2011 City Budget Presented; New Police Officers Installed

by James Giese

The city manager's presentation of his proposed city budget for the upcoming fiscal year, the installation of two new police officers, the purchase of a dump truck, resolution of a street right-of-way problem in Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) and presentations of proclamations and awards by the mayor were the main events at the Greenbelt City Council meeting on April 12. The seven members, all present, attended to the routine business of the city. Looking on were two Boy Scouts from Troop 214 who probably took another step toward earning a merit badge.

City Manager Michael McLaughlin presented his proposed

Fiscal Year 2011 budget to council. The budget calls for a 0.4 percent increase in the city's tax rate, a slight reduction in city staffing through attrition and a five percent increase in city refuse fees and in the cost of passes to the Aquatic and Fitness Center. City employees would not get a cost of living increase if council approves McLaughlin's proposal, although most will receive performance pay increases and the city would reduce employees deferred compensation. The end result is total revenues of $25.2 million vs. total expenditures of $24.9 million with the

by Kyle Jones

Volunteers picked up trash along Kenilworth Ave.

More than 100 volunteers came out to four Greenbelt sites Saturday morning for the Alice Ferguson Foundation's 22nd Annual Potomac River Watershed Cleanup.

The regional event hosted 490 cleanup locations throughout Maryland, Washington, D.C., and Virginia, to clear trash from the areas surrounding the Potomac River.

And much of what was found in Greenbelt wasn't ordinary trash.

"At first, I didn't understand how it got there," said Cliff Ibeh, a senior volunteering with the Eleanor Roosevelt National Honor Society. Ibeh helped

Devastating Fire Destroys Three Greenbelt East Townhouses

by James Giese

A devastating two-alarm fire in the 7800 block of Jacobs Drive in Greenbelt's Windsor Green destroyed three townhouses and damaged at least two others. As many as 20 people, including two infants, were forced to evacuate their homes.

First response occurred at approximately 1:45 a.m. on Thursday, April 8 following multiple 911 telephone calls. Members of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Company 35, were first on the scene. They found flames shooting up the rear wall of an end unit, according to the Prince George's Fire Department.

The fire involved a row of five, two-story townhouses with terrace levels and described as of "lightweight construction and non-sprinklered," according to Mark Brady, County Fire Department spokesperson. While the cause of the fire has not been determined, it appears to have originated in one of the rear wooden decks.

According to Gazette.Net, the online edition for the Gazette Newspapers, Brady said the fire extended up the rear wall and into the attic, bypassing the interior smoke alarms.

Firefighters mounted an aggressive interior attack, according to Brady, stretching hoselines into the attached residence in hopes of cutting off the quick-moving fire.

When a second alarm was sounded, a Fire Task Force brought additional resources to the scene — about 70 firefighters and paramedics aboard 17 pieces of apparatus. However, the fire continued to grow in intensity, extending both horizontally and vertically.

Decks Collapsed

When the wooden decks attached to the rear of the structure collapsed, on-scene fire incident commanders believed the situation indicated a weakening structural integrity, Brady said. All firefighters were ordered to evacuate the structure and take a defensive position on the exterior.

Within 10 minutes a significant collapse occurred in one of the townhouses. "Without a doubt, that would have caused serious injury or possible fatal injuries to our firefighters," Brady told ABC

Donations For Fire Victims

The Windsor Green Home Owners Association is collecting gift cards and monetary donations on behalf of the families who lost their homes. All donations should be sent or dropped off at their main office at 7474 Frankfort Drive, Greenbelt.

7 News.

Greenbelter Jim Davis, a member of the Branchville Fire Department, reported that the department sent Engine 811 with a crew of five firefighters to the scene. They made entry into the end unit and worked with other units to knock down the fire in the rear of the dwelling.

The crew "then moved their attack line out of the end unit and into the attached exposure on the Delta side," Davis reported online. The crew was faced with heavy fire conditions at the front door. Working with another crew and hand line, they were able to push the fire back and make entry.

The fire sent flames shooting high above the building. It was reported that smoke from the fire brought visibility down to zero on Greenbelt Road. All area news channels showed pictures of the buildings in flames.

Fortunately, no residents were injured. One firefighter suffered an injured knee.

A neighbor, Amelia Routh, appeared on ABC 7 News. "It's a blessing that nobody got hurt. It

Borgwardt Funeral Home To Celebrate 25 Years

by Vicki Kriz

The Donald V. Borgwardt Funeral Home, in nearby Beltsville, is celebrating its 25th anniversary in operation. The area funeral home organizes about 250 funerals a year, said director Donald Borgwardt, many of them for Greenbelt residents.

"We probably do as much business over [in Greenbelt] as we do in Beltsville," Borgwardt said.

Because of their close proximity to the city, the Borgwardt Funeral Home often works with Greenbelt's Department of Public Works to provide replacement markers or vases for gravesites at Greenbelt Cemetery.

Borgwardt first became interested in the funeral service industry in his early twenties when a friend became a funeral director.

"I saw a profession where you help people at the hardest time of their lives," he said.

In 1966 Borgwardt graduated from the American Academy McAllister Institute of Funeral Service and served apprenticeships at the Ritchie Brothers Funeral Home in Upper Marlboro and the Huntemann Funeral

EditorialThere Is No "They"

They really ought to. . . Yes, indeed they should. Trouble is, "they" is us – you, me, her, her, him, him and him over there.

Just in the past week any number of important Greenbelt events occurred and were not able to be covered in the News Review and others only received superficial coverage that could have used more in-depth treatment.

A huge challenge for a volunteer-produced community newspaper is recruiting and keeping reporters to cover local news. Attrition is a reality, too, as stalwarts move on for one reason or another. Students, who are sometimes available to do local news stories, have equally often been unavailable or pre-occupied with their studies understandably taking precedence.

If this paper is to continue as a free, local, community paper by and for Greenbelters, the News Review must add to its staff of regular community reporters . . . people willing and able to write an account of council meetings, budget meetings, "hot/hard" news like the fire and well-attended community events like those that kept Greenbelt busy Saturday and filled the Roosevelt Center parking lot Sunday. There really is not "somebody else" to do it.

Are you one of the reporters we need . . . or do you know somebody who needs just a nudge to be that person?

Barely April Foolin'

Kudos to the GNR staff for the fun April Fool's page in the April 1 issue.

However, the brief story on City Council approval of a Geothermal Plant at the Northway Fields is not that far from reality or practicality. In Greenbelt's early history that area was the New Town's landfill and repository of Greenbelt's waste (all of it, there was no recycling in those days).

Suggestions have been made to city officials to assess whether there may be methane gas deposits at the site that may be tapped for energy. Similar projects are either being considered or underway at former landfills. In Maryland there are nine operational projects and 11 candidate sites for methane gas recovery for energy. (www.epa.gov/landfill/)

More to the topic of geothermal possibilities at the site – probably not for all of Greenbelt but an evaluation of geothermal possibilities for the expanse of the Northway fields, in combination with heat exchangers, may indeed be a practical approach for harvesting renewable geothermal energy in that neighborhood.

Appreciating Openness

I attended a recent community meeting hosted by Rosalind Johnson and I must praise its openness. (School Board member Johnson represents the school district that includes Greenbelt.)

Attending were school board members Johnson and Donna Hathaway Beck, as well as Superintendent Dr. Hite and quite a few other staff members.

They listened to questions about homework, about absent teachers, about dangerous schools, about good schools, about schools that don't like volunteers and about new buildings (the new GMS middle school is stuck in permits, the new guess for the start date is 30 to 45 days).

While they didn't have answers to everything, they treated every question with respect and did not brush off any complaints. They also did have staff on hand to address more specific worries – one woman wanted to transfer her son away from DuVal and didn't know what else she could do. They had someone in the back go over the other choice programs and point out that DuVal had a new principal too.

So while the budget is cut and the schools are not perfect, I am pleased that we are being treated as part of the process and not an

Letters to the EditorTHANKS!

The Greenbelt Recreation Department would like to thank everyone who joined us on Saturday, April 10 for a benefit concert to support the city's after-school arts programs at Springhill Lake Elementary School (SHLES). About 70 people participated in this wonderful evening of dance, art and music, including Mayor Judith Davis and Councilmembers Leta Mach and Konrad Herling. The event raised $858, which will enable us to underwrite art classes for 71 students during the 2010/2011 school year.

Special thanks to the multi-talented event organizers April Stace Vega and Anne Gardner, who also performed at the concert and donated prizes for the silent auction. Thanks to contributing performer Angella Foster and artists Lucy Dirksen, Mea Rhee and Jeri Holloway for donating their beautiful work to the silent auction. Thanks to Pastor Dan Hamlin, Marsha Voigt and the Greenbelt Community Church for so graciously hosting the event. Thanks to Chris Cherry for serving as Master of Ceremonies and to Rebecca Sutfin for welcoming visitors at the door.

Thanks also to Principal Natasha Jenkins, Trina Core and the SHLES PTA and the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education for their support of the after-school arts programs.

"The World According to Monsanto" is the work of award-winning French filmmaker Marie-Monique Robin who for three years and on four continents investigated Monsanto and its corporate influence on government and technology. Combining secret documents with accounts by victims, scientists and policy makers, she shows misleading reports, pressure tactics, collusion and attempted corruption.

The film shows the company tricking governments into allowing dangerous genetically modified foods into the food supply with Monsanto in charge of determining if they're safe. The film highlights the company's production of substances including PCBs, pesticides and genetically modified organisms which have led to negative impacts on human health, environment and the economy world wide.

Following the film a discussion will be led by Michel Cavigelli and Jude Maul, soil biologists at USDA who have been working in the field of sustainable agriculture for many years.

Welcome Spring At Greenbelt Museum

The Greenbelt Museum will host a special "Welcome Spring" event on Sunday, April 18 from 1 to 5 p.m. Visitors will have a chance to tour the museum house for free and kids can plant a seed or create a floral May basket to take home. The museum's next exhibition will focus on Victory gardens and Greenbelt gardening history.

Greenbelt was a gardening city from the very beginning, with allotment gardens an integral part of the city plan. Victory gardens were an important part of the home-front effort during World War II and have become popular again today.

As part of the garden exhibition, the Greenbelt Museum is planting a period-appropriate Victory Garden at the Museum house. This Sunday will be a chance for visitors to get a sneak peek at the garden site.

Admission and all activities are free. This event will take place rain or shine.

balance going to reinforce the city's reserves, in line with council policy. More details on the draft budget will be provided in next week's News Review.

Dump Truck

Controversy, such as it was, occurred mostly over the purchase of a new small dump truck. Director of Public Works Ken Hall proposed using a bid price obtained by the City of Alexandria for a Ford F-450 crew cab 4x4 with a nine foot snow plow, salt spreader and radio for $57,445. The new truck is to replace a 1½ ton dump truck scheduled for replacement this year that suffered a blown transmission during one of the winter's snow events. Because it was to be replaced, the city did not repair it.

Councilmember Emmett Jordan asked why the purchase couldn't be made from a Maryland dealer instead of one in Vienna. Hall explained that it was cheaper to use a bid of a larger jurisdiction with a quantity purchase than to prepare a city bid for a single truck. The Alexandria bid, which the city is able to utilize through the Council of Governments, was the best available.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts took exception to the added cost to purchase a four-wheel drive vehicle. The past snow was an unusual occurrence, he thought, and otherwise a two-wheel drive truck would do just as well and use less fuel. He also objected to buying another diesel truck, because he considers it to be a dirty fuel. Hall said that efforts were made to purchase a hybrid truck but such a truck could not be certified for snow plowing. Roberts agreed that the hybrid transmissions were not adequate for heavy duty. However, based upon his experience in private business repairing trucks, he felt that a two-wheel drive would be adequate. Hall disagreed, noting his crews found them to not be sufficient for heavy snows. All the other city small trucks are two-wheel drives.

Councilmember Edward Putens supported Roberts on this issue but the council authorized the recommended purchase by a five-to-two vote.

Right-of-way Issue

By consent at the beginning of the meeting, council formally directed staff to draw up the necessary documents to vacate city street rights-of-way that were poorly established by the federal government after homes were built and now have been determined to run through GHI homes and yards. At an earlier work-session council chose to vacate unneeded rights-of-way in accordance with Option 2 that would leave sufficient rights-of-way to include utility poles. Residents will be permitted to maintain existing fences and hedges within the city's rights-of-way until they are dismantled or become in disrepair.

Oaths and Proclamations

Jason Cressman and Donald Unger were sworn in as new city police officers. Both are undergoing training and both have had prior police experience in neighboring jurisdictions.

Mayor Judith Davis issued proclamations declaring April 24 as both Arbor Day and Earth Day. Arbor Day events will include tree plantings about town and building rain gardens at Buddy Attick Park. The city has been determined to have a tree canopy covering 65 percent of the area, a very high figure. As part of the 40th Anniversary Earth Day celebration, there will be an open house at Greenbelt Public Works with guidance given on how to buy green electricity.

May 16 to 22 will be Public Works Week this year. On Saturday, May 22 there will be another open house at Public Works. This one will exhibit city equipment for all to see, offer rides in the city's aerial bucket and provide tours of the almost new Public Works facility and its special green features. Council was assured that there would be hot dogs to eat once more.

Davis also presented a plaque recognizing the city for its Distinguished Budget Presentation for the current fiscal year. The city has received this award annually from the Governmental Finance Officers Association, a national association, for over 20 years.

Other Actions

McLaughlin reported that a collective bargaining agreement has been reached with the Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police. He indicated that the agreement would be presented for council approval at its next meeting. He did not provide any details as to the agreement. However, in his budget presentation, McLaughlin indicated that there would be no cost-of-living pay adjustments for any employees including police.

A resolution was unanimously adopted changing the composition requirements for the Youth Advisory Committee. The age for the seven youth (or young adult) members of the committee has been raised from 18 to 22 years. Adult members now have to be 23 years old or older.

Another resolution was introduced for first reading and will be acted upon at the next meeting. It authorizes contracting with Strategies for Independent Living to provide home modification and professional services for the Accessible Greenbelt program.

Also presented to council at the meeting was a report on how the $40,000 allocated last year from Community Development Block Grants for the Accessible Greenbelt Program was spent. Installations in needy homes included stair lifts, grab bars, bathroom transfer benches and shower chairs, hand railings and walker steps.

Council supported county council resolution CR-27-2010, the annual action plan for the expenditure of Community Development Block Grants. Included is $70,000 for street reconstruction in Greenbelt West. Council further recommended that if additional funds become available that $40,000 be provided for a Greenbelt CARES Youth and Family Program.

The city council opposed passage of State Bill HB1125 that city staff believed would weaken existing storm water management regulations.

Council accepted the resignation of Melissa Hines-Rodriguez from the Park and Recreation Advisory Board and appointed Dorian Branch to the Youth Advisory Committee and Lester Whitmer to the Park and Recreation Advisory Board.

Carl Schinner looks on at the April 12 Greenbelt City Council meeting. Cressman previously served as an officer in Annapolis, New Carrollton and Phoenix, Ariz. Unger previously served as an officer with Berwyn Heights, University of Maryland and as a correctional officer in Gettysburg, Pa.

Attention GHI Members

Update to GHI Members on Repairs of Roofs/Gutters Damaged by February Snow Storms

The February snow storms damaged the copper gutters on over 300 units. Several porch roofs as well as tiles on several slate roofs were also damaged.

GHI's insurance carrier recently approved our claim for the losses that were incurred. Subsequently, GHI signed a contract with a contractor – RRH Associates – to undertake the necessary repairs. The contractor will begin work on April 19th. Because of the scope of the repair work, staff estimates that it could take until the end of May before all repairs are completed.

We appreciate your patience with the process of getting the repairs done.

Residents Roused by Fire Tell of Their Experiences

by Jon Aerts

"Pop, pop, pop!" Bryan Nousain recalls of the Greenbelt blaze last Thursday morning that destroyed three townhomes and left Nousain and others along the 7800 block of Jacobs Drive in need of major house repairs.

"Is someone getting shot?" he wondered of the noise while wincing at his bedside clock – 1:50 a.m.; the two-alarm fire had just greeted a nearby electrical box.

Meanwhile, 12-year-old Anne Tambe and her family were already safe and outside their two-story townhouse, whose siding today resembles melted flesh. "At first, I thought I was dreaming it," Tambe said of the firefighters beating on her home's front door. "They were screaming for us to get out."

All told, it took firefighters 1.5 hours to smother the flames according to Prince George's County Fire/EMS Spokesman Mark Brady. Other than a knee injury to one fireman, no one was hurt during the incident; however, some 20 residents – including two infants – have been displaced by the fire.

Brady said the fire originated on – or near – a rear wooden deck before quickly spreading up the exterior walls and to the roof. Once one of the decks caved in, however, Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Chief Thomas Ray ordered his fire crews out of the burning homes.

"It was the right call," Brady said of Ray's decision, adding that a large portion of the roof collapsed in on one of the townhomes 10 minutes later.

By daybreak on Thursday, when the smoke and emotions had mostly cleared, the American Red Cross offered clothing and a three-night stay at a local hotel to those displaced by the fire.

While an investigation into the blaze remains ongoing, Brady called the cause "likely accidental." Not including the costs associated with the large, emergency response effort, some estimate $600,000 in fire damages to the homes.

Although Nousain's home didn't burn, it sustained water damage from the fire crews' hoses, as well as several axe wounds to the home's interior walls. Fingers crossed, Nousain says he's banking on his insurance to cover the costs.

really is a blessing," she said.

Also on ABC 7 News one of the displaced residents, Bryan Nousain, was interviewed. "There were a lot of people running outside yelling fire, fire," he said. His wife, Sonia Nousain, added, "We could see the flame so tall and the whole yard was so bright."

Siding Melts

The flames from the end unit were so hot they caused the vinyl siding to melt and burn on an adjacent but separate building. The resident, Florence Achuo, told ABC 7 News that she took her children to a neighbor's home for protection, even though they were strangers.

"She was kind enough to open up and gave us mattresses," Achuo told Channel 7. "Now they're friends, now they're family. They're part of us."

Firefighters were able to prevent the fire from doing damage to the Achuo residence other than the siding.

The fire caused an estimated $600,000 in damage, according to county fire investigators. The majority of damage was limited to three of the five townhouses. At least two homes were left with little more than the front walls standing. All three were considered total losses.

While investigators continued to work to determine the cause of the fire, firefighters secured the damaged structures to ensure safety. The Fire/EMS Department Citizen Services Unit and American Red Cross are assisting displaced residents with temporary shelter and supplies, according to the county fire department.

By Friday morning, fencing had been erected around the destroyed units. Greenbelt Engine Company 35 was still on the scene. Emergency response repair workers were busy at work.

clean Kenilworth Avenue and was surprised to find not only recyclable bottles but 10 car tires, an array of car parts and a water heater.

"Someone had to purposefully put this stuff here, in a park that is supposed to be clean for humans and nature," he said, still marveling at the water heater.

Community volunteer Bill Walmsley was also disturbed by the trash found along Kenilworth Avenue.

"Prince George's County offers bulk trash, for free," he said, emphasizing the complimentary removal of large household items. "You'd think it took more effort to get it down there than to leave it out on a curb" and call someone to pick it up.

Tom Laner and his family came from Anne Arundel County to help clean up the city they once called home. The kids were excited to find a small animal skull along their cleanup route.

"At first, I thought it was a bottle or a shell or a dinosaur skull," Elizabeth said.

The Laners cleaned the Greenbelt Park site – designated the family, youth and scout cleanup area – where most of the litter was from picnics in the park.

Park Ranger Debbie Kirkley was pleased with the turnout for the event. She credits internet promotion and the green-friendly trend now seen in American society. The National Park Service is also taking programmatic steps to help keep the parks clean.

Park Ranger Eli Alford, Jr. was also encouraged by the volunteer support for the cleanup.

"This event definitely put in perspective for many volunteers the importance of environmental stewardship and community volunteering," Alford said in an email after the event.

He also noted a group of Boy Scouts, that has volunteered in the annual cleanup for a decade, found this year's litter to be half as much as that found last year.

In all, 83 bags of trash were collected from the three areas of Greenbelt Park, Kenilworth Avenue and the 300-acre cleanup site, located near Good Luck Road and the Baltimore-Washington Parkway. Across Prince George's County, initial reports indicate 617 volunteers collected nine tons of trash and 17,900 individual bottles were recycled.

"All stuff that could be properly disposed of in the first place," Walmsley said.

Only 327 plastic bags were picked up countywide, an encouraging sign as the District recently passed a law charging 5 cents for plastic bags in the city. The Anacostia Watershed Society in Bladensburg was influential in passing the law to prevent bags from wandering into the Anacostia River. Indian Creek flows west of the Capital Office Park south to join the Northeast Branch of the Anacostia which parallels Kenilworth Avenue down to Bladensburg where it joins the Northwest Branch to form the Anacostia River, then on to the Potomac River and eventually into the Chesapeake Bay.

In order to reduce the tons of trash found in the Greenbelt community, Ibeh believes it will take an amount of soul-searching.

"It starts with us," he said. "They can make laws but people break them. We just have to stop and change our mindset to help preserve nature."

The Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability will host a cleanup around Greenbelt Lake on May 1. Volunteers are needed.

Transition Workshop on Sustainability

In recognition of skills common in the time of current residents' parents and grandparents, re-skilling is training in those skills that will help people today be self-reliant and resilient. Transition Greenbelt will hold a series of re-skilling workshops, beginning with a free Make Your Own Soap workshop on Saturday, April 24 from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Community Center in Room 114.

Learn from instructor Anne Hull how to make soap from scratch with simple ingredients, creating formulations for one's own skin needs and using unique scents with herbs and essential oils. Participants will learn the basics, learn about cold and hot processing and see a slow-cooker method demonstration, leaving with a sample of just-made soap. Handouts will provide recipes and a list of tools and ingredients.

Transition Greenbelt is an organization that began last year to help residents live more sustainably and build local resilience. It has three working groups: on food and gardening (the Three Sisters Garden), re-skilling (canning, soap-making, repairs) and bartering and local economy (buy local, invest local) whose purpose is to create a quality of life based on less use of fossil fuels.

boards, including past president of the Maryland Board of Morticians and Funeral Directors and member of the Maryland State Funeral Directors Association. As a 13-year member of the Maryland Board of Morticians, Borgwardt participates in licensing new funeral directors. A steady number of individuals are entering the business, he said.

"There will always be a need," according to Borgwardt. He noted that technology has helped people enter the funeral service industry through online courses.

Despite the earlier downturn in the economy, his funeral business has been stable. Borgwardt estimates the average funeral costs $6,000 to $7,000. He credits his professional seven-person staff for his continued success.

"They treat the people with love, honor, dignity, and respect. I believe we give outstanding service," he said.

After decades in a business some people might find morbid or melancholy, Borgwardt remains passionate about helping families during times of grief, saying, "I think I love this job now more than I did 40 years ago."

Borgwardt Funeral Home is located on Powder Mill Rd. in Beltsville.

The Borgwardt Funeral Home is holding a celebratory 25th anniversary open house on Sunday, April 25 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The event is free and open to the public and will feature the Mobile Museum of Funeral Traditions, a traveling museum highlighting the history of funeral customs and exhibits relating to presidents, veterans, ancestors and celebrities, among others.

The Borgwardt Funeral Home is located at 4400 Powder Mill Road in Beltsville.

A Character Profile

Wm. Keyes, Reluctant Warrior of Fred & Frieda

by Malcolm Lewis Barnes

Fred & Frieda is a compelling new play about a Black veteran who rescues a young Jewish girl from a Nazi concentration camp at the end of World War II. The character of Fred is based on a composite of actual veterans that the playwright Nicole Burton crafted together from a tattered newspaper article that she found about a veteran from Georgia and an actual surviving veteran who lives and thrives in Annapolis.

Even more compelling than the heroic character Fred who was emotionally torn by both his experience as a soldier in the segregated American army and his shocking confrontation with the evil of the concentration camps is the personal story of William Snowden Keyes.

Keyes not only was present at the liberation of Nazi concentration camp survivors as a member of the all Black 761st Tank Battalion and supply unit at the end of the war but he also had a personal encounter with a young German war survivor that rivals the story of Fred & Frieda.

Second Class Citizen

As a young boy growing up in segregated Washington, D.C., William Keyes experienced the raw reality of being a second class citizen in the Nation's Capital. In 1937 as a 15-year-old Sea Scout, Keyes participated in a Boy Scout-type jamboree on the national mall where he faced his first exposure to segregation when the leaders began to assign the black and white boys to their camping tents.

Keyes rebelled against being treated unfairly and threatened to leave the camp grounds. The proud son of the owners of Keyes Restaurant on 7th Street near the Howard Theatre, the young William Keyes was confident of his heritage and capabilities as a budding young Sea Scout and was not naïve about the realities of racism and the double standard of a segregated society.

That same rebelliousness got young Keyes thrown out of Dunbar High School, which at the time was the elite grooming school for the best and brightest of the Black bourgeois and business class. He ended up with relatives in New Orleans and finished high school and some college at Xavier University, an historically black Catholic college in The Big Easy.

In World War II

But as World War II loomed, Keyes found his way back to Washington where he was reluctantly drafted into the Army and shipped to a basic training camp in rural Kentucky. He found himself on a war transport ship zig-zaging across the Atlantic Ocean for four days to avoid German U-boats and landed in England where cameras were confiscated as a security measure. Despite those Allied Army precautions a rich historical archive exists of the Black presence in WWII.

By the spring of 1944 Keyes found himself as part of the transport and supply units accompanying the liberating Allied Army as they pushed their way through the German front lines following the Battle of the Bulge. During that period he not only assisted in the liberation of Jewish survivors of the Nazi concentration camps but also found himself in the arms of an attractive young German fraulein.

Legend among Black GIs is that they had a reputation as generous big spenders on the front lines and were welcomed by the local women as liberators for more than their candy bars. As a result Keyes left Germany with more than tragic memories of liberating concentration camp survivors as he was shipped out at the end of the European campaign to the Pacific engagement in 1945.

He got as far as the Philippines in August of 1945 when the war came to an abrupt end with the American bombing of Nagasaki and Hiroshima. He ended the war in a medical unit recovering from a bout of dengue fever and was mustered out less than a year later to return to a civilian life in Washington as an educator after finishing his degree from Federal City College.

Life Changing Letter

Out of the blue, Keyes received a letter from his wartime lover in Germany informing him that he was the father of a 2-year-old daughter named Uta. Being a man of honor, Keyes took steps to reunite with the mother of his wartime lovechild and eventually sponsored their visit to America. He later married Uta's mother, with whom he lives to this day on a quiet peninsula in Annapolis, where he will celebrate his 89th birthday on May 2.

Keyes, who is still active as a substitute teacher at South River High in Annapolis, will be a guest at a post-performance discussion following the opening matinee of Fred & Frieda tonight at the Greenbelt Arts Center. Students attending from area high schools will have much to learn from the reluctant warrior. His resilience and compassion helped him overcome a legacy of segregation and inhumanity to forge a legacy of love and loyalty out of the ashes of the Holocaust.

What do a President's rider-less horse saddle, Rosa Park's quiet act of defiance and Abraham Lincoln's casket have in common? That's what students, local residents and funeral professionals will soon discover from an exhibit featuring a collection of funeral objects and historical depiction of funeral customs in a traveling museum.

The American Funeral mobile museum will be located at the Donald V. Borgwardt Funeral Home on Sunday, April 25, 2010, during their 25th Anniversary Open House from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The funeral home is located at 4400 Powder Mill Rd. in Beltsville.

Of special note is the Lincoln exhibit, featuring a reproduction of Lincoln's casket and tracing this near 3-week funeral procession. Scholars cite Lincoln's 1865 funeral as the birth of today's modern funeral service.

"25 years of dedicated service is something I am very proud of. My staff and I are privileged to provide comfort and care to the families in their time of need with dignity, honor and respect."
 — Don Borgwardt

Spread out across 1,000 sq. ft., thoughtful display areas reveal how we mourn the dead. The American Funeral explores the traditions, beginning with Native American burial mounds and ending with the diverse rituals practiced across the country today. Produced by Michigan-based MRA, it's earning high praise from everyone who experiences it. "Very, very moving."

"Glory, Glory Hallelujah" showcases President John F. Kennedy's rider-less horse – empty boots reversed in the saddle – trotting briskly in his funeral procession and Rosa Parks, who was the first woman to lie in state at the Capitol Rotunda.
