Greenbelt Will Join UMCP Sustainability Program

by Barbara Hopkins

The City of Greenbelt will seek certification in the Sustainable Maryland Certified (SMC) program, an initiative of the Environmental Finance Center at the University of Maryland. On August 15 the Greenbelt City Council voted to announce its interest in becoming certified and to register the city in the program. At its Monday, September 12 meeting, council approved the draft letter to initiate the process.

SMC Program

The SMC program was developed to assist Maryland communities grow toward sustainability, save money and preserve quality of life. The program is free and voluntary. Its sponsors include the Maryland Municipal League, the Town Creek Foundation and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The program will provide training, guidance and tools communities may use to save money and conserve resources "while promoting community viability." It will also provide recognition for accomplishments within the program.

SMC Process

Registering to become certified is the first step a municipality must take but other steps are important as well. Appointment of a "green team" by the city council is the next of two mandatory requirements; the other is to complete a green team action plan. Points are awarded for these and other actions, with 150 documented points required for certification.

Greenbelt's GreenACES (Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability) could already function as its green team or, in any case, could provide some of its members for a new committee, as Mayor Judith Davis pointed out during council's discussion. Davis serves on SMC's Mayors Advisory Council, which considered the feasibility and usefulness of proposed actions, training and tools during development of the program.

Priority Actions

In addition to the two mandatory actions, certification requires six priority actions. These include creative community gardens, establishing municipal

GHI Smoking Ban Lawsuit Testimony Now Completed

by Mary Willis Clarke

The testimony phase of the lawsuit Shuman v. Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) was completed on Monday. This is the suit by GHI member David Shuman against his next-door neighbor and the cooperative for damages caused by alleged infiltration of dangerous second-hand tobacco smoke into Shuman's townhouse unit from the neighbor's smoking (see News Review April 7, August 25). Judge Albert Northrop scheduled closing arguments for November 3. The judge held up a stack of papers about eight inches high and indicated that he wanted to review his notes on the testimony and the voluminous exhibits submitted in the case. Judge Northrop said that he would be ready to rule by the next court date. GHI's attorney Jason Fisher was unsure whether Judge Northrop was indicating that he would give his decision after the closing arguments or whether there would be a written opinion at a later date.

Rebuttal Testimony

Monday's proceedings consisted of rebuttal testimony presented by plaintiff Shuman's attorney. The plaintiff's case and GHI's defense (and that of the next door neighbor who is representing himself) were presented over five days, August 17 to 23. Quick trial practice review:

the order of a trial is first the plaintiff presents his case through witnesses and exhibits, then the defendants offer their defense followed by rebuttal testimony if plaintiff feels it is necessary followed with closing arguments by both sides. After all of this, the fact-finder, here Judge Northrop, makes a decision. In this case the parties chose to have the matter decided by a judge instead of a jury. (Plaintiff's rebuttal testimony would have been heard on August 23 except the courthouse was evacuated because of that day's earthquake.)

In rebuttal, plaintiff Shuman's attorney J. P. Szymkowicz called corporate defendant GHI as a witness; General Manager Gretchen Overdurff testified for the corporation. There were only a few questions which seemed to seek to demonstrate that Shuman had no further recourse within the cooperative once the member complaints panel and the board of directors declined to seek termination of his smoking neighbor's Mutual Ownership Contract. The questions seemed to seek to establish that even though a member can have an item placed on the agenda of a general membership meeting by a petition with 10 signatures,

Empty Bowls Event Set for October 15

Empty Bowls, a favorite Greenbelt fundraising event in past years, will be held this year on Saturday, October 15 from 4 to 7 p.m. Offered by the Greenbelt Community Center potters and the Community Church, the event will again be held at the church at the corner of Hillside and Crescent Roads.

All money collected from ticket sales goes to Help By Phone, a volunteer organization that for over 40 years has run eight food pantries throughout Prince George's County. Help By Phone also runs a clothing pantry, the Safe Haven winter shelter program for men and other services.

A ticket entitles the purchaser to a hand-made bowl of their choice, soup homemade by Greenbelt Community Church cooks and bread, dessert and beverage, along with good fellowship. There are a limited number of tickets to the event, which has always sold out in advance. There will probably not be tickets available at the door. Tickets are currently available by calling Marsha Voigt at 301-345-7631, visiting Room 301 at the Greenbelt Community Center on Sundays between 2 and 5 p.m. or by calling Greenbelt Community Church at 301-474-6171.

Bowls

Each bowl is unique in appearance – some are hand-built, others wheel-thrown. Some have a decorative edge or design and all are glazed and stamped with the creator's emblem. It can take a week for each bowl to be made, dried, trimmed of excess

Images Still with Us

For those old enough to remember Pearl Harbor, the catastrophe that we call 9/11 is different, yet surprisingly the same.

The shock, the polarizing intensity, the instant grasp that the world has changed – these the two have in common. Yet the universe in which we now live and that former world are excruciatingly different.

That world was gray – or sepia, perhaps – available only in photographs in newspapers or newsreels at the movies. Our world today is instantly with us in full color, over and over again, replayed on television in our homes, in restaurants, at bars – now even on hand-held devices carried in pockets and purses.

Ten years later those visions are still with us – fresh, with the same intensity.

City's Candlelight Vigil, Ten Years Afterward

by Jim Link

About 65 somber Greenbelt residents gathered in Roosevelt Center on Saturday night, September 10 to light candles and remember, reflect, mourn . . . and perhaps even to forgive. Ten years after the heinous events of 9/11, Greenbelt's Public Safety Advisory Committee (PSAC) presented a necessarily gruesome, yet weirdly heartening slide show of that traumatizing day.

Various dignitaries then made appropriate remarks. Dr. Laura Kessler, chairwoman of the PSAC, recited the sad chronology of the flight patterns and fiery fates of the four hijacked planes destined to inflict so much destruction. James Johnson, a member of PSAC, read Allen Jankowski's poem "We Shall Never Forget." Kelly Lawson, Public Information Officer for the Greenbelt Police Department and Captain Tom Kemp spoke briefly.

A Big Thank You!

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee would like to thank the entire Greenbelt community for their enthusiastic support of the Labor Day Festival this year.

We are especially grateful to the City of Greenbelt for the continued support of dedicated staff members from the Community Center and the Recreation, Public Works and Police Departments and administration offices. Without them, there would not be a Festival. Our Public Works Department works before, during and after the weekend ensuring the best festival possible. They are incredible!

Special thanks go to Tom Gaylin and Rosedale Attractions for the fabulous rides and games! The Greenbelt Co-op for selling the wristband vouchers and always supporting the Festival! The Greenbelt News Review and Greenbelt Patch for outstanding coverage of the Festival. We would also like to thank the Eleanor Roosevelt National Honor Society for their continued support!

Thank you to all of the parade participants. More than anything else, the parade shouts "community" and every year the groups step up with their imagination to march down Crescent Road. This year was the first year for the Greenbelt Marching Band! We asked for bands and they got together to give us one! Thank you to Central Maryland Amateur Radio Club, acting as parade marshals.

Most important, I would like to thank the Greenbelt Labor Day Committee. For 57 years the all-volunteer committee has been organizing every aspect of the Festival. You will not find a more dedicated, hard working group anywhere. Their support, kindness, hard work and dedication is unwavering. They are the reason GREENBELT IS GREAT!

We are already starting our plans for next year. If you would like to volunteer, please email us at laborday@greenbelt.com

Thanks for your continued support, Greenbelt~

Linda Ivy, President
Greenbelt Labor Day
Festival Committee

Downs' Café Art Is a Must-see

You have to go see Paul Downs' current exhibit at the New Deal Café. If you haven't been to the Café in a while or you've never been or you live somewhere off Greenbelt Road and you're not even exactly sure where Roosevelt Center is, make this your reason to get there.

Paul Downs is Greenbelt's very own home-grown folk artist. He goes into the Greenbelt woods, collects natural findings, little sticks and such, combines them with what is evidently magic glue and drawing on his own imagination and beyond obsessive eye for detail, creates stunning pieces of artwork. People, animals, towns, dream worlds, portraits, 3-d dwellings. I don't know about you and I'm not without talent but if I went into the woods and got some sticks & glue and put 'em together, they wouldn't look like something you'd want on your wall. Not so Paul Downs.

The exhibit in the Café is the best work he's ever done. It's shockingly good. I can try to describe it up and down but it really must be seen.

Greenbelt is fortunate to have someone of this talent living and working here.

Colette ("Kelly") Zanin

Tongue In Cheek LDF Trash Talk

I am writing this "litter" to the editor in the name of trash bins all over Greenbelt. We bins respectfully "refuse" to accept the characterization of "dumpy" attributed to us in the September 8 front-page Labor Day Parade article. That is simply "rubbish!"

I think most Greenbelters would acknowledge that trash bins are not a "waste" of space but serve a useful service in taking care of items unable to be recycled.

Though Greenbelters are champion recyclers, I think most would object to "talking trash" about the other useful bin outside their home. As the Rodney Dangerfield of receptacles, we may not be as attractive and neat as a recycling bin but we still deserve a certain "debris" – I mean, degree – of respect. Let's not forget how we have been immortalized in poetry:

"Give me your tired [old household items], your poor [and worn out possessions],

Your huddled masses [of unrecyclables] yearning to breathe free,

The wretched refuse of your teeming shore [and homes]."

Most of all, let's remember what was proven by my presence in the parade: trash bins are people, too!

Disappointed

This morning I read the article by James Giese in the September 8 issue of the News Review regarding the Labor Day parade and, although I found the article interesting, I was somewhat disappointed by one of his comments. When writing about the two marching bands, one of them being the Eleanor Roosevelt High School Pep Band, he says "Neither probably would succeed in competition but, hey, there was real live credible marching music."

Was it really necessary to add this comment?

Sharper eyes than ours point out that the photo on page 16 in the September 1 article on the youth circus performance that shows unicyclists pivoting misidentified the adult in the center. The youngsters are circling around their coach, Rich Potter.

Explorations Resumes With New Fall Season

On Friday, September 16 Explorations Unlimited resumes at 1 p.m. with a session to entertain and educate seniors about simple self-defense techniques. Dr. Clifford Thomas emphasizes methods that can be used on the street and at home and shows how development of both mental and physical street smarts is vital. In this interactive session participants will have an opportunity to practice several of the methods demonstrated. Thomas is the president and CEO of the Tae Kwon Do Ramblers Self-Defense Systems and began training and studying martial arts in 1964.

Body Central

On Friday, September 23 the Explorations Unlimited presentation will be by Gretchen Dunn, giving an overview of her SAGE class "Body Central" with a sample of the many things taught and benefits of the class. The Body Central class is for older adults who want to maintain or improve their balance and ability to be comfortable in a wide range of movements, working to offset the tendency as people grow older to move less, in a smaller sphere and with less dynamic change. It also teaches safeguarding joints and finding alternate ways of doing things. The class is based on movement principles of Rudolf Laban and Irmgard Bartenieff. Dunn was a practicing occupational therapist for 25 years, pursuing her interests in dance, movement and improvisation after retirement.

Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center, usually in Room 114, the Senior Classroom, where both these presentations will be held.

Synagogue Hosts Luncheon To Honor Two Educators

On Saturday, September 17 the Mishkan Torah community will honor the two people who have reinvigorated Mishkan Torah's youth and education programs, Bret Goldstein and Darelynn Fung. Goldstein and Fung, through their ability, energy and enthusiasm, have ushered in a new era in the synagogue's life with their efforts on behalf of the community's most important resource, its children.

The Ways and Means Committee's first Young Leadership Award honors Goldstein and Fung as part of its ongoing theme of "From Generation to Generation," meant to honor younger members of Mishkan Torah. Goldstein and Fung personify the criteria for the award which will be presented at the end of a special Shabbat service September 17 followed by a luncheon in their honor.

Married for 18 years, Goldstein and Fung teach at Berwyn Heights Elementary School. Goldstein became Education Director of Beth Torah Congregation in 2001 and was the Education Director of the joint Beth Torah and Karp Family School from 2004 to 2007. Both joined Mishkan Torah in 2007; Goldstein has served as chair of the Children's Education Committee since 2007. He has led Family Services the first Friday of every month at Mishkan Torah since 2005 and Children's High Holiday Services at Mishkan Torah since 2007.

Fung, who is a trained bassoonist, dancer and music teacher, has been co-administrator of the Mishkan Torah Facebook page. She helped design Mishkan Torah's website, organized the Yoga Shabbat Program and was co-chair of the Youth Programs Committee. Not only have they used their talents to help Mishkan Torah's young people but they have performed for 20 years in Flashlight, which they describe as a "funky/go-go band," on the wedding and Bar Mitzvah circuit. They have three children, Aaron, Sam and Elta.

The September 17 honors will be a festive ceremony in true Mishkan Torah tradition – the major event will be entertainment provided by Goldstein and Fung's students from the Karp family school. There will be additional tributes to the honorees and a special souvenir program book.

Tickets for the luncheon may be purchased from the synagogue or online at the synagogue website, www.mishkantorahsynagogue.org. Additional donations in honor of Goldstein and Fung will be accepted; all donors and luncheon attendees will be recognized in the souvenir book. Tickets may not be purchased nor will donations be accepted at the door. (See ad at right.)

American Legion Post #136 Holds 9/11 Commemoration

by Carol Griffith

Linked in sadness by the memories of the events of September 11, 2001, about 100 people – ordinary citizens as well as many of the Legion's leaders – commemorated that day at a special remembrance program hosted by Greenbelt American Legion Post 136 on Sunday, September 11. The ceremony and interviews afterward with those who wished to share their memories of September 11, 2001, were recorded by Greenbelt Access Television for future broadcast.

Representing the city were Mayor Judith Davis; Councilmembers Emmett Jordan, Ed Putens, Leta Mach, Konrad Herling and Silke Pope; City Manager Mike McLaughlin, Assistant City Manager David Moran and Greenbelt Police Department Captain Carl Schinner. Ingrid Turner, Greenbelt's County Councilmember, sent her regrets as she was unable to attend the event and also unable, due to flooding in the County Administration Building, to issue a proclamation as she had planned.

After the Eleanor Roosevelt High School Air Force ROTC posted the flag in a flawlessly executed ceremony and the Post chaplain offered a prayer, Post 136's commander, Jose Morales; commander of the Post 136 Sons of the American Legion, Jerry Darnell; and president of the Post 136 Auxiliary, Rusty Beeg, offered opening remarks.

Mayor Davis then spoke, relating her experiences at the morning's stair climb in the Maryland Trade Center tower, made in memory of the first responders, including 343 New York firefighters lost in the World Trade Center towers in New York after the attacks. She noted that Jordan had made the full 11 trips up the stairs, the number set to match the 110-story rescue climb made in New York. She showed the tag bearing the name and brief biography of a fallen firefighter she had received at the stair climb. She said she would keep it forever.

Governor's Proclamation

Gregory Jones, deputy secretary of the Maryland State Department of Veterans Affairs, presented the Legion with a proclamation from Governor Martin O'Malley after noting the sad fact that 63 Marylanders lost their lives in the September 11 attacks. The proclamation establishes September 11 as Patriot Day in Maryland and "reflects the tremendous sacrifice by our fellow citizens."

Tom Davis, adjutant for the Maryland American Legion, related a touching story of having been on Capitol Hill with three other Legionnaires, to meet with the congressional Veterans Committee. He "knew at that moment we were at war," he said.

Commander of the Maryland American Legion Melvin Smullen, after complimenting Post 136 for its outstanding membership and calling the Post a "primary spoke in the American Legion wheel," reminded the audience to remember the families of the heroes of September 11 who fell while defending our freedom.

The keynote speech took a less sentimental view of the day's commemoration. Barry Searle, director of the Legion's National Security and Foreign Relations national committee, spoke bluntly of the "chasm of culture." Although the lives of all of us have been changed by the events of September 11, 2001, he said, only one percent of the population is carrying the load of military service; the other 99 percent view the subsequent wars as an "abstraction" that doesn't affect them personally and "don't know or care what it means to be at war."

Searle warned that the nation must close the chasm or face negative consequences, called upon the Legion to step up in creating a bond between the general population and the military so we can pull together as a nation, and suggested ways by which the Legion could accomplish this goal.

After the closing ceremony and prayer, the audience joined hands and, led by past president Beeg, sang a very emotional "God Bless America." There were very few dry eyes in the room.

individual neighbor grievances or a board decision not to terminate a membership cannot be appealed beyond the board of directors. Thus Shuman would have had no recourse other than the current lawsuit. This countered GHI's argument that the lawsuit should be dismissed because Shuman had not exhausted remedies available within the cooperative.

Shuman himself testified again as part of plaintiff's rebuttal. He repeated from the witness chair what he had previously said to this reporter (see News Review August 25) about his neighbor's no longer smoking inside but only smoking outside on his patio, "We don't think we should have to run around and close our windows when [the neighbor] smokes."

Expert Witness

Plaintiff's expert witness James L. Repace was recalled. As an indication of his expertise, he said that his research on second hand smoke was cited 19 times in the 2006 report by the Surgeon General "Health Consequences of Involuntary Exposure to Tobacco Smoke." Repace testified that sealing between units in multi-family housing "doesn't work". He said that successful sealing applications only cut tobacco smoke infiltration by 25 percent which doesn't lessen the health risk but reduces the irritation caused by second-hand smoke.

Repace testified that his instruments indicated that the smoking on the neighbor's outside patio doubled carcinogenic levels in Shuman's dining room and living room. "Smoke was coming in." He was asked about measures that might improve Shuman's situation. He said that ceiling fans disperse smoke but don't get rid of it. Repace doesn't believe that HEPA (High-Efficiency Particulate Air) filters are useful as there are not enough air exchanges per hour. He said that aromatic candles exacerbate the effects of cigarette smoke as they add particulates to the air.

Repace attempted to explain why, during a demonstration during his original testimony, his measuring instrument had registered levels in the courtroom similar to measurements that he testified he had found in Shuman's unit. The explanation got beyond this reporter's grasp of chemistry but the bottom line seemed to be that of all the chemicals measured by the apparatus, only tobacco smoke, not found in the smoking-banned court house but which infiltrated Shuman's home, contains potent lung carcinogens.

Repace also testified about the expert called by GHI to refute his (Repace's) expert opinion. Repace said that, until they parted ways last year, the GHI expert had been affiliated in a consulting organization with individuals who were consultants to tobacco companies.

Economics

Anyone observing teams of very capable lawyers conducting a six-day-and-counting knows that this trial has been very expensive. While attorney fees are sometimes reduced for seminal cases such as this one, the cost for plaintiff's legal representation is unknown. Expert witnesses are expensive. Plaintiff's expert Repace has been in court six days and Repace told this reporter that Shuman himself, not some advocacy organization, is paying him. Plaintiff's attorney Szymkiewicz indicated to the judge that Shuman paid the courtroom stenographer $4,000 to prepare a transcript of the proceedings. Shuman has said that he used his retirement savings to litigate this issue.

GHI has insurance to cover lawsuits. Other than the $5,000 deductible under the policy, there should be no cost to the cooperative for legal costs and any damages which might possibly be awarded if GHI loses the case.

The neighbor, who was also sued, is representing himself without an attorney.

energy audits and setting up a municipal carbon footprint to measure the carbon production of local government operations.

Other possible actions include developing a green purchasing policy by outlining procedures for using environmental criteria for choosing products to purchase, creating a plan for stewardship of the watershed or creating a stormwater management program.

Each of these actions has an assigned point value; the remainder of the 150 points may be selected from a host of other varied actions.

The program's website points out that certification does not mean that a community is sustainable but that it has taken a "significant step" toward achieving that goal.

The website, www.sustainablemaryland.com, also shows 10 other Maryland municipalities have already registered. Greenbelt will join Berlin, Chestertown, College Park, Colmar Manor, Forest Heights, Frederick, Gaithersburg, Laurel, Mount Rainier and Snow Hill in efforts to achieve sustainability certification.

Help By Phone

The eight food pantries of Help By Phone are maintained in volunteer churches and receive their food largely through donations of food and money. Help By Phone itself purchases many cases of basic canned goods every month. Clients calling Help By Phone (301-699-9009 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.) are directed to the pantry closest to the client's home. To serve as many people as possible, Help By Phone limits the number of times each year a client can receive food. Typically, 55,000 people are assisted each year.

Reel & Meal Film Is Sickness and Wealth

On Monday, September 19 at 7 p.m., the next Reel & Meal at the New Deal film will be "In Sickness and in Wealth," focusing on health inequities. The 56-minute opening episode of the 2008 film will be shown. The film, which is free, is preceded by an optional vegan buffet available for purchase at 6:30 p.m.

The U.S. spends more than twice what other rich countries spend per person on medical care, yet as the film points out, has among the worst health outcomes of any industrialized nation and the greatest health inequities. It's not just the poor who are sick. Even the middle classes die, on average, almost three years sooner than the rich. And at each step down the class pyramid, African Americans, Native Americans and Pacific Islanders often fare worse than their white counterparts.

This documentary explores causes and solutions for the economic, racial and social differences in people's health in the U.S. Produced in 2008 by California Newsreel with Vital Pictures, it has been presented on PBS.

Audience discussion following the film will be led by Karyn L. Pomerantz, MLS, MPH, a teacher at the GWU School of Public Health & Health Services and a longtime activist involved in the Health Disparities Committee of the Metro Washington Public Health Association. A key question will be "What can we do to promote a healthier environment for all?"

The Reel and Meal is a monthly series exploring environmental and social justice issues and is sponsored by four Greenbelt community organizations including the Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group, CHEARS (Chesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society), Prince George's Peace & Justice Coalition and Green Vegan Networking.

Marathon Event Brings the Blues to Greenbelt

by Susan Gervasi

Rolling Stones guitarist Keith Richards once said, "If you don't know the blues . . . there's no point in picking up the guitar and playing rock and roll. . . ."

But if you do know the blues – or just want an excuse to relax outdoors in the waning warmth of summer – Roosevelt Center is the place to be on Saturday, September 17 when the Greenbelt Blues Festival starts at 1 p.m., then moves into the New Deal Café from 8 till 11 p.m.

The festival, now in its eighth year, features musicians whose styles run the gamut of the broad blues genre.

"It's a great bunch of artists, it's free, it's Greenbelt, there's good food available – how can you lose?" said festival organizer John Vengrouskie, adding that Greenbelt volunteers Frank Kaiser, Dorian Winterfeld, Amethyst Dwyer, Chris Logan, Barbara Logan and others work hard behind the scenes to make the festival happen.

The marathon event, sponsored by the New Deal Café, Friends of the New Deal Café Arts (FOND-CA) and the City of Greenbelt, showcases local blues performers.

"This is a chance to see acts that might have been under your radar," said Bowie resident Vengrouskie. "Remarkable performers who may play in small clubs and out-of-the-way places."

Or who play, sometimes, before crowds that number in the hundreds of thousands – like Mike Westcott of Rockville, who has opened for such well-known bands as the Alan Parsons Project and the Gin Blossoms.

"The most fun is being able to perform outdoors to new and old fans and to be a part of not just a one-band show," said Westcott, who invites people to "come early, stay late and enjoy many different styles of music."

Westcott, returning for his third year in the festival, said his own band features a "blues-rock-jam-band" style, with resonances of Jimi Hendrix, the Allman Brothers, Cream and Led Zeppelin.

A different spin on the blues will be offered by Greenbelt resident Ed Crowley, performing with his group, Fast Eddie and the Slowpokes.

"We do a combination of Chicago and West Coast swing, with some 60s soul kind of pieces, some Smokey Robinson with a blues feel," said Crowley.

Another blues artist, Paul Mastradone of Beltsville, said his group – the Paulverizers – perform "rock and blues' . . . pretty much in the blues genre with a little rock and roll."

Saskia Van Oot, vocalist with the Frederick-based Unruly Blues, described her band as "eclectic" with a focus on "less-of-ten-heard blues . . . everything from rumba to zydeco to swing, Memphis-style, Texas and Chicago blues."

Other performers will include Jonny Grave & the Tombstones, Kevin Robinson and KERQ, the Lady Rose Band, Jonny and the Greenbelt resident Ed Crowley, performing with the group Fast Eddie and the Slowpokes will be on hand for the festival this Saturday.

Stingrays, Liz Springer and Built for Comfort and Vengrouskie's Capital Blues Ensemble.

"We're more of an R&B show band," said Vengrouskie, whose group performs mid-to-late-1960s rhythm and blues.

The festival musicians receive only a minimal stipend for performing, said Vengrouskie, who so far has had no trouble recruiting acts.

"I call up people I think would be a good mix, and the only ones who turn me down say it's because they've already booked somewhere else. I've never had a problem with people saying, 'You're not paying me enough.'"

"They do it because they love the blues," said Paul Mastradone.

Temporary Solutions for Dental Emergencies

McCarl Dental Group

It is important to have routine dental hygiene care and a dental exam at least every six months. It is also valuable to select a dentist who provides same day emergency dental treatment. When a dental emergency is causing pain or prevents you from going out in public, your dentist should ask, "How soon can you get to our dental office?"

Pain, swelling, broken teeth and a lost crown are the most common dental emergencies. Sometimes dental emergencies happen when you are traveling or when you just can't get to a dental office. Here are some short term remedies you can try if you are not able to see your dentist immediately.

Tips for a Lost Crown, Veneer or Permanent Bridge – If your crown, veneer or bridge has come loose, the primary short term goal is: Do NOT swallow or lose it!

If there is any risk of swallowing or losing your crown, veneer or bridge, keep it out of your mouth, store it in a safe place and make an appointment as soon as possible!

Hint: a clear sandwich bag or medicine vial is much safer than wrapping it in a tissue or paper towel – tissues, napkins and paper towels are often accidentally thrown away or simply disappear.

- Sometimes a patient can re-seat a crown and have it "snap" into place.

- Another temporary solution is to use Vaseline or an FDA approved denture adhesive as a temporary glue. DO NOT use super glue or any other type of permanent glue to hold your crown, veneer or permanent bridge into place!

Emergency Care for a Broken Tooth – Does cold air or water cause pain? If so, you should schedule a visit with your dentist as soon as possible. Do not chew with that tooth. If your sensitivity is caused by a cracked tooth, chewing hard objects can make the crack expand. Early treatment can prevent further damage.

What To Do When a Permanent Tooth Is Knocked Out

Gently pick up the tooth by the chewing surface being careful not to touch the root of the tooth. If dirty, gently rinse the tooth in water or milk. Do not use soap and do not scrub the tooth or wrap it in a tissue. Try to reposition the tooth in its socket immediately - do not use excessive force. The sooner the tooth is replaced the greater the likelihood it will survive. If you cannot get the tooth back into its socket, keep it moist either by carrying the tooth in cool milk or in your mouth – do not swallow the tooth!

See your dentist as soon as possible and ideally within 30 minutes.

You may also apply a cold compress or even a popsicle to the mouth and gums to decrease pain and bleeding.

Earn Service Hours on Public Lands Day

On Saturday, September 24 more than 170,000 Americans will volunteer across the country on National Public Lands Day (NPLD). Students from elementary school to college are signing up to build trails, remove invasive plants and trash, paint signs and beautify landscapes on America's public lands.

Events held at city and county parks, neighborhood green spaces, wildlife sanctuaries, national parks and coastal areas are expected to draw the largest crowds in the program's history.

As the nation's largest one-day volunteer event in support of public lands, NPLD hosts more than 2,000 sites in all 50 states and the District of Columbia with a wide array of activities. Volunteers' one-day efforts will equal more than $15 million in improvements.

NPLD is also a fee-free day in many federally managed lands and volunteers who participate are given coupons for a second free entry into a national park or other federal public land.

To find a site or register visit www.publiclandsday.org.

Recalling that Awful Day When the World Stood Still

To answer the question: "Where were you on 9/11," News Review staffers will tell you September 11 was a Tuesday. We were engaged as usual in our weekly endeavor on that unusual day, putting together the news of the week.

The stories we later discovered, however, of how Greenbelters reacted to or participated in the events of that extraordinary week appeared in the issue of the following week. On this page are excerpts of some of those stories we thought you might like to re-read.

Greenbelt's Firefighters Battle Flames at Pentagon

by Mary Moien

September 11 began as a regular workday for Randy Krob, chief, Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department. Like most of the volunteers, Krob also has a paying job. He was working there in Chevy Chase when his boss called him telling him that all firefighters were to report to their stations immediately due to the emergency.

When Krob reached Greenbelt, he discovered that the DC Fire Department had asked for Greenbelt's assistance because most of the DC equipment was being sent to the Pentagon.

Suddenly, about noon, a third alarm was sounded in DC, and the Greenbelt contingent, with one DC fireman assigned to them, and all of the other county volunteers, found themselves heading to the Pentagon.

Krob emphasized that they were one of the first companies to actually attack the fire in the Pentagon. They were at the building from about 12:15 to 8 p.m. His volunteers were the first to try to secure one segment of the second floor of the Pentagon, actually driving some of their equipment into the central courtyard and laying lines (hoses) and heading into the building from the courtyard.

They made four forays into the Pentagon and spent about three full hours in fire fighting. After each foray, they regrouped outside for water and to replenish air. Krob was in charge of interior operations in this section of the building, reporting to a safety liaison outside all that they encountered on the inside.

The Greenbelters were relieved about 8 p.m. However, their hoses were connected to a Branchville pumper truck that remained on duty until early the next morning. The Greenbelt hose equipment is still in the Pentagon.

Krob commented that the heat was unbearable and the death and destruction that they saw when first entering the building was horrible. The building was much bigger than imagined and of a construction much more complex than the Greenbelters, who are used to fighting house fires, were used to. Krob stated that "the devastation was unbelievable from the inside."

On the Scene

Attack on the Pentagon

by James P. McMichael

Tuesday, September 11, 2001 started out as a normal day for this Greenbelt resident who works in Arlington. It was a beautiful day; my co-workers and I had made many comments about wishing we could be outside to enjoy it. In the Arlington County Courthouse that day we were awaiting the beginning of the morning court docket.

At approximately 0930 hours a gentleman in the gallery told me that an airplane had flown into the World Trade Center. At first I thought it was an accident . . .

Suddenly a loud and insistent tone came across the radio: "All units be advised we have reports the Pentagon is on fire," and seconds later "Dispatch, be advised a plane has hit the Pentagon."

I cannot begin to describe the combination of fear, adrenalin, and shock that ran through my body. I ran to the back area of the courtroom and looked out the window. The Pentagon was nothing more than a large cloud of smoke. We immediately evacuated the courthouse. In the confusion I ran into a sergeant who threw me a set of keys and said, "Get out there, I don't know where you need to go, just go."

I left the building and was immediately running code (driving with lights and sirens on) to the Pentagon. It was mass confusion - ambulances, fire trucks, police cruisers everywhere. As civilians were fleeing the Pentagon area, a soldier ran up to me frantically saying he was part of the bomb squad at Fort Myer and needed a ride to the base. After transporting him to his post, I stationed myself on I-395 North directly across from the Pentagon. People were running everywhere and we were trying to get them to safety while watching in horror and disbelief as the Pentagon burned and filled the air with a smell I cannot describe and will never forget.

What I saw that day and the days following was the worst tragedy the country has ever seen; yet I saw people come together in a way that could never have been imagined. Not only law enforcement, fire fighters, military personnel, and EMS, but regular citizens willing to give their blood, sweat, tears, and possibly their lives to help people they may or may not have known. I saw judges run food and water to triage areas, restaurants and stores supplying food and drinks, and news helicopters flying in police and rescue workers. It was something amazing to be a part of and to watch.

September 11, 2001 will be remembered as a day of great tragedy, but also a day the country came together as one. As we watched rescue workers unroll our flag from the top of the Pentagon, I remember shedding my first tears since the beginning of this act of terrorism. I was also overcome by a feeling of patriotism and at that point I knew, as did the world, that we would overcome.

Deputy Sheriff II James P. McMichael was working for the Arlington Sheriff's Department on September 11, 2001.

Artist and Greenbelt resident John Mortenson sketched this illustration of his court 23 Ridge Rd. showing the American flags flying. (October 18, 2001)

The Week That Changed Our World

On Sunday evening, September 16, as darkness fell, the people of Greenbelt and nearby communities gathered at Buddy Attick Park. As parking spaces filled, people parked on side streets and walked slowly to the lake. Most were in family groups, and many carried flags, large and small, and made their way with flashlights. At the park, they received candles, and gradually the sloping bank was transformed into a glowing quilt of light. With prayer, song, and brief statements, an interfaith service reflected on the September 11 terrorist assault, which brought fear and death to Americans. Many faiths were represented, and the speakers addressed our common pain, and the need to unite and give solace to those in need.

Barely a week earlier, also during a spell of bright September weather, Greenbelt had held its annual Labor Day celebration. On the day of the parade, families parked on the same side streets and walked from their cars or from their homes to Crescent Road, carrying lawn chairs, cameras, and drinks. The mood was light-hearted, and children scampered after candy tossed from the parade floats.

Two gatherings, very different in nature, only days apart. But as the candles illuminated the faces of children, I felt a seed of hope for the future, despite the uncertainty of what might come.

- Marat Moore

Other vigils and special prayer services were held throughout Greenbelt that week. Fund drives for the Red Cross were started at Greenbelt Elementary School and Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

An Unforgettable Trip . . .

About an hour out of St. Louis on our way to BWI after a week-long family reunion in Iowa, we heard the pilot announce that we were landing in Louisville, Ky., because two planes had been hijacked and the Pentagon had been bombed. We couldn't imagine what he was talking about and decided that probably it was a rumor or threat and we were landing as a precaution. Soon we learned the horror of the attack and found ourselves spending three days in Louisville watching TV and talking with strangers about what had happened.

- Ray and Sandy Smith

Waiting by the Phone . . .

Then Army Staff Sgt. Nathan P. Jones, recently assigned to work at the Pentagon, about 1 p.m. told his concerned parents, Elaine and John Henry Jones, "I'm okay. It was like an earthquake, before the smoke . . . we evacuated. I walked my staff (all women civilian employees) over here to Rosslyn and sent everybody home."

Police Officers Help at Pentagon

Police officers were on the scene at the Pentagon from Friday, September 14 through Monday, September 17 and were expected to maintain a presence there for the rest of the week. Those who volunteered worked 12-hour shifts directing traffic, checking credentials and directing military, medical, Red Cross and Salvation Army personnel and the media to specific staging areas. Citizens brought clothing, food, beverages and other necessities "to make sure that those working throughout the days and nights were taken care of."

- Elaine Skolnik

9/11

Kemp was among the first responders to the attack on the Pentagon.

After reciting the Pledge of Allegiance to a huge American flag hung high above a Greenbelt fire truck, the crowd listened to Whitney Houston's rendition of "America the Beautiful" and Allen Jackson's "Where Were You When the World Stopped Turning?"

Four city councilmembers also spoke briefly. Leta Mach thanked the crowd for coming out and claimed that the shock of 9/11 was so searing that only the shock of President Kennedy's assassination affected her as deeply.

Konrad Herling claimed that the devastation of 9/11 demonstrated that "we can transcend our challenges. Americans can unite and survive." Ed Putens spoke of the eerily empty airports, bereft of travelers, as he flew from Mississippi to be at the ceremony in Greenbelt. He also reminded us that the cataclysm of 9/11 hits us personally because two of the terrorists frequented Greenbelt and were treated by doctors here in Roosevelt Center," as he pointed to the medical center 30 yards away.

Silke Pope said that the destruction of that day "was a terrible tragedy." Like Mach, like many of us, Pope "can remember 'exactly' where I was. I think we should never forget."

Dr. Laura Kessler, a veterinarian, was already on a direct response team at the time of the 9/11 attacks. "We were already trained, had our gear and our protocols and were ready to ship out in 24 hours." As she watched the Twin Towers collapsing repeatedly on TV, she knew her unit would be called. Kessler spent two and a half weeks at ground zero in New York City, joining other rescuers in their noble work.

To grieve, to experience loss reminds us of our connectedness to the human family. Perhaps our moment in the candlelit night reminded us that though we have lost much, we have much to cherish.

Barnwell Leads Free Community Sing

As the second offering in the "Take Five" series, Dr. Ysaye M. Barnwell will conduct a community sing in the Gildenhorn Recital Hall on Tuesday, September 20 at 5:30 p.m.

In this two-hour experience participants actively engage in singing rhythms, chants and songs from African and African-American traditions. The focus for this sing will be music created during slavery: spirituals, ring shouts and children's game songs.

Known to Washington area audiences since 1979 as a vocalist with Sweet Honey in the Rock, Barnwell appears on more than 30 recordings.
