and said, "don't let them drop you!"

Senior Joanna Tooley, also a Greenbelt resident, was encouraged by Alicia Keys' suggestion that young women get involved in their communities, and urged students to "go to your community centers and volunteer." Tooley was selected based on having shown a steady improvement in her performance throughout her high school career. After two years of poor grades she decided to get involved in some extra-curricular activities and became the manager for both the wrestling and the track team. In addition,

Virginia Beauchamp Celebrated At Festive News Review Lunch

by Mary Moien

On March 20 the staff of the Greenbelt News Review (GNR), along with family and friends, gathered at a luncheon to express their love and appreciation of Virginia Beauchamp, who has served the paper for 50 years and counting. Beauchamp, for many years the senior copy editor, also has served as reporter, mentor, president and member of the paper's board, as well as editor par excellence. In that half century more than 2,600 issues have been published.

The News Review's Eileen

Farnham, board president, presented Beauchamp with a mock front page which highlighted many of her accomplishments over the years. Beauchamp was Greenbelt's 2002 Outstanding Citizen and in 2003 was inducted into the Maryland Women's Hall of Fame for her activities in raising the status of women while a professor at the University of Maryland. In 1999 she was inducted into the Prince George's Women's Hall of Fame.

The framed, full-sized page was prepared by Marat Moore with the assistance of graphic designer Lynn Eppard and luncheon chair Carol Griffith. It saluted Beauchamp for "her gentle but steely strength," "impeccable manners" and "for sharpening our stories with her editorial scalpel."

These virtues were part of a feature on the front page "Ten Reasons We Love Virginia," another was "for championing women's rights." And, finally, "for being Virginia, a gift to us and our world."

City Manager's Proposed Budget Holds the Line on City Tax Rate

by Thomas X. White

As required by the City Charter, City Manager Michael McLaughlin presented his proposed Fiscal Year 2010 city budget to the Greenbelt City Council at its March 23 regular meeting. This charter-required milestone is the midpoint of the city's annual budget process that began in fall 2008 when the manager and departmental staff initiated discussions on budget goals and objectives and submitted proposed departmental budgets. These proposals were then reviewed by the city treasurer and manager with departmental personnel.

The proposed budget for the new fiscal year takes shape in January and gets a final staff review in early March before presentation to council. For the past several years, an additional step includes a January worksession with council where the manager provides a financial forecast for the coming year and a glimpse of what he may be considering as the proposed budget nears completion.

This year, for example, at a January 14 worksession with council, McLaughlin gave an early warning that the global fiscal crisis and severe budget limitations experienced by the county and state would cause some weakness in the city's immediate fiscal outlook and that that weakness could carry over into future fiscal years (GNR, January 22, 2009).

In his current budget message included with the proposed budget, McLaughlin elaborates on those earlier concerns. He describes the difficult economic climate as a key issue influencing the budget.

Manager's Message

His message notes that, "Regionally, problems in the housing market, the crisis in the financial industry and the recession in the overall economy have resulted in significant budget deficits at the state and county levels. While Greenbelt has been negatively affected, the impacts have been comparatively minor compared with the state's and the county's and relatively manageable. While the FY10 budget will be impacted due to these economic conditions, I believe the real problems will occur in 2011 and beyond."

The manager describes a situation as well where Greenbelt real property assessed values, which have been growing at around 10 percent annually over the past five years, are estimated to increase $281.6 million (13.2 percent) and where real property tax revenues will increase by $1.17 million or 8.1 percent. However, this situation will likely change in future years because, in 2009, all real property in Greenbelt will be reassessed.

According to the city manager,

Arts Center Holds Annual Meeting, Plans for 2010

by Karl B. Hille

It's been a rocky year for the Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) but members are looking forward to the next season as one with a lot to love.

"Earlier this year, I thought we were going to be in trouble financially," Treasurer Sandy Irving said at the annual GAC meeting on Sunday, March 29. "We adjusted with some cost-saving measures in our advertising and our marketing. We're in better shape than we would have been."

With plans afoot to celebrate GAC's 30th anniversary this December, members are planning "A Season of Love" for the 30th year, President Norma Ozur said.

A theme of love will run through the entire lineup, including a shortened "Othello" for Shakespeare on the Green, "Dangerous Liaisons," "Bus Stop" and "Moon over Buffalo."

GAC members re-elected Norma Ozur as president, Celeste MacMillan as secretary and Jeff Lesniak and Denise Parker as members-at-large.

Board Members Jeff Landou, Susan Harper and Irving will serve another year as part of their current term.

New Calendar

Due to a change in the GAC bylaws, all currently-elected board members can expect to add six months to their terms. The board unanimously voted to move all future annual meetings back from March to October, beginning in 2010, to coincide with the season year - which starts September 1. Awards will also be moved to the new annual meeting date.

Member Konrad Herling reminded the board that 30 years ago this December the Greenbelt Arts Center held its first show.

THANKS!

The March 21 Empty Bowls event, a joint effort between Greenbelt Community Church and the Greenbelt Pottery Group, was an outstanding success. The effort raised $5,780 for Help by Phone, a food pantry operation in Prince George's County. The support was especially meaningful in this time of economic crisis. All the groups involved wish to thank everyone who participated.

Thank you for your help.

Municipal Access Now Streaming on City Site

The City of Greenbelt is now offering city council meetings and other programming live and on demand at www.greenbeltmd.gov. This new initiative, called video streaming, is provided by Granicus, Inc., a provider of government webcasting and public meeting technology. It expands the reach of public meetings beyond cable and FiOS customers to anyone who can access the internet.

Residents can now choose a convenient time to watch city council meetings, informational videos on city services, Labor Day programming and series such as "Ask the Expert" by accessing the City's On-Demand video library. Granicus software and storage capability will enable the city to upload some of its more popular programming to the site in the near future.

City council meetings are cross-referenced by agenda items so it is easy for viewers to access a portion of a meeting. Minutes of meetings also are attached to the video when they become available, providing a convenient way to stay informed on the issues.

Annual Egg Hunt And Children's Crafts

On Saturday, April 4 from 10 a.m. to noon, the College Park Arts Exchange will sponsor children's crafts at the annual College Park egg hunt. The egg hunt will be held at the Youth and Family Services Center at 4912 Nantucket (near the corner of Edgewood and Rhode Island Avenue). This free activity is ideal for children of all ages.

Public Hearing Scheduled April 13 on Bus Routes

by Melissa Ehrenreich

Metrobus is proposing various service changes in the form of route eliminations, modifications and frequency reductions to help close a $34 million budget gap for its 2010 fiscal year operating budget.

According to reports from The Washington Post this week, the identified cuts fall disproportionately on services in Prince George's County. For residents in Greenbelt three specific proposed service changes have a direct impact on accessibility to public transit.

Metro has proposed eliminating the following routes: C7, C9 (Greenbelt to Glenmont) serving Greenbelt Metro Station, Federal Courthouse, Capital Office Park, Beltsville Industrial Center (C7), Centerpark Office Park (C7), Beltway Plaza (C9), Seven Springs Village (C9), Cherry Hill Park Campground (C9), Westfarm Technology Park (C7), Montgomery Office Park (C7), Verizon-Chesapeake Complex (C7), Tamarack (C7), Colesville, Glenmont Metro Station.

R3 (Greenbelt to Fort Totten) serving Greenbelt Metro Station, Beltway Plaza, Archives II, Prince George's Plaza Metro Station, Lewisdale, Fort Totten Metro Station.

Metro has also proposed modifying service by eliminating segments of services to the C2/C4 lines (Greenbelt to Twinbrook); on C4 the segment would be from Wheaton west to Twinbrook and on C2 from Wheaton west through the garages.

By law Metro is required to conduct public hearings to service changes and has scheduled a local hearing for Monday, April 13 at 6:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, 6201 Belcrest Road in Hyattsville, located close to the Prince George's Plaza Metro Station. A full list of proposed route changes may be found online at http://www.wmata.com/about_metro/news/Notice_of_Public_hearing.pdf.

The Transit Riders United of Greenbelt (TRU-Greenbelt) will speak out in favor of the need and importance of access to public transportation.

For more information about the upcoming hearing join the TRU-Greenbelt listserv by sending a blank email to TRU-Greenbelt-subscribe@yahoogroups.com or call Melissa Ann Ehrenreich at 202-351-0470.

Smith Center Offers Deaf/Hearing Event

The Flying Words Project will be presented on Tuesday, April 7 at 5:30 p.m. in the Laboratory Theatre of the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center. Deaf American Sign Language (ASL) poet Peter Cook presents three-dimensional imagery while collaborator Kenny Lerner's spoken words allow the hearing in the audience to literally see the ASL image and become lost in the movement. Together they create a moving tapestry uniquely accessible to both hearing and deaf audiences. This event is free.

Cleaning Up Family Issues

Sunshine Cleaning, opening this week in Old Greenbelt, is the story of two sisters who go into business together cleaning up crime scenes. While helping their clients deal with death and its aftermath, they are finally able to resolve their own issues about losing their mother.

Amy Adams (last seen here in Doubt) and Emily Blunt star as sisters Rose and Norah. Alan Arkin provides crotchety comic relief as Rose and Norah's dad and Steve Zahn plays the now-married, former football star who former cheerleader Rose is stuck in an affair with. Nominated for the Grand Jury prize at Sundance, this film is rated R for language, nudity and disturbing images; runtime is 91 minutes.

Star Parties Help Open Observatory

At the end of Northway – some 400 years after Galileo first pointed a telescope at the heavens and documented lunar craters and the satellites of Jupiter – Greenbelt will dedicate its own City Observatory at 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 4. The event is part of a worldwide commemoration of Galileo's discoveries.

Gifts of Montgomery College with help from the city, many club members and other sponsors, the 10-foot observatory dome houses the 14-inch Mead Memorial Schmidt-Cassegrain telescope. Regular and special public programs will be held at the site, considered the only one in Greenbelt with no ambient light.

Following the dedication ceremony with city officials and amateur area astronomers, Astronomical Society of Greenbelt (ASG) members will display their telescopes and discuss the ways of amateur astronomy with one and all. An astronomical telescope, rebuilt by an ASG member, will be raffled off.

Star parties, open to all, will be held at Northway Field on Saturday and Sunday evenings (weather permitting). A variety of telescopes will be set up from about 7:30 p.m. Both the moon and Saturn are expected to be spectacular.

Founded in 1982, the ASG counts 55 members.

Climate Action Talk On Transition Towns

The next meeting of the Greenbelt Climate Action Network at the Greenbelt Community Center on Tuesday, April 7 at 7:30 p.m. will feature guest speaker Larry Chang of "Ecology DC." Attendees will be invited to collaborate in formulating plans to reduce dependence on fossil fuels and build local resilience.

Chang is involved with Transition Towns, an emerging and evolving approach that enables communities to develop a vision of a more resilient, sustainable future that responds to the interrelated peak-oil and climate change problems and fosters an enhanced quality of life. In part Transition Towns achieve goals by promoting the use of locally grown, organic food, locally produced products and services and by expanding local production and use of renewable energy resources.

A leader and active participant in the social justice community, Chang was granted political asylum in the U.S. in 2004. He currently lives in Washington, D.C., where he continues to educate and work for social justice. In June 2008 Chang founded Ecology DC to promote local sustainability. He is in the process of implementing Transition processes in the greater Washington area.

Obituaries

Katherine M. Gibson

Katherine M. Gibson (Kathy), age 63, of Hillside Road, died unexpectedly on Sunday, March 22, 2009, at Doctors Hospital in Lanham.

Kathy was born and raised in Bladensburg about eight miles from Greenbelt. She attended St. Ambrose grade school in Cheverly and was in the first graduating class from Elizabeth Seton High School in Bladensburg in 1963. She was a majorette for the American Legion Auxiliary in Riverdale and, while in high school, she sang in the Glee Club all four years. After graduating from Seton, she worked for National Geographic in Gaithersburg and loved driving her white Camaro to and from work.

Kathy met her future husband, Jay Gibson, through some friends while visiting in Southern Maryland. They were married a year later and they enjoyed raising their son Jamie and their daughter Susan Lynne in Greenbelt. They had a wonderful and fulfilling life together and would have celebrated their 41st wedding anniversary on June 14, 2009.

She worked at National Geographic for about 10 years before quitting to stay home after her second child was born in 1973. For about 10 years while her son and daughter attended St. Hugh's grade school, she was responsible for a variety of activities from playground duty to shopping for and coordinating monthly luncheons for the students in Grenoble Hall. For several years, Kathy volunteered at the St. Hugh's rectory to count and record the weekly donations in the church envelopes. Kathy went back to work in 1984 at Kiplinger's Mail Section, which was later bought out by Mail Bag and from which she finally retired on December 26, 2008.

Kathy loved animals, especially dogs and manatees – she actually adopted and had been supporting for over 10 years a manatee named Paddy Doyle in Blue Springs, Fla.

She may have loved animals but she treasured her family and enjoyed spending time with them and watching them grow. Kathy always looked forward to shopping especially with her daughter Sue for gifts for the three grandchildren (Devin, Nathaniel and Katherine Lynne) for holidays and birthdays and with her sisters for their annual outing to the Sugarloaf Craft Show.

Kathy would have been so pleased with the outpouring of support and love for her family at this difficult time.

Survivors include her husband of over 40 years, Joseph Walter (Jay); a son, James Francis Gibson of Greenbelt; a daughter, Susan Lynne Gibson (Mark) Jones of Bowie; three grandchildren, Devin Gibson of Greenbelt and Nathaniel and Katherine Lynne Jones of Bowie; two sisters, Jacqueline Gasch of Germantown and Barbara Hamilton of Greenbelt; two sisters-in-law from Southern Maryland, Barbara G. (George) McWilliams and Dorothy G. Bell; a brother-in-law from Southern Maryland, Francis (Beverly) Gibson and numerous nieces and nephews.

Father Walter Tappe officiated at a funeral mass at St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church on Thursday, March 26. Interment was at Sacred Heart Cemetery in Bushwood, Md.

Expressions of sympathy may be made in Kathy's name to the American Diabetes Assn. at P.O. Box 11454, Alexandria, VA 22312; the American Heart Assn., P.O. Box 5216, Glen Allen, VA 23058; or to one's favorite charity.

The commemorative page noted that when Beauchamp was inducted into the Maryland Women's Hall of Fame, she was cited for three virtues that contributed to her success: "total selflessness in working for the good of others, a consistently positive attitude and her dogged persistence."

Mayor Judith Davis and Councilmembers Leta Mach and Konrad Herling represented the city at the luncheon, held at Sir Walter Raleigh Inn. Together they presented Beauchamp with a city proclamation, honoring her for her service to the city. The city issued the proclamation "to recognize and thank her for extraordinary service and dedication to the Greenbelt community as editor and reporter for the Greenbelt News Review."

Mach commented that joining the staff of the GNR was the first volunteer activity that she undertook when moving to Greenbelt. She learned much from Beauchamp and recalled that Beauchamp welcomed her stating "not many people walk in and volunteer." Herling added his sentiments to the occasion, "we are so incredibly fortunate not only because Virginia Beauchamp has lived in Greenbelt but because she has given so much to make our great community even greater We are all so glad that we have been the beneficiaries of Virginia Beauchamp, whose contributions have been and continue to be priceless."

A number of others took the opportunity to speak, including Harry Zubkoff who started volunteering at the paper in 1949 and became editor the next year. He mused over the history of the paper and said that he liked to take credit for all the good people who came on board during those years. They included Al and Elaine Skolnik and of course, Beauchamp. He laughed about the old manual typewriters that were in use in his day – staff called back that they are still in the newspaper office.

At the head table sat decades of GNR experience. Putting out the News Review is a journalistic marathon in which two women, during their decades at the paper, have reached the level of legend – Beauchamp, who came to the paper in 1957, and Skolnik who by then had already been writing at the paper for a few years. Together they have volunteered 104 years to the nation's longest-running cooperative newspaper.

Add in the others at the head table – Mary Lou Williamson, current editor, Zubkoff and Dorothy White – and they represent almost two centuries of journalistic experience. Skolnik credits Beauchamp's excellence in editing the major stories each week as a significant contribution to the paper's outstanding reputation.

Skolnik called Beauchamp her role model. "I learned so much from Virginia," she said. "She can cover any news beat and any position at the paper. She's done everything and done it so well. What's special about Beauchamp is that her interest in history is reflected in much of what she writes and is reflected in the paper itself." Skolnik continued, "Virginia also has been a calming influence during debates over ideas or stories at the News Review. She could always find the common ground and help us move forward."

Beauchamp, herself, had the final word. She reflected on her very first years, pointing to a 50-year old story about Greenbelt Homes and the fight to allow dogs to stay in the co-operative. She stated, "You don't stay at a volunteer job unless you like it. There have been wonderful friendships and associations." She hopes to continue at the paper, saying that when she edits on Tuesdays, "My brain still seems to work and I'm grateful for that."

In Loving Memory of Rosey
May 3, 1995 – March 11, 2009

Rosey was a lifelong Greenbelter. She and her brother Smokey were born on Plateau Place before moving to Ridge Road at 6 weeks old. She brought joy and smiles to everyone that knew her. To know her truly was to love her. She developed cancer in 2006. Through surgery, chemotherapy, and lots of love, we were blessed to get to spend almost 3 more years with her.

I would like to thank the entire staff at APAW Hospital & Wellness Center on Good Luck Road for the outstanding and compassionate care she received there. Special thanks go out to Dr. Lori Giuffré, Maurice, Elita and Lee. More thanks go to the staff of Atlantic Veterinary Internal Medicine in Annapolis, Md. Special thanks go out to Dr. Janet Peterson and the chemotherapy technicians who took such wonderful care of her. Everyone at APAW and AVIM knew Rosey by name. She always rewarded them with a big "smile" and a wagging tail to let them know that, despite everything, she was happy to see them.

We are heartbroken that she is no longer with us, but her fighting spirit and gentle nature will live on forever in our memories.

Rosey – We miss you and love you very much. Love, Jessica and Smokey

A relatively small but dedicated group of Greenbelters met in Roosevelt Center last Saturday night, March 28 to participate in Earth Hour 2009. Here in Greenbelt, the Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability sponsored a walk around the center of town, joining its effort with that of many towns throughout the country.

Armed with flashlights, several dozen people strolled out of the Center, where the theater marquee was dark, and toward the Youth Center. Some people pushed strollers and others held hands in the dark. But all of the floodlights by the pool were on, possibly due to the safety issue of having a full pool.

Mayor Judith Davis and Councilmembers Konrad Herling and Leta Mach were among the walkers. Whatever the overall impact, Greenbelt was joining the darkened Eiffel Tower and Washington Cathedral in Earth Hour 2009.

A. Foster's "Women's Work" Played to a Packed Theater

by Megan Gustafson

As her MFA thesis concert "Women's Work and Other Stories" drew to a close last Saturday night, Angella Foster explained that the story told through dance, music and monologue during the one-hour performance was "not exactly the story I lived," but rather, "the story I chose." It was, she said, "Kentucky the way I like to remember it."

The multi-faceted show performed before a packed theater audience at Maryland's Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center focused on the various women in Foster's life and how they lived and survived in Kentucky and "made the best of few choices."

Her wrenching description of her pain after losing her mother at a young age – and the peace she ultimately comes to – gave the performance an element of emotional richness and provided the show's ending with a satisfying sense of closure.

As young women in simple country-style dresses danced lyrically in bare feet, Foster herself appeared in various places on the stage – which was decorated sparsely with patches of grass, a hanging quilt and a larger container of soil.

She was dressed like the other dancers but seemed to stay on the periphery as the young women danced, observing the performance along with the audience and, at times, dancing a separate routine alongside them.

Layered throughout the dancing were instrumental and vocal music pieces and Foster's monologues – stories about her family – mainly her great-grandmother, grandmother and mother – her childhood and scenes from her past.

Foster said she and her mother didn't get along all or most of the time but they "understood each other," and both laughed "embarrassingly loud" at movies.

Her mother once bought her a plaid polyester dress that Foster called "a rainbow of embarrassment." She refused to wear it, Foster recalled, saying that she "wanted so many things that [her mother] just couldn't provide and I wish I didn't."

Her words were thick with emotion as she detailed the feelings she had as a 14-year-old trying to comprehend the loss of her mother, who, according to the monologue, died by walking in front of a train in the middle of the night when Foster was away at summer camp.

Foster said she felt that if she had been there, her mother would not have died. Those feelings, Foster said, gave her "some kind of comfort," that taking some blame allowed her to feel a sense of control.

She continued, "I thought that way for years. I can't say it helped."

She ultimately arrived at a sense of peace about her mother's death, explaining that her mother couldn't tell the difference between the "reality at her fingertips and the waking nightmares that haunted her, pursued her."

"In this story in Kentucky", Foster concluded, "I imagine that we can wash – wash away that darkness . . ."

When the performance ended, the audience erupted into applause, with some people rising to their feet.

Reception Sunday For New Café Shows

The New Deal Café will host a reception this Sunday, April 5 from 7 to 9 p.m. for the two artists whose shows are now hanging at the Café. Everyone is invited to come, view the shows, meet the artists, enjoy hors d'oeuvres, drinks and the sounds of "The Michael Grasso Jazz Trio." The reception is free.

In the front room is "Project: Be Journey" by Tom Baker. His collage is a collaborative endeavor of the whole community. Baker began collecting small pieces made by many different people that include a word surrounded by significant images. He arranges the pieces in thoughtful ways, lending new meanings and ideas each time.

In the Café's back room, Cheryl Monk presents an array of art quilts. Monk creates her own individual and expressive designs with recurring themes such as women of color, symbols of life, Egypt and the Caribbean. Her quilting has been shown in Texas and California. Monk quilts in her home in Bowie and says the whole house is her studio.

This event is produced by the New Deal Café and sponsored by the Friends of New Deal Café with a supporting grant from the Greenbelt Community Foundation.

He suggested they find a way this year to commemorate the anniversary.

"I remember it was November 5, 1979, that I and others presented plans to the Greenbelt City Council to create an arts center for the city," he said. The first show was held December 8, 1979.

Stay tuned this season as "Amadeus" wraps up its run this weekend, followed by a Celtic Concert in April. Then the Comic Genius Connection will feature two plays – Tom Stoppard's "The Real Inspector Hound" and Christopher Durang's "For Whom the Southern Belle Tolls."

These will be followed in order by "Remember Me," "A Company of Strangers," "Catch 22" by the Out of the Black Box Theatre Company, "The Tempest" by Thunderous Productions and "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown," directed by Jeff Lesniak.

In addition, Penny Martin will see her original musical "The Devil's Christmas Carol" directed by Betsy Marks Delaney, during the Capital Fringe Festival in July and is planning a local playwrights' competition for 2010.

Prizes were also announced for the Arts Center raffle, including a seven-day Alaska cruise, courtesy of Ambassador Cruises, which was won by Priscilla Struthers, and a $50 gift certificate donated by the Co-op Grocery that went to Mike Mullaney.

the scenario at that time is for little or no increase and a possibility of a decline in assessed values. "These [declining] values will be the values that drive the budgets for the next three years, Fiscal Years 2011, 2012 and 2013, and, if they are flat or decreased, the city will face severe fiscal restraints and difficult choices."

Proposed Expenditures

The proposed FY10 expenditure budget is $25,355,600, an increase of $474,500 or 1.9 percent over the adopted Fiscal Year 2009 budget. The proposed increase in expenditures is markedly down from prior year increases (Fiscal Years 2007, 08 and 09) that were in the $1.5 million range.

The most notable increase on the expenditure side occurs in the Public Safety budget, which would increase by $552,500, most of which would fund the third year of the Collective Bargaining Agreement between the city and the Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police Lodge. This agreement calls for a 6 percent increase in pay scale and performance pay for police officers.

The next largest increase in expenditures is in the Recreation and Parks Department with nominal increases across all 10 programmatic sections of the department, totaling $210,000.

The General Government budget would increase by $100,000, most of it occurring in the Finance and Administration area and to fund the upcoming council election in November 2009.

The Public Works and Social Services departments show only slight increases in their proposed budgets over the adopted FY09 allocations, just over $70,000 for Public Works and just under $50,000 for Social Services.

Finally, three areas of expenditures show decreases in budgeted amounts for FY10: the miscellaneous category is down about $10,000; non-departmental expenditures are budgeted down by $120,000, mainly reflecting only a 1 percent increase in pay and performance pay for classified employees (except police officers); and fund transfers are down by $308,400, mainly due to expected reduced transfers relating to the city's 2001 Bond Fund.

Proposed Revenues

Total revenue proposed for FY10 is $25,694,600, which is $685,600 or 2.7 percent more than the adopted FY09 budget (however, $1,246,800 more than the estimated actual city revenue in FY09). The proposed budget for FY10 calls for no increase in the current city tax rate of $0.786 cents per $100 of assessed value.

The estimated revenue increase is mainly due to added property tax revenues resulting from the continuing phase-in of property assessments made three years ago. The manager's budget estimates an increase of $755,600 for taxes over the budgeted amount in FY09 ($1,360,000 over the estimated actual taxes for FY09).

The taxes category includes real property, personal property and income taxes levied on Greenbelt residents, businesses and property owners. The increase proposed in tax revenue has to be mainly derived from the residential property tax portion because McLaughlin notes that corporate property taxes and income tax revenues are both down from prior years due to the current condition of the economy.

Other than the taxes category, other sources of revenue used to fund city programs are either down or flat compared with the adopted FY09 budget amounts. Such other sources include licenses and permits, revenues from other agencies, service charges, fines and forfeitures and miscellaneous revenue.

Possible Reductions

McLaughlin noted in his presentation that the approach used in formulating the proposed budget was to look for savings to prepare for the bleak financial forecast. He also noted that at the January 14 worksession, council had requested a list of reductions in the range of 1 percent, 3 percent and 5 percent. The proposed budget document includes suggested deletions to achieve 1 and 3 percent reductions in the FY10 budget. To achieve a 1 percent decrease McLaughlin proposes cutting $120,000 for the Computer Aided Dispatch (CAD) system for the police department, dropping the Capital Projects Manager ($70,000) and reducing costs for the I-Net system ($25,000) and dropping the police cadet position.

To achieve a 3 percent reduction, suggestions include: Beltway Plaza police overtime ($60,000) and no Public Information position ($30,000), dismantling the contract Postal Unit ($20,000) and deleting the paint and carpet allowance ($15,000). Other suggestions are to delete funds for the Recreation Department e-brochure ($23,000), to lower engineering costs in Community Development ($15,000) and to decrease costs in traffic control ($7,000) and street base repair ($10,000).

A further reduction of $200,000 in the budget for the 1 percent cost of living and performance pay for non-police officer employees was proposed and a reduction of $122,700 transfer to the 2001 Bond Fund for the theater renovation. The city manager did not list suggested dollar reductions to achieve a 5 percent decrease in the budget, indicating that looking for savings to achieve that level would require review of too many individual line items in the proposed budget or otherwise find programs to cut that would total approximately $500,000 worth of reductions.

Budget Hearings

Council has scheduled several worksessions to review and discuss the various sections of the budget. The first worksession was scheduled for Monday, March 30 for overview of the Budget, Revenues and General Government. On Wednesday, April 1 the Public Safety Budget was to be reviewed.

The remaining schedule includes Social Services on Monday, April 6; Planning & Community Development on Wednesday, April 15; and contribution groups on Wednesday, April 22.

The first public hearing on the budget is scheduled for Monday, April 27 and additional worksessions for Miscellaneous, Other Funds & Capital Projects for Wednesday, April 29; Public Works on Monday, May 4; Recreation on Wednesday, May 6; Green Ridge House on Wednesday, May 13; and a final budget review worksession on Monday, May 18.

A second public hearing is scheduled for Tuesday, May 26. Final adoption of the budget by council should occur at the first regular council meeting in June.

Printed versions of the proposed budget should be available at the city office by the week of March 30. The budget itself and associated materials are available online at www.greenbeltmd.gov.

she is a Spanish translator for ERHS and feels that, had she not gotten active in these and other activities and clubs, her path would have been a much different one.

Senior Megan Cortez, who works in Principal Reginald McNeill's office, thought she "had done something wrong" when McNeill called her into his office to tell her she had been selected to attend the First Lady's dinner. Cortez said that although the students were not allowed to have their pictures taken with Obama, the First Lady hugged each of them at the end of the evening and congratulated them on their achievements.

"People tend to forget that women are strong," said Cortez, "and we have a purpose and should never give up on our dreams." She said that this was the message all of the speakers wanted to convey at the event. Fendlay, who is hoping to get a scholarship to an Ivy League college and possibly study medicine, echoes this and feels that women's history is important because it highlights "how much we can do."

The very excited young women pose for a photo at the school before traveling to the White House dinner.
