

How to Vote Absentee In the General Election

by Kathleen Gallagher

As was the case for the June primary election, a low voter turnout is projected for the 2014 Gubernatorial General Election on Tuesday, November 4. Nonetheless, voters not wanting to take a chance on long lines at their assigned polling place have options.

No reason or excuse is required to vote absentee in state elections in Maryland. For no more than the price of a telephone call and a forever stamp, voters can vote by mail from the comfort of their armchairs by using an absentee ballot. Early voting (which was discussed last week) will be an option from October 23 through 31.

Application Deadlines

Qualified voters preferring to be absent from their polling place on election day may submit an application to receive an absentee ballot from the Prince George's County Board of Elections in Largo. The deadline for submitting the application depends upon how the voter wishes to receive the ballot. To have the board send out the ballot by mail, the application must be received by 8 p.m. on Tuesday, October 28 if it is received by mail or hand-delivery. If the application is sent by fax or email, it must be received by 11:59 p.m. on October 28.

If the voter prefers to download a ballot from the state board of elections website, the deadline for submitting the application: Friday, October 31 at 11:59 p.m.

Getting an Application

How can one get an application for an absentee ballot? There are three ways.

Those who have a Maryland driver's license or an identification card issued by the Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA) can fill out and submit the application online. If preferred, an online form may be printed out and returned to the county board of elections by mail, fax or email (scanned as an

Pepco Officials, Council Discuss Excelon Merger

by James Giese

Jerry Pasternak, Maryland regional vice president for Pepco, informed the Greenbelt City Council at its September 17 stakeholder worksession that Pepco will merge with Excelon Corporation. Pasternak attended the meeting with Excelon employees Tami Watkins, public affairs manager, and Susan Marinelli, energywise rewards program manager. With City Manager Mike McLaughlin and Assistant City Manager David Moran away attending a conference, IT Director Dave Worley and Assistant Public Works Director Jim Sterling staffed the meeting.

Other matters discussed included the status of pole replacement in the city and the recent power outage at Greenbriar Condominiums.

The merger requires the approval of the Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and District of Columbia public service commissions. Excelon itself was formed with the merger of Consolidated Edison (ConEd), supplier of electricity in New York and Chicago, and Peco, the supplier in Pennsylvania. More recently Excelon acquired Baltimore Gas and Electric (BG&E).

The Pepco group to merge includes Delmarva Power and ACE, which now supplies power to Pepco, which then distributes it to consumers.

According to Pasternak, Excelon proposes to provide liability standards higher than what is required. ConEd and Peco are "top performing" companies, he said, and Excelon is on the cusp of bringing BG&E to that status as well. The merger will provide a $100 million customer investment fund, of which $40 million is allocated for Maryland to provide financial assistance for energy costs to those in need.

Excelon guarantees that the charitable levels of the companies, now at a peak, will continue for another 10 years. For employees, the company has entered into three-year collective bargaining contracts with the unions involved and has guaranteed no reductions in force due to the merger. For the Maryland economy, Pasternak predicted that 3,000 to 7,000 new jobs will be created.

Green?

Councilmember Judith Davis asked, "How Green is Excelon? If it is that huge, it must have the opportunity to do something significant."

Pasternak responded that it was one of the top 10 clean energy producers in the country and a leader in solar and wind power. It also is the largest producer of carbon-free energy in Maryland. Pepco, too, has factored in climate changes in what it does, he said.

Pasternak also pointed out that See PEPCO MERGER, page 7

Kristen Beauchamp and Labbe Sisters Are Misses Greenbelt

by Valerie Young

The Miss Greenbelt Pageant represents more than glamour and beauty. This historic pageant focuses on education and community service.

The 60th annual Miss Greenbelt Pageant was held on Labor Day weekend. Kristen Beauchamp was crowned the 2014 Miss Greenbelt, Jeriah Labbe won Junior Miss Greenbelt and her sister, Jade Labbe, won Little Miss Greenbelt and the Most Spirited title. This is the first time in the pageant's history that two sisters won titles.

"I have observed the growth in them, in terms of their poise, communication skills, their ability to work together with a group of girls, and to really develop relationships," said Tasha Labbe, Jeriah's and Jade's mother.

When preparing for the pageant the contestants learn interview techniques, meet professionals in the industry, study current events and learn how to speak in front of an audience.

"We try to teach the girls life skills that they are going to use in their everyday life," said Natasha Jewell, president of the Miss Greenbelt Pageant. Jewell was the 1983 Miss Greenbelt winner.

Twenty-five contestants competed for the crown this year.

"I am so proud of every contestant that participated because it takes so much courage to get out there and compete," said Jewell.

The three winners not only have beauty and poise, but they have brains and are willing to get out and help in the community.

Miss Greenbelt

Kristen Beauchamp, 16, a junior at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, is no stranger to the Miss Greenbelt pageant. She has competed since she was eight years old. Kristen won the title of Little Miss in 2008, was first runner up to Junior Miss in 2010 and first runner up to Miss Greenbelt in 2013. She is proud to finally win the title in 2014 and said that being Miss Greenbelt is different from being Little Miss.

"It's a whole other world. It feels amazing and I'm super excited for the upcoming responsibilities, appearances and being able to help the community," said Kristen.

"As Miss Greenbelt you have to take care of the other younger girls and become a sister to them and be a role model."

After graduating from high school Kristen plans to become a pediatric nurse. She loves drama and acting. She has performed in the winter musical at the Community Center. Her favorite classes are television production and forensics. In her free time she enjoys watching movies and hanging out with her friends.

Kristen said that sometimes pageants are frowned upon because they are more focused on the beauty and the crown.

"For us it's more of serving the community and being smart," she said. "It's a different type of pageant, it's a scholarship pageant."

"It's really brought me out of my shell and made me become a more confident young lady. I hope a lot of other girls will join in the pageant and get the same experience I have had."

Junior Miss Greenbelt

Jeriah Labbe, 13, is an avid reader and plans to become an author of fantasy novels.

Her favorite fantasy novels are The Lord of the Rings and The Chronicles of Narnia. She is homeschooled along with her sister. Jeriah rides horses and plays the violin. She has a creative mind and loves arts and crafts. Her favorite subjects are grammar and Latin. Last year, Jeriah was second runner-up to Junior Miss.

"She was more of the shy one and she has really grown as a young lady during this pageant," said her mother.

"Before I started this pageant, I was so shy, I couldn't even talk to the person at a register. I would have my little sister go up and ask them for me because I was so shy," said Jeriah.

Letters to the Editor

Beijing and Facebook

Some folks say that Facebook is a poor substitute for "real life" connections. But sometimes, it helps make them.

It started with a simple posting on the Greenbelters Facebook page: a customer at the Beijing looked around when he was dining one recent evening and noticed that the room was rather empty. "Their business is taking a real hit from the theater renovation," he noted in his posting. Many folks chimed in, with much discussion around the relative merits of a few of the local Chinese food restaurants but a consensus did seem to emerge: it would be a shame to see the Beijing go out of business because the theater's temporary closing had apparently pulled away some of its customer base.

And with that, one poster suggested that the group get together for dinner to support the Beijing. It was decided that they would meet Wednesday, October 8 for an evening of food, fortunes and friendship. The group included Lawrence Phelps, Maureen Wheeler, Diane Fishburne, Brett Fishburne, Svetlana Bunina, Christina Kavanagh, Angelo Parisi, Angie Parisi, Janice Wolf, Sheila Maffay-Tuthill and me. Some of the members knew each other already, but many did not, so it was a great way to have some face time after Facebook.

It was also a reminder that what makes the Greenbelt community so great is its individuals. And it takes individuals to keep our local businesses thriving. Let's try to remember our neighbors at Roosevelt Center, particularly while the theater remains closed, so that we can continue to enjoy their presence in our community.

Pumpkin Walk Carvers Wanted

For 26 years, the Pumpkin Walk has helped bring our community into the forest and has known many variations. This year, our goal is to put as much of the Greenbelt community into our community forest as we can so we can all appreciate the value of this special place. In just one week, we will be reviving popular past aspects of the Pumpkin Walk by hosting a community carving party in Roosevelt Center on October 24 with music and free pumpkins, hosting a nature walk during daylight hours on October 25 led by plant and wildlife biologists, and inviting more mischievous creatures onto the trail on the evening of October 25 to join the infamous Goatman. The walk, however, will remain family friendly.

We are also adding new concepts to make this the most inclusive walk ever. This year we are challenging at least 50 different Greenbelt groups, businesses, and city departments to carve a pumpkin to place on the walk to illuminate our community spirit. We are almost half way there and look forward to more groups and businesses stepping up to participate!

And finally, we have strengthened communication with the Forest Preserve Advisory Board and the City's Planning and Community Development Department to provide stronger educational programming, particularly on our Facebook page. This is especially important because the Pumpkin Walk's roots are about inspiring community members to care and protect our forest. Greenbelters are invited to join us for a full series of events happening all around our community for the next several weekends that involve pumpkins, forests and fun here in Greenbelt to make this the most fantastic Greenbelt Pumpkin Festival yet! Find us on Facebook at the Greenbelt Pumpkin Festival page, so you can follow along and learn about the fun to come!

Thanks to all the judges, volunteers, attendees and the hardworking Public Works employees for the tables and chairs. See you next year at the Retro Town Fair.

In last week's issue, the city ad gave the correct date of Thursday, October 23 for the School Board candidates' forum. The What Goes On box had the correct date but the wrong day of the week.

In the October 9 News Review, the article headed Senior Open Forum on page 13 should have noted that Councilmember Judith Davis was present.

New Organ Recital At St. Hugh's Oct. 25

St. Hugh of Grenoble Roman Catholic Church is holding a recital and blessing of the new church organ on Saturday, October 25, at 6:30 p.m. Dr. Hampson Sisler of New York City will perform a repertoire of sacred music that will showcase the full range and power of the new organ. He will be assisted by Dr. Christopher Linstrom and St. Hugh's choir under the direction of Jennifer Goltz. A dessert reception will follow the recital.

Following a significant fund drive, St. Hugh's parish has obtained the gently-used Rodgers Masterpiece organ. Installed last spring, the organ is played for services under the direction of the principal organist, Dr. Gerald Muller, who also is the director of music at Catholic University's seminary.

Linstrom, who lived in Greenbelt for many years, is a medical doctor as well as an active musician and singer. He has performed in the United States and abroad.

For questions about this free recital, contact the church during office hours at 301-474-4322. Information is also available on the church website sthughofgrenoble.org.

Workshop on Biblical Storytelling Oct. 25

Rev. Fay Lundin will be performing "So There We Were - Faith in the Storm," a collection of biblical stories of storms at sea on Friday, October 24 from 7 to 8 p.m. Then on Saturday, October 25 at 10 a.m., she will offer a 90-minute workshop on biblical storytelling. Both are free and will be held at Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church.

Long before the narratives of the Bible became "scripture" ("writing") they existed in oral form as stories shared in the faith community and passed down from generation to generation. Rev. Lundin, the pastor of Mowatt Memorial UMC, is a biblical storyteller and member of the Network of Biblical Storytellers International. The Saturday morning workshop introduces the art and spiritual discipline of telling the sacred stories of the Bible. Participants will learn to prepare, learn, and tell a biblical text by heart (not "memory") using the methods of the Network of Biblical Storytellers International. Even if they choose not to tell biblical stories by heart, using these techniques, participants will gain skills reading scripture aloud, and experience the sacred stories in a new light.

“This pageant has really just opened me up and taken me out of my shell and given me all the self confidence that I really needed,” she said.

Little Miss Greenbelt

Jade Labbe, 10, said she wants to be an actress and dancer. In her free time she likes to dance, draw and play outside with friends. One of her favorite subjects is science because she likes experiments. Similar to her sister, she enjoys grammar and writing. Jade won the Most Spirited award and her mom wasn't surprised.

“She was really excited about the pageant and that is why she was getting everyone pumped up about the dance, the interview and the pageant walk. She gave it her all,” said Tasha.

“I think the pageant is a really fun way to express yourself,” said Jade.

The pageant is a way to grow self-confidence.

“Speaking loud and pronouncing my words is kind of hard especially on a big stage when everyone is staring at you, but you just have to have confidence to speak and show your true self.”

“I'm very proud to see their growth and their tenacity in sticking with the pageant and working hard to make progress in their personal areas,” said Tasha.

The girls will continue to raise money for charity groups. They will be attending community service events every month. The first Sunday of every month, the winners attend Artful Afternoon at the Community Center, where they help with the arts and crafts.

“The girls are not just wearing a crown, they are doing work and helping in the community,” said Jewell.

attachment). The voter may also choose to call the county board of elections and ask to have a ballot application mailed or to go to the county office in person to fill out an application.

In applying for the ballot by any method, the voter will designate a preference either to receive the ballot by mail or to be notified to download it electronically from the state board of elections website.

After the application deadlines have passed, a late absentee ballot application would have to be completed in person at the county board of elections office. For information about late ballot applications, call the board office at 301-341-7300.

Voters who cannot themselves go to the county board of elections office may designate someone to take their completed application form to the county board and pick up the ballot. Doing so requires completion of a "designation of agent" form, which is available online or from the county board of elections office. The ballot itself will contain detailed instructions for completing and returning it.

Ballot Deadline

A voted absentee ballot must either be mailed with a postmark no later than November 4 or delivered in person to the county board of elections office no later than 8 p.m. on November 4. Ballots cannot be submitted online or by email or fax. Nor can they be taken to an early voting center or to a polling place on election day. A ballot mailed by November 4 must be received by the county board of elections office no later than November 14.

Overseas Voters

The previous deadlines apply as well to overseas and military voters. Detailed information for Maryland voters abroad is given at elections.maryland.gov/overseas_voters.

For questions on absentee voting, go to elections.state.md.us/voting/absentee.html, or contact the Prince George's County Board of Elections, 1100 Mercantile Lane, Suite 115A, Largo, MD 20774, 301-341-7300 or election@co.pg.md.us. Operating hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Pepco will "still be Pepco," and that Excelon recognizes local control is important to successful operations. Although Pepco and BG&E will be owned by the same company, they will continue to operate separately. Pepco will maintain its current regulation by Maryland, Virginia and D.C.

Energy Programs

Marinelli began the work-session with a presentation on Pepco's Energy Efficiency Programs. $124 million in cash incentives are available to Maryland Pepco and Delmarva Power customers to achieve a goal of 15 percent reduction in per capita energy consumption, she said. These include in-store discounts on energy saving lighting; rebates for purchase of Energy Star appliances; cooling appliance recycling; quick home energy checkups that provide free light bulbs; rebates for energy saving home improvements, such as added insulation, and for air conditioning replacements; and assistance for those below certain income levels.

There are also energy rewards for those who agree to install programmable thermostats or outdoor switches to limit use of heating and air conditioning on peak usage days. Pepco also has a variety of incentives for commercial and industrial users.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts noted that both he and his mother had quick home energy checkups and had had light bulbs replaced but that his mother later complained about not having enough light. It was noted that energy saving compact fluorescent bulbs take time to become fully bright after being turned on.

Mayor Emmett Jordan asked if Pepco could give a breakdown of community members participating in the energy saving programs.

Pole Replacements

Watkins provided council with an update on Pepco's program to replace utility poles and remove trees and branches that might cause future outages. She said they wrapped up doing what she called "liability work" in June. There is still landscape repair work to be done, she said, and Verizon and Comcast still have to move their lines to many of the new poles, resulting in double poles in the interim.

Jordan asked if Pepco notified Verizon and Comcast that the poles are in place. Pasternak said they did, but when Davis asked when the lines would be moved, he said that he can't speak for them — they have different priorities. Pasternak said Pepco had some control over Comcast, but not over Verizon. He said in this instance these utilities might be more responsive to requests made by the city government.

When asked how one can tell which wires belong to which utility, Pasternak said that Pepco wires are at least four feet above the others. Those wires are generally below the street lights. However, if someone sees a loose wire, they should immediately call Pepco, lest anyone should mistake a live electric wire for a telephone cable.

Jordan asked if meters installed three years ago are showing benefit. Pasternak said a resident could monitor usage of electricity on an hour by hour basis and then shift usage to off-peak hours. Pepco can "ping" the meters after an outage to see if power has been restored to a particular place. When there is an outage, workers can tell if it affects only a few homes or many, and thus prioritize their work.

With the new meters, there is no longer a need to do estimated readings, Pasternak said. However, homeowners can arrange to pay an average monthly billing to avoid extremely high bills during peak periods.

Concerning outages, Pasternak talked about flickering lights. If a tree limb falls on a wire causing a short, lights will flicker as a check is run to see if the limb has fallen or is continuing to short the system. After three unsuccessful checks, the system will shut down and the lights will go out, he said.

Hispanic Heritage Month Marked with Music, More

by Joey Trull

Local radio station El Zol 107.9 celebrated National Hispanic Heritage Month on October 5 with an event complete with drawings and prizes at the Beltway Plaza Mall.

The event was to celebrate children and their families' origin countries and heritages as part of National Hispanic Heritage Month, which takes place annually from September 15 through October 15.

The grand prize of the event was a $500 shopping spree at the Beltway Plaza Mall.

The event took place in the center of the mall in front of the movie theater surrounded by food establishments and other shopping attractions. Lively Hispanic music could be heard throughout the mall as well as outside in the parking lot.

El Zol 107.9's popular on-air personalities Patricia De Lima, DJ Solido and DJ Xplosive Boom played music while coordinating contests throughout the event for prize giveaways.

De Lima was friendly and took pictures with the dozens of people in line to sign up for the shopping spree as the event kicked off at 3 p.m.

Children were allowed to spin a large prize wheel for prizes that included Annabelle movie posters and masks, plastic cups, sunglasses, t-shirts, towels, candy and more.

Adults also signed up to win tickets for a D.C. United soccer game and tickets to the new movie Annabelle.

Smiling parents watched from seats surrounding the mall area with the radio event in the center as children played musical chairs to win a mall gift card. The children's heritages included Mexico, Honduras, El Salvador, among other countries.

A young boy with El Salvadoran heritage won the musical chairs game and was awarded a gift card. He told De Lima he was going to buy new shoes with the prize money.

After awarding the gift card, the DJs allowed more children to roll a giant die for smaller prizes.

De Lima called more children to the center of the event area to play a version of Simon Says which quickly was exchanged for another round of musical chairs due to some of the children's shyness. The prize winner, a young girl whose family is from Honduras, earned a ticket to the movie Annabelle.

This is the first celebratory partnership for Hispanic Heritage Month between Beltway Plaza Mall and El Zol 107.9, said Director of Marketing for Beltway Plaza Mall Janubi Devendra.

Devendra explained that they chose for the event to take place on a Sunday during Hispanic Heritage Month due to the regularly high Hispanic shopping traffic.

Devendra said they wanted to have the event in October since most celebrations for the heritage month take place in September.

Talon, D.C. United's feathered mascot, danced and took pictures with the children playing musical chairs for prizes before the grand prize drawing. Talon also played a round of musical chairs with adults competing for tickets to D.C. United games.

Veronica Manso, whose nation of origin is Mexico, won the drawing for the $500 mall gift card. Manso promptly took her family into the adjacent Kids Footlocker to kick off the shopping spree.

De Lima drew more names from the box to award more tickets to adults for D.C. United soccer games.

The crowd grew to over a hundred before the event was halfway over. Because of the high turnout and success of the event, Devendra said she expects the mall and radio station to partner again next year.

"Are You Ready?" Event in Greenbelt

by Sharadha Kalyanam

On Sunday morning, September 28, Boy Scout Kristopher Weene was busy tying up a wound. Using a bamboo stick and bandanas, he was stabilizing his fellow-scout Brian's leg, as part of a safety drill.

"We are fixing Brian's leg pretending like it was broken. We put a splint on it using two bandanas and two bamboo sticks," he said, explaining how emergency preparedness is indispensable, especially during a hiking trip.

Weene is a senior patrol leader with Boy Scout Troup #746 and was participating at the second Annual "Are You Ready?" event organized by a number of state and Greenbelt organizations, including Greenbelt Homes, Inc.; the Greenbelt Police Department; Maryland Defense Force; Animal Response Teams of Montgomery County Office of Emergency Management and Home Security; Laurel Community Emergency Response Team; Berwyn Heights CERT; Greenbelt Public Safety Advisory Committee (PSAC); and Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad.

The Roosevelt Center on Sunday saw an impressive turnout of people who flocked in with their children and their pets to see what was in store. The gallery area of the Center had several stalls put up by various volunteer groups which had come to convey their messages and suggestions to people on how to cope with an emergency.

The key message for the day was preparing for a disaster and to protect families and pets in case of a calamity using an emergency plan of action.

Howard Edelstein, from the Animal Response Team of the Montgomery County Office of Emergency Management and Homeland Security, suggested that it was very important for people to plan for their pets in case of a disaster. "When you evacuate you want to always make sure you take your animal with you," he said.

The key recommendation was to have enough supplies on-the-go. "If you need to go in a hurry you must have it all ready to go: food, water, a picture with your animal, medicines. Another good thing is to have a buddy system with your neighbor so that if you are not at home and something occurs, they can take care of your animals for you," he said.

Hurricane Katrina

The whole idea of having an emergency plan for your pets sprung up after Hurricane Katrina, Edelstein said. In New Orleans, Louisiana and the surrounding area, people put their own lives at risk to save their animals.

"Since they weren't allowing animals during the rescue operations, there were a lot of them stuck. Thousands and thousands of animals died and a lot of people died because they wanted to stay with their animals and did not want to abandon them," he said.

Edelstein encouraged people to plan for their farm animals too. "Make sure that if you need to evacuate there are vehicles to get them out of there and that you have several routes. If you can't take them along, make sure you let them out into the field and do not keep them cooped up in the barn," he said.

He said that animals should not be left chained up because in case of a disaster they will not be able to run for their lives. "Earthquakes, hurricanes, fires, snowstorms – when you want to leave, take them with you. Plan ahead. Plan for yourself and plan for the animals," he said.

GHI staff discussed their disaster preparedness plan too. PSAC displayed a number of FEMA pamphlets on the same subject, some in Spanish and some in Braille.

Alice A. Mitchell, Affiliate Assistant Professor of Counseling, Higher Education and Special Education at the University of Maryland, was at Roosevelt Center on Sunday spending time with hearing impaired people – something she does every week. After seeing the event, she decided to attend it. "I've lived through some emergencies myself: earthquake, fire alarms, overheating appliances. Knowing how to behave in such situations decreases damage, certainly decreases injury, protects life and all those good things," she said.

72-hour Kit

To all the visitors at her stall, Karen Holmes, staff sergeant at the Maryland Defense Force, had only one thing to say: "Be ready. Make your own 72-hour kit."

She said that the kit comes in handy in case of a disaster. "Your 72-hour kit should have cash, medication, clothing for a couple of days to change in and out of and wash, food, water, batteries, flashlights, portable transistor radio, candles and all kinds of stuff you can grab and go," she said.

"Personally I have one in my car and one at the front door of my house and one in my office. I have kits in all three locations. It is better to be ready and be safe instead of waiting for something to happen," said Holmes.

She also said that it should be done for each family member. "That way the kit or bag is for a person's needs," she said.

"We work as a community liaison. When something like Hurricane Sandy came up or a couple of weeks ago at Baltimore when the Star-Spangled Spectacular was there, I got activated to go up to the Maryland Emergency Management Agency and I was working in the Maryland Joint Operation Center. And we coordinated stuff with the military at various locations," she said.

Chief Thomas J. Ray from the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad Inc. was manning another stall and couldn't stress enough that each family have a plan to handle an emergency and that family members should sit and discuss to come up with a plan.

"You always want to come up with a plan before an emergency arrives. Like a safe place to meet outside and don't go back inside once you're out," he said.

Meanwhile, scout Weene was performing an emergency drill on another patient: Jaky Lilly, a stay-at-home mom from Greenbelt. "I really liked the homemade stretcher. It was a good idea and you can make that yourself. If you couldn't get to emergency services right away you will be able to stabilize yourself. It is an important skill," she said.

Canine Good Citizen Test to Raise Funds

On Sunday, October 19, Allie W. Lee, professional obedience instructor, owner of Greenbelt Dog Training and a certified American Kennel Club (AKC) certified Canine Good Citizen (CGC) evaluator, will be administering a dog training test at the Greenbelt Fire Department on Crescent Road from noon to 3 p.m. For more information go to greenbeltdogtraining.com/. There is a fee, with all proceeds donated to Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad.

How will a dog and its owner react in a crowd when distractions happen – a horn blaring, a bicyclist out of nowhere or children approaching the dog too quickly? The AKC created the CGC in 1989 to evaluate how observant owners and their dogs will react to sudden distractions. For more information go to akc.org/dogowner/training/canine_good_citizen/links.cfm. Dogs will be tested in the order they arrive and register. The test takes 10-15 minutes: plan a half hour for each dog tested.

Additional activities (for an extra fee) include: A Micro-chip Clinic by Roxie's Fund Rescue group. Micro-chipping is the recognized as the best way to find a lost animal. Pictures of owners and their pets will be taken for a fee. A nice holiday card idea?

Karen Haynes, Therapy Dogs, Inc., will be evaluating potential therapy dogs. Pre-registration for therapy dog evaluation is required. Contact Karen at 301-372-1117 or karenmelhayes@yahoo.com.

Series on African American History at Greenbelt Library

by Auburn Mann

Greenbelt Public Library has long been the scene for learning through scholastically based dialogue. This tradition continues this fall with the return of the weekly African History lecture series. Headed by the library's frequent guest African American historian C.R. Gibbs, the series will take place every Tuesday evening until November 18. In addition to Gibbs' contribution, the series will headline a dynamic assortment of speakers and provocative topics.

On September 16, the series kicked off with Gibbs' presentation on the history of the "N" word and its inherent evils. "It's one of the most inflammatory racial epithets that is still in the English lexicon," said Gibbs, who spent the evening providing the historical context behind the word. Gibbs employed a plethora of graphic visuals, statistical data and gripping anecdotal examples to illustrate his ultimate point. "There is great pain and degradation behind that word," he said.

"Many didn't want me to give this presentation," Gibbs revealed. Referring to the shortened slang form in which the word has been transformed from its original "er" suffix to feature an "a" sound that is commonly associated with contemporary hip-hop culture,

C.R. Gibbs

Gibbs said, "It's still the same word, no matter how you spell it."

He went on: "Words have meaning, words have power."

Six Books

Gibbs, an award-winning scholar, is author and co-author of six books on subjects ranging from black innovation and their martial contributions to the U.S. Civil War to the demographic shifts in Georgetown. He has been giving presentations around the Washington metropolitan region for over 25 years.

The proliferation and longevity of the series, which originated in the Frances A. Gregory Library in southeast Washington in 1989, is evident. "We are the longest running, continuous lecture series on African history and culture on the east coast," declared Gibbs.

Also participating in the series was the renowned D.C. statehood proponent, Green Party activist, former NASA astrodynamist and black Civil War expert Asa Gordon, who spoke about reparations on September 23. On October 7 Afrocentric fashion historian Rosemary Reed-Miller presented the chronology of Afro-American fashion designers and lecturer Sam El-Amin enlightened the audience on Africa's connection to the Middle Age crusades.

Steady Consistency

Librarian Elizabeth Wilkins, who occasionally assists with presentations at the library, has witnessed the series' consistency over her tenure at the Greenbelt branch. "He [Gibbs] has a loyal following," she said, "of people that can come from quite a distance."

Gibbs described his overall mission as being to educate and empower. "People don't respect you if they feel you don't have a history worth respecting. I want to show that we have brought many things of significance to humanity's narrative", he said.

City Completes Energy Efficiency Projects for First of Two Grants

In March 2013 the City of Greenbelt was designated a Smart Energy Community through the Maryland Energy Administration (MEA). The goal of the program is to help local governments adopt policies for long-term sustained energy savings and renewable energy development. The benefits of becoming a Smart Energy Community include: statewide recognition as a leader in energy and sustainability; reduced greenhouse gas emissions and utility expenses; and eligibility for state grant money.

To qualify as a Smart Energy Community, the city adopted policies in two categories established by MEA. First, an energy efficiency policy that requires the city to develop a goal and plan for reducing energy consumption by 15 percent in city-owned buildings within five years. Second, a renewable energy policy requires the city to reduce conventional electricity generation and meet 20 percent of the electricity demands of the city's buildings with renewable energy generation by 2022.

Upon adopting the policies, the City became eligible for grant funding through MEA. The first grant of $63,935 was used to replace lights at a number of city facilities:

– The interior lights at the swimming pool in the Aquatic and Fitness Center. Eighteen 400-watt metal halide fixtures were replaced with LED fixtures using only 169 watts, a 58 percent reduction. These lights also have sensors for daylight harvesting, which allows them to use less energy on bright days.

Close view of light installation.

– The exterior lights at the outdoor pool, eight 400-watt metal halide fixtures were replaced with 171-watt LED fixtures and four 1500-watt metal halide fixtures were replaced with 263-watt LED fixtures, reductions of 58 and 82 percent respectively.

– Gym lights at the Youth Center, 12 400-watt metal halide fixtures were replaced with eight 146-watt LED fixtures and four 98-watt fixtures with a dimming system.

Gym lights at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, 15 400-watt metal halide fixtures were replaced with 172-watt LED fixtures.

The energy efficiency improvements will result in estimated cost savings of 65 percent in the areas where LED fixtures were installed. The projects also increased lumen output and improved lighting.

A second grant of $80,000 will be used for energy efficiency improvements at the Police Station and the Public Works facility over the next six months.

As a result of these and other efforts, electricity consumption at city facilities was nine percent lower than 2012 consumption. "The completion of this project has put the city well on its way toward achieving the goal of reducing consumption by 15 percent by 2017," said Jim Sterling, assistant director of Public Works.

Master Gardening Taught By Extension Offices

by Margaret Beblasis

Esther Mitchell, coordinator of Prince George's County Extension for the Master Gardener program, was alone in the Greenbelt Library's book discussion room when the building opened Saturday morning. "Sometimes we get a crowd and sometimes we don't," Mitchell said.

October 4 was one of those latter days. Elizabeth Wilkins, librarian, said the turnout for these programs is usually better, but due to this one being rescheduled from September and a lack of flyers to hang on bulletin boards, no one attended this time.

"It's mutually beneficial for us because it fills their mission to share knowledge and the public likes it," Wilkins said. "It's a pretty good copasetic program."

The Master Gardener program is organized by the University of Maryland Extension Offices in most counties and Baltimore City, according to its website. For the past 10 years, Master Gardeners have been certifying properties as 'baywise,' which can reduce property taxes. In Prince George's County, the program intends to provide homeowners with information to protect the environment, with special emphasis on maintaining the tree canopy.

"Trees offer natural air conditioning," Mitchell said during her presentation. "Trees are least expensive considering the impact due to size. You may pay a lot, but it ends up providing you with so many benefits that you will recoup what you spent on that tree and more as far as oxygen and heating bills."

Voluntary, Master Gardeners members have over 40 hours of training on a variety of topics, from Saturday's Trees for the Home Gardener program to Herbs for Cooking, an option Wilkins said was more popular. They also teach seminars at local plant stores like Behnke Nurseries and community colleges, as well as offer programs geared toward children.

When she moved to Greenbelt 15 years ago, Mitchell's backyard was nothing but a huge hill. After growing up in Washington, D.C., with a love for flowers and space in the yard, she and her husband Ernest decided to plant a garden.

Mitchell took a few classes on perennials, but when those flowers died, she continued taking classes until she earned her horticultural certificate. Twelve years ago, she looked into the Master Gardener program in the county, applied and took the courses so she could become certified.

"I like to beautify things," she said. "I like for people to appreciate nature and what nature can provide them with that money can't such as songbirds and butterflies and trees that produce leaves and flowers that you can't get anywhere else."

"It's like a sunset," she continued. "You can't buy a sunset. You either take a picture and keep it or that's it: it's gone forever."

Trees, as Mitchell said in her presentation, leave a living legacy and become "part of the community environment." When she first moved in on her block, her neighbors didn't have many trees or flowers. "People saw what we did out front," she said, "and that got people really fixing up their yards. "If we're using trees as a source of living, then it becomes natural as to have trees around as it is for us to breathe."

Democratic Club Shifts Meeting Site and Date

The Eleanor & Franklin Democratic Club will meet Saturday morning, October 18, at the Eleanor Roosevelt High School parking lot at 10 a.m. to canvass District 22 on the upcoming general election. Wear comfortable shoes and be prepared to do some walking.

The Club will have supplies for the canvassing. While Maryland is a "blue" state that generally votes Democratic, this canvassing is part of a county-wide effort to get the vote out, as a large turnout in Prince George's County will be critical to Lt. Governor Brown's electoral chances to become governor, as other areas of the state generally vote Republican.

During this "Day of Action," club members will be urging voters to vote for Brown as well to re-elect Congressman Hoyer; State Senator Pinsky; Delegates Healey, Gaines and Washington; and Todd Turner, who is running for a county council seat to replace retiring Ingrid Turner.

Other ways Greenbelters can help get the vote out is through phone banking on Monday, October 27. Bring a phone to 10236 Lake Arbor Way, Largo, from 6 to 9 p.m.

The general election is Tuesday, November 4, from 7 to 8 p.m. Early voting will take place from October 23 through 30 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Board Nominations: Elections for the Roosevelt Club board will take place soon. If one wants to get more involved and active, now is the time to speak up. Board meetings are held once a month on the evening of the first Sunday. General membership meetings generally occur once a month.

For more information, call 301-220-1025.

Ageless Grace Seminar And Educator Certification

The City of Greenbelt, MRPA Therapeutic Recreation Branch and Ageless Grace are providing Ageless Grace Seminar and Educator Certification training sessions on Wednesday and Thursday, November 12 and 13 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Greenbelt Youth Center. These programs will train new Ageless Grace educators.

Fitness professional Denise Medved created the Ageless Grace program – 21 Simple Tools for Lifelong Comfort and Ease. The movements, performed in a chair, focus on the healthy longevity of the body, mind, emotions and spirit. Each tool focuses on a different anti-aging technique, e.g., joint mobility, spinal flexibility, right-left brain coordination, bone density, muscle mass, cognitive function, fall prevention, systemic stimulation, balance, confidence and playfulness.

The Ageless Grace program is ideal for those wanting to find a program allowing them to function with maximum ease and minimum effort. The 21 tools are playful, creative and varied and recommended to be practiced 10 minutes a day, every day for the best cumulative benefit. Ageless Grace not only addresses aging factors in the body, but all tools focus on improved cognitive function while simultaneously supporting ease of movement.

The seminar will teach participants how to practice the program at home on their own and also encourages social interaction and improved attitude and outlook

Educator Certification

The Educator Certification trains new educators about Ageless Grace and how to teach Ageless Grace classes.

The seminar and certification will be led by Medved, a leader in the world of fitness for the last 25 years. Sons of Pioneers Revisit Their Utopian Childhood

by Marshall Gerstell

Whenever I return to the Washington area from Atlanta I have two purposes: to be with my grandgirls in Great Falls, Va., and to catch up with my Greenbelt "Sons of the Pioneers" (SOPs). I contact a member of our old gang, Don Walker – who, like me, came to Greenbelt in 1937-8. Don is the glue to our gang, the grand communicator and organizer. This visit Don set up a meeting with other members of our gang who were available – John Schaffer (25 Court Ridge) and Joe Carstens (69 Court Ridge). This time Don decided to meet at the Pleasant View Nursing Home in Mt. Airy, Md., to visit another SOP, CJ Falcon (21 Court Ridge). CJ has been in a nursing home for some time, so it was time to let him know we missed him and to revisit the good old days of our utopian childhood in Greenbelt, circa 1938-1955. Mike Cockill made a visit to see CJ two months ago.

CJ's daughter, Michelle, was there to greet us. She thoroughly enjoyed our tales of childish pranks and other exploits unfamiliar to her and buried deep in our memories until then.

We found CJ to be in good spirits, laughing along with our tales, often adding comments we had long forgotten.

A big surprise to me was that Don, the great organizer, also invited another SOP, whom I had long forgotten – but who remembered me from when we went to Greenbelt Center School: Ray Frank. Ray now lives in New Market, Md., not far from Mt. Airy. Ray left Greenbelt after the fifth grade, moved to Arlington and went to high school with CJ. Ray, an ardent collector, brought along pictures of our first grade classmates and teacher, Ms. Lieberman. Ray identified better than 60 percent of the 25 students in a 1943 class photo. Amongst them were Joe Mack Schubert, Jan Andrusic, Mary Mike Ruppert, Madylin Stutz, Nettie Gump, Howard Chasnow, Diane Finlay, Mickey Eldred, Bruce MacEwan, Charlie Howey and Fred Schrom.

It's always nice to get together with friends, especially old friends; otherwise we would not be able to recount those wonderful utopian years. We all said we wish we could relive those experiences once again. And we will when we return to see CJ again, soon. Thank you, Donald, the great impresario.

Museum and Paper to Host Izzy Event

The Greenbelt Museum and the Greenbelt News Review are hosting the Remembering Izzy Cartoon Contest Reception and Award Ceremony on Sunday, October 19 from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Community Center. (This event will take place instead of a lecture on the third Tuesday of the month, when museum lectures are usually scheduled.)

This October marks the 10th anniversary of the death of Greenbelt editorial cartoonist, Izzy Parker. To honor him, the newspaper and the museum co-sponsored a cartoon contest. Join in to see all of the entries and to learn the winners. Also on display will be the panels from an exhibit that the museum created about Izzy Parker several years ago. Light refreshments will be served. All are welcome.
