Senior Kathy Labukas Joins Top Swimmers Across the U.S.

by Susan Harris

Kathy Labukas grew up in Greenbelt and swam with its first swim team, the Sharks, which formed in 1957. The coach, Al Castaldi, had contacted her parents saying he needed a 6-year-old girl to complete the team, which led to her winning many events and becoming one of the top swimmers in the Princemont League that the Greenbelt team competed in – until she aged out at 18.

When she left for college – one that had no swimming pool at all – she put swimming on pause, but after returning to Greenbelt in 1985 she regularly took advantage of its new indoor pool, swimming for fitness, not competition.

Last year, Labukas started swimming with friends on the DC Water Wizards Senior Swim Team and got the urge to try competing once again. In September she swam in her first swim meet in 54 years at the DC Senior Games, winning all of the six events in which she competed, among women 70 to 74 years old.

Last month Labukas competed for Maryland in the National Senior Games in Pittsburgh and says it was quite a surprise to finish in the top 10 in the country in all her events. Her top individual showing was fourth place in the 100-yard backstroke. In a mixed individual medley relay (men and women, all in their 70s) she and her relay members won gold.

Participating in the National Senior Games was “challenging, exhausting and fun,” said Labukas, and she looks forward to qualifying for the next National Senior Games – in Des Moines, Iowa, in 2025.

Labukas appreciates all the encouragement she’s gotten, from far and near. “My friends have been very supportive of my choice to compete again later in life,” she said. “Former Greenbelter Mary Anne McDonald Papale, my friend

Byrd Resigns from Council 2.5 Months before Election

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

On Monday, August 14, near the conclusion of the city’s regular council meeting, Councilmember Colin Byrd announced his resignation. He is in his third term on the council. He was first elected in 2017 and was elected mayor in 2019. The City of Greenbelt elects a new council every two years, with the next election approaching in November.

During his announcement, Byrd thanked God and numerous people including his family, various Greenbelters mentioned by name as well as residents more generally, members of the Greenbelt Reparations Committee and each of the current councilmembers. Byrd drew an analogy between himself and the American football player Gale Sayers, who retired from football at the age of 30. “Gale retired from the game because the game had worn him a little earlier than he initially anticipated,” said Byrd. “And he felt like he could no longer play the game like he used to. He had dropped the ball one too many times. He retired because he knew it was time.” “Truth be told, among other reasons, the work of Greenbelt politics has to some extent worn on me.”

Byrd told the News Review he plans to begin a master’s program in school psychology at Bowie State University in late August. He hopes to help children fulfill their dreams and develop their strengths, “even if they have at some point lost their way.” He was particularly pleased to be attending an Historically Black College and University, just as two of his grandparents did.

Speaking with the News Review on Tuesday, Interim City Manager Tim George said the council has not yet addressed how to deal with the vacant seat because they were still processing the announcement Monday night. They will now review the city

Council Election Is Coming: Time to Register to Vote Is Now

Any resident of Greenbelt, age 16 and over, can participate in the November City Council election – by signing a candidate’s petition or voting, or running for office if over 18. But doing any of those things requires being registered to vote at a residence address that lies within the boundaries of the City of Greenbelt. The Motiva apartments on Cherrywood Lane will be the newest expansion of addresses on the city’s list since 2015 when Greenbelt Station addresses were added.

Register

For those not already registered, the deadline for registering to vote in the November 7 election is Monday, October 9. This deadline also applies to making changes to one’s name or address.

Registrations must be received by the Prince George’s County Board of Elections no later than 4:30 p.m. at 1100 Mercantile Lane, Suite 115A, in Largo. Since glitches may occur at any level, would-be voters are advised not to wait until the last minute.

Verify Registration

Newly registered residents can call the County Board of Elections at 301-341-7300 if they have not received a voter notification card within two weeks of registering. Alternatively, they or any others

Peace Builders: Teaching To Manage, Solve Problems

by Joe Robbins

Peace is a skill that can be learned. This is one of the take-home messages from the Little Friends for Peace Camp held at Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ, during the week of July 24. Camp counselors worked with 36 students, ages 5 to 14, from Greenbelt and Lanham. Each day of camp starts with an opening gathering, where campers learn a new code word such as care, share, cooperate, shine and celebrate. Then the groups, separated by ages, move through art projects, musical explorations, yoga and cooperative games.

The activities offer concrete examples of the somewhat generic code words. For example, the word peace comes with an activity called the peace post office where campers make personal notes that they put into each other’s mailbox. “We model how to affirm someone,” said MJ Park, who runs the camps with her husband, Jerry Park.

The Parks have run the camps for 44 years, though not always in Maryland. “Little Friends for Peace was started in Minnesota,” MJ said. “It was an outgrowth of my background as a teacher and Jerry being a community organizer and also working in the field of education empowering

Letters to the Editor

More on Mosquitoes: Eggs and Zappers

In their helpful series of recent News Review articles on preventing mosquitoes, GreenCAPS noted that dumping out standing water is one of the best things one can do. Dumping kills the larvae that were in the water and deprives mosquitoes of a place to lay more eggs. To get rid of not only the larvae, but also the eggs, also wipe out the inside of the container after it's empty. As the CDC notes, mosquito eggs adhere to the inside walls of containers, just above the waterline, where they "stick like glue." If not wiped out, eggs stuck there can survive in the dry container for up to eight months and resume developing if they get covered with water during that time, by rainfall or water from a garden hose, for example.

Now for what you shouldn't do: Bug zappers that electrocute flying insects aren't effective, according to the American Mosquito Control Association (AMCA). More than 90 percent of those satisfying snaps of electricity one hears while sitting on the patio at night might make you feel better, but they're not frying mosquitoes; they're frying other insects, the vast majority of which are beneficial, including those that prey on other insect pests that are a major food source for birds and other animals, or are crop pollinators, and that help keep our environment in balance. The AMCA cited two studies by the University of Notre Dame, showing that only 4.1 and 6.4 percent, respectively, of the bugs killed by zappers over one season were mosquitoes. The studies also showed no difference in mosquito numbers in yards that had zappers vs. those that didn't. Another study cited by the AMCA showed that far less than 1 percent of the comparatively paltry number of mosquitoes killed by zappers were female, the only gender that bites (males feed on nectar).

On Screen at Old Greenbelt Theatre

Jules
The film follows Milton (Ben Kingsley), who lives a quiet life of routine in a small western Pennsylvania town, but finds his day upended when a UFO and its extraterrestrial passenger crash-land in his backyard. Before long, Milton develops a close relationship with the extraterrestrial he calls "Jules." Things become complicated when two neighbors (Harriet Sansom Harris and Jane Curtin) discover Jules and the government quickly closes in. What follows is a funny, wildly inventive ride as the three neighbors find meaning and connection later in life – thanks to this unlikely stranger.

Shortcomings
Ben, a struggling filmmaker, lives in Berkeley, Calif., with his girlfriend, Miko, who works for a local Asian-American film festival. When he's not managing an arthouse movie theater as his day job, Ben spends his time obsessing over unavailable blonde women, watching Criterion Collection DVDs and eating in diners with his best friend Alice, a queer grad student with a serial dating habit. When Miko moves to New York for an internship, Ben is left to his own devices, and begins to explore what he thinks he might want.

Theater Camp
Tony Award winner Ben Platt and Molly Gordon star in this new original comedy as Amos and Rebecca-Diane – lifelong best friends and drama instructors at a rundown camp in upstate New York. When clueless tech-bro Troy (Jimmy Tatro) arrives to run the property (into the ground), Amos, Rebecca-Diane and production manager Glenn (Noah Galvin) band together with the staff and students to stage a masterpiece and keep their beloved summer camp afloat.

Carole King: Home Again – Live in Central Park
This brand-new feature-length concert documentary presents musical icon Carole King's triumphant May 26, 1973, homecoming concert on The Great Lawn of New York City's Central Park before an estimated audience of 100,000. Directed by George Scott and produced by Lou Adler and John McDermott, the film presents the complete multi-camera 16-mm footage filmed and recorded by Adler in 1973 but never before released. Alongside the complete performance footage is the behind-the-scenes story of King's remarkable transformation from an in-demand, staff songwriter to an iconic artist in her own right.

Monsters University (2013)
Ever since he was a kid monster, Mike Wazowski (Billy Crystal) has dreamed of becoming a Scarer. To make his dream a reality, he enrolls at Monsters University. During his first semester, he meets Sulley (John Goodman), a natural-born Scarer. Sulley and Mike engage in a fierce rivalry that ultimately gets them both kicked out of MU's elite Scare Program. To make things right, Mike and Sulley – along with a bunch of misfit monsters – will have to learn to work together.

youth.” MJ said that while at an anti-violence rally, she and her husband suddenly understood. “We had a kind of epiphany that if we want peace, we need to intentionally teach peace.”

They set about creating a curriculum that would provide a set of tools for everyday life. They have worked in Maryland for 31 years, and now live in Accokeek.

The third day is cooperate, where campers learn that, in order to solve a conflict, they need to work together and that conflicts are not bad. “They’re an opportunity for a relationship,” MJ said. The camp has a peace table with a peace pole in the middle where children learn to talk with each other. The code word cooperate takes on a completely new level of meaning for the games run by Jerry. “In cooperative games we take competitive games that kids are very familiar with, like musical chairs or dodgeball, and we change the rules so that it’s not a win-lose game. It’s a win-win,” he said. “With cooperative musical chairs, when the music stops and you don’t have a chair, you’re not out. You’re in somebody else’s, sharing the chair, and the chairs become a lifeboat or the whole team saves the whole team.” The kids run around, have fun and learn about promoting everyone winning. Nevertheless, there are inevitable conflicts. In fact, conflicts are part of the curriculum, and are part of the day of cooperation.

Other new themes this year included presentations on caring for and protecting the Earth and how a plant-based diet might be good for one, the environment and the world. Greenbelters Geraldine Adams (Food for Life instructor), Lore Rosenthal, Alex Barnes and Patience Robbins offered presentations or support throughout the week. On Friday afternoon, Peace Camp ended with a presentation for parents and friends. The campers sang songs, shared memories of the past week and what they learned about peace.

Teacher Sylla is Still Missing: Police Ask Public for Information

by Melissa Sites and Anna Bedford-Dillow

"The longer she is missing, the longer the search goes on, the greater our concern becomes that we will not be able to locate her in a safe manner, so obviously time is always of the essence in something like this," said Greenbelt Police Chief Richard Bowers, speaking at a press conference a week-and-a-half after the disappearance of third-grade teacher Mariame Toure Sylla.

Bowers called a press conference on Thursday, August 10 to discuss the missing-person case. The press conference was held outside the Police Station, with several television and news stations attending, as well as some members of the community. Bowers said the search was ongoing and that it continued to be a missing-person case. "We continue to need the public's help," he said. "We ask again for help from our community members, from the media, from our partner agencies in locating her and discovering her whereabouts."

Friend Reported Her Missing

Sylla was reported missing by her friend, Dougo Sidibe, late on Saturday, July 29 after Sidibe received a call from Sylla's son saying his mother had not returned from a walk. Sylla's colleague, John Enoch, said he received a call the following day from Sylla's son, whom he thought was out of state, telling him of Sylla's disappearance. Sidibe said Sylla's son, who did not attend the vigil or press conference, recently returned to Greenbelt and had been living with his mother. A representative from Greenbelt Police Department was unable to respond to the question of when Sylla was last seen by someone other than her son.

Investigative Techniques

Greenbelt police have utilized a number of different investigative techniques, said Bowers, including searches of the area in conjunction with Maryland State Police and search-and-rescue teams. Schrom Hills Park, where Sylla's son said she was heading for a walk that evening, was closed on Tuesday, August 1, for a search with canines. "That area has been thoroughly searched and at this point we don't believe that she's anywhere in the vicinity of either Schrom Hills Park or where her residence is," Bowers said on Friday.

Plea for Information

Police have also worked with state and federal agencies to look at cellphone data, financial data and social media but "none of that has yielded any positive results for us," reported Bowers. The last known location of Sylla's cellphone was previously reported to be in the vicinity of the 6500 block of Lake Park Drive, the area of her home.

"I believe that somewhere out there somebody could have seen her, knows where she is and can provide important information as to her whereabouts," said Bowers. "Our goal continues to be the safe return of Ms. Sylla to her family, her friends, her colleagues and her community. Her absence has been very heartfelt by the members of her community, particularly her school community and her friends and family. They have spent countless hours searching for her in and around the community and I can't thank them enough for everything that they've done. But we still need help in locating her. I feel confident that out there somewhere is a person who has seen her or has information as to her whereabouts, so we are asking that they contact the City of Greenbelt Police Department through our website or through our telephone number." "I can't stress enough the importance of help in finding her at this point," Bowers told the press and the community. "We have investigated; we are continuing to investigate. We have other things that we are continuing to work on but it does take time to go through those avenues, to try to pull more information together, whether it be through electronic means, social media. We need the public's help."

Bowers said police had received tips from as far away as Pennsylvania. Police have no information suggesting other cases of disappearances or deaths are related to Sylla's. Police also have no information indicating she might have left the country, Bowers stated. He was unable to discuss any financial information that police may have uncovered during their investigation. Sylla does not have her car, her ID, or a medication she needs with her.

Still Missing-person Case

Asked about the possibility of foul play, Bowers said, "At this point we continue to proceed as a missing-person investigation, keeping in mind that we will go where the evidence leads us. If we discover information that would indicate that there was foul play in her disappearance then that would be the direction our investigation goes."

Bowers stated that Greenbelt Police are being assisted by local, state and federal partners in their efforts to locate the beloved missing teacher.

Community Concern

A fellow teacher from College Park told the News Review, "Those of us in the 50-plus club have to keep fit to be able to teach third graders," but she was alarmed by other women who have been attacked in the area and does not feel safe walking around Lake Artemesia as she would normally.

"I walk by that park almost every day, so, you know, I'm scared," said one resident, who was surprised Sylla hadn't been

GHI and City Discuss Mains, Supply Pipes and Flooding

by Alex Barnes

Following Greenbelt City Council's special meeting on August 2 when Mayor Emmett Jordan announced the new city manager, it then held a regular worksession with Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI). No votes or formal actions are taken by council in a worksession. In attendance were all councilmembers (Kristen Weaver attended virtually) except Silke Pope. Present from GHI were seven of its nine directors (Ed James virtually, absent were Sabrina Baron and Chuck Hess) and new GHI General Manager James Claggett. As in previous years, at the top of the list of items for discussion were water and sewer lines. In addition, flooding near 1 Gardenway, a topic previously discussed at last year's worksession (see the August 11, 2022, issue, p. 6), was discussed again.

Stormwater Mains

Stormwater management remains a thorny issue. Many of the stormwater mains serving GHI are 12" terra cotta pipes installed in the 1930s, when Greenbelt was built. In the 1950s, when the federal government sold out, these mains became the property of the city. In the 1970s, GHI agreed to take over maintenance of the lateral pipes, with the implication that the city would retain ownership of the main pipes. However, the city is now in negotiation with the county to have WSSC take them over.

Sinkholes develop when these mains fail. Since the city did not respond to a letter from GHI about repairing the mains, GHI said they recently had no choice but to repair the mains at a cost of $144,000. GHI President Stefan Brodd said the cooperative is interested in reimbursement for that expense.

Jordan and council said they did not respond to GHI's letter because of an email glitch. At the meeting, Director of Planning and Community Development Terri Hruby stated that, in general, the county is now responsible for maintaining the mains.

In the 1990s, stormwater management was taken over by the county/WSSC which will maintain the stormwater mains once an easement has been conveyed by the property owner. The conveyance of this easement has been delayed. Interim City Manager Tim George said that the city and county were in the process of reconciling two differing maps but anticipated a near-term resolution that would allow the easement to go ahead. It was also noted that most newer areas of the city are already under the aegis of WSSC.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts, himself a GHI member, said GHI needs to do a better job of managing stormwater before complaining to the city. He noted yards had been transformed into impervious surfaces, increasing stormwater runoff. GHI staff responded that it has a new policy that restricts the amount of impervious surface.

Water Supply Pipes

The pipes supplying water to the original Greenbelt homes are long past their service age, and have been failing. WSSC took ownership of these pipes in 1958,

Candidate Materials from News Review

Candidates for Greenbelt City Council file candidacy papers with the city clerk starting Monday, August 21. Waiting for them will be a folder from the News Review with information on free and paid publicity in the newspaper.

The News Review publishes short biographies, a photo and brief answers to questions as a free service to candidates. This fulfills the newspaper's responsibility to keep voters informed.

The News Review does not publish letters or articles of support, praise or endorsement from individuals or groups. Additional exposure in the newspaper is by advertisement only and we remind candidates that the same responsible and informed Greenbelters who read the newspaper are also those most likely to vote in local elections.

Electronic versions and fillable PDFs can be found online at GreenbeltNewsReview.com by clicking on the home page link for candidate advertising.

The News Review thanks city council candidates for running. Healthy competition is good for the community and, win or lose, represents a praiseworthy commitment of time and energy to the common good.

who wish to be sure they are properly registered can look up their registration on the website for the Maryland Board of Elections at elections.maryland.gov. From the home page, click on Voter Services under the heading Hot Topics. While this information will confirm the details of the registration, users should be aware that the polling place listed for them on this site will be the one used for county, state and federal elections.

Eligibility to Register

Besides being a city resident at the time of registration, an individual wishing to register to vote must be a U.S. citizen and should have a birthdate no later than November 7, 2007.

Individuals who have been found by a court to be incapable of voting by reason of mental disability are not eligible to register. No one can register who has been convicted of buying or selling votes. Persons may register who have been convicted of other felonies if they have completed their court-ordered sentence of imprisonment, including any required term of parole or probation.

Student Registration

Otherwise-qualified students who are attending colleges in Maryland may register to vote if they consider their local address to be their legal address or domicile. Usually that means it is the address that appears on tax returns or other government documents, driver's license, bank accounts, charge accounts and so forth. For more information about student registration, go to elections.maryland.gov/voter_registration/students.html.

Registering – Just Do It

There are now so many ways to register to vote in Maryland that it is easier to just do it than to come up with an excuse. Registration may be accomplished online, by mail or in person. Registering online at the State Board of Elections website (elections.maryland.gov) using Maryland's Online Voter Registration System (OLVR) requires submission of a name, date of birth and driver's license number, ID number or learner's permit number that match information on file with the Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA). The signature on file at the MVA will become the official voter registration signature.

Anyone who has neither a valid Maryland driver's license nor a substitute MVA-issued ID card must complete a paper voter registration form and either mail it to the County Board of Elections or submit it in person at the office of the county board in Largo by the deadline. This form cannot be faxed or emailed because it requires an original signature.

Voter registration forms may be downloaded and printed from the state Board of Elections site. Paper forms for mailing are also available at the city clerk's office in the Municipal Building at 25 Crescent Road, as well as at the Greenbelt Library at 11 Crescent Road. If picking up a form is not possible, call the County Board of Elections office at 301-341-7300 and ask to receive one by mail.

Registration Changes

Registered Maryland voters are no longer required to re-register if they move to a new address within the state, even if they are crossing county lines, but they must update their information. Address or name updates to existing registrations can be made using the same methods used for registering. Changes may be made online using the OLVR system at the state Board of Elections site if one has a Maryland driver's license or MVA identification card. Changes may be made using a voter registration form to be mailed to the County Board of Elections or submitted in person in Largo by the October 9 deadline. Completing a change of address form at the MVA will also send the change to the county for processing unless the voter asks that it not be.

Party Affiliation

Greenbelt City Council elections are nonpartisan, which means there are no primary elections and no party designations or slates. In registering to vote, however, a resident has the option of registering with any of the state's recognized political parties for the purposes of voting in partisan primaries in presidential, state and county elections. Maryland will hold a primary election for its 2024 Presidential Election.

For questions on voter registration for the city election, contact the County Board of Elections at 301-341-7300 or the Greenbelt city clerk's office at 301-474-8000. Additional information on the city election can be found on the city website at greenbeltmd.gov.

Cyberattack Hits County Schools, More than 4,000 Users Impacted

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) experienced a cyberattack on the system's network that was detected early Monday morning, August 14. Initially, on Monday, PGCPS reported a network outage affecting email and other services but that evening they announced news of a cyberattack on their network. According to a press release from PGCPS, an estimated 4,500 user accounts out of 180,000 were impacted, primarily staff accounts. "The school system is still assessing the full scope of this incident, but as of this time, the main business and student information systems – Oracle and SchoolMAX – do not appear to be impacted by this event," read a statement. SchoolMax is a portal used to record and communicate pupils' attendance, grades and schedules, report cards and disciplinary incidents among other information.

Many parents and students have been logging in recently to find class and teacher assignments for the coming school year, which commences Monday, August 28.

Monday's announcement noted that critical network systems had been restored and additional functions would continue to be brought back online that evening. All PGCPS users are being required to reset their passwords "out of an abundance of caution," the school system announced.

Those whose information has been impacted should expect to be contacted in the coming days with further details. A team of external cybersecurity experts are reviewing the network's breach.

To change a PGCPS password, visit idm.pgcps.org. The SchoolMAX Family Portal Password can be reset at idm.pgcps.org/identity/faces/forgotpassword.jsp.

Council Holds Worksession With Hotels, Draws Only One

by Maurice Crawford

The Greenbelt City Council held a worksession with local hotels on Monday, August 7, that was unfortunately only attended by two hotel representatives, both from the Residence Inn by Marriott (Wendy Williams, manager, and Martha Velasco). The discussion was wide ranging from an overview of the hotel business to sustainability issues. Councilmember Colin Byrd was especially interested in the hiring and retention of employees. At the Residence Inn much of their hiring is by word of mouth. They have a low turnover and have not had issues retaining workers with some employees having worked there 10 to 15 years.

Councilmember Judith Davis posed questions on environmental sustainability and learned of practices taken by the hotel including recycling, limiting linen washing and their plan to build a car charging station. Mayor Emmett Jordan mentioned Greenbelt's committee on environmental sustainability and potential areas of collaboration: for example, coordination of shuttle services and finding grants for charging stations.

Concerns expressed by the hoteliers included theft of car tires and car vandalism. They are interested in expanding charitable work in the community and one idea suggested by Davis is taking care of the nearby Walker cemetery. Residence Inn is also considering developing a community garden and a playground for their long-term customers.

but its offers to replace them have been rejected by GHI. GHI is responsible for the pipe from the meter to the home. WSSC's proposals move the water meters farther from the homes, significantly increasing the amount of pipe under GHI's responsibility, incurring increased maintenance costs to future GHI members.

Brodd explained that GHI was close to an agreement with WSSC, but then WSSC staff were replaced. He said that GHI will renew negotiations with the new WSSC leadership early next year.

Roberts said that the original pipes are galvanized steel and pose a risk of lead poisoning. "If I had my way," he said, "we would have been in court years ago making WSSC do what they should do which is replace those pipes."

Flooding

GHI updated council on its progress to ameliorate the flooding that occurs in the superblock including courts 33 Ridge, 56 Crescent and 1 Gardenway which are uphill from the underpass near the Sunoco service station. A civil engineering firm retained by GHI has designed a plan to spread out water coming downhill from GHI before it gets to the underpass. The city has retained the same firm to analyze flooding downhill from the underpass and suggested that the two projects be coordinated. Brodd said the contract for implementing the plan will be "let soon."

Man Who Stopped for Gas Shot at Exxon by Carjackers

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

At approximately 3:25 a.m. on Thursday, August 10, a dark Toyota Corolla pulled into the Exxon Station at 7619 Greenbelt Road where a man in a white Honda SUV had stopped to get gas. The Greenbelt Police say an attempted carjacking and shooting followed.

Video footage from the gas station shows that the suspects' sedan had the passenger door open as it rapidly pulled up beside the occupied pump and a man jumped from the vehicle carrying a rifle. The first suspect ran to the open driver's door of the white SUV, where the victim was sitting, waiting as he fueled his car. The suspect then pointed the rifle at the victim at close range and demanded his keys as another man exited the Toyota to assist in the carjacking.

Police say the victim initially complied with demands but an altercation ensued and he was then shot in the face. The two suspects, both dressed in black, and one with red sneakers, fled the scene in the Toyota, which was driven by a third accomplice who remained in the vehicle.

The victim was transported to Capital Regional Medical Center for what were believed to be life-threatening injuries. Police later reported that the man was in stable condition.

Speaking to the press on Thursday morning, Chief Richard Bowers revealed that Greenbelt police are investigating whether the perpetrators of the shooting at the Exxon were involved in another nearby incident. Bowers said the Greenbelt Police Department is working with Prince George's County Police to determine any connection to a subsequent carjacking a brief time later.

Determining a connection between carjackings and car thefts over different jurisdictions presents challenges. As the News Review previously reported (see Several Greenbelters Discuss Youth Delinquency Concerns in the August 3 issue), inability to interrogate juveniles has hampered police responses to these crimes, according to Bowers. Should a juvenile suspect be arrested for a crime under another jurisdiction, Greenbelt Police may not be able to talk with them, even if they are suspected for a similar crime in Greenbelt.

Police ask anyone with information regarding the identity of the suspects to contact Detective Davis at 240-542-2134, ddavis@greenbeltmd.gov or the Greenbelt Police Department at 301-474-7200.

seen either entering or leaving the park. "It's not that big, just the wooded section, oh it's small ... We need to know what happened to this woman! That park is very busy ... There's one man who sits in the park all day ... He's always there."

At this point, a tip from the public could provide crucial help. Greenbelt Police Department social media has received 400,000 hits, including some tips which the police will thoroughly investigate.

Sylla is 59 years old, described as a 5'5" Black woman weighing approximately 135 pounds, and was wearing a long colorful dress and a scarf when she left her home. Anyone who has seen Sylla or has any information that might help locate her should call the Greenbelt Police Department at 301-474-7200 or at greenbeltpd@greenbeltmd.gov.

Girls from ERHS Soccer Team Are Summer League Champs

by Patrick Gleason

On an evening that felt like anything but summer, the eight players representing Eleanor Roosevelt High School's (ERHS) girls soccer team hoisted the M-NCPPC, Department of Parks and Recreation girls Summer League championship trophy after three victories on the day. The sun never showed its head on an evening that started with a tense 0-0 draw for the Raiders against a team comprised of players from Bladensburg High School. Fortunately for the Raiders, they calmly placed each penalty kick into the back of the net to advance to the semi-finals against High Point. Meanwhile, Bowie and Seton challenged each other in the other semi-final match, which also ended in penalty kicks with Bowie besting the Roadrunners after a strong performance by the Bulldogs' keeper.

Roosevelt left no doubt in its semifinal matchup as Alicia Galban, Sadie Swart, Alena Beckmann and Claudia van der Have hassled the Eagle defense for the entirety of the 30-minute match. Even sophomore defender Esther Obisesan got in on the scoring action, scoring from 25 yards out to cap the Raiders' 5-0 win leading to the finale.

As a chilly mist hinted at the season to come, the Raiders and Bulldogs renewed their long-standing rivalry with an exciting championship matchup. While Swart helped the Raiders dominate possession in the midfield, Roosevelt endured a scare as Bulldogs' senior Jessie Watkins struck the post halfway through the game. From then on, Victoria Obisesan joined her sister in solidifying the Raider defense, while van der Have tallied the championship-winning goal. Afterward the players posed for photographs to celebrate a championship that hopefully catalyzes their fall season with practice starting on August 9.

Program Director Carla Benavides also celebrated Terps FC, the champion from the first-ever Middle School division. County soccer offerings for girls continue to grow as the department is now offering a 7v7 girls middle school league at Woodmore Turf Field starting this September.

since kindergarten, lives in Pittsburgh and came to video my first event and to cheer me on. And my roommate from the University of Dayton drove two-and-a-half hours from Cleveland to cheer me on."

What's Changed?

I asked Labukas what had changed about competitive swimming in all the years since her high school days. And it's more than I'd imagined:

"Trying to complete a racing dive with goggles on and keep them on. We didn't wear goggles in the 1950s and 60s, so this requires new strategies and skills.

"Flip-turns now include strong underwater dolphin kicks.

"Swimming strokes have also changed. Many things I was told not to do are now recommended, although with a little tweaking."

Despite the hurdles, Labukas says she is sticking with it: "Swimming with a group is much more motivating than training on your own." She recommends checking out the many Potomac Valley U.S. Masters swim teams in the area (like Montgomery Ancient Mariners and Terrapin Masters), where one can swim with others and get training from an experienced coach.
