Most basketball players could tell you there are rules for life within the game such as move the ball.

Marcus Riley was doing that as he set up the Springhill Lake Recreation Center basketball tournament on August 20. Some 16 boys showed up to play. They were given T-shirts donated by the company Riley works for, Paradyne Management. The kids were divided into two teams of eight. After layups and three pointers and hot-shot back-handed shots, there were snacks for all.

Riley, 24, grew up in Springhill Lake (before it was Franklin Park). He went to Springhill Lake Elementary and Greenbelt Middle School and graduated from Eleanor Roosevelt High School in 2009. He then he went on to University of Maryland where he studied environmental science and technology. After graduation he applied for an internship at Paradyne, a business management company on Edmonston Road. The internship turned into

by Lesley Kash

Greenbelt deserves the best party we can put on, right? So get ready for three whole days of music, sports, art, crafts, thrills, food, reunions, civic pride, dancing, history, cute pets, talented kids, more music, more food and a big parade. And more food. And some more music and thrills and dancing. Because it's Greenbelt, and this is how we do Labor Day.

Carnival

The Carnival Midway opens on Friday, September 4, from 6 to 10 p.m. and runs through 6 p.m. Monday. Food booths presented by Greenbelt organizations will provide a big selection of fun fast food for those who are out having too much fun to cook. For a greener festival, recycling bins and water-bottle filling spots will be handy. A high-energy musical line-up will keep spirits high all weekend.

For a calm break in the action, history, culture and community accomplishment will be on proud display. The Greenbelt Museum House and the Museum exhibit in the Community Center will illuminate early Greenbelt life. Tours, historical displays and an exhibition on the stone carving art of Lenore Thomas will open for many hours throughout the long weekend. Art and photography shows and nostalgic tours of the Community Center's classrooms-turned-art studios will offer respite and renewal between plunges into the non-stop festivities.

Friday

Local artists and photographers may submit their works to the Art and Photo Shows at the Community Center. Entries for either show will be accepted Thursday and Friday from 5 to 7 p.m. Art Show entries will also be accepted Friday from 10 a.m. to noon.

From 5 to 7 p.m. on Friday, table tennis players 16 years and older will compete for prizes in singles and doubles play at the Youth Center. Registration starts at 4:30 p.m.

The Festival's Opening Ceremonies at 6:30 Friday will introduce dignitaries and proceed to Greenbelt's premiere civic moment – the announcement of Greenbelt's 2015 Outstanding Citizen. The public is invited to a reception for the new honoree at 7:15 p.m. in the Municipal Building.

Music starts at 7:30 on the festival stage, with a surprise opening band. Then from 9 to 11 p.m., Patty Reese brings her soulful vocals to please the opening-night crowd.

Saturday

For the Reds Roland Memorial Horse Shoes Tournament, registration starts at 9 a.m., and competition starts at 9:30 a.m. Girl Scouts Troop #2799 presents the always charming Children's Pet Show. It kicks (and meows and barks) off at 9:30 on the Community Center lawn, with judging at 10 a.m. and awards at 10:30.

Information and Community Exhibits will feature local organization displays in the Roosevelt Center from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Center Ring Circus School Performance will present amazing circus acts from 11 to 11:40 a.m., and then from 1 to 3 p.m. their mini circus school will introduce various circus skills to aspiring circus performers of all ages.

The Greenbelt Museum offers walking tours at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., showing how Greenbelt families lived in the 1930s and 40s. Art and photo competition entries will be on display from 1 to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday in the Community Center. At the Youth Center gym from 2 to 4 p.m. roller skaters of all ages are invited to enjoy skating nostalgia-skates provided or bring your own.

A Memorial Gathering will honor friends and relatives who have died. After a 4 p.m. motorcycle procession, participants will gather at 6 p.m. behind the Mother and Child Statue to lay flowers and remember.

The musical line up begins at noon with mariachi band Trio Anaya. Then from 2 to 4 p.m., enjoy the "Original" Moonlighters' mix of jazz and rhythm and blues. Mary Shaver and the Smokin' Polecats bring "DC's best" rock and blues from 5 to 7:30 p.m., followed at 8 p.m. by Johnny Seaton and Bad Behavior with their ever-popular Elvis Presley tribute.

Sunday

From noon to 8 p.m. on Sunday and from noon to 6 p.m. on Monday, local artists will display handmade crafts at the Craft Fair in Roosevelt Center. Kids can begin the day with arts, crafts and face painting from 10 a.m. to

End-of-Year City Financial News, Updates by Manager

by Kathleen Gallagher

The Greenbelt City Council and City Manager Michael McLaughlin did a lot of house-keeping when they met to update on July 27. All councilmembers were present except for Leta Mach.

Update worksessions with the city manager occur on a more or less quarterly basis, with the July 27 meeting having been particularly lengthy, in part due to its focus on McLaughlin's preliminary end-of-year financial report for Fiscal Year 2015. Other topics included a review of the status of capital projects, the Pedestrian/Bicycle Master Plan, the city's Sustainability Framework, and actions taken in response to the organizational assessment conducted two years ago. In addition, the management objectives for the last fiscal year were reviewed, as was as list of council action requests from the last five years.

Finance

By the time the city manager presented his proposed FY 2016 budget to the council in late March, he cautiously projected that FY 2015 might close out better than had been anticipated when that budget was adopted the prior year. Although the end-of-year report was still preliminary, since financial transfers can last through the summer for the prior year, it was apparent that McLaughlin's projections were holding up very well. As of the July worksession, revenues were expected to be almost $26 million, which is $610,000 higher than originally expected.

McLaughlin tagged two items in particular as contributing to the increase: speed camera revenues that were $368,000 higher than expected and real estate abatements that were $215,000 lower. Abatements are difficult to predict and the city had projected them to allow for worse conditions.

Speed camera revenues are spent on public safety items that for the most part would otherwise be paid for with city tax revenues. Last year's increase was attributable to the state's finally having granted permission to add two new speed cameras, one on Cherrywood Lane southbound and the other on Greenbelt Road near Eleanor Roosevelt High School. According to McLaughlin, the city had not fully appreciated the extent of the excess speed near the high school location and now looks forward to a decline in this revenue as the problem is controlled.

Overdose Awareness

My son Kerry Mullaney and I used to attend the Labor Day Festival together. It was one of our favorite annual family traditions. We often rode the Ferris wheel together, I am afraid of heights, but I always felt safer in his company, especially when we reached the top of the Ferris wheel ride! We will never ride the Ferris wheel together again. This year my son Kerry died on February 20 of a heroin/Fentanyl overdose.

Kerry was more than a son to me; he was also my partner in our mutual recovery from alcoholism and drug use. It was both a joyful and bumpy journey that we shared over many years. I will always treasure our time together – it was filled with laughter, anniversary celebrations and many loving friends we shared in our joint recovery fellowships.

This time last year my son Kerry was still very much alive. This time last Labor Day weekend I had never heard of International Drug Overdose Awareness Day. I have since learned that it is a non-profit organization that recognizes the staggering numbers of annual drug overdoses, and provides life-saving information about how to prevent and take action in a suspected drug overdose. The Centers for Disease Control reported that over 44,000 people had died of a drug overdose in 2014. This year I will be partnering with the Greenbelt Police Department, along with my friends and Kerry's friends to provide drug overdose awareness handouts and information. We will also be joining the Greenbelt Police Department at their booth Friday night through Monday morning. Please stop by and learn essential information that might help save the life of another Greenbelt citizen.

Get it Together

As announced in the August 20 News Review, the Miss Greenbelt Pageant has pulled out of the Labor Day Festival. And the Festival schedule in last week's paper has no listing for the pageant events.

What is going on? Does the Pageant now belong to its co-chairs? Does the parade belong to the parade chair? The Pageant has been a part of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival from its first year.

Whatever happened to the spirit of the festival motto: Unity Through Community Involvement? Has the motto become everyone for themselves?

One resident, Larry Hull, has suggested mediation. If that is not successful, we recommend that the Festival Steering Committee:

(1) sponsor an organizational meeting for next year's pageant - to recruit volunteers, to consider re-structuring the pageant to reduce its staffing needs and to identify new co-chairs.

(2) officially appoint the new co-chairs and announce this decision to all current and former sponsors.

(3) start a new financial account for the pageant and roll this year's funds into the new account.

Let's get our beloved Labor Day Festival back together again - in one location, with one Steering Committee and with everyone working together. That's our tradition, and that's how we work towards One Greenbelt.

The Forest and the Fire

In reference to concerns about the risk fires pose to homes that border the Forest Preserve, it's important to know what has happened locally right in our own backyards.

For nearly 30 years I have lived next to a forest that had once connected to the Forest Preserve, on land that was developed into roads and houses. I am pleased to report this forest has survived, despite the many natural and manmade disasters. These include intense storms (that brought down trees), drastic loss of wildlife, hunting practice, eroded stream banks, poaching of trees, a major lightning strike, an unrelated fire and even an earthquake. Added to the list of these infrequent disasters, now, are claims made by professionals that vegetation allowed to remain growing in a forest encourages fires. It's not that simple. My reasons for questioning this latest claim are taken from my own observations, which I share for consideration.

When lightning struck with such force one night (where I live) during a storm, sounding like a bomb exploded, and lit up the forest so suddenly that I ran for cover within my house, the dreaded fire did not follow. The next day a visit to the tree confirmed what had happened: bark was stripped away down one side, with clear evidence another tree near it had also been damaged. Both trees were still standing, with no fire resulting in the dense understory surrounding them. Wondering why there was no sign of fire, I thought it probably helped to have living plants (filled with water) abundantly growing around their trunks. Luckily, too, this happened during a downpour. And not like out west, where I lived and experienced wildfires from lightning strikes that had lots of dried brush to fuel them.

On another occasion fire did occur in a different part of this same forest; when dead, dried up plant material that had been sprayed with a herbicide, was set ablaze during a particularly hot, dry summery day. It nearly engulfed the homes next door. What was different and why did the forest flare up this time, but not when lightning had struck? This time there were various outdoor bar-b-cues that could have sent sparks into the air, carried by wind, to the piles of dead plants left to decompose. Did the combination of burning embers connecting with chemically treated dead plant material start this unimaginable crisis? This dead plant material had been left in place to prevent forest fires, not fuel them. Or, did one or more of the chemicals used to kill vegetation contain a flammable substance that ignited the dead plants when it reached its flashpoint? According to information available to the public and licensed pesticide applicators, one of the chemicals (Roundup) that was sprayed, does release a byproduct as it breaks down: formaldehyde. It is listed as flammable (at under 140 degrees). The questions remain.

Yes, I agree forest fires must be prevented. However, I question whether killing living vegetation (invasive or not) with chemical herbicides can stop fires, as some believe. It's also quite possible that killing vegetation creates conditions that may favor fires: by smothering the forest floor with layers of dead, dry, potentially combustible plants.

I'm not only interested in my getting it right: I'm interested that we ALL get it right! Because there are no easy solutions, let caution be part of the solution. Keep the toxic sprays away from all Greenbelt forests.

How Not to Spend Your Birthday

With my daughter-in-law at the wheel of her Fiat 500, and I in the passenger seat, we drove to Lanham to pick up a friend I had invited to join us for my birthday celebration. Both my sons were waiting at my house; a fun time was waiting.

Being solicitous of my friend's chronic back problem, I voluntarily chose to curl up in the back seat and relinquished the front passenger seat for my guest. (Wasn't that the nice thing to do?)

Arriving in my court, the driver got out; the guest got out--and then it was my turn. Well, getting in was not hard but getting out was an altogether different story. Struggling to exit, I slipped back--not onto the seat, but into the well of the car, with no way to get up and out.

One son offered his arm, his strength and his advice. Then my other son offered greater strength and more advice—all good, but none of it got me out

September Fun At MakerSpace

The FIRST LEGO League (FLL) robotics season has begun. Sign up soon for one of four after-school teams in FLL, the LEGO robotics program for kids 9 to 14 years old, and in Jr. FLL for younger children. Robotics is a wonderful platform to learn skills in technical design, engineering, science and computer science, especially with FIRST programs that are both fun and competitive.

CoderDojo programming club continues on Tuesday evenings and Saturday mornings. The first club activity is forming around the infinite world of Minecraft, the popular kids' game of creative adventure. New this month is a pre-kindergarten coding class. The six-week session is for ages 4 to 6. It will meet on Tuesdays from 4 to 5 p.m.

Artists are invited to come on Sunday afternoons, from 2 to 3:30 p.m. for a weekly workshop to explore free-form watercolor painting. Under the guiding eye of a successful painting instructor, participants will be encouraged to try various methods for committing their vision to paper.

Fridays are family nights at the MakerSpace. First Fridays are game night, second Fridays are the pre-K Little Makers, and the fourth Fridays are the Fermentation Fan Club where symbiotic bacterial concoctions are explored and tasted.

To reach more community neighbors in Greenbelt East, Greenbelt West, and surrounding towns, MakerSpace is initiating a crowd-funded project to create a mobile makerspace "wagon." The MakerWagon will trek out to visit neighborhood schools, churches, and community centers with STEM education classes, arts and crafts programs, and other hands-on activities.

For more information about MakerSpace activities and programs, see make125.org or stop by the MakerSpace.

Computer Club Meets

The Greenbelt Computer Club will hold its monthly meeting on Thursday, September 10 at the Greenbelt Community Center, Room 112 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. All are welcome to our discussions of the latest in computers and consumer electronics.

More Community Events are located throughout the paper.

Golden Age Club

by Bunny Fitzgerald

The Golden Age Club enjoyed a busy month in August and welcomed some new members.

The pizza party sponsored by Mary and Barry Moien was well attended and everyone had a good time. Congratulations to the Moiens on their 50th anniversary.

Our speaker on September 9 will be Christal Batey, Greenbelt resource advocate. "What's Going On" will be her topic and she will answer questions. Christal has worked with many people in Greenbelt and helped solve problems.

A birthday pot luck luncheon will take place on September 16.

We're glad to report that Cathie Brannon, past president, is doing well and is recovering from some recent heart problems.

School is now open! Drive carefully and watch out for kids. Please stop behind a stopped school bus. Let's keep our kids safe.

Star Party to Visit Small Black Hole

The Astronomical Society of Greenbelt will host a star party, open to the public, on Saturday evening, September 5, at the City of Greenbelt Observatory, located at Northway Fields. "Visit a black hole?" one might ask, incredulous. Well, OK...right, one cannot observe a black hole. What will be observed is a blue supergiant star that is circling Cygnus X-1 (currently believed to be a small black hole in our galaxy) in a 5.6 day orbit – one-fifth the size of Earth's orbit. There will be more to see. As always, visitors are welcome to set up their own telescopes on the hill. Saturn, Neptune and Uranus will be up, and the Moon won't, so it'll be about as dark as it gets here.

Observing will begin at around 8:30 p.m. and continue for about two hours. There is no fee for the event. Attendees are asked to park in the ball field lot, not up on the hill, unless bringing a telescope. The star party will be canceled without notice if it is hopelessly cloudy.

Obituaries

Nancye G. MacCord

Nancye G. MacCord died at Holy Cross Hospital on August 11, 2015. She was a resident of Greenbelt for over 48 years, living first in the 59 Court Ridge Road and for the past four years at Green Ridge House.

Mrs. MacCord started life as a farm girl in Goochland County, Va. She was a tremendous example to women, becoming one of the first female Democratic vice chairs in the country. In 1959 she was on the stage delivering the delegates for John F. Kennedy; she worked as a political appointee for the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. She was president of the Young Democrats of Virginia.

Not having graduated from college did not stop her from doing well as a comptroller for numerous companies after she left politics and raised her son Donald. She will be remembered for her perseverance and her strength.

She is survived by her son Donald (Andrea); five grandchildren; a brother Skippy Ligon; and two nieces.

Mrs. MacCord's ashes will be buried in the family plot in Goochland.

Madagascar Featured At Aviation Museum

The Prince George's Audubon Society and Patuxent Bird Club start their 2015/16 monthly programs on Tuesday, September 8 at 7 p.m. at the College Park Aviation Museum with Madagascar – Island of Evolutionary Diversity. The speaker will be Professor Doug Gill, recently retired from the University of Maryland, who is best known to Maryland birders for his landmark restoration of grassland habitat at Chino Farms on the Chester River.

Off the east coast of Africa, Madagascar is so far from the mainland that its plants and animals have taken their own evolutionary paths, resulting in species and whole families found nowhere else on earth. It has more species of primates than in the rest of the world combined. An extensive traveler, Gill will illustrate the wonderful diversity, especially of birds, that has resulted.

This event is free. The College Park Aviation Museum is located at 1985 Cpl. Frank Scott Drive. Call 410-286-8152 or go to pgadubon.org for directions or more information

How Films Are Selected For Old Greenbelt Theatre

by Eli Flam

By late Monday every week Caitlin McGrath has to decide what will be seen Friday at the Old Greenbelt Theatre. She does it "with head and heart" – and the help of a booker in New York. Underlining the urgency of the choice is the need for the nonprofit Friends of the Greenbelt Theatre, she says, "to learn to thrive."

McGrath is executive director of the theater. She moved here in 2011 with her husband and two young children. She has a Ph.D. in film history from the University of Chicago.

McGrath finds that working with a booker (Dylan, who earns a $250 monthly fee and runs a theater of his own on Long Island) gives her more negotiating room than working with a larger distributor. At any rate, the film's producers get 35 to 45 percent of the gross.

A "clear screen" means a solo showing for the week; a "split screen" means two films taking turns, as with The End of the Tour and Rosenwald going into September. The recent Mr. Holmes was continued for several weeks, given its popularity with audiences. Standouts for several months from the past include Fahrenheit 9/11 and My Big Fat Greek Wedding.

McGrath has her eye on Grandma, with Lily Tomlin. She's pushing the boundaries on a learning curve with Phoenix in September. Outreach is pursued via a marketing committee, website and social media. Fresh weekend programming has boosted viewership. Something new is brewing at the Old Greenbelt Theatre.

of the hole. I could see all the worried faces for which I was responsible, but I was not in a position to erase their fears; actually I had my own!

Enter: my heroes! I am happy to report that this little drama ended without incident when two members of our Greenbelt Fire Department arrived.

In a flash (or so it seemed) I was up and out without a scratch, ready to resume celebrating but now with an added reason to be happy and joyful.

My special thanks to the two wonderfully helpful members of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department who made that possible for me.

Have a Hearing-safe Labor Day Festival

Let's have a hearing-safe Labor Day Festival this year. Progress was made last year as there were signs and barriers placed so that toddlers, children and others would less likely wander too close to the stage and the speakers. And there was a sign at the stage telling where one could get free earplugs.

But a problem remains. Unfortunately some feel that the bands should be loud enough so that they can be heard at prominent sound levels throughout the carnival area. Because of this the sound levels even at 20-50 feet from the stage will sometimes be unsafe for more than 15 minutes of listening time.

It's best to stay away from the bleachers and nearby areas entirely, especially if you already have hearing damage, are pregnant or have an infant or children with you, or if you are under 18, since at these ages one's hearing system is not yet fully developed.

If you believe that a band is too loud for you to safely be seated close enough to watch the performers, please say something to an event manager.

For as many of the bands as I can manage I will be present, wearing over-the-ears hearing protection (available at Home Depot etc.), and will be taking sound level meter readings and will have flyers available.

Meanwhile, please search: < safe hearing charts > and < protecting children's hearing >

Expenses, too, were down for last year. At nearly $25 million in total, expenses were $412,000 lower than in last year's adopted budget. This decline was primarily explained by lower motor fuel costs and by vacancies in staff positions.

Fund Balance

As a result of the improved outlook, a little more than $1 million is targeted for return to the city's fund balance, bringing it up to about $4.1 million or 16.4 percent of expenditures. During budget discussions earlier this year, councilmembers had discussed using some of the potential increase in fund balance to prepay some debt. McLaughlin suggested they also consider earmarking some of the extra funds for the work that needs to be done on the lake, including both the dam repair and the eventual dredging, which will bear significant price tags for the city when they arise. Council agreed to meet in early fall, when the figures are final, to decide the best way to use the funds.

Capital Projects

The city manager also updated the council on the status of major capital projects that were completed during FY 2015 or are still underway. Completed over the year were the planned renovations of the Old Greenbelt Theatre; the Safe Routes to Schools project, which included traffic and pedestrian safety upgrades on Springhill Drive; and resurfacing on Hanover Parkway and Westway.

Almost finished is the new playground at Belle Point, which is now in use and awaits only its permanent access path. Work should be done in the fall to complete the Aquatic and Fitness Center roof replacement.

Lighting upgrades at the Youth Center, Aquatic and Fitness Center, and the Police and Public Works Departments were completed under the initial two rounds of a state Smart Energy Communities grant. Round III funding of $100,000 will be awarded to the city to continue this effort with the retrofitting of the lights in the 1967 wing of the Community Center.

The much delayed renovations to the Springhill Lake Recreation Center have taken some leaps forward and should be completed before winter. Windows and the shingled roof have been replaced, and flat roof replacement and siding work are almost done. Roof replacement for the club house is still pending.

Work on the Community Center HVAC replacement, Greenbelt Lake dam work and a redesign plan for the parking lot at Buddy Attick Park are in various stages of bid consideration.

Ped/Bike Plan

Under the Pedestrian/Bicycle Master Plan, a raised crosswalk at Greenbelt Elementary School and shared-lane markings on Springhill Drive were in the works for late summer or early fall completion. According to McLaughlin, the FY 2016 budget includes bike lane markings and signage on Ivy Lane. Greenbelt East will see crosswalk striping and curb ramps at Franklin and Morrison Drives, as well as crosswalks at various locations on Ora Glen Drive.

Council was given a detailed, cumulative listing of activities related to progress on the city's Sustainability Framework. The framework is conceptualized using seven categories: Energy, Food Systems, Green Building, Land Use, Transportation, Waste Management and Water.

Organization

The city manager also updated council on actions that have been taken in response to the organizational assessment undertaken two years ago, as well as recommendations still in process or under consideration. Some of the actions taken include hiring and reassignment of information technology staff, implementation of a system for prioritizing code enforcement calls, development of a proposal for paperless agendas for city council meetings, and creation of a clinical supervisor position in Greenbelt CARES, which should reduce wait times.

Recommendations still under consideration or in the works include, hiring a deputy city manager or management analyst in the city manager's office; shifting the canine unit from special operations to patrol in the Police Department; relocating animal control and parking enforcement from Planning and Community Development; and ongoing development of performance measurement metrics in lieu of workload indicators.

Following a page-by-page review of the prior year's management objectives and the status of council's pending requests, Mayor Emmett Jordan and other councilmembers expressed appreciation to the city manager not only for the work that had gone into preparation for this worksession but also for his work and that of city staff throughout the year.

a regular job and now he is working within walking distance of his mother's apartment, where he lived when he started kindergarten.

Build Your Team

Riley heard the company wanted to get more involved in the community, and this was something he could help with. He explained he knew Brian Butler and Frank Jones at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center. "So I called them and asked if there was anything we could do to help out that might be mutually beneficial."

When told of a need, Paradyme and Riley jumped in. The company bought new computer desks for the computer lab and a new rim for one of the basketball hoops. They also set up a volleyball tournament in August as well as the basketball tournament a couple of weeks later.

The volleyball games brought out more girls than boys, and the young girls enjoyed playing against the 20-something Paradyme employees. Riley says his company is very aware of working with both boys and girls in their outreach.

Keep Practicing

Riley knows it is unusual to work so close to the apartment he grew up in. While he did live on campus while he attended University of Maryland, he has spent most of his life right here in Greenbelt. "I've known Brian for 10 years, I've known Frank for five," he said of the Greenbelt Recreation Department coordinator. "I've logged a lot of time here."

Those connections paid off as the recreation department, the kids and Paradyme all got what they wanted with the company's involvement.

Riley says they don't yet have plans for another event, but the events will keep coming. "I've been explicitly told by Paradyme Management that they would like to make this an ongoing partnership."

These are just a few of the great buys you will find at Co-op this week!

Police Blotter

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department, www.greenbeltmd.gov/police.

Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Assault

August 19, 8:59 p.m., 6100 block Greenbelt Road. A woman shopping at Target felt something touch her leg; when she looked down, she saw a man photographing under her skirt using a cell phone. He then ran from the store. He is described as Latino, 25 to 35 years old, 5'2" to 5'8" tall, with black hair, wearing a blue T-shirt with a N.Y.C. logo on the front, blue jeans and a black back pack.

August 25, 1 p.m., 7500 block Greenbelt Road. An employee at Bath and Body Works reported that after four women entered the store, one concealed merchandise. All four then left together without paying for the merchandise. The employee followed them outside and started taking pictures of them as they got into a vehicle. The woman who had concealed merchandise then drove the vehicle at the employee, who had to jump out of the way. Another woman threw a drink at the employee. The vehicle is described as a red 4-door 2014 Nissan Altima with Md. tags 6BL2890.

DWI/DUI

August 16, 2:14 a.m., 7800 block Kenilworth Avenue. A 35-year-old resident was arrested and charged with alcohol- and traffic-related charges after being stopped for a traffic violation. He was released on citations pending trial.

August 19, 1:47 a.m., Greenbelt Road near Hanover Parkway. A 21-year-old resident was arrested and charged with alcohol- and traffic-related charges after being stopped for a traffic violation. He was released on citations pending trial.

Fraud

August 19, 5 p.m., 6100 block Springhill Terrace. A woman responded to a car-for-sale ad on Craigslist. She agreed to buy it using pre-paid credit cards, which she sent via text photos to the person who placed the ad. She then received an email stating that before the transaction could be completed she would have to send additional funds to cover insurance. She did this using pre-paid credit cards. The car was never delivered.

August 21, 7 p.m., 9100 block Springhill Lane. A person responded to a Craigslist ad for a phone for sale and sent money for it via Western Union. The poster then refused to deliver the phone and blocked his cell phone from receiving further calls from the person.

August 24, 6 p.m., 7600 block Greenbelt Road. A woman reported that she lost her credit card on August 20 and that someone used the card to make several unauthorized purchases.

Theft

August 20, 2:13 p.m., 6000 block Greenbelt Road. A woman withdrew money from the ATM at Bank of America and went to Giant to shop. As she exited the store, she was approached by one of two men who began talking to her about religion. The other man then joined them. The first man asked the woman if she had any money. She showed it to him, at which time he took it and gave her a folded handkerchief which allegedly contained $25,000. He told her not to open the handkerchief until she got home. They left the area in a vehicle described as a small black car. When the woman opened the handkerchief, there was no money.

Trespass

Ready 2 Read At Library

Helping families with young children to talk, sing, read, draw/write, play and learn together is the goal of the recently opened Ready 2 Read Center at the Greenbelt Library. This space gives very young children the opportunity to enjoy literacy-rich, hands-on experiences and activities, such as blocks, dramatic play and puzzles. As they engage children in play, parents and caregivers strengthen their role as the child's first teacher and excite young minds to think creatively. An early literacy information display provides adults with ideas to take home and try. For more information, call 301-345-5800 or stop by the library at 11 Crescent Road.

Community Foundation Awards Grants at Summer Reception

Founding members of the Greenbelt Community Foundation, former advisory board members, donors and city councilmembers gather at the Summer Award Reception

We had such a wonderful time at the Greenbelt Community Foundation's 2015 Summer Award Reception celebrating our new grantees: Friends of the Greenbelt Theatre and the Greenbelt Middle School PTA. The speakers were all about impact. Caitlin McGrath shared the Theatre's plans to hold 10 events to commemorate the Foundation's 10th Anniversary, linking former Foundation grantees to topical film screenings to celebrate the ripple of our impact. Courtland Jones shared how Greenbelt Middle School is preparing to expand multi-school literacy student mentoring and programming to foster leadership among the students. What binds these projects together is the power that self-expression and art can play to strengthen our community and connect us more fully to each other.

Founding members, former advisory board members, city councilmembers, former grantees and our incredible donors came together to welcome the new grantees into the Greenbelt Community Foundation family. We got to honor the excellent work of our past executive team leaders, Suzette Agans and Carol Malveaux, in positioning us for the future and to introduce our new executive team of Melissa Ehrenreich (Chair and Treasurer), Heather Scotten (Vice Chair) and Eric O'Rear (Secretary). And we challenged each other to seize our 10th anniversary year as a golden opportunity to shine a light on the good work of the Foundation.

We've come so far since the first founding members stepped forward to start this Foundation in 2006. From six people with an idea, we have grown into a vital and vibrant community partner. We have provided $141,000 in resources to help great ideas take root in our community. And we couldn't have done it without you.

Yet we still have much to do. When you add up all the businesses operating and people living in Greenbelt, our donors represent just 1 percent. Too many people don't know that we exist or how we can help them put great ideas in motion. That's where you come in, with three easy steps that can make a world of difference:

1. Tell a friend, a neighbor or a Greenbelt business how important the Foundation is to our community and encourage them to donate or volunteer.
2. Help us grow our network online by finding us on Facebook and sharing our news and events throughout our 10th Anniversary year and beyond.
3. Encourage local leaders in our community to see the Foundation as a partner by applying for a grant. This year our fall application cycle is open until October 15.

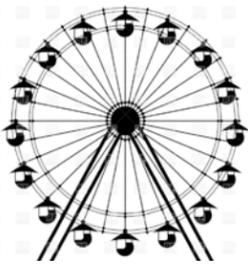

From all of us at the Greenbelt Community Foundation, we thank you for your partnership, your investment, and your leadership in helping us to nourish all neighborhoods in Greenbelt. To a bright future!

Girl Scout Daisies Make the World a Better Place

by Holly Wheeler

Can five- and six-year-old girls change the world? They can – when they are Girl Scout Daisies. Daisies are the entry level of Girl Scouts, made up of girls in kindergarten and first grade. Girl Scout Troop 1161 was formed less than a year ago but already the troop has worked on a number of community projects, focused on the principles of the Girl Scout Law, and has had fun along the way.

The ninth principle of the Girl Scout Law is to make the world a better place, and these girls from Greenbelt, Berwyn Heights and surrounding communities have certainly done their part. For their first project they made and delivered holiday cookies to the residents of Green Ridge House. They also made thank-you cards for veterans and deployed members of the armed services and helped to make and install the peace pole at the Greenbelt Community Church (see article in the June 25, Greenbelt News Review.) Their biggest project, however, was to support the Greenbelt Animal Shelter. The girls made cat toys and homemade dog biscuits and, with money raised through Girl Scout cookie sales, purchased and delivered more than $200 of dog food, cat food and cat litter.

“We are so proud of all that the girls have accomplished,” said Alison Gary, one of three co-leaders of the Troop and mother of Emerson. “Through our troop activities, the girls have been learning what it means to be a Girl Scout, such as the importance of being honest and fair and to use resources wisely.”

They have also learned the importance of being responsible. “Our troop is unusual in that we don’t charge dues,” explains Fatima Cardoso-Gendreau, another co-leader and the mother of Emily. “It is important that no girl be denied the opportunity to be a Girl Scout.” All funds for Troop 1161’s projects and activities are raised by the girls themselves, primarily through the annual Girl Scout cookie sale program.

The new scout year kicks off in September, with some girls having moved on to Brownies and new kindergarteners coming into the Troop. Greenbelters will continue to see these girls in their blue Daisy vests around town – doing their part to make the world a better place while having fun.
