75th Anniversary

Books Written about Greenbelt

by Sandra A. Lange

Over the past 75 years a literary cottage industry has formed around Greenbelt. The Rexford Guy Tugwell Room at the Greenbelt Library is filled with newspaper and magazine articles about Greenbelt's cooperatives; students have written papers on Greenbelt's planned community and art deco features; candidates for masters' and PhD degrees have written books on the social experiment inherent in Greenbelt's history. And if you peruse Amazon or eBay, you will find editions of old books about Greenbelt selling for $40 to $200 plus shipping.

The most recent new book is in the Arcadia Publishing Images of America series called simply "Greenbelt." Written by former Greenbelt Museum director/curator Jill Parsons St. John and current museum Director/Curator Megan Searing Young, the paperback book contains many photographic images celebrating Greenbelt's history as a planned Editor Mary Lou Williamson and written to commemorate the city's 50th anniversary celebration in 1987. A ten year update, 1987-1997, appears in a later edition of the book.

This hardback book traces Greenbelt's history beginning with the acquisition of land by the federal government, the town's physical construction and its social construction. Later chapters address the War Years, Utopia in Transition (post World War II), Growing Pains (60s) and Greenbelt in the 70s, 80s and 90s.

Many Photographs

Page after page of the work captures dozens of photographs from private and public collections revealing the social, political, recreational and educational workings of the city over six decades. Each chapter had been written in an informal manner by community leaders and professional academics. The work also contains a comprehensive list of city councilmembers, Greenbelt organizations, a bibliography and an index.

Almost anything anyone wants to know about Greenbelt's history can be found in this one book. As Williamson noted in her acknowledgments, "We . . . [wanted] a full size book rich in photographs and rich in personal accounts." Copies are still available for purchase at the Greenbelt Museum shop. It is also selling on Amazon at prices ranging from $50 to $198.99 plus shipping.

community from its 1937 inception to the present.

The book was reviewed by Virginia Beauchamp in the December 29 issue of the News Review. Purchasing it at the Greenbelt Museum shop helps support museum and 75th Anniversary activities.

Community Church Pastor Retiring for New Service

by James Giese

Reverend Daniel R. Hamlin, pastor of Greenbelt Community Church, announced his planned retirement to his congregation by letter and at the worship service on January 8. Hamlin will retire on June 30. He has been pastor for more than 27 years, the longest serving pastor for that congregation.

Hamlin plans to continue to live in Greenbelt, he said, but expects to do a lot of traveling. Under a grant provided by the Church World Service, a charity sponsored by churches throughout the country providing assistance to those in need both here and abroad, Hamlin plans to travel some two months a year in this country. He will give talks with slide presentations on how the organization's CROP hunger relief program has transformed populations lacking water and other means to produce food. (Crop was formerly known as the Christian Rural Overseas Program.)

In 2010 Hamlin traveled to Kenya to see first-hand how these programs had helped provide wells to villagers whose women and children had previously had to spend much of the day walking miles to water sources and returning with large, heavy containers filled with water for family use.

CROP Hunger Walks, sponsored by area churches and churches throughout the country, are held annually to raise funds for this program. Greenbelt Community Church, although modest in size in membership, has been a consistent leader in fund raising. It usually wins the "Holy Sole" award for participating area churches and ranks nationally in the top 10 among participating churches of the United Church of Christ (the denomination to which the Greenbelt church is affiliated).

Rumi Forum

Hamlin has also established a friendly relationship between his church and the Rumi Forum,

Great Kick-off for City's 75th Diamond Jubilee

by Thomas X. White

After nearly two years of planning, the festivities celebrating Greenbelt's founding in 1937 were launched on Sunday, January 8 as part of monthly Artful Afternoon activities at the Greenbelt Community Center. For the many Greenbelt youngsters and oldsters attending the events from 1 to 4 p.m., the 75th Anniversary Committee and arts coordinator provided an outstanding array of activities, dedications, minimal speeches, a very enjoyable operatic performance and a good first-taste of what is in store for Greenbelt during its diamond jubilee year.

Dedication

The first formal activity of the afternoon was the dedication of the "Faces of Greenbelt" ceramic tile panel at the hallway on the second level of the Community Center (near the Center's back stairwell). The panel had been a community Artful Afternoon project implemented by Mary Gawlik, artist-in-residence and ceramics instructor at the Community Center. The panel consists of 34 individual artistic impressions created by participants from the very young (2 to 3 years) to 75 plus years of age.

At the dedication, Mayor Judith Davis used Mary Gawlik's words to describe the project's purpose: "to create a piece that expressed community faces that are as diverse as all of us and work to create a beautiful work of art." And, the mayor added, "it took the work of many to create the panel, just as it takes many to make a viable community."

Anniversary Mementos

At the back of the Community Center auditorium, crowds were getting their first view of the set of four ceramic tiles depicting Greenbelt icons – such as the Mother and Child statue, the historic Old Greenbelt Theatre, the more modern entrance to the city's Aquatic and Fitness Center and a specimen Greenbelt tree. The tiles could be ordered on Sunday at $125 for the entire set or $35 each for individual tiles. Other items, such as T-shirts, posters, coffee mugs and a handsome backpack, all with the 75th anniversary logo, were also on sale.

Beltway Plaza's Greenbelt Place Plans Now on Hold

by Thomas X. White

At the Greenbelt City Council's annual stakeholder session with Beltway Plaza management on January 4, councilmembers learned that the proposed Conceptual Site Plan and rezoning request for the mixed-use infill development at the rear of the Beltway Plaza Mall has been put on hold pending the outcome of the ongoing Sector Plan and Sectional Map Amendment for the Maryland Route 193 corridor. This item was one of several discussed at the stakeholder session.

Six members of council and the city manager were in attendance. Councilmember Silke Pope was out of town. Marc "Kap" Kapistan represented Beltway Plaza shopping center.

Although there was no published agenda, Mayor Judith Davis listed the proposed development plan, mall security and "How is business going?" as topics for the stakeholder session. Responding to her question, Kapistan noted that holiday shopping at the mall was a decided improvement over 2010 and that mall tenants were generally happy with the results.

He noted that one large vacant space remains within the mall and that management is pursuing several potential tenants for space vacated by Sports Authority some time ago. He noted as well that the recently published announcement by Sears/K-Mart of expected store closures will include the Sears Appliance outlet operating the past two years in the mall west wing.

Within the mall one or two other small shops may close in the near future, he said.

On the bright side, it was noted that the new Joe's Crab Shack is doing very well and that the renovated Giant and Target also continue to do well. Kapistan said the theater multiplex could be better but that theater competition in the area is very tough.

Members of council asked about various shops, noting that some of the smaller shops were vacant. Councilmember Edward Putens suggested mall management might consider some "community" uses for such space, noting that other centers used such spaces to attract shoppers to their centers.

Council also complimented Kapistan for the music programs scheduled at the mall center stage and encouraged him to include more of that type of attraction. Such events are scheduled on

Memorializing Golden Joe

There is a growing group of "Old Greenbelt Days" members on Facebook made up of people who grew up here, lived here at some point and people who are very informed about Greenbelt. A large number of them knew Joe Natoli well and also visited his shop many times.

Joe was a large person in a lot of our lives and we think Greenbelt should honor him in some way. Among the suggestions: renaming the Community Center (Center School) or the movie theater. Another idea was to place a plaque outside his shop memorializing him and marking it a Greenbelt historic landmark. I contacted Councilmember Konrad Herling to add my support to doing something suitable.

It would be wonderful if this "gets out there," catches on and generates feedback resulting in a fitting tribute to Joe's memory.

Mention of Antismoking Lawsuit a Skewed View

While grateful for the News Review's year-end round-up of 2011's biggest stories, I must object to mischaracterizations of the tobacco lawsuit for $600,000 against the GHI community.

First, in describing David Schuman's suit against all of us in GHI, GNR says he litigated only "after unsuccessfully seeking remedy by other means." At no time did Schuman bring his complaint directly to the membership, the ultimate means of appeal before suing a cooperative. In that way he might well have solved any real or perceived problem before taking actions that have contributed to sharp increases in our cost of legal insurance and our co-op fees.

Second, the GNR account also claims Schuman was "seeking a ban on smoking both inside and on the patio of the neighbor's unit. . . ." Readers ought to know that Schuman sought in court to suppress smoking anywhere at all in the neighbor's yard, not merely the patio, as confirmed by your own reporting on August 18.

Third, GNR erroneously says ". . . consultant and expert witness James L. Repace spoke of . . .

the inability to prevent air and smoke . . . from entering from outside [outdoors]. . . ." There are audio recordings of that event in addition to news reports and I was there: Repace never claimed smoke could not be mitigated or prevented from entering the home from the outdoors; rather, he took his dubious measurements through an open window.

Indeed, given the consent-based injunction banning all smoking indoors in the adjacent unit, all Schuman must occasionally do is close his windows if the vestiges of cigarette smoke from outside irritate him. Is perpetuating a lawsuit more reasonable than closing your window? That simple act of neighborly compromise, among others, could avert any need for more litigation but Schuman has opted otherwise, preferring the costly courtroom instead.

If it were only one mischaracterization by GNR, I would think it only an error. But three in one paragraph, all in favor of the plaintiff, leads informed readers to think the writer has a clear bias. More worrisome, readers less informed about the litigation are left by GNR with a false understanding of this very burdensome, very unreasonable lawsuit and David Schuman's plainly irrational appeal.

Andy Carruthers

Editor's Note: We agree that the suit sought to ban the neighbor from smoking in his yard. We stand by the remainder of the story summary.

Middle School Task Force Corrections

The annual summary of the News Review's "Top Stories" is a helpful and interesting memory aid and an important part of our community's historical record.

Unfortunately, this year's summary contains inaccurate information about the Greenbelt Middle School Task Force.

Last June (not "July"), the city council accepted an Interim Report from the Task Force. The report's recommendations were summarized in the Preface:

"1. We recommend working . . . to purchase (for "a minimal fee") part of the Greenbelt Middle School, after its renovation. The rest of the building should be demolished."

"2. We recommend using the renovated part as a comprehensive community center, to be managed by the city."

"3. We recommend supporting a wide range of needed community services, including a neighborhood center, in partnership with a variety of private and public agencies."

The report never recommended acquiring the entire building because of the high costs for renovation ($15 million) and operation ($1.8 million annually). Nor did council request an "alternative plan". . . "that brought renovation costs under $1 million."

The Interim Report is available on the city's website and was summarized in two News Review articles in the July 21, 2011, issue.

Corrections

In a call for artists to exhibit in space at the New Deal Café that appeared on page 11 in last week's paper, there was an error in the email address. The correct address is newdealcafeart@yahoo.com.

In reference to last week's top stories of 2011, we were reminded that the devastating earthquake in Japan was March 11, 2011; that it was not a full week between the earthquake here on August 23 and Hurricane Irene's arrival on Saturday, August 27; and that it was 20 Hillside that was without power for a week afterward.

We've Moved!

Electronically, that is.

On Friday, January 13 at 7:30 p.m. a free open house folk dance party will be held at the Greenbelt Youth Center. Participants will celebrate the coming season of international folk dances with dance instructor Roland Forbes. Light refreshments will be served.

The joy of moving to music, meeting great people, getting exercise for the mind and body are all benefits offered by dancing. Wear comfortable clothes and shoes. Partners are not necessary and many circle dances will be learned. There will be an opportunity to sign up for Friday evening classes through the Greenbelt Recreation Department.

Focused on the message that some forms of racism are societal rather than interpersonal, the film deals with the ways banks, lending agencies and other institutions control how mortgages are provided to different groups, resulting in racial bias in housing. "House" is the third of a three-part PBS series on "Race: The Power of an Illusion," broadcast several years ago. Although Greenbelt is not mentioned, scenes from the early years of Greenbelt are shown in the film.

Following the film, discussion will be led by Dianne Lyday and Nora Howell from Baltimore Racial Justice Action.

GATE Has Nonprofit Day for Taping PSAs

The Greenbelt Access Television (GATE) studio will hold a nonprofit day Saturday, January 21 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. to allow Greenbelt-based nonprofit organizations to present a 30-second public service announcement. On a first-come, first-served basis the PSAs will be taped and edited for showing between programs on the GATE Channels, Comcast 77 and Verizon Fios 19.

Organizational presenters should bring a draft script including name, their organizational name, a brief description of the mission or event to be publicized and contact information. Any additional supporting pictures should be brought in as jpegs on a CD. GATE recommends against wearing all black, all white or small patterns as those do not videotape well.

A professional grade Auto-script teleprompter is available so there is no need to memorize a script, though good familiarity with the contents is highly recommended. GATE is located on the second floor of the Greenbelt Community Center, across from the Multipurpose Room.

GATE is prohibited by law from promoting commercial organizations or commercial events including raffles, sales and lotteries.

Another nonprofit day will be held on Saturday, February 18. For further information call the GATE studio at 301-507-6581 or MaliaMurray@hotmail.com.

Obituaries

Robert T. Bonham

Pioneer Greenbelter Robert Thomas Bonham, 87, died in his sleep at Riderwood Village on December 18, 2011.

Born in Baltimore, he came to Greenbelt when his widowed mother Bertha Bonham was able to purchase a home in the new town of Greenbelt and he and his siblings were reunited after having been separated.

He graduated from Greenbelt High School. At the school he was manager of their champion basketball team in 1941. The team's record was 13 wins, no defeats.

Later he attended St. John's College in Annapolis. During World War II he served as a Navy Lieutenant. At age 19 he became the youngest officer to serve on a LST in the South Pacific.

After the war he earned a law degree from the University of Chicago. Back in Greenbelt he worked for the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative and became its president. Mr. Bonham was appointed to Greenbelt's eighth city council (1949-51). He attended the Community Church.

He worked as a developer of cooperatives and as a real estate developer for most of his adult life. From 1949 to 1955 he worked for the U.S. Housing and Home Finance Agency, becoming involved in planning urban renewal. As chief of the State Department's Agency of International Development (AID) program in South America he set up credit unions and cooperatives to improve the lives of the poor.

He led a pilot project of the Rockefeller Foundation in 1968 to convert a dilapidated building in the Bronx in New York to affordable condominiums. He also worked as a director of New York's South Street Museums. Later he returned to Maryland and directed one of the first condominium conversions in Adelphi.

Mr. Bonham was married for 53 years to Mary Jean McCarl, the daughter of Greenbelt's first dentist. After her death in 1999, he married Jean Morgan of Silver Spring in 2003, who survives him. Also surviving him are his children, Daryl Bonham Leach and James T. Bonham of Silver Spring, Jan B. Gauvain of Wisherly, Texas, and Dr. Robert Bonham of Honolulu, Hawaii; sister Barbara Young of Greenbelt; six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

A memorial service was held on Sunday, January 8 at the Montgomery Station Catering Room in Riderwood Village.

whose mission is to foster interfaith and intercultural dialog. In 2008 he traveled to Turkey as a guest of it and the Gülen Islam movement. Now he has been invited to do some writing and accompany tours two or three times a year to help in interpreting Turkish culture and explaining the good work being done by the Gülen movement for academics, journalists and religious leaders who take the trips.

In his letter to the congregation Hamlin said it was with "heavy heart" that he had decided to retire. However, he said, "I do want to spend the rest of my life doing what I can to feed the hungry, provide what is necessary for people to lift themselves out of poverty and bridge divides of religion and culture. I will continue to work for peace. I prefer to think I'm not retiring. I'm making a "vocational realignment."

At the January 8 worship service, Hamlin conducted a question and answer session instead of delivering a sermon. As it concluded, he was lauded for his service to the church and to the community, following which the membership gave him an extended standing ovation.

The membership of Greenbelt Community Church will choose the next person to serve as pastor. Hamlin has recommended the selection be delayed and an interim minister be employed.

John Lucero

There will be a viewing for John Lucero, who died on January 8, 2012, at Beall's Funeral Home, 6512 Crain Highway, Bowie on Friday, January 13 from 2 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. A funeral service will be held at Holy Cross Lutheran Church on Saturday, January 14 at 10 a.m., with a committal service to follow in Pennsylvania Saturday afternoon.

Gretchen at the reception

A Fond Farewell

The reception for Gretchen Overdurff, outgoing GHI general manager, was held on Sunday, December 11th at the Greenbelt Marriott. It was a delightful celebration acknowledging the 17 plus years she has diligently served the members of GHI. Representatives from the cooperative industry, GHI members, city officials, relatives, GHI staff and friends gathered to thank Gretchen for her dedication, hard work and tremendous contributions to GHI and the cooperative world. There were speeches, good food, gifts, and presentations on behalf of the GHI Board, members, staff and the City of Greenbelt.

A special chorus serenaded with songs written just for the occasion.

Contact GHI for Help with "Proof of Insurance" Requests

In January or soon thereafter, many GHI members will receive a letter from their mortgage lender asking for proof of insurance for 2012. The letter will ask for "property insurance on the collateral," "hazard insurance," "Group Master Policy," "Master Insurance Policy," or "condo insurance." This is the insurance GHI carries on the structure of your unit, not the HO6 policy that members are encouraged to have for their personal property and liability. Please pay attention to this letter, because if your lender does not receive proof of insurance by a certain date, they will purchase the insurance on your behalf and charge you for it.

We can easily take care of this process for you. Please forward the letter from your lender to Kathie Linkenhoker in the Finance Department, and she will take care of getting the necessary proof of insurance to them in a timely manner. If you have any questions, please contact Kathie at 301-474-4161, x146, or email klinkenhoker@greenbelthomes.net.

Addition Maintenance Program Update

Since April 2011, a GHI Addition Maintenance Program Task Force of membership volunteers has been meeting to examine the existing Addition Maintenance Program and make recommendations to the GHI Board for improvements. The Board has approved the Task Force recommendations for a study of a small number of heated additions currently enrolled in the GHI addition maintenance program. A random sampling technique will be used to select a diverse representation of existing additions.

The purpose of the study is to collect detailed information about major building components and systems within additions such as roofs, windows, doors, wiring, plumbing and insulation to guide planning and funding of long-term replacement needs. Information from this study will help ensure that all homes enrolled in the Addition Maintenance Program can be maintained in a safe and cost-effective manner. Generally, this type of assessment should be conducted every 4-5 years to ensure sound financial planning. A 2008 study only assessed a small sample of additions from the exte-

Real Estate Taxes in Your Co-op Fee

The December 13 Corrected letter gave members a breakdown of their monthly fees including their share of GHI real estate taxes. (The first letter contained wording for 2012 but data for 2011). In 2012, for the first time, members' taxes reflect the County assessment on their home, rather than the share previously assigned by a GHI formula. The following information answers questions raised by members:

- The tax on GHI common land is divided equally among all members and is $6.38 per month of a unit's tax bill. This is included in the tax shown in your notice.
- Real estate taxes include city, county, state, park & planning, stormwater/Chesapeake Bay water quality, transit, and, where applicable, credits such as Homestead and Homeowners' tax credit.
- In the past GHI received Homestead Tax Credit (HTC) for all its members. This credit is no longer available to members who recently purchased a unit, are subleasing their unit, or are claiming HTC on another property. Their tax amount reflects the loss of HTC.
- As was previously reported, the deadline for appealing 2012 real estate taxes was January 3. More information is at www.ghi.coop/content/ghi-real-estate-tax-seminar-notes.

- GHI pays 2012 real estate taxes in September and December. Any interest earned on the taxes collected since January is added to the replacement reserves. This makes members' 2012 Replacement Reserves contributions lower than they otherwise would be.
- The Homeowner's Tax Credit limits the amount of real estate tax you must pay based upon income. If your gross household income for 2011 was $16,000, you need not pay more than $420 real estate tax on your unit for the year ($35 per month). The limit increases by $90 per thousand of income, so a 2011 income of $22,000 would limit your tax to $960 for the year ($80 per month). The deadline to apply for this credit is May 1. There are residency and other requirements. Pick up information and forms at GHI or go to <http://www.dat.state.md.us/sdatweb/htc.html> for more details.

For more information e-mail klinkenhoker@greenbelthomes.net or call 301-474-4161 x 146.

Attention Members: GHI Board Seeks Feedback on Shed Rules

On Thursday, December 15th, the GHI Board accepted a final version of proposed rules changes for sheds at GHI, in the form of a replacement for section IX of the Member's Handbook. In general, it loosens the requirements for sheds.

Major changes from the current policy are:

- B.2: A one-bedroom frame unit that has only a serviceside yard is allowed a shed in that yard; the neighbor's approval is not required for this.
- C.2: Wood-framed and vinyl sheds are allowed up to 80 square feet, or even 100 square feet in a few cases, subject to the restriction of at most 8% of the yard area. There is no restriction on shed roof styles.

C.3: Sheds of up to 24 square feet (such as trash storage containers) can be of any material except metal.

C.4: Decorative elements such as cupolas and weathervanes are permitted without height limits.

To see the full draft section and make comments, visit the website www.ghi.coop and search "shed rules" or pick up a hard copy at the GHI Administration Building. All member comments must be in writing and submitted to Rean in the Technical Services department by Wednesday, February 29, 2012.

In with the New: The Open House reception held on December 29th gave members and staff an opportunity to say farewell to outgoing general manager, Gretchen Overdurff as well as joyous best wishes to incoming general manager, Eldon Ralph. The Open House was held from 4-7 pm in the GHI Administration Building.

Picture on Left: Gretchen officially passes the Chief's Hat to Eldon. Picture on Right: Special thanks to the Transition Team for their many months of hard work to ensure a smooth leadership transition for our cooperative. two Sundays of each month, this month on January 15 and 29.

Security Issues

Kapistan said security at Beltway Plaza is fine. He admitted, however, that he misses the dedicated Greenbelt police officer position removed after the shopping center reduced its funding support for the police substation there by $20,000. He feels mall security officers are doing a fine job, however. Their chief of security has now been on the job for two years, he said, and is focused on ongoing training of security employees.

Overall Kapistan believes crime is down at the center. There have been no stolen vehicles since 2009, he said, and if he listed a crime problem, it would be shoplifting.

Davis welcomed the good news but she said, "Crime is the major reason people will not shop at the mall." Kapistan agreed with this perception but noted that the majority of customers are from Greenbelt West and neighboring areas. Nevertheless, he welcomes residents of Greenbelt center and Greenbelt East to the mall.

There were suggestions from council for improved lighting and especially more lighting for the rear parking lot. Kapistan noted recent and ongoing improvements for the mall facades and for signage.

Another topic raised by Kapistan was council's increasing emphasis on economic development. He noted similar emphasis by the City of College Park and urged council to learn from their office for economic development.

Davis responded that the city's effort is only beginning and has resulted from efforts by Councilmembers Konrad Herling and Emmett Jordan, who had urged council to pursue the topic.

Kapistan also mentioned economic development efforts by the county government, which is now bolstered by a $50 million fund to provide financial incentives, as well as Tax Increment Financing (TIF), impact funds and bond authority.

Finally, councilmembers noted the poor condition of the relatively unused parking lot across Cherrywood Lane from the Giant store. Davis asked about large trucks sometimes parking in that lot and the generally poor condition of the paving.

This discussion then led to council's request that Kapistan consider an improved walking/bicycle path in the area providing a safer access to Berwyn Road leading to Lake Artemesia.

The 75th Anniversary Committee is selling commemorative tiles at the Kick-off program Sunday at the Community Center.

Another popular item was a handy fold-over flyer with information on historic Greenbelt, the 75th Anniversary Committee and a fairly complete month-by-month schedule of upcoming 2012 Anniversary events.

The next scheduled event is a Greenbelt Museum lecture on January 17, "Behind the scenes of Arcadia Images of America: Greenbelt." A gala dinner dance and homecoming weekend are scheduled for the weekend of October 13-14. Anniversary events are also available via the internet at www.greenbeltmd.gov/75.

Mayor's Remarks

As 3 p.m. approached it was time to take a seat in the Center auditorium for another talk by the mayor and the preview operatic performance by the Bel Cantanti Opera Company. Community Center staff were busy bringing in extra chairs for the overflow audience even as Davis began her remarks.

She started by congratulating the 75th Anniversary Committee who have been working on plans for nearly two years. Davis also briefly described Greenbelt's history and its celebrations of the 25th and 50th anniversaries of the city and how those events had focused on how the Greenbelt legacy can be celebrated and preserved, including the founding of the Greenbelt Museum.

Noting that she has lived in Greenbelt for only about half of Kwang Kyu Lee (Herr Buff), and Michael Brown (Herr Frank) share the stage in Mozart's one act opera Der Schauspieldirektor (The Impresario).

Greenbelt's history, she asked how many present have lived in Greenbelt for over 50 years. At her words a good representation of the audience stood up.

Included among those standing were two members of council, Rodney Roberts and Konrad Herling. When she asked if there were any sons or daughters of Greenbelt pioneers in the audience, two people stood up – Bob Sommers and Lee Shields.

Finally Davis asked all those under 15 years of age to stand up and then announced, "They are our future Greenbelt Pioneers who will carry on the city's ideals and create an even better Greenbelt."

The Impresario

As described in last week's issue, Greenbelt had an opportunity to see a preview performance of one of Wolfgang A. Mozart's comedic farces, Der Schauspieldirektor (The Impresario). The five-person cast and music accompanist from the Bel Cantanti Opera Company provided an entertaining and accomplished performance for those attending.

The company was led by Artistic Director Dr. Katerina Suvorova, who also provided piano accompaniment. Players included Michael Brown as Herr Frank, the Impresario; Kwang Kyu Lee as Herr Buff, his assistant; Adam Juran as Herr Eiler, the agent; Elizabeth Turchi as Frau Herz, the older primadonna, and Nora Richardson as Frau Silberklang, the younger primadonna (to be). Even English super titles were provided left of the stage and the Community Center's ample stage proved to be an excellent venue for the production.

The debut performance of the opera is scheduled for later this month at the Jewish Community Center in Rockville. More information is available at www.belcantanti.com.

All in all, a very good launch for Greenbelt's diamond Jubilee year.

Earlier, historian Joseph L. Arnold had spent much of his academic career writing about Greenbelt. In 1971, his Ph.D. thesis was published by Ohio State University Press. Titled The New Deal in the Suburbs: A History of the Greenbelt Towns Program, 1935-1954, it addresses the construction of the community in relation to the New Deal policies and ideals of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The work describes the interactions among government officials, city planners, interest groups and individuals who both fought for and opposed a new type of suburban housing development.

Arnold places the construction of Greenbelt within the context of the Great Depression and of reform programs coming out of the New Deal. He covers the politics leading up to the sale of the town by the federal government. Arnold's book is out of print but available on Amazon for about $40.

Book by Warner

One of the earliest and most interesting books about Greenbelt was published in 1954 by a pioneer resident. George A. Warner and his family lived in Greenbelt from 1938-1941 and he served as mayor from 1940-1941. Warner wrote Greenbelt: The Cooperative Community: An Experience in Democratic Living.

Warner focuses on how the carefully selected tenants formed a new community. He explores their attitudes toward cooperative organizations, health and recreational facilities. His is a personal point of view as an organizer and driving force within the community. He describes everyday life in a conversational style, including details such as how his wife felt about her all-electric kitchen and who would be selected as the new pastor of the Community Church.

Warner also describes voting for the first town council and the cost to operate the municipal swimming pool. He embraces the opportunities and recognizes the pitfalls of living in a cooperative community run by the federal government.

Another early work is by Clarence Stein, noted architect and planner in the early part of the 20th century. Stein had a keen interest in the three Greenbelt towns (including Greendale, Wisc., and Greenhills, Ohio). An early proponent of planned communities and garden cities, Stein was chief architect and planner with Henry Wright of the communities of Sunnyside Gardens, N.Y., and Radburn, N.J., both forerunners of the Greenbelt plan.

In 1957 Stein wrote Toward New Towns for America in which he discusses the planning features of several of the housing projects he had worked on and others that had been inspired by his planning principles.

Stein followed early developments in the Greenbelt towns and met with town planners, government officials and other decision makers. He applauds the planning features that echo those he had designed for Radburn, such as the superblocks, central green areas, inner walkways separating pedestrian and vehicular traffic, houses that face garden areas and the park as the backbone of the neighborhood. His book is interesting in the context of comparing early Greenbelt to the 11 other garden cities he evaluates in terms of their successes and failures.

Knepper's Book

Finally, a more recent book, published by Johns Hopkins Press in 2001, is Cathy D. Knepper's Greenbelt, Maryland: A Living Legacy of the New Deal. Knepper focuses on ideology, the social experiment, the struggle to maintain cooperative ideals and community activism.

She delves into many of the battles fought, especially those over zoning, development and fair housing. She muses as well over the early influential role of the Cooperator, later renamed the Greenbelt News Review, over all aspects of community life.

These books and more are available at the Greenbelt Library. Out-of-print books can also be obtained online through various bookstores, as well as Amazon and eBay.

Of special note are transcripts from the 1970 libel suit against the Greenbelt News Review. Greenbelt Co-operative Publishing Association vs Bresler (Charles), U. S. Supreme Court Transcripts Record with Supporting Pleadings by Roger Clark, is available on Amazon for about $50.

This document, not for casual reading, contains the arguments in the News Review's successful bid to overturn the rulings of two lower courts that had held in favor of the developer. An historic Freedom of the Press victory on behalf of the News Review, the work reflects Greenbelt's strength in support of its community newspaper.

Recycling Society Wins "Most Humorous" Award

by Tom Jones

The all-volunteer Greenbelt Recycling and Sustainability Society (GRASS) won the Most Humorous trophy at the 2011 Labor Day Parade in support of their theme encouraging residents to be familiar with which items can be recycled.

Their entry was called "Which Bin?" and was staged as a rolling gameshow which quizzed members of the public about whether specific items – such as a book or metal faucet – are recyclable in Greenbelt's single-stream weekly residential recycling program. (All books – hardcover, softcover, catalogs and phone books – can be placed in the recycling bin. Metal parts small enough to fit in the recycling bin are also recyclable, including faucets.)

Alan "Zip" Duda, who led the group as the gameshow host, said he enjoyed his role. "When it was clear we had expert contestants, we challenged them with more difficult items like an aerosol can or battery." (Aerosol cans are recyclable once they are empty. Household alkaline batteries can be dropped off at My Organic Market in College Park or at the city's Electronic Recycling Events held every three months.)

Johanna Goderre Jones played the role of a recycle bin and Frank DeBernardo was a trash can, competing for each item. Once the audience settled on an answer of which bin would receive an item, Judge Louisa Robles sounded her verdict with a bell or vuvuzela horn. Robles is employed as recycling coordinator for the City of Greenbelt, and said "I enjoyed answering participants' questions, like explaining that individual plastic bags and other thin plastic material clog machinery at the recycling plant and must not be put in the recycling bin. But they're easily processed when stuffed into a single bag and should be recycled."

Karen Wallace constructed many of the 20 giant props used to quiz contestants. "I enjoyed the challenge of creating a three-foot tall orange juice carton and a CD strong enough to survive the rugged demands of the parade." (Orange juice cartons and other gable-top containers are recyclable. Compact discs can be recycled at Best Buy or the city's recycling events held every three months.) The largest prop was a five-foot Generous Joe's Pizza Box. (Pizza boxes are recyclable, once wax paper and leftover pizza are removed.)

Kim Kash – who calls Greenbelt home but currently lives in Saudi Arabia – distributed recycling flyers to the crowd so they could master the "Which Bin?" game every day at home. Those flyers are available on the web at spril.com/recycling along with more photos of the award-winning parade entry.

Other society members in the parade were Martha Heil and Tom Jones. The society was formed to march in the parade with a creative theme but holds no regular meetings. Several team members were part of last year's Get My Drift Society, 2009's Greenbelt Sun Dried Garmenture Society Drill Team and 2008's Greenbelt Reel Lawnmower Society Precision Drill Team.

The Recycling Society demonstrates which household items can be recycled in Greenbelt's program and which items should be trashed. The members of the team are: back row, Johanna Goderre Jones, Alan Duda and Frank DeBernardo; front row, Tom Jones, Kim Kash, Karen Wallace, Martha Heil and Luisa Robles.
