

GREENBELT FOR SALE

PHA Wants $8,522,350 For Property From Qualifying Resident Group

By Sally Meredith

Eight and a half million dollars will buy Greenbelt, Public Housing Administration said in today's official announcement of terms and prices for the city's sale. The property for sale, as shown in the accompanying map, includes all of the housing units, the commercial facilities, and that part of the undeveloped land not otherwise earmarked. (Certain areas will be dedicated to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for parks; others are planned for possible additional government building, and possibly for dedication to the Beltsville Research Center.)

The undeveloped land in the sale boundaries includes most of that which could be converted to residential or commercial use.

As shown on the map, the property offered for sale lies within the following boundaries: on the west, Edmonston Road; on the south, by Southway from Edmonston Road to Glendale Road to the proposed Washington-Baltimore express highway; on the east, by the Washington-Baltimore express highway; and on the north, by the northern limit of Greenbelt.

HOW TO QUALIFY

Two months from today, on August 7, PHA will close the period during which a group can apply for preference in purchasing. Qualifications for preference include provisions that the membership must be large enough to purchase and occupy at least 800 units, and that at least 400 members must be veterans. (The latter stipulation complies with the definition of "veteran" group as given in Public Law 65.) Within the two-month period of reservation, a qualifying group must supply some evidence that at least 800 of its members "will be able and willing to make a down payment of 10 percent of the purchase price of the unit he occupies, or intends to occupy."

The PHA commissioners will enter into negotiations with the group that qualifies otherwise and that demonstrates sufficient financial ability to consummate the purchase. No time limit was given on the length of negotiations.

CUB DENS WILL PLAY DOUBLE-HEADER SAT.

Fred Birdseye, cubmaster of Cub Pack 229, announces a double-header softball game at 10:30 Saturday morning, June 10, at Braden Field. The games will be played by Cub Dens 4 and 10 against 7 and 11; and Dens 2 and 3 against 8 and 9.

Square Dance Friday For Nursery School

Greenbelt's cooperative nursery school will sponsor a community square dance in the community building auditorium Friday night, June 9, at 8:30. Eb 'n Ely, with the Rock Creek Promenaders, will furnish calls and music, and will demonstrate the steps for dancers. Refreshments will be served in the social room. For information or tickets, call Diana Kramer, chairman, at 6232. Teen-agers can get tickets for a full square of four couples by purchasing seven as a group.

The nursery will picnic at the Greenbelt lake at 4 p.m. Saturday, June 17. Families of nursery-schoolers, past, present or future, are cordially invited to bring down their picnic suppers and join in. Beverages will be sold at the lake for the nursery's benefit.

However, if more than one group qualifies, the city will go to the qualifying group making the highest bid.

On the sale price of $8,522,350, terms of sale include a 10 percent down payment, the balance on mortgage at not less than 4 percent interest for a term of not more than twenty-five years.

ESTIMATED BREAKDOWN

PHA did not break down its price into residential - commercial - land components, and has not yet released the detailed appraisal on which the total sales figure was supposedly based. Until such figures are available, any figures for individual housing units lie in the realm of conjecture, since the separate parts of the whole community are of varying construction and value.

A stab can be taken at estimating, although the results will need liberality of interpretation, allowing wide margins on either side for adjustment. At any rate, the decision as to individual house prices will be decided by the purchaser.

The undeveloped land, together with the commercial facilities, might logically be valued at $1,000,000. Of the seven and a half million left, a fair division between the 1000 war units and the 85 original units might be $3,000,000 for the war homes, $4,500,000 for the others. An average is thereby reached of $3000 for the war homes, and a little over $5000 for the original homes.

Further conjecture as to unit price breakdown must take into account the makeup of the city: There are, in the war housing section, 148 1-bedroom apartments, 602 2-bedroom houses, and 250 3-bedroom houses. In the original section there are 84 1-room apartments, 222 1-bedroom apartments, 16 1-bedroom houses (honeymoon bungalows); 243 2-bedroom houses, and 320 3-bedroom houses.

OTHER QUESTIONS

Information which PHA will require of a group applying for preferential designation includes the group's organizational structure; the identity of its membership, and the membership's rights and obligations; provisions assuring present tenants of equal opportunity to become members; information on stocks, funds, securities; and compensation to be paid anyone hired for organizing, negotiating, and financing, and the basis upon which such compensation is computed.

Protection for those residents who are unable or unwilling to buy was indicated in the statement that "prior to the closing of sale" PHA will offer the tenants 12-month leases, which the purchaser will agree to honor as part of the sales contract. Other leases which the purchaser must honor are those presently existing with commercial facilities.

First Defense Homes Built In City In 1941

The historical addition of the first "defense" type houses in Greenbelt was announced in the February 14, 1941 Cooperator. The project was one of the fourth largest assignments of the entire national allotment, purposing to ease the wartime housing shortage. In a September 5, 1941, story bylined by Sally Meredith, the defense homes nearing completion were described as being in "marked contrast to original Greenbelt units. . . . One such contrast is the cost of construction. The original 885 units cost $4,799,000 or approximately $5400 each to construct, while those now under construction average only $3545 per unit. However, a careful study of the entire labor costs indicates that quite a bit was expended on the original construction because of the relief and rehabilitation aspects of the program over and above the costs which would normally be incurred for labor. The original building program provided work relief to unemployed workers residing in the Baltimore-Washington region."

The December 19, 1941 Cooperator announced that a land lease was secured by the Homeowners Co-op for a land lease from Farm Security Administration. The document "deed the Co-op for 99 years 15 acres north of Parkbelt for home building. The individual lots will be leased to home builders at about $14 a year.

The North End public school was announced as a real possibility in the January 30, 1942 Cooperator. The Federal Works Agency had authorized an appropriation of $450,000 for the modern school of 16 rooms and a combination gymnasium and auditorium.

Home mail delivery began July 1, 1942.

Future For Sale

Fifteen years ago, in October 1935, when ground was first broken to build the Garden City of Greenbelt, a triple purpose was in the minds of the planners in what was then the Resettlement Administration:

1. To give useful work to men on unemployment relief.
2. To provide low-rent housing in healthful surroundings, both physical and social, for low-income families.
3. To demonstrate in practice the soundness of planning and operating towns according to certain garden city principals.

The first objective was met immediately with the employment of large groups of construction workers. The second was also met immediately, but as the years passed and incomes grew, the "low-income families" phrase has held less meaning, so that ever fewer and fewer residents have been within the income range for which gradd rents are provided. With ownership changing from federal to private, graded rents will cease altogether.

The third objective, however, is one to which Greenbelt will always remain a monument—if its original nature is not too drastically altered after it leaves public ownership. There is already the sharp contrast between the original project and the 1000 homes that were erected under the Lanham Act. Where in the older section neat hedges and shady trees provide an eye-appealing frame for attractive homes with individuality, the barracks-like war homes, though trim and of good functional design, are placed in a barren, treeless, hedgeless plain. Differences of topography, however, can be overcome. Trees and hedges can be planted, lawns seeded, playgrounds built, and even sidewalks and other safety facilities provided by residents who want them enough to do something to obtain them.

Potential dangers that could not be overcome would be get-rich-quick schemes, including poorly-built tenements jammed together to provide future slums, badly-designed commercial facilities, or neglect of the measures originally planned to insure the safety and beauty of Greenbelt.

It will take ceaseless vigilance by the residents to keep Greenbelt the safe and beautiful place it is—the city that still prompts the publication, in such far away places as the University of Liverpool, of articles extolling Greenbelt's virtues.

It has been difficult, but possible, to run our own affairs while under the paternal hand of PHA. The chance to own and operate our city presents a challenging opportunity. Will we throw it away in pointless, bitter arguments revolving around personalities? Or will we all give our best efforts toward achieving our mutual goals?

We agree with the great majority of Greenbelters, who have joined together in the Greenbelt Veteran Housing Corporation, that democratic ownership of the city offers the most practical method of attaining our goals.

We do not believe that even GVHC offers an easy road to their attainment. It is a difficult job we set for ourselves, and many people are going to have to continue to give great amounts of their time and energy if the obvious problems are to be met successfully.

We still have faith, however, that there are people in Greenbelt with the willingness and ability necessary to allow Greenbelt to accept the challenge and take advantage of the opportunity.

They'll be paid, too—in the currency of success.

To the Editor

COOPERATION

We have read with interest James Ott's letter to the Cooperator last week regarding the recent GCS flyer. We feel that Jim had a point and that no doubt it appeared that GCS was implying it operated the swimming pool.

GCS, however, has been cooperating for several years with the Recreation Department, helping to advertise the pool. The copy which appeared on the flyer regarding the swimming pool was supplied in toto by the City Recreation Department. There was no intent on our part, as Jim thought, to be doing a bit of exploiting by GCS.

We are glad to be able to, and want to continue to, cooperate with the Recreation people.

ENJOYMENT

Mrs. Lydalu Palmer's recital Sunday afternoon was sensational, and was enjoyed by all present. Her pupils sang with the greatest of ease and the quality and tone with which all the students sang was most inspiring. I have been told that some of her pupils have been studying with her for only a few months. To me they sounded like professionals.

Mrs. Palmer must be a very remarkable teacher to acquire such results. Don't miss the next recital in the fall—I am sure you will enjoy every minute of it, as I did this one!

Tickets for the ball game were purchased jointly by the high school and the boys. Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington team, gave the boys a reduction in price for a group block of tickets. Mr. Perazzoli, patrol sponsor for the school and Mr. Messner, student council sponsor, accompanied the group to the ball game.

Register Next Week For Fall Elections

June 12-19 has been proclaimed by Governor William Preston Lane, Jr. as "Maryland Registration Week." Many election supervisors are providing extra registration days so that all who are eligible may register. Greenbelt residents may register for the fall primary and November elections on June 13 at the firehouse, from 1 to 7 p.m.

Requirements are 21 years of age, resident of Maryland for a year before the election date and Prince Georges county for six months. Young people twenty years old who will reach their twenty-first birthday before election time may register now to vote in the primaries, as may those newcomers who have lived in Greenbelt since last October. Clerks have pointed out the importance of declaring a party affiliation so that the voter may be eligible to cast a ballot in the primaries, which he may not do if he registers himself as independent and unaffiliated.

There were over 200 mothers from the school watching their children sing and dance. The Recreation Department hopes to sponsor a Glee Club throughout the summer program as during the school session. Swimming Registration: All who wish to register for the August swimming classes must register by June 12, as we will have to close registration in order that we may get the list posted and the children screened for their classes. We hope you will cooperate with the Department.

Softball Schedule at Braden Field: The following games will be played at night on the following dates: Thursday, June 8 - Mt. Rainier vs Nelson Studebaker; Banning-Sheehy vs Annandale. Members of the Auxiliary invite all Greenbelters to turn out to make the dance a success.

Personal Touch

There's a new wrinkle to the game of baseball. It's about time it had an improvement...if this can be called an improvement. It's being played on donkey-back. All the players are on donkeys except the pitcher and catcher, and each player is carried by the donkeys to each base. There's a game of it being played June 16 at 8 p.m. between the Beltsville Volunteer Fire Department vs. the Ladies Auxiliary of Beltsville Volunteer Fire Department for its benefit. The ball diamond is in Beltsville in back of the Behnke nursery. Should be VERY interesting.

Teenagers Redecorate Drop Inn For Season

Several teenagers were busy at work Saturday morning, May 27, spring cleaning and face-lifting the canteen. To the tunes from the jukebox, windows were washed, floors were washed, draperies cleaned and aired, furniture washed, and walls dusted. The grass was cut around the Drop-Inn and the bushes trimmed, but as is the case in any house, spring cleaning isn't finished in one day, so another Saturday will be appointed to continue the work.

The main project at the teenage center now is redecorating the snack bar, which is at the present undergoing a fresh paint job. The color scheme is being changed and a few talented teenagers are going to brighten the walls with paintings and quotations in keeping with a snack bar.

A toast to the Residents of Greenbelt on the Occasion of the sale of their City, with the Most Sincere Good Wishes for the Future.
