

WPB Holds Up Plans for New Greenbelt Store

It now appears that a priority rating for the purchase of construction materials for a new grocery store will not be granted by the War Production Board, according to Tom Ricker, manager of Greenbelt Consumer Services. If it is not obtained, the already over-crowded Food Store will have to serve all of the defense homes, including more than 500 units which are not yet occupied.

Original Plan Shelved
Original plans anticipated a shopping center in the northern part of town, with at least a new food store, probably an additional drug store, and possibly a bowling alley. A second service station was being considered for the high school cross roads.

With the entry of this country into the War last winter these elaborate plans were shelved, but the necessity for at least a food store was recognized. Plans for financing the new structure had been completed recently, and it was hoped that construction could be completed shortly after the last of the additional houses were filled in the northern section of Greenbelt.

The present WPB action would require some residents to carry groceries nearly a mile.

Plan Improvements
Plans have been made for improvements in the present store, which will enable it to serve more customers. A new $1200 dairy unit 1 1/2 times the size of the present one has been purchased. The islands on the floor which hold canned goods will be rebuilt to hold larger quantities.

Mr. Ricker asks Greenbelt residents to remember that the war has caused a shortage of both supplies and labor, which, added to the rapidly increasing population, presents a real problem for the management. "The situation offers Greenbelters a chance to help in the war effort by doing all they can to alleviate the situation," Manager Ricker said.

The present food store was designed to serve about 65 percent of the original 800 units and it is now accommodating 1100 units, something many observers had previously said was impossible.

Sales for each of the last three weeks have been over $7500. The record sales week ended September 5 with a total of $7534 taken in.

Evening Schedule For Medical Care May Be Resumed

The possibility of evening hours at the Health Center for two evenings a week was reopened Tuesday night, when the board of directors of the Greenbelt Health Association, at a special meeting, interviewed Dr. Stanley F. Morris, with a view to engaging him for part time evening work.

Dr. Morris's duties as a resident physician at the Glenn Dale Sanitarium keep him at that institution from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, except for weekends. He expressed a desire, however, to affiliate himself with the Health Association as part time physician, working in the evenings.

Chairman Sherrod East says that the board of directors, realizing the need for evening office hours to accommodate late workers and also the need for additional medical service in Greenbelt, is drawing up a special contract to be offered to Dr. Morris along these lines.

In presenting his credentials to the board, Dr. Morris stated that he is a graduate of the University of Vermont, interned at Greenpoint Hospital, New York City. He was in general practice for a short time, but being especially interested in the study of chest conditions and internal medicine and being offered the residency at Glenn Dale, he took the position which he now holds. He has had six months specialized training in

Nursery School Opens Fall Term Monday Morning

The Greenbelt Cooperative Nursery School opens Monday in the basement of 14 Parkway for its fourth term. Mrs. Ruth Lebergott will be in charge of the class which will be conducted from 9 to 11:30 five mornings a week.

The Parents Board of the Nursery School will meet in the school quarters tonight at 8 o'clock to make final arrangements for the first day of school. Mrs. John F. Vachon, president of the board, announces that 17 applications have been received for the fall term. Since only 15 children can be accommodated, the remaining two will be placed on a waiting list, and will replace any children in the class who might move from town or have to drop out of the school for any other reason. Further applications for children three and four years old will be received in Mrs. Kinzer's office where they will be placed on the waiting list until an opening occurs.

Barnhart Is Treasurer
Mrs. Paul C. Barnhart has been appointed acting treasurer of the Parents Board to collect the $5 per month tuition fee until the board can meet to elect its new officers.

The Cooperative Nursery School was formed in the spring of 1941 for the purpose of giving children of pre-school age better training opportunities than could be afforded in the individual home. The school is equipped with toys and games which are designed to further the spirit of cooperation and socialized play. Blocks, clay, paints, crayons and other materials are provided.

Mrs. Vachon points out that the nursery-school child is at the age when a child learns fastest and needs contacts with children outside the home in order to learn to work and play with others.

The Parents Board of the Nursery School is composed of all the mothers whose children are enrolled in the school. One mother assists Mrs. Lebergott with the class each day.

Co-op Stores Cut Debt Another $1000

Payment of another amount of $1,000 to the Consumer Distribution Corporation was authorized by the directors of Greenbelt Consumer Services at a meeting Monday night.

This payment reduces indebtedness of the local stores to $20,000 and makes $30,000 which Greenbelt consumer-owners have repaid on the $50,000 loan in three and one-half years.

Open House Will Be P. T. A. Feature

The opening meeting of the current school year for the Parent-Teacher Association will be held Monday, September 28, at 8 p.m., in the auditorium of the Elementary School. Mrs. Catherine T. Reed, principal, will explain the P-TA objectives and school policy for the year. This will be followed by a discussion and question period.

In general, according to Mrs. Reed, the year's program is being planned to fit the school needs to changing war conditions, with emphasis on the practical rather than the technical side of education.

Following this discussion the program for the evening will consist of open house in each school room where the individual teachers will welcome the parents and discuss with them plans for the current year, and offer suggestions in individual cases is requested to do so.

All persons interested in children and school problems are invited to attend this meeting.

Local Minute Men To Join Defense Maneuvers Sunday

Extensive field maneuvers near Upper Marlboro Sunday will test the usefulness of Maryland Minute Men in the defense of this area against possible enemy invasion.

Greenbelt Company 924 is one of several companies selected from among those in the State for participation. The local company, under the command of Capt. Harry Bates, will have an important assignment for operations under sealed orders.

"The maneuvers will be designed to test the resourcefulness of the units under their own decisions," Capt. Bates told the Greenbelt reserve militia men Tuesday night.

Tonight all members of Company 924 will assemble at the Elementary School at 8 o'clock for instructions needed for Sunday's field work.

Library Schedule Changed for Winter

Due to the large increase in the enrollment of the Greenbelt Elementary School, the Greenbelt Library will be closed to the general public during the morning hours. Mrs. Reba Harris, librarian, feels that this will facilitate the care of younger children who need individual attention in the selection of books.

The winter schedule for the library is as follows:

The period from 9 a.m. to 12 noon each week day is reserved for school children only. From 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. each week day adults will be admitted. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday the library will open evenings from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. for adults only.

Thomas Jeffries has presented the library with a 1942 edition of the New International World Atlas. The librarians announce that the volume has been catalogued and is now ready for use.

FPHA Allots School Maintenance Fund

Funds for the maintenance of school facilities here were assured yesterday following disclosure by the Prince Georges County Commissioners that a contract has been signed by the Federal Public Housing Authority providing for payment to the county of a sum equivalent to taxation of Greenbelt homes.

In a letter to Linden Briscoe, clerk to the board, H. C. Laughlin, Chief of the Office of Taxation Analysis, said payments would begin "at the earliest possible time."

Ever since last April county officials had been seeking to reach an agreement with the Government concerning the matter.

No new developments have appeared in regard to new school buildings to accommodate the rapid increase in students. This week partitions were being built into the social room of the Elementary School so that it can be used for classrooms.

Administration Expects Cut in Fuel Supply

Town Manager Roy S. Braden states that although nothing definite has been learned concerning the effect of fuel rationing on Greenbelt, it is expected that the town will operate on 75 per cent of the amount of fuel used per dwelling unit last year, just as other consumers in the rationed zones will be doing.

Residents will be expected to take adequate precautions against wasting heat by leaving radiators on while windows are open at night, or by leaving doors open during the day. Window shades lowered after dark will help retain room heat, it was pointed out.

Dr. Carl Scharf announces that Spanish class in the adult education school will not meet tonight. Classes will resume the regular Friday evening schedule next week.

Mrs. Downs Appointed Director Of Civilian Defense School; Scrap Offerings Generous

Mrs. S. Hartford Downs has been appointed to serve as director of Greenbelt's new Civilian Defense School, it was announced today by Arthur L. Rysticken, commander of Civilian Defense work here.

Long active in local Civilian Defense work as well as other community activities, Mrs. Downs will be assigned the responsibility of organizing and conducting this school established for the purpose of training new members of the Defense Corps, and for the purpose of providing additional training and instruction for Corps members who have already completed their basic training.

Advanced First Aid Class Organized; Food Class Growing

A class in advanced first aid will be offered by the adult education department beginning Wednesday, October 7. Mrs. Peggy Arness will teach the class in room 222 of the Elementary School. All persons who have completed the standard course in first aid are eligible to take the advanced work.

Standard first aid is being offered Monday evenings in room 223 of the Elementary School under the instruction of Mrs. Marion Moore. Mrs. S. Hartford Downs, newly appointed director of the Civilian Defense School points out that this course is required of almost all civilian defense workers. No applications will be accepted for the course after Monday, October 5.

Although a comparatively small group of women have registered for the nutrition course, it is expected by the education department that more women will report for the first meeting on Monday, October 5. Mrs. Laura Browning who taught a similar course Greenbelt during the past summer will instruct the group in the home economics room of the Elementary School. Persons interested in doing canteen work must take 20 hours of nutrition classes.

Members of the pottery class have begun to process clay in their workshop at 21 Parkway. Monte Taeler will be very glad to have new residents or others who are interested come to the class to see the work which the group did last year.

Greenbelt Inside The Cotton Belt

Cotton could be king in Greenbelt, judging by indications. A successful crop bearing 18 to 20 bolls to the stalk was raised in a Greenbelt garden this summer by William J. Davison of Alabama. Staying at present with his son at 42-E Ridge Road, Mr. Davison tried cotton growing in this climate as an experiment, with a background knowledge gained from a lifetime of cotton farming in his home state, both in Huntsford and in Selma, Alabama.

The seed Mr. Davison chose to plant is the "King Improved", an early cotton that is planted down south around the latter part of March or first of April, and picked in August. Mr. Davison planted his seed in Greenbelt the first of June, and the bolls are now ready to burst—if the weather doesn't suddenly get too cold!

Mr. Davison has noticed that things grow more quickly here than in the South. This he lays to the exigencies of this climate, inferring that when the growing season is shorter, the things just naturally have to mature faster. Besides cotton, the Davison garden has yielded three crops each of tomatoes, corn, and turnips, and two of okra, which would be unheard of in Alabama over a similar period of time.

Seen as Improvement
Mr. Rysticken said that he believed the development of the school will eliminate much wasted time and duplication of effort.

It will be the responsibility of Mrs. Downs to organize all new classes, to obtain instructors, and to allocate available space for such classes. It shall also be her responsibility to maintain proper records of the training and drill received by each member of the Defense Corps. The chiefs of staff will make known their needs to Mrs. Downs, instead of organizing their own classes as in the past. It is expected that this will eliminate confusion, insure proper publicity of all classes in order to obtain a maximum attendance, and that it will also insure the maintenance of proper records.

The first step is the nutrition class which will be sponsored in conjunction with the Department of Adult Education. All persons interested in any phases of defense training should hereafter contact Mrs. Downs.

Joint Meeting Called
The newly appointed Greenbelt Civilian Defense Council will hold its first meeting in conjunction with a meeting of the chiefs of staff of the Greenbelt Civilian Defense Corps, Monday, September 28, at 8 p.m. at the Firehouse. Normally, the Defense Council and the Defense Corps will hold separate meetings with the commander being the only member of the Defense Corps attending the Defense Council meetings. However, to inform the new members of the Defense Council of the work which has been and which is being planned for the future, as well as to meet the chiefs of the various divisions of the Greenbelt Civilian Defense Corps, both bodies will hold their next meeting jointly.

Demonstrations Suspended
The Civilian Protection School at the University of Maryland has again suspended the demonstrations they have been presenting at College Park for the past several months. The faculty of men of the Civilian Protection School are now on the road touring the entire country and presenting their demonstration to thousands of defense workers in cities which have not had the opportunity to witness similar demonstrations. The College Park demonstrations will not be resumed until some time after November 1st.

New Scrap Depot
In respect to the scrap drive Commander Rysticken has issued the following statement:

"All residents of Greenbelt are urged to bring their scrap metals and rubber to the garage behind the filling station. The piling up of this scrap in the mercantile center or at the filling station after regular collection periods has given the Town an unsightly appearance. Everyone is requested to cooperate in placing this scrap at our new scrap depot.

If your scrap is too heavy to bring to the garage yourself, call the Administration office and it will be picked up for you."

The gardening crew under Angus MacGregor had charge of collecting the tremendous scrap pile from the neighboring woods. The people of Greenbelt also have contributed generously. There is, however, a great deal of scrap metal and scrap rubber still remaining which should be turned in at the earliest opportunity.

Representative Government

In joining the rising protest against Congressional inaction we should take care lest we confuse criticism of specific Senators and Representatives with a condemnation of Congress as an institution.

The record of debate and voting in the House and in the Senate during the 10 months we have been at war is not encouraging. Except for the declarations of war and approval of war appropriations our legislative body has approached each wartime problem with exasperating slowness. Instead of boldly grappling with the spectre of inflation and the attendant nightmare of adequate taxation for war financing many of our representatives have been playing petty politics and sniping at the Administration.

All supposedly unpopular legislation was being shelved until after the November elections. So many Senators and Representatives went home this summer that the serious consideration of any bills was a mockery. Votes for our soldiers, inflation control, and revenue measures were jeopardized by the callous demonstration of many who were supposed to be doing our legislative job for us.

No wonder then, that throughout the country there arose a menacing murmur of protest. No surprise then, that President Roosevelt called upon Congress to legislate anti-inflation measures by October 1. Far from trying to establish a dictatorship, as hinted by the vermin press, the President may well have thrown this challenge at Congress to save its face in the eyes of the people who were demanding wartime speed and action on wartime measures. If Congressmen will take seriously their responsibility we shall have no further talk of getting along without the legislative branch of our government.

We need our Congress. Make no mistake about that. If it is a poor legislative body then let us blame ourselves for electing such poor choices. Perhaps we expect too much of those we select for the exacting task of representing us on the national scene. As long as there are those among us at home who are slow and careless, as long as some of us are blinded by intolerance against minority groups, just so long as we ourselves are willing to watch our own immediate personal welfare while someone else wins the war—we shall probably be represented in Congress by men of the same stripe.

If we resent ignorance and mediocrity and native fascism in our legislative halls then we have a two-fold job on our hands. We must ourselves awake to the needs of today's situation, and we must take the energy to elect the kind of Congressmen we think would do a better job.

Street Dances

Now that the use of automobiles has been curtailed, community functions and amusements are again assuming a place in the scheme of things once held in the earlier days of our country. Since we cannot jump into the car and go to the races or the ball game or the theater at any time that suits our fancy, we are beginning to develop a more pronounced community spirit. We are being forced to make our own fun and entertainment in and near our homes.

The street dances being held in the center are one of the evidences of this healthy outlook. The dances are filling a decided need and we hope that more ideas for community entertainment will develop.

There are, we think, a couple of improvements that could be made in conducting the dances. One of the complaints reported was that grandparents, parents, high school students and six-year-olds were dancing in the same place at the same time. We suggest a segregation either by dividing the dancing area or by alternating dances among the age groups. This would eliminate danger to the youngsters and confusion for older persons, and give greater enjoyment to everyone.

It is apparent, also, that the dances should be more thoroughly policed. Some "smart-alec" tricks have been reported and, in order to insure the most fun for all, such things should be curbed.

Am I Surprised?

Am I surprised? When I called Mrs. Kinzer for something that might interest you Greenbelters, she told me that there had been four registrations for the Nutrition Class. Not four people at each registration, mind you, but a grand total of four for the class. What's the matter, homemakers? Or aren't there any of you left, making homes? Has war time industry claimed you all? Well, then, you're the very people who ought to race your neighbors right down to the next registration, Monday night, at 7:30, in the home economic room, at the Elementary School. You're the very people who, coming home late from work with dinner all planned, are going to find what you'd planned is no longer available and you're going to have to make some lightening changes in menu. What then? Are you going to take the first thing that pops in your mind? Or are you, with all the nutritive facts which you've gathered in class, going to smile a dissatisfied-but-you-can't-throw-me-smile and make a substitution which will not be a substitute for health? Honestly, some day you're going to stick out your foot and trip yourself up or go around paying people to slap you down if you miss out on an opportunity like this. If the date is inconvenient to you, go on and register Monday night, and Mrs. Kinzer has promised to entertain motions to change the class night to suit the most people. You know you can't serve on a canteen unless you've had a twenty-hour course like this one, and a canteen is a mighty nice place to work in when the weather is cold and stormy.

Did you remember Nursery School opens on the 28th of September? And that the Parents Board (which is a fancy name for Junior's mama and papa) meets on the 25th? Which is tonight, by George! I know you don't have to be sold on Nursery Schools in general—anybody who's tried to wash dishes with one hand, first aid Junior's cut elbow with the other and at the same time yank Sister out from under the wheels of a laundry truck knows what I mean when I say they're the tops. Well, this particular Nursery School is headed by Mrs. Ruth Liebergott; Mrs. Penny Vachon is president of the board; children three and four years old are eligible; the dues are $5.00 a month. There is also a $5.00 initial fee, collectable now but applicable to the last month's tuition. Smart trick, that. Sort of sinking fund, so that you can forget about it and then find out the last month of school that Junior's tuition was paid last September, and then go out and hysterically buy that new red hat that you've been casting sheep's eyes at. Better show up at 14 Parkway basement tonight if you're interested. I have a notion this thing is going to fill up fast.

If you have no children and don't expect to have any, don't bother with the P.-T. A. It won't interest you. But if you fall into any other category, you'll want to know how the school ticks and who's in there winding it up. The Parent-Teacher Association for Greenbelt Elementary School holds its first meeting of the fall season next Monday night. Mrs. Catherine T. Reed, whom everybody adores anyway and who always draws a crowd when she is the speaker, is going to talk about the objectives and policies of the coming year. You men owe it to yourselves to get an eyeful of Mrs. Reed's heart-warming smile, and you women ought to see what a day-timer mother of about 600 children who is managing them with serenity and good humor looks like.

The American Legion, and the Legion Auxiliary meets at 8 o'clock Thursday night, at the Legion House. Of course you know who is eligible to belong to the Legion, but did you know that any sister or wife of a Legion member is eligible to join the Auxiliary?

The Women's Club begins its new season with its meeting Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. H. Downs, 2-T Gardenway. Mrs. C. P. Barnhart and Mrs. S. L. Holton are co-hostesses. This announcement is for members only.

Has the Garden Club discovered a new beet? Or cure for the Japanese beetle? Come clean, Garden Club!

Scrap collectors are reminded that the depot is now, and will continue to be at the Service Station. No more salvaged metal or rubber should be left in the Shopping Center.

To the Editor---

Poor Joe

To the Editor:

Please print the following letter to that poor, misguided fellow, Joseph Fitzpatrick, who thinks Sunday morning is a morning for undisturbed sleep.

When I first read your letter, I was genuinely amazed. As I read it the second time, I firmly resolved to set you straight on a few points.

First, what do you think the church bells ring for? Your own discomfort? Well, you're wrong. They message they have for you is softly pleading. It is a joyous call. Haven't you ever heard this verse to a well-known hymn?

"How sweet on a bright Sabbath morning
To list to the clear-ringing bells.
Their voices so sweetly are calling,
Oh, come to the church in the dell."

Besides this grave misconception, you seem to have others. For instance, you say, "Sunday is the Lord's day and not for man to disturb." You say that piously with your pen while in your heart you blackly utter, "It's man's day to sleep, and not for tools of the Lord to destroy!"

Thirdly, you hide behind a screen of righteous indignation, declaring in harsh words, that you work nights and need your sleep. Well, that screen is no good either, because I, too, work nights 4 weeks out of 6. But if I ever was lazy enough, thoughtless enough of my spiritual life, to life in bed, indulgently sleeping instead of sitting thankfully in a sacred place, listening to the beautiful chimes. I would certainly keep it to myself and not advertise it to all. As for your "precious rest", I presume that you'd break it in a minute if you were asked to go fishing or golfing with the gang.

—Betty Bruffey

Round Two

To the Editor:

Chimes call others to church, but themselves never mind the sermon.

It has not been the purpose of the writer to institute a religious controversy. The letter written two weeks ago regarded a particular proposition, i. e.: are the playing of chime records a sacred obligation, or are they a disturbing factor? This is clearly a matter of interpretation of an obviously relative question. For example, one would not relish being awakened at 3 a. m. from a sound sleep to hear the works of even as great a master as Beethoven.

A suggested alternative is for those who enjoy the chimes to listen within the confines of the chapel, relieving those who require undisturbed, necessary rest. It is so simple a solution and will injure no one.

Six mornings a week the writer arises at 5:30, returning home nightly on the 10:30 or 11 o'clock bus. The time is spent doing rather strenuous physical vital war work since May. The writer has been aircraft spotting from midnight Saturdays and thus lies down to die shortly after 2 a. m. Sundays. If, after an average six and a half hours sleep six nights, the writer attempts to gain special dispensation for an unbroken seven hours Sunday, he is labelled intolerant and sacrilegious - then, verily, it is true that men and melons are hard to know.

There are indeed many workers in Greenbelt less fortunate. There are those who work the entire night and must use the days, with their natural noises, for sleeping.

As for Amigo Fog, someone should inform him that streetcars and roosters are not permitted habitat in Greenbelt, and so become two abstruse arguments. Gracias, Amigo, for your daring belief that this writer shall ever spy the pearly gates. You painted a comforting picture, and for the moment at least, he felt not so much the lost soul. However, he much the lost soul. However, he of the bad name noise attendant our eventual entry into Berlin and Tokyo. Rather it is this writer's conviction that the sound will afford a sweet symphony, though from your distant vantage point at 33 Ridge Road, even the Greenbelt chimes are somewhat muted.

It is probably appropriate to add that upon reading your entertaining letter, this writer was reminded of the description Benjamin Franklin gave it in the year 1728: "Clearly spoken, Mr. Fog! You explain English by Greek."

—Joseph Fitzpatrick

Community Church

"Where Do You Live?" is the theme of the sermon which Rev. Wilmer Pierce Johnston, pastor of the Community Church, will preach next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the auditorium. All residents of Greenbelt not attending some other church, and especially those who have moved to Greenbelt only recently, are invited to participate in this worship service.

This Sunday the church school will meet at 9:30 a. m., each child going to his respective department at that time. After a short devotional service all will come together in the auditorium for rally day and the school's promotion program. This is also parents' and children's Sunday, and the parents are requested to accompany their children to the church school. "It will mean much to the children to have their parents present when they receive their promotion certificates," Rev. Johnston said.

Sunday at 7 p. m. the Junior Church will meet in the home economics room. This is a regular Junior Church hour with songs, stories, prayer and all that goes to make up an interesting service for the children. The Junior Church is under the direction of the superintendent of the junior department and other officers and teachers connected with this department.

Sunday at 7 p. m. the high school group, consisting of the freshmen, sophomores and junior classes will meet under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. James Irving and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stevens, for the purpose of organization. This meeting will be held in the music room of the Elementary School and will be attended by those young people who met at the Lake last Sunday evening, and others interested.

Sunday at 8 p. m. there will be a meeting of the executive committee of the men's group which has charge of the series of evening meetings of the church which is to begin in October. This committee consists of C. Paul Barnhart, Fred De Jager, John W. Collier, Linden S. Dodson, James McCarl, Daniel Neff and James Wolfe.

Wednesday at 8 p. m. the regular midweek services will be held in the social room of the Elementary School.

Girl Scout Leadership Training Program Asked

A trainee course for Girl Scout leadership will be conducted soon by Miss R. Flanigan of the Prince George's County Council if 10 or more people enroll for the training. Classes will be held in Greenbelt two nights a week for about a month. This was announced at a meeting of the Girl Scout Leaders' Association of Greenbelt held last Friday night at the home of Mrs. Lillian A. Mitchell.

Anyone who has not had previous experience in girl scouting and who wishes to become a leader may take this course. Candidates for the position of assistant leader need no past experience and are not required to take the course as they receive their instructions from the leaders.

The chief topic discussed at Friday's meeting was the urgent need for Girl Scout leaders, assistant leaders, committee chairmen, and consultants. It was disclosed that the leadership shortage has grown out of the present emergency due to the fact that the use of many cars for Sunday driving and pleasures has been curtailed, and consequently, many of the girls will have to look for other diversions. Those present agreed that this means a far greater enrollment is expected than in normal times; and there is the added population of the town to cope with here.

Those interested in maintaining the Girl Scout program are urged to contact Mrs. Roy S. Braden at Greenbelt 4646 or Mrs. Mitchell at Greenbelt 5601.

The next meeting of the Girl Scout Leadership Association will be held on October 9 at the home of Mrs. Mitchell, 3-B Eastway at 7:30 p. m.

Haircuts for Children Raised to 35 Cents

The price of children's haircuts was raised from 25 to 35 cents by a decision of the Greenbelt Consumer Services board of directors at a meeting last Monday evening. The new price will go into effect October 15.

"This action was necessary to bring the prices up to those of surrounding barber shops so that the continued services of the present barbers will be assured," Manager Tom Ricker told the Cooperator. A check on other barbershops revealed that the lowest price charged for a child's haircut was 40 cents, and since the Greenbelt barbers do not receive a higher commission than those at other shops, it was deemed fair that they should be allowed to charge the same prices in addition, it is impossible to interest barbers in working in the Greenbelt shop when only 25 cents is charged, and it is contemplated that new men may be needed as the town continues to grow" he explained.

"Your Taxes Are Due" County Treasurer Warns

Greenbelt taxpayers were warned today by County Treasurer Harry W. McNamee that the deadline for payment of their 1942 real estate and automobile taxes is September 30.

Mr. McNamee said a monthly penalty of 1 per cent will be imposed on all payments made after that time.

Property on which taxes have not been paid becomes delinquent after the second Monday in January and may be sold for taxes after the first Monday in March, he added.

He estimated that at least half of the tax bills sent out in the county have not yet been paid.
