Some Greenbelt Station Issues Resolved, Others Concern City

by Virginia Beauchamp

When the Greenbelt City Council holds a work session in the council chamber, its members seat themselves around a large conference table across the front of the room and below the podium, sharing it with members of the group with whom they are conferring. This arrangement, of course, reduces the floor space available for seating the public.

Since the equipment room juts from the rear wall closest to the entrance but nothing is in front of the rear wall in the other half of the room, seats are customarily arranged in two triangular spaces separated by an aisle. A small triangle is on the right, a much larger one on the left.

Five or six people were already dispersed between the two seating areas when I entered the room for the council work session on July 23. Others then strolled in, mostly members of CCRIC (Citizens to Conserve and Restore Indian Creek). One by one the newcomers joined friends in the nearer triangle of seats until almost every chair was filled.

A little later about a dozen folks entered as a group — each one wearing a stick-on label with the legend, "I Support Greenbelt Station." Apparently members of a group organized by supporters of County Executive Wayne Curry, they filled in the remaining seats in the larger triangle of space. For a moment there it looked a bit like "us vs. them."

For a moment there it looked a bit like "us vs. them."

Soon city staff and representatives of Metroland, LLC, began to take seats at the conference table; council itself, delayed by a previous meeting, was slow to arrive.

Mayor Judith Davis, noting the presence of so many visitors, took a few moments to welcome them and explain that no actions would be taken that evening. She expressed delight that they were there, since she was aware that many county citizens had been led to believe that Greenbelt was opposed to development;

they would be able to learn for themselves that that is not the case, she said.

On the other hand, Greenbelters are concerned, she emphasized, that a number of important issues still need to be resolved. The meeting's purpose was to bring the city and developers closer together on how to resolve them. She assured the visitors that each would have an opportunity to speak, once the developers' representatives and councilmembers had completed their discussion.

New Partner

Besides the contingent of visitors, someone else was new at the meeting—Morton Levine, whom Norman Rivera, Metroland attorney, introduced as president of The Associated Companies, a Metroland partner. Levine then introduced himself and his 35-year experience as a developer of mixed-use projects in the Washington area. Among those he cited were a quality development in Germantown, Ashburn Village in Virginia, and Waters Landing in Montgomery County. With

County Board Approves Conceptual Site Plan

by Elaine Skolnik

The Prince George's County Planning Board of the Maryland-National Capitol Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) on July 26 unanimously approved with conditions the proposed Conceptual Site Plan for Greenbelt Station. However, consideration of the Preliminary Plan of Subdivision for Greenbelt Station was continued — for the second time — to Thursday, Sept. 6.

In the three and a half-hour hearing on July 26, which included further testimony, the board voted to support its staff's recommendation approving the concept plan for Greenbelt Station with conditions. At the same time a resolution, apparently prepared in advance and later adopted at the meeting, detailed the project's history and staff and board's actions, including modifications of several conditions. There appear to be some difference of opinion as to whether the adoption of this resolution followed the usual procedure for finalizing a resolution which, reportedly, takes two to three weeks.

In any event, the Greenbelt City Council will consider at the next council meeting whether or not to appeal the planning board's approval of the concept plan to the Prince George's County Council. On July 1, the city council voted to accept the recommendation of its staff to oppose both the conceptual site plan and the preliminary plan of subdivision. A set of 28 recommendations for changes to make the plans acceptable to Greenbelt was included in the motion.

Although the preliminary plan of subdivision was originally scheduled for the July 12 meeting, the county board removed it from the agenda on the recommendation of its staff and the concurrence of the applicant, MetroPark LLC. Staff had requested additional information regarding environmental impacts to wetlands, to wooded stream buffers and wooded wetland buffers — permanent impacts that the staff believed would have "significant detrimental effects." Since the requested information was not received from the applicant on July 26, the hearing on the preliminary plan was continued to September 6. If staff does not receive the required information in time for the next hearing, staff's recommendation for the preliminary plan will be an automatic denial.

Zoning Problems Delay Erecting Observatory

by Diane Oberg

It seemed simple enough. The Greenbelt Astronomy Club wanted an observatory. Montgomery College wanted to get rid of one. A perfect match, it seemed. And things went well at the start. The city agreed to help transport and store the structure and on March 16 the observatory came to Greenbelt.

Now all the club needed was permission to install the structure in the Northway fields area where there was less light pollution than elsewhere in the city. But the club soon learned that they were about to enter the world of planning and zoning, where nothing is as simple as it seems.

Matters were further complicated by poor communications. John Settle, president of the club, felt that he was rudely treated when he appeared before council on May 14 seeking "contributions group" status for the club. City staff were frustrated by the e-mails sent to councilmembers and club members complaining that the city was not moving fast enough.

At the July 16 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council, Director of Planning and Community Development Celia Craze updated council on the observatory's status. She had previously expected to have a recommendation for council at this meeting, but the "ongoing evolution of the plans for the Greenbelt Metro Station has required the full attention of the planning staff."

If the Greenbelt Astronomy Club owns the observatory, erecting it on the club's preferred location would require them to obtain a special exception from zoning regulations. Craze said that the process would take roughly nine months. City Solicitor Robert Manzi noted that it could take longer, as the Prince George's County Council does not take up zoning cases after February or March of an election year.

If, however, the city were to own and operate the observatory, the use is permitted by right. While there are still some regulations that must be complied with, the process would entail "nothing onerous," said Craze.

Site?

Councilmember Rodney Roberts said that he had seen references to the city leasing the site to the club. Roberts said that he was uncomfortable with this approach and suggested that the club donate the building to the city. While he did not have a "real problem" with the Northway site, he wanted to see which particular sites are being considered.

Councilmember Thomas White agreed. The process would be shorter and simpler if Greenbelt owned and operated the facility similar to what it had done during the initial years of the Greenbelt Museum. For discussion purposes, White said that he was willing to support that approach so that a specific site could be selected, an Advisory Planning Board review could be completed and the community could "get its hands around the proposition."

Questions

Councilmember Alan Turnbull was pleased with his colleagues' response. The main issues, he said are 1) can the city stomach limited development on the site and 2) can the club stomach city ownership and operation. He added that the city ownership would not imply that the city would assume all costs related to the structure. Mayor Judith

Greenbelt Gets Grant For Assisted Living

by Virginia Beauchamp

Representatives from the NORC (Naturally Occurring Retirement Community) Supportive Service Center in New York City presented a check to Greenbelt for $136,579. This two-year grant will enable the city to hire a Community Resource Advocate and begin an "assistance in living" program. Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) and the city partnered to apply for the grant.

The check was presented at a kick-off celebration held on July 18. About 75 people attended the event. Mayor Judith Davis and GHI President Julia Eichhorst welcomed everyone and spoke about this new program. State Senator Leo Green, Jeannie Lazeroff, representing U.S. Senator Paul Sarbanes and Cathy Stasny, representing County Executive Wayne Curry spoke briefly.

Nat Yalowitz, president of NORC, explained the organization's role and indicated that Greenbelt was part of a national expansion of NORC programs.

The city's new Community Resource Advocate, Ann MacKenzie, was introduced. MacKenzie is a Greenbelt resident and has an extensive background in human services. She will begin her work on August 6.

Letters to the Editor

Festival of Song A Grand Party

Babies, toddlers, teens and seniors; singles, couples and groups; and dogs of all sizes and ages seemed to enjoy the Festival of Song held in Roosevelt Center on Saturday, July 21. I know that Ray and I did. All the tables and benches were full as people stopped and listened for a while, left and then others took their place. People greeted one another and took in the scene of a city, relaxing and enjoying together some very good music. Small children were drawing with sidewalk chalk interesting, if temporary, designs on the pavement. All of the food establishments in the Center were patronized and most people chose to eat outdoors in the beautiful weather.

The Festival of Song, which was sponsored by the New Deal Café and the Greenbelt Recreation Department, featured 12 songwriters with a variety of styles. The stage was set up in front of the Mother and Child statue and tables and chairs were placed throughout the Center. At the side, a table showcased the tapes and CDs of the various performers and sign-up sheets to learn of future concerts by the artists. A vendor staffing this table obligingly held aloft the products of each artist in turn.

We saw some old friends and many people we didn't recognize, perhaps newer residents in the city. Greenbelt is fortunate in having a place where people can gather, enjoy the music, weather and just being together. It was a wonderful occasion and should be repeated. Thanks to all who helped put it on.

Sandy Smith

THANKS

I would like to thank Prince George's County Department of Public Works and Transportation and the City of Greenbelt for their assistance in helping Greenbelt Elementary School post signs showing the way to our school. We have been trying for years to accomplish this and are grateful for all the help. Please take note of the signs at Ridge/Southway and Lastner/Crescent and Lastner/Ridge. We are very proud of our school and want everyone to know where we are located.

Thank you again for a job well done.

Rebecca Roper, President, Greenbelt Elementary School PTA

THANKS

On behalf of the Labor Day Festival Committee, I would like to thank the community for its support of the Festival's fundraising activities. These activities, in the form of bake sales, t-shirt sales, grocery raffle ticket sales and baseball raffle ticket sales, will continue through the Festival. A dance will be held at the American Legion next Friday as an additional fundraising activity.

The community's support of these activities is greatly appreciated by me and the rest of the committee. The Festival has come upon hard times but is too historical and too important a part of the community to let it die. It is the Committee's hope that the community support will continue up to and all through the Festival - it will be here in a month!

Patti Brothers, President Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee

THANKS

The Herling family wishes to thank the community of Greenbelt for being there for us during a very tough period. The town's community spirit, which our mother exemplified and felt strongly about, was very evident at last Sunday's service. It made it easier for us to keep our spirits up as well. And the reception, catered by Lou Parker (otherwise known as "Chef Lou") also made the program an event which we hope left our friends with a positive feeling of celebration of Fran Herling's life.

Thanks again.

Davis suggested that the Public Works Department could put in the foundation, with the club contributing funds for materials.

Settles agreed that the club would not be looking for the city to assume all costs. The club has raised $5,000, which is eligible for a 100% matching grant. In addition, the club has skilled wood and metal workers among its members, who are planning to contribute their talents.

This item will likely appear on the agenda of the August 13 regular council meeting.

Study, Internships For 50+ Seniors

Senior Leadership Maryland provides a unique opportunity for older people to use their expertise and skills while contributing to the political life of the State of Maryland through internships and volunteer service. Maryland residents age 50 and older can "develop leadership skills and learn first hand about public policy and government operation," according to Dr. Laura B. Wilson, director of the University of Maryland Center on Aging.

Senior Leadership Maryland, for which there is no charge, combines 64 hours of instruction by experts at the University of Maryland during the fall with government internships in the spring. Topics include the history of Maryland, an analysis of the branches of government, state budget and revenues, public policy, and local government.

During the legislative session, senior interns will volunteer for seven hours or more a week in state and municipal offices, under the supervision of a legislator/government mentor.

The Certificate for Senior Service to the State of Maryland is awarded upon completion of the program, and graduates may continue their affiliation by advising future interns and in other ways.

Senior Leadership Maryland is sponsored by the University of Maryland Center on Aging and the James M. Burns Academy of Leadership. For a brochure and application call 301-405-2469.

Thanks for the Computer Monitors!

The Greenbelt News Review thanks those individuals who gave us their old monitors; they were newer than ours. Some of you don't know you're donors as several of them came from the city's electronic recycling truck. (We have, in turn, donated our oldest monitors for recycling.)

Thanks also to those new staffers who responded to our pleas for help: one computer savvy scan guru (can anyone help while our two scanners are out of town this month?), two computer savvy night owls (typists), two writers and one ad staff person. Hurrah!

Now, what about selling ads?

Green Ridge House Picnic a Blast

by Helena Moore

On Wednesday July 25, the management staff at the Green Ridge House gave a picnic for the residents. It was a beautiful day, a little warm but a nice breeze. Tables were set up on the patio outside the dining room and the newly acquired barbecue grills were put to good use. Salva, the community manager; Fran, the office manager; and Pam the receptionist were the hostesses at the tables, keeping very busy serving the residents. Marty and Mark, engineers, were the cooks at the grills with hamburgers and hot dogs. The potato salad and cole slaw (with Marty's "secret" dressing) were made by the office staff. Some of the male residents assisted with distributing beverages. There was plenty of food, all beautifully set out and easily accessible for all residents. Great music from the past, Vaughn Monroe, Pat Boone, Glenn Miller band, etc., playing throughout the picnic via a sound system set up by Marty and Mark gave rise to some impulsive dancing. Resident Joann Gasch showed her dancing ability with a walker as a partner to the delight of all. Make-your-own ice cream sundaes with all the fixin's were provided for dessert with Salva, Fran and Pam dishing it up. Following the picnic everyone was invited into the dining room where there were games, line dancing, and two drawings for door prizes. The whole afternoon was a great success.

Swim-a-thon Results

The Greenbelt Municipal Swim Team, powered mostly by enthusiasm, raised $1,333.50 at their annual swim-a-thon. The swimmers obtained pledges, then collected money for the laps they swam. The top fundraisers were Amanda Lohr, Kaitlin Lohrman, and Quilla Otto-Jacobs. The top swimmers Jamie Jernigan, Alexander and Kynan Rilee swam over three miles, 93, 92, and 90 laps respectively. They churned away while the others enjoyed their Italian ices.

Kareem Ali, Rebekeh Kilroy, Courtney and Marissa Like-Mathews, Christie and Cynthia Lin, Quilla Otto-Jacobs, Madi and Thea Peterson, Kenrick Rilee, Bhavna and Nirvan Sengupta, and Stephen Wade all joined the mile club. Will Dunham made the mile club, jumping into the pool right off the bus from a Camp Pine Tree field trip to Six-Flags. Ahmed Ali, Timothy Higgins, and Harrison and Westley Hilliard also swam. Parents and friends diligently counted laps and cheered on their swimmers. The team would like to thank everyone that contributed to their fundraiser.

Belongings Audition to Be August 7 & 8

The Greenbelt Arts Center will hold auditions for its fall production of Belongings, a new play by Daniel Fenton, at 7 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday, August 7 and 8, at the Arts Center, 123 Centerway in Greenbelt. There are five female roles ranging in age from 10 to 60s. The 10 and 14 year old characters may be cast with persons older if they are capable of looking the part. Director Nick DaPrato is looking for a talented ensemble cast. The show will have ten performances on weekends between October 26 and November 17. Actors will read scenes from the script for the audition. Belongings is a play about family. As her family prepares for an estate sale of "grandma's" belongings, Katy, age 14, conspires with her 10 year old sister to keep the sale from happening. She clings to her grandmother's belongings as a way of holding on to her memory. Meanwhile, Katy's mother, aunt, and great aunt have their own issues to resolve. Belongings is a funny and poignant look at family and reconciliation. Obituaries

Greenbelt Pioneer Ruth L. Kramer

Ruth L. Kramer, 91, Greenbelt pioneer, died on Friday, July 27. She was born and raised in Chambersburg, Pennsylvania and was the beloved wife of John G. Kramer for 67 years. They moved into 1-A Southway in January 1938. In 1952 they moved to College Park, where Mr. Kramer still resides.

Mrs. Kramer was a homemaker and worked for the Prince George's County school system at the Hollywood Elementary School cafeteria for 20 years. She was an active member at the Greenbelt Community Church since it was founded. She loved her early days in Greenbelt and felt lucky to have been selected to live there.

Mrs. Kramer is survived by her daughter and son-in-law, Mary Ann and Edward Halley, Jr. of College Park. She was the sister of Anna Hoover and Robert Mayer of Pennsylvania, grandmother of John, Robert, Edward III and James Halley, great-grandmother of John Michael, Patrick, Andrew, Edward IV, Bradley, James Jr., Christopher and Emma Halley.

Memorial services were held Wednesday, August 1, at the Greenbelt Community Church. Memorial contributions may be made to Greenbelt Community Church.

Richard C. Devlin

Richard C. Devlin, age 59, died on July 21 at his mountain top home in Maynardville, Tenn. after a year and a half battle with lung cancer.

Born in Jersey City, N.J., he moved with his family to Greenbelt in 1957.

In her eulogy of her brother, Kathryn D. Reynolds recalled his bringing home 38 fish to sell and make money for the family. Their mother made him get them out of the bathtub. Kathryn loved the times her brother was her date at high school dances. "We were the number one hit" - winning all the contests.

In Hollywood, Florida, Mr. Devlin was a rising star as pitcher for a local baseball team. His career was cut short. While he was being scouted by major league ball teams, he suffered a near-fatal automobile accident. He spent weeks in the hospital, receiving steel plates in his forehead and leg.

Mr. Devlin then spent 35 years driving 18-wheelers cross country. He and his wife of five years, Rita, spent those years on their Tennessee mountaintop.

Mr. Devlin is survived by his wife Rita, children Richard, Robert, and Lynell and parents Charles and Adele Hallak; a sister Kathryn D. Reynolds of Greenbelt, brothers William, John J. and Gary, a friend Earl Babbitt of Greenbelt, and many nieces and nephews.

A memorial service was held in Fountain City, Tenn.

Greenbelt Pioneer Edna A. Winterhak

Pioneer Greenbelter Edna A. Winterhak died on July 23 at Prince George's Hospital of a heart attack. She originally lived at 58-G Crescent Road.

For the past 37 years she has lived in Springhill Lake, where she was also a pioneer resident.

Mrs. Winterhak had worked in the Office of the Consumer Services supermarket. She retired after 34 years from the Department of Veterans' Affairs in Washington, D.C.

She was a member of Greenbelt Community Church.

Mrs. Winterhak belonged to a bowling league in Greenbelt. She was a past commander of Potomac River Power Squadron, a boating organization.

School Registration Begins on Monday

by Mary Moien

Registration of new Prince George's County middle and high school students will be held at each school on Monday and Tuesday August 6 and 7 from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Counselors will be available to assist with the registration.

New elementary students must register at the school they will attend. However, as the principal and secretary do registration at the elementary level, parents must contact the school to arrange a time for registration.

A parent or official guardian must register the student and must bring the student's birth certificate, immunization records, and proof of residency. In addition, a transcript is needed if the child is transferring from another school system.

Greenbelt Elementary School can be reached at 301-513-5912; Springhill Lake Elementary at 301-513-5996; and Magnolia Elementary at 301-918-8770. Additional general registration information can be obtained from the Office of Guidance and Counseling Services at 301-952-6377.

Riversdale Cooks

Visit the open-hearth kitchen at Riversdale to see how the Riversdale Kitchen Guild uses 19th century cookware to provide the sights, smells and tastes of early Federal cooking. Costumed interpreters toiling with the technology of the time will prepare period dishes with seasonally available ingredients using historic recipes. Dishes such as oyster loaf, mock turtle soup, sausage and cabbage stew, beggar's pudding and spotted dog will be bubbling and baking in the newly restored dependency. The only remaining work building of this former 2,000-acre plantation also houses a permanent exhibit on the life of Adam Francis Plummer, an enslaved African-American who documented his family's life at Riversdale both before and after emancipation.

The Kitchen Guild will cook every Sunday from noon to 4 p.m. Riversdale, a National Historic Landmark, is located near the University of Maryland at 4811 Riverdale Road, Riverdale Park. For further information call 301-864-0420, TTY 301-699-2544 or contact the website at www.pgparcs.com.

Exhibition of Artists' Work at Montpelier

Through August 22 the Resident Artists' Gallery at Montpelier Cultural Arts Center will host an exhibition of works created by the center's instructors.

This group exhibition will include a diverse mix of media. Each piece in the show exhibits the instructor's expertise in his or her chosen medium and reflects both the diversity and breadth of Montpelier's classroom programming. The instructors include Karen Miller (jewelry), Roslyn Logsdon (rug hooking), Irene Sylvester (watercolor), Gary Irby (ceramics), David Brosch (printmaking), Clark Mester (sculpture and drawing), Susan Howland (painting and drawing), Judith Conway (stained glass), John Beckley (bronze casting), and George Kochell (cartoon and drawing).

For more information, call 301-953-1993 or TTY 301-490-2329.

Arts Council Offers Free Blues Concert

The Prince George's Arts Council will present a free concert, Blues Works, on Friday, August 10 from noon to 1:30 p.m. in the building atrium at 6525 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville.

The concert will feature acoustic-style blues with Paul Watson on mandolin and harmonica, and Judy Luis-Watson on piano.

Free refreshments will be provided. For information, call 301-277-1402.

We want to be fair to the people whose tax money supports our programs. If you are not sure that you have a Greenbelt address, are able to vote in City elections, and pay City taxes, call 301-397-2204.

Carnival Booths

There is still time to obtain a booth for this year's festival. Booths serve as fund-raisers and are a good way to make the community aware of an organization's programs and activities. The booths sell food, offer games and contests, and showcase a variety of activities and entertainment. Many groups return from year to year and there are opportunities for newcomers to have a booth this year as well. Contact Linda Savage at 301-345-5723 for more information or for an application.

Information Day

Saturday, September 1, is Information Day - there is plenty of space still available. All groups are invited to participate, as this day provides them with an opportunity to share their cause, mission, or product (no sales are permitted though) with festival goers. Those who want to participate should contact Dave Pitts at 301-345-9605 for more information and an application.

Talent Show

Call now to reserve a spot in the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Talent Show. The talent show is on Saturday, September 1, at 6 p.m. and is currently seeking all types of entertainers. festival program. Jeannie can be reached at 301-345-1091.

Ticket Sellers

Applications are being accepted for ticket sellers for the carnival rides and activities. All shifts are needed. These are paid positions, but in lieu of pay, these positions can be used to fulfill a student's community service requirement. Call Patti Brothers at 301-982-2312 for more information.

Volunteers

Volunteers are still needed to assist with all areas of this year's festival. This is a great opportunity for students in grades 7 through 12 who need community hours to fulfill that requirement. Jobs include working in the information booth, setting up displays and booths for information day and the various shows, selling carnival tickets, handing out materials, running errands and many other jobs. The festival will try to match a volunteer's interests with the variety of jobs which are available. Volunteers (who are not students) are also more than welcome to come and help out. Call Patti Brothers at 301-982-2312 for more information.

Other Activities

This year's festival promises something for everyone. There will be softball games, a horse shoe tournament, a pet show, kids games, a t-ball hitting contest and many other "get involved" activities. The stage will be the center of top quality entertainment including The Nighthawks, Wayne Brown and Second Conspiracy, and Pride - each performing under the lights. The stage is brand new this year and is sure to provide top quality acoustics and lighting which will be enjoyed by everyone listening and watching. Further information on the various activities and entertainment will be in future festival notes.

City of Greenbelt COMMUNITY MEDIATION BOARD

The City of Greenbelt has re-established a Community Mediation Board under the auspices of the Prince George's County Human Relations Commission. This Board is comprised of city residents who have volunteered to receive mediation training and be available to mediate disputes between neighbors.

Mediation consists of a step by step problem solving process that results in the involved parties agreeing on a fair solution. Mediation serves as an alternative to litigation and brings both parties to the table on an equal basis. A mediator does not act as an advocate of either party. He/she reserves judgment and does not voice opinion.

Types of problems mediated may be noisy neighbors, barking dogs, trespassing children, blocked driveways, family feuds, littering, loitering, neighboring property neglect, small claims matters, etc.

Mediation services will be available at the Greenbelt Community Center on the second Tuesday and fourth Wednesday of each month. Any Greenbelt citizen who wishes to make use of this free service should call the Human Resources Officer, City of Greenbelt, 301-345-7203.

The information above was collected from Festival Committee Chairs by Patti Brothers and will be carried as a regular feature throughout the summer.

Democratic Club Celebrates 1976 Founding of Club

by James Giese

The Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club continued its 25th year celebration with a founder's evening of reminiscences on May 18. Pat Unger, who organized the program, began it by inviting Tom White and Dorothy Rothgeb to the front to reconvene the second meeting of the club and read the minutes of the first meeting, June 18, 1976. White had been temporary presiding officer and Rothgeb the secretary. The meeting had been held in the Greenbriar Community Room, still the club's meeting location. The club had been formed by former members of the Greenbelt and Springhill Lake Democratic Clubs.

At the first meeting, Delegate Charles "Buzz" Ryan was the temporary chair.

Kathy Gough, who was present for the anniversary meeting along with husband Jerry, was selected chair of the Constitution and By-laws Committee. Faye Sokol had been named chair of the Nominating Committee. Others present at the first meeting were: Betty Allen, Ruth Bond, Richard Castaldi, Celine Robinson Cooper, Bernie and Bob McGee, Fran and Al Herling, Ray and Marsha Krasnick, Deanne Peltin, Tony and Bobbi McCarthy, Gil and Micki Weidenfeld and Charlie Sokol. Allen, Bond, Bernie McGee Giese, the Krasnicks and Weidenfelds were also present for the anniversary meeting.

At the club's second meeting on July 16, Kathy Gough had read the draft constitution in its entirety. There had been discussion as to the length of term for the club's president. Nominating Committee Chair Faye Sokol had recommended an interim steering committee. Under new business, the club decided to have a booth at the Labor Day Festival. As might be expected in that presidential election year, the club decided to sell peanuts at its booth (Jimmy Carter was running for president) and to pass out literature. Jerry Gough called the third meeting to order. It had been proposed to name the club the Roosevelt Democratic Club after Franklin Roosevelt. Tom White moved to name the club after both Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt, a motion that carried. White, who was co-chair of the festival booth reported that peanuts had been purchased and were ready to go on sale. (Since then, the club has sold funnel cakes at its booth.)

Recollections

Original club organizers were asked to give their recollections about those early club days. Rothgeb lauded the work that had been accomplished during those first three months—the club had been organized, constitution and bylaws adopted, officers put in place, a well-decorated Labor Day booth had been organized and manned, and the club had coordinated with the central committee for recognition and to undertake voter registration. Unger noted some of the club's early speakers, State Comptroller Louis Goldstein, Governor Harry Hughes, Blair Lee, Congressman Steny Hoyer, Senators Paul Sarbanes and Barbara Mikulski, Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer and candidate for Governor Ted Venetoulis. J Davis noted that she had joined the club when Venetoulis came to speak.

White remembered an organizing meeting he attended in the lobby of the community building with Ryan, Charlie Sokol and Tony McCarthy gathered around a table.

Jerry Gough claimed it was the best fed democratic club. There were terrific luaus with shrimp and everything, he said. Joyce and Al Wright had provided for the luaus. Micki Weidenfeld added that the club members knew that they wanted a social component to the meeting. The club still has refreshments after each meeting.

Later, Unger read a letter the club had sent opposing the 1981 redistricting as poorly conceived and an inequitable plan. The club's main concern was that Greenbelt would be put in the same district as Bowie. (It was.) That letter, Unger said, had been written by J Davis. Before the anniversary program had begun that evening, Mayor Judith Davis had told the club of the city's concern about the 2001 redistricting proposals and the fear that the city might be split into two different districts.

County to Present Landscape Awards

The Prince George's County Beautification Committee again will honor those who, by their landscape activities, are contributing to the beauty of the community in the 31st Annual Beautification Awards.

Living and working in Prince George's County is enhanced by the many who provide pleasant surroundings. Every year the Beautification Committee tries to identify and show its appreciation to some of these citizens. Whether the property is residential, commercial, public, or private, efforts for beautification can be seen. Take a look around!

Any person or group maintaining property in Prince George's County is invited to submit an application for the 31st Annual Beautification Awards.

All projects will be judged by nationally accredited members of the Landscape Design Consultant Council of the National Capital Area Federation of Garden Clubs. Professionally designed and installed projects will be judged separately from owner-designed projects. Awards will be presented at a special awards ceremony and reception in September 2001. For more information contact Charmane Truesdell at 301-336-2600 or fax 301-776-4589.

Future Co-op Leaders Tour Local Co-ops

by Altoria Bell Ross

Twenty-one participants in the National Cooperative Business Association's (NCBA) Future Co-op Leaders program toured Greenbelt's cooperatives on the afternoon of April 27, visiting GHI, the Greenbelt Co-op, and the Greenbelt Nursery School and Kindergarten. They also ate lunch at the New Deal Café while representatives from Greenbelt Federal Credit Union gave a presentation.

Greenbelt Citizen of the Year Leta Mach, who is the NCBA's director of cooperative education, organized the tour. The Future Co-op Leaders program is part of NCBA's educational outreach that provides annual training for staff, directors and members of co-ops.

The program participants, who included GHI's Brenda Lewis, had attended the 2001 Cooperative Conference of the NCBA, the Cooperative Development Foundation and the National Cooperative Bank on April 25 and 26. The conference included the annual meetings of these three organizations. Participants also attended a Cooperative Hall of Fame ceremony and public policy briefings.

The program, which is now 10 years old; is funded through contributions to NCBA's Honored Cooperator Awards and grants from cooperatives and foundations.

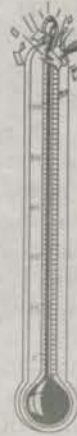

The Future Co-op Leaders, including Brenda Lewis, assistant to the general manager at GHI, stand in front of GHI member Jill Stevenson's home on Crescent. Stevenson also works for the National Cooperative Business Association, the tour's sponsor.

Hot Weather Reminder

On 78-degree day, the temperature inside a shaded car is 90 degrees, while a car parked in the sun can reach 160 degrees within minutes. Protect pets, children, the elderly, and anyone who would be unable to relocate to a cooler environment on their own by never leaving them alone in a vehicle during warm weather, even for a short time. If you see helpless individuals, animal or human, confined to a vehicle on a warm day, ask nearby businesses to page the owner of the vehicle or call the police.

Greenbelt Company Has Stand-up MRI

Washington Open MRI, which specializes in open-air Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI), will unveil the world's first Stand-Up, High-Field Open MRI at the company's newest location, 7399 Hanover Parkway.

A revolutionary development in diagnostic medicine, the Stand-Up MRI offers the unique advantage of imaging the body's organs and tissues as they operate in their normal functioning element — essentially, in an upright position.

In most cases, diagnosing a patient in the upright position offers the optimal viewpoint from which a patient's symptoms — and injuries — can be clearly and most effectively observed and diagnosed.

This new technology is particularly helpful with ailments of the GI Tract, the spine and joints, including hips, knees and ankles. Unlike a recumbent (lie down) MRI, when standing, doctors can see the natural stress on the injured area and thus more accurately diagnose the injury.

The Indomitable Stand-Up MRI

is not just another open MRI — it's mega-open: a patient can actually look outside the magnet gap and view a monitor on the wall. This configuration eliminates the common feelings of claustrophobia often experienced in a traditional closed MRI, where the patient's body is fully enclosed in a tunnel.

With six locations in the suburban Maryland area, Washington Open MRI is a pioneer in providing an alternative to cramped, noisy and uncomfortable MRI examinations. For information call 202-296-7200.

Theodore Lerner, an early partner in University Square and Charlestowne Village in Greenbelt, Levine said he had previously worked with Westfields, which holds a lease within the Greenbelt Station properties.

Levine stressed his experience with wetlands issues, having worked with the Army Corps of Engineers and also with governmental jurisdictions to create "an enjoyable environment to live in. We think we know how to do it," he said. Working together with the city, he expressed his belief that they could create "a viable project that Greenbelt can be proud of."

Concessions

Rivera, who had spent the afternoon in meetings with Greenbelt's planning staff, began by describing several changes in the developers' proposal. Following the wishes of College Park, they were reducing the maximum building height from 20 to 12 stories in line with the Sectional Map Amendment recommendations. (However, it turned out that this limit might later be lifted if the lesser height were not economically viable.)

Rivera said the developers were also sensitive to worries of College Park that water control measures might lead to offsite flooding. They were gathering hydrology data for the Corps of Engineers and working with the Maryland Department of the Environment to reduce wetlands impacts from 3.5 acres to 0.5 acres. The alignment of the proposed north-south road had been moved closer to the railroad tracks also to reduce wetlands impacts, Rivera said.

Westfields supported the main street concept design, he reported. They were "flexible" and wanted to work with the city, Rivera stressed. They were working on designing a better arrangement of units and better parking arrangements to maximize a transit oriented plan.

Levine, speaking from his experience with other projects, argued that Greenbelt's concern about the development's impact on the city's police force could be dealt with by an internal impact fee — a certain amount for each square foot of space to fund a security system. "It's a good way to fund shortfalls," he urged.

Rivera discussed issues dealing with schools, mandatory dedication of space for recreational purposes and flexibility in meeting city concerns about the alignment of internal roads. "It's better to have a win-win situation," he assured council.

Council Reactions

Councilmember Rodney Roberts adamantly objected to the proposed north-south road within the conceptual site plan. He wondered if the existing rail line could be used to move people between the north and south core areas of the project. "There are statutory distances between stations," Levine countered. Later Rivera suggested that a shuttle service, "even a private one," might serve the purpose. "We would not want people to drive from north to south," he said.

Councilmember Alan Turnbull thanked Levine for attending the meeting and for bringing new ideas and talking about the nuances of development possibilities. Levine agreed that this was a complex process, involving many different jurisdictions and a number of investors and participants.

He had been getting a lot of input, Levine said, some of which would lead to unviable economic prospects. "Much depends on the scope of the project — coming up with a conceptual plan that will get massaged. It's in an embryonic stage that grows. Every step we take has an economic impact — on you and on us." As to attracting a high quality anchor store, Levine said that this was premature at this stage. "You have to do a selling job. The project has to have a hook — that it's going to be something. It has to have a sense of place."

Audience Responses

Kevin Jefferson of Mandan Terrace, wearing an "I support Greenbelt Station" sticker, spoke in favor of the project. Describing Austin, Texas, as a model mix of commercial and attractive environmental spaces, he felt that this project could succeed in the same way. "The bike path and trees are critical," he said.

Burn Kelly, a site planner hired by CCRIC, said, "Almost everyone in this room wants this project," which had gone through "many iterations." He saw the north-south road, however, as a major problem.

Councilmember Thomas White, recounting the experience of his 28 years on the city council, recapitulated the city's history with developers. "It is not by accident that Greenbelt has high quality development," he said. He cited Capital Office Park, the Golden Triangle, and the Maryland Trade Center as three projects that came about because council intervened with developers to suggest grander ideas than they had originally had in mind.

"We're in the concept phase," he said. "It's a moving target. We're not there yet, but it looks like it's moving there."

Irving Reed of Lake Arbor, Mitchellville, commented that "this is bigger than Greenbelt. This is the county. There's a tremendous amount of interest in this project." A petition signed by 1,200 people in favor of the Metroland development had been introduced into the public record and presented at the County's Planning Board hearing on July 12.

CCRIC Chair Pat Blankenship of Berwyn Heights pointed out that the site contains a tributary of the Anacostia River. "It has to be a viable living community. It could be a gem," she said.

Former state delegate Michael Arrington, argued that the development "would be for the greater good of Prince George's County. There were 1100 parties of record who support the project." He charged Greenbelt with being parochial.

Councilmember Roberts answered that "gridlock is not for the greater good of the county."

Later CCRIC member Sylvia Lewis, said: "I haven't heard anyone speaking against the project. Everyone spoke about making this a great project."

"Every step we take has an economic impact — on you and on us."

Locals Add Pizzazz at Comic Cabaret

by Lucie MacKinnon

One Saturday night in May, Greenbelt's own Jane Love, guest performer, opened the Comic Cabaret, one of the Acme Clown Month events which had entertained Greenbelt for weeks.

Now a senior citizen, Jane Love left home in Illinois as a teenager to join Red Skelton's local dance studio as a marathon dancer. Jane had lots of other adventures before settling in Greenbelt some 15 years ago. Saturday night her original skit wowed the crowd as she strip... uh, progressed from baggy pants and sneakers to a hot pink sequined gown and scuffs. From the wings, son Doug Love read the provocative script, as the audience clapped.

Another local performer, Rick Potter, professional clown and juggler, delighted and amazed all with his escape routine and his you-have-to-see-it-to-believe-it juggling.

Isolde, who introduces herself as a nouveau folksinger, is also a Greenbelter. Her voice offered an interlude of quiet beauty to a boisterous evening.

A young boy from the audience whom we only know as "Stanley" almost stole the show. Asked to help, he went onstage and was instructed to stretch out on the floor — as the juggler stood over him sharpening three very bright knives! Stanley was then blindfolded while Mom clicked her camera from the front row.

Professor Adam Gertsacov, Clown Laureate, organized and emceed the show of clowns, jugglers, and telepathists that captured a full-house crowd.

IRS Advance Refund Checks Mailed

The Internal Revenue Service is now in its third week of mailing out the advance tax refund payments authorized by Congress as a part of the recent income tax cuts. Payments will continue until the end of September and until all eligible recipients have received checks.

In the second week Marylanders received 170,000 checks averaging $426 and totaling over $20 million. These advance refund payments are automatic and require no actions on the part of taxpayers other than cashing the checks. Checks are based upon reported income for persons paying taxes for the year 2000 and may range up to $300 for individuals and $600 for joint returns.

Persons who have changed their address since filing their return will still get their check if they have filed change of address forms with the U.S. Post Office.

Prior to the check being sent out, recipients receive a notice. Some notices and checks may be delayed because the IRS has not finished processing 2000 returns for persons who did not file their return until April, 2001.

For answers to questions or more information, taxpayers may either call the IRS hotline or go to the IRS website at www.irs.gov.

City Notes

The week of July 23, the special details crew replaced traffic signs which had been knocked down on Hanover Parkway and on Crescent Road; the crew also began refurbishing the Labor Day booths.

The horticulture crew weeded landscaped beds on the business side of Hanover Parkway, at Stream Valley Park, Schrom Hills free-play area and rose bed, and at the Youth Center. The crew also removed a dead, hazardous tree near I Court Southway and chipped limbs felled by summer storms in Stream Valley Park.

The parks crew removed limbs and brush from the outfield fences at Northway Field, cleaned the concrete at Schrom Hills Pavilion using the new cleaning system and installed a new hand rail and stairway on a sliding board at the Lake Park.

At the Community Center, the building maintenance crew installed a new door in the Adult Day Care and reinstalled four hand rails. The crew also continued work on the fire alarm upgrade at the Youth Center.

Washington Ear Asks All to Lend an Ear

Metropolitan Washington Ear ("the Ear") invites volunteers to read, help with theater escort and assist physically and visually impaired people in many other ways. "The Ear" enables the disabled to "read" (hear) the newspaper, plus selected other publications, any time of day or night, seven days a week. Using only their touch-tone telephones, they can access the available publications whenever they choose. There is no charge for the services which several Greenbelt residents receive.

Starting early in the morning each day, volunteers read the Washington Post and USA Today into a computer: news and editorial pages, sports, the larger ads, special sections and the weekly supplements including TV logs, pictures, charts, graphs, and cartoons are fully described.

Other publications include Time, Washingtonian, People magazines, and the Wall Street Journal. With their touch-tone telephones, callers can choose dozens of categories, go from article to article, skip and scan, jump forward and backward, and browse as sighted people do.

They control the speed and volume of volunteers' recorded voices.

Individual ID numbers are used and there is free telephone access throughout Maryland, D.C. and Virginia. Toll-free lines are provided by the states.

There are many more interesting services provided by "the Ear." For example, from 7 to 9 p.m., volunteers look up items from the Yellow Pages and Washington Post classifieds. For another example, sighted volunteers provide door-to-door transportation to and from performances in the Washington area. Low-vision or blind patrons may hear, via a small earpiece in one ear, a trained volunteer describe stage action without bothering others. And there are even more services and volunteer opportunities.

Those who could use these services may call "the Ear" at 301-681-6636. Persons interested in volunteering may call the same number. The fax number is 301-681-5227. Tax-deductible financial contributions are also very welcome, and may be sent to 35 University Boulevard East, Silver Spring, Maryland 20901.

Those Were the Days . . .

by Ray Bochert

Since the last letter I sent to you, I have received replies from an army of old friends and neighbors that lived, worked and played in Greenbelt before it became a crossroad for Interstate highways from Washington to Baltimore. Never in our wildest dreams did we envision the housing and population explosion that has taken place in and around Greenbelt. We know that we can't take a giant step backward to simpler times, nor do we want to do so! But..... what will the present generation have to remember?

We all remember what we want to remember Times were tough back in my day. Walking or riding bikes while carrying a brownbag lunch to school was normal. Student crossing guards near the elementary school directed cars and children. Reminiscing back to my graduation year of 1945 I recall with particular fondness one of my favorite English teachers, Mrs. Violet Younger. I think she was a Western Maryland College graduate and all the young men in her classes had a crush on her. She instilled in me a love for poetry and literature which I still enjoy. Our High School Principal was John Speicher. He was an intelligent and understanding man and everyone liked him but kept their distance because he allowed no foolishness. Some of my fellow students opted for the Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Helen Trucksess. She moved the boys from soprano to tenor to alto in her Glee Club until her operetta's were perfect. The boys all loved gym but I did poorly in baseball and basketball because of my height (5'-6") but football was a different story. Pete Cookson, Paul Strickler, Mahlon Eshbaugh, Jim Carneal and Donald Wolfe rounded out the basketball team. We also had some other good athletes like Dick Burke, Jimmy McCarl, Bobby Hall, Jim Griggs and my old buddy Alan Taylor. They were a handsome sight when in uniform.

We had a great soccer team back 'in those days coached by Jack Zeldin, our Phys-Ed teacher. Lately I've been crossing off some of these names but when we look back on where we've been and what we've seen in our own lifetime, it hasn't been too bad. Go back with me to April 4 and 5, 1945. The Greenbelt High School Glee Club presented "The China Shop," an Original Chinese Operetta in two acts. The Characters: Fat Sing by Le Grand Benefiel; Sing Fong by George Neuman; Wun Tun by Tim Evans; Mush Lush by Ray Bochert; Chunk by Clayton McCarl; Mr. Juscot Karfair by Philip Dykstra and Lotus Blossom by Christie Richardson and a chorus of three girls called the "Three Belles" played by Kay Roach, Shirley Mitchell and Alice McDertnid. Lucy Forrester was Hoy Tee Toy and two Chinamen were James Bordas and Harry Leiper. We made all our own scenery and costumes but Mrs. Cotterman did the makeup. It was magnificent and we all had a ball and it was a rousing success. I think it got us enough funding to have our senior banquet. Most of the boys went straight into the service after graduation because World War II was still raging in the Pacific.

Ruth Morgan, a member of one of the very first Greenbelt families, was a friend of mine even before we moved to Greenbelt in October of 1937. She and I went to Ross Elementary School near Meridian Park in uptown Washington, D.C. in 1936 before both our families qualified to live in Greenbelt. The Elementary School's fourth grade class was the first to clear a nature trail from the baseball field up to Indian Springs. (This was before it became "Braden Field.") We pioneered the trail with brush hooks and pick axes and it was actually dedicated by the Mayor.

Boy Scout Troop 202 spent many a campout at Indian Springs in the early days. I see by your paper that the "Old Greenbelt Theatre" is still being used. That's great! My first full-time job was usher in that theater at 35 cents an hour. I loved movies (still do) and it was wonderful to get paid to do what I loved most. I think I memorized all the movies from early 1943 until I went into the Navy in June of 1945. Ticket prices were 10 cents for kids under 12 and 25 cents for adults. Jim Carneal, myself, Wesley Bryan and others had wagons and we lined them up at the Co-op Store to carry groceries home for the folks that didn't have cars back when we were just 10 years old. We had an honor system when lining up outside. When one wagon moved out, the next one moved over, took his place and waited for the next customer, etc. It was particularly busy on Fridays and Saturdays and we managed to make enough money for the weekend as we didn't get any allowance at home because the depression was still on and our parents didn't have the extra money. We understood and never complained. When I was 19 and postwar peace settled in, I bought an old 1931 Chrysler Imperial limo that was resurrected and restored from a junkyard during the war. It really did go after we overhauled it. It boasted a huge Straight-8, 200-hp engine that was six feet long. Back then gasoline was only 20 cents a gallon but that monster took 30 gallons to drive from Greenbelt to Ocean Beach and back. It ate us alive but it was fun to drive. All six of the boys chipped in $1.00 and that filled the tank. "I think that old car would bring a fortune now but so would all the cars we drove then. Frank Bauer had a 1936 Ford Coupe and we ran over to Laurel, Maryland almost every weekend to the dances at Knotty Pine Tavern. That little black beauty could do 100-mph in second gear. Frank is gone now and I miss him. We used to sing and harmonize a lot just sitting down at the Center on the benches at night. Patrolman Buddy Attick liked to hear us sing but told us to "Tone it down, boys, people are trying to sleep." That was it. No hassle! Modesty and morals were a HIGH priority then and one City Ordinance placed a fine on women who wore shorts downtown. Well sir, one defiant gal wore hers to town, was cited by a policeman and all the men sitting around paid her ticket and complained about the Ordinance to the Mayor. No more such tickets were issued after that. Thus began "Women's Rights" for Greenbelt.

Thanks for letting me "Reminisce." Keep in touch: rbochert@vci.net.

Nurse Jacik Dances Into Retirement

by Nelda Young

Three hours into retirement on April 20, Miriam Jacik of Plateau Place celebrated with her friends on Friday night by attending her Greenbelt International Folk Dance class as usual.

Jacik had spent the final three years of her nursing career as a case manager at the Magnolia Center, a skilled nursing facility in Lanham.

Retirement is actually a transition for Jacik. She looks forward to "the freedom that retirement affords" but plans to keep busy. She will continue to take folk dance classes and to perform with the New Carrollton Alpine Dancers, who sing and dance primarily at Octoberfests in Maryland, the District of Columbia, and Virginia.

Miriam Jacik celebrated her retirement with her folk dancing friends on April 20.

In May 2002 Jacik will take "the trip of a lifetime" by cruising up the Alaskan inlet from Vancouver, British Columbia, to Anchorage.

Upon her return she plans to work part time either as a nurse or volunteer at a hospice.

The Greenbelt Sharks 12 and under girls soccer team capped an undefeated season with a 4-2 come-from-behind victory over Lewisdale to capture their fourth county championship. The girls in the picture are (from left standing) Anne Marie Loutsch, Caitlin Higgins, Kimberly Carey, Candace Windsor, Elizabeth Hammett, Rita Wade, and Kelsey Shaffer; (kneeling) Amanda King, Sarah Kessel, Katherine Rim, Jessica Hall, Shaina Wisler, Ellie Lomax, Elise Flynn, and Candace Gibson. Coach Mark Wisler is in the back. Sara Johnson is not in the picture.

Dear citizens and business owners of Greenbelt:

The Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc. would like to inform the citizens and business owners of Greenbelt on our progress in regard to the year 2001 general fund drive. We are close to this year's goal due to your many generous donations. We are currently applying this valuable revenue source towards many needed equipment items and station improvements. As in the past we would like to remind those that have not as of yet made a donation to please consider doing so.

You may choose to mail your donation back to us or bring it to the station and hand it to one of our volunteers. We are located at 125 Crescent Rd., Greenbelt, Md. If you have misplaced your donation package you can still mail us your contribution, simply write your name and address on a file card or any piece of paper. Our mailing address is: Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Dept., P.O. Box #35, Greenbelt, Md. 20768.

As in the past I would like to emphasize strongly that you do not accept any solicitations over the telephone from persons identifying themselves as members or representatives of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc. For this annual general fund drive, we only ask for donations through the mail.

We have received some questions from concerned citizens as to some of our other scheduled fundraisers. Our Ladies Auxiliary conducts a picture/portrait drive in the fall. This fundraiser involves representatives from a contracted corporation that go door-to-door throughout the city of Greenbelt. They are instructed to show a city permit and a letter from the Ladies Auxiliary. During the month of December we conduct what we call our annual boot drive. We station our members at various intersections collecting donations.

Again, may I thank you for your very important past and continued support during our general fund drive.

Jay A Remenick

President,

Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc.

An Artful Afternoon, Something for All

On Sunday, August 5, the Greenbelt Recreation Department will host a free Artful Afternoon from noon until 5 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center. Guests of all ages are invited.

At 1 p.m., sculptor Robin Croft will offer a slide lecture about his work, examples of which are presently on display at the Greenbelt Community Center Gallery. Croft's sculptures are composed of found metal parts. Works on view include selections from two series presenting darkly mysterious interpretations of familiar summer icons - insects and beach chairs. Croft describes the two series as homages to author Franz Kafka and photographer Andre Kertesz, respectively.

From 1 to 4 p.m., work with artist Becky Williams to create large-scale puppets. No prior artistic experience is required. Additional open studio time will be provided for participants wishing to continue work on their creations. Finished puppets will be carried in Greenbelt's annual Labor Day Parade.

At 2 p.m., enjoy the soulful rhythms of Drake's Mojo. Local percussionist Drake Allen will perform with drums, gongs, and bells. Experienced percussionists are invited to bring their instruments and join in.

At 4 p.m., the Greenbelt Arts Center will offer a sneak preview of this year's riotous Shakespeare on the Green presentation. Enjoy selections from a Midsummer Night's Dream, set in the American 1950's, and participate in the telling of the story.

From noon until 5 p.m., tour the studios of the Community Center's 10 Artists in Residence. Visit with continuing artists, and with three artists who have recently joined the program. Newcomers include fiber artist Becky Williams, painter/photographer Alice Norris, and painter Gaines Wynn.

Throughout the afternoon, Greenbelt Pottery, Inc. will host a sale of ceramics. Partial proceeds will benefit the operation of the Community Center's ceramics studios.

Library Restrictions Being Tightened

Effective July 1, Prince George's County Memorial Library System will restrict delinquent library card holders from checking out additional materials until fines or fees are cleared or reduced.

Effective July 1st card holders' records will be considered delinquent if $5 or more is owed in fines and fees, if they have two or more items overdue, if one or more items are at least 45 days overdue, or if the card holder has claimed the return of 10 or more items that are not checked in on the library's computer system.

Customers who owe less than $5 may now renew materials by calling 301-333-1111 or via the website www.prge.lib.md.us. Special circumstances may be discussed with the branch library manager or by calling Administration at 301-699-3500, ext. 234.

Nominations Sought For Volunteer Awards

Know a beautiful person? Inner beauty, that is.

The "Maryland You are Beautiful" Program will begin accepting nominations this month for its 15th Annual Volunteer Awards, given to recognize Maryland's "unsung heroes." These are the individuals who volunteer their time to serve Maryland, its citizens and its visitors. Nomination forms will be available in many public buildings. Call MYAB at 410-347-2270 or visit MYAB's on-line web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/myab for the number of the local coordinator.

Nominations will be accepted through August 10. All volunteers nominated will be recognized by their local elected officials, and one nominee from each county and Baltimore City will be chosen to represent the many nominees from their area at a statewide awards ceremony in Annapolis, hosted by Governor Parris N. Glendening.

Host a Student

Hosting a high school exchange student in August can bring the world to one's own doorstep.

Families of all types are needed — retired couples to single-parent families. Not only two-parent families have enjoyed hosting an international son or daughter.

Students arrive the first or second week of August with their own spending money for clothes, entertainment and other expenses. They have their own medical insurance as well.

Host families agree to room and board and to include them as a family member. One semester, as well as academic school year students are available. All students speak English.

The Riverdale location also houses CLB's Visionary Store, a specialty store that retails unique products for people who are blind or visually impaired.
