City Mourns Sudden Death Of Councilmember Ric Gordon

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

Early Sunday morning Councilmember Ric Gordon died suddenly, at home. He was 41 years old.

“The sudden passing of Ric Gordon is a great loss to the Greenbelt community, Prince George’s County and the State of Maryland,” said Mayor Emmett Jordan. “Ric Gordon was very passionate about Greenbelt, politics and his important role as a councilmember. He will be missed tremendously.” County Executive Angela Also-brooks said, “our community has lost a dedicated public servant.” “Councilmember Gordon was not only a valued member of the Greenbelt City Council but also a cherished member of the Prince George’s County community. We will remember him for his commitment to making Greenbelt a better place for all,” she said in a statement.

Born in 1982 in Prince George’s County, Gordon attended Prince George’s County Public Schools and then Morris College in South Carolina. He went on to earn a master’s in public administration. He was completing a certificate program at the Academy of Excellence in Local Governance through the University of Maryland’s School of Public Policy Academy this fall. He was employed as a government contractor at the National Highway Transportation and Safety Administration.

Gordon had wanted a career in politics since he was 10 years old, when he ran for class president. “You can’t grow up in this area and not be in love with politics,” Gordon previously told the News Review. “I love the service and the people’s work. I’ve been living it since I was a kid,” he said in an interview in January (see the January 5 issue of the News Review).

Gordon had just begun his second term on Greenbelt City Council, a role that filled him with excitement. This year and in 2021 he was the first candidate to gather sufficient signatures and

by Joseph Abelardo Conaty

On Sunday, November 19, Greenbelt’s first community orchestra performed an incredible concert that was a culmination of nearly four months of weekly practice and decades of an ambitious dream. The orchestra’s mission statement is to “provide an outlet” for Greenbelt musicians “to share our love of music with the local community.” At the beginning of this year the orchestra didn’t even exist, and as the year ends they are already preparing for their second concert in March of 2024.

Greenbelt Community Orchestra was a dream for Anne Gardner, who spent her late teens and early 20s performing with community orchestras in England before she relocated to Greenbelt. It came as quite a surprise to her that there wasn’t already an amateur orchestra in Greenbelt, given the number of talented musicians in the area. Instead she played fiddle with local folk musicians and stayed busy raising three children. Gardner was inspired, after attending a Baroque performance last February, to create Greenbelt’s first-ever community orchestra. And in a harmonious response, in mere days, over 50 people signed up to play. The successful turnout didn’t end there. Gardner watched as a community that shared her passion and appreciation for music crowded the Community Center gym the Sunday before Thanksgiving. Some audience members had to stand because all the seats were full.

After an amazing initial turnout, that concert was just the beginning. Greenbelt Community Orchestra’s next concert is set to be held on March 17, 2024. Gardner envisions the orchestra performing three concerts each year.

Juvenile Justice Discussions With District 22 Representatives

by Deb Daniel

On November 18, District 22 representatives to the Maryland General Assembly (House of Delegates Nicole Williams, Anne Healey and Ashanti Martinez and Senator Alonzo Washington) met in the Greenbelt Library to discuss priorities for the next legislative session with interested residents. An article in the Greenbelt News Review on November 23 covered the transportation issues that were a primary focus of the meeting; this article will concentrate on justice issues, another key topic raised.

Juvenile Crime, Carjackings

Resident and former councilmember Judith Davis noted the increasing carjackings and car vandalism in Greenbelt and other communities. Juveniles are charged with these crimes and then released to commit the crime again as a “revolving door” when the police find the same juveniles committing the same crimes.

Williams responded that she and the other state legislators have been contacted by many police departments over this issue. The FBI statistics on crime cite juvenile crime as 11 percent of all crimes committed nationwide. Williams has been requesting from police departments numbers on how often repeat offenders have been arrested and what the process is to provide counsel and services to the offenders. Juveniles under the age of 13 cannot go into the Department of Juvenile Services. Those under the age of 13 and other repeat offenders may have other needs and issues that are best addressed by the Department of Human Services by filing a report (children in need of assistance).

Support Our Advertisers

We hear about the dwindling number of U.S. community news outlets – which in 2022 were dying at a rate of two per week, according to a report from Northwestern University – and a variety of efforts to help save these valuable local resources. How will those communities find out what’s happening with their local government and in their school systems, or hear regularly about moments, both significant and mundane, in the lives of their residents? Local papers provide a trusted source that brings together a community in a way that disparate online platforms do not.

In our many decades of providing the news of Greenbelt, we have been fortunate to have been able to attract sufficient advertising revenue to print and distribute the paper and to provide minimal dividends to the dedicated writers, editors and ad staff of our newspaper’s worker cooperative. The newspaper continues to hold its own financially partly because many of its members donate their time and energies rather than taking the dividends to which membership entitles them. But it is the steady support of our advertisers that gives us the income needed for long-term success. Maintaining and growing our advertising base allows us the latitude to continue, expand and diversify our service to the community.

Looking ahead, you, our readers, can help us continue to publish Greenbelt’s community newspaper by supporting the local businesses that support us through their advertising. Tell them that you saw their ad in the News Review and that you appreciate their support for the paper.

Letters to the Editor

Councilmember Ric Gordon submitted the following letter last week after the early Thanksgiving deadline, prior to his sudden death on Sunday.

Thank You from Ric!

I want to thank every Greenbelter who gave me the vote of confidence in a loud fashion to continue to serve our beloved Emerald City, our Greenbelt for another two years doing the people’s work on this historic 45th City Council. My heart is full and I appreciate and am humbled by the love you have shown me in my near decade as a Greenbelt resident for allowing me to live the dream of service that began in me at 10 years old.

Ric Gordon

In Praise of Brandon “Ric” Gordon

Ric was everywhere. If there was a happening in Greenbelt, you could count on Ric to be there. He loved what he called the “Emerald City” or the “City on the Hill”. He was a homer. He wasn’t a Native Son, but he was the next closest thing.

There will be a hole in the soul of Greenbelt for a very long time. He will be especially missed in Franklin Park. He was proud of the diversity of that working class community and refused the label “transient” of the place he called home.

He championed services for Franklin Park so that all Greenbelt felt included and represented.

We’re going to miss you. You were an original.

Napoleon

A spectacle-filled action epic, the film details the checkered rise and fall of the iconic French Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte, played by Oscar-winner Joaquin Phoenix. Against a stunning backdrop of large-scale filmmaking orchestrated by legendary director Ridley Scott, it captures Bonaparte’s relentless journey to power through the prism of his addictive, volatile relationship with his one true love, Josephine, showcasing his visionary military and political tactics against some of the most dynamic practical battle sequences ever filmed.

The Hunger Games: The Ballad of Songbirds & Snakes

This story takes place 64 years before Katniss Everdeen volunteered as tribute and decades before Coriolanus Snow became the tyrannical President of Panem. The film follows a young Coriolanus (Tom Blyth) who is the last hope for his failing lineage, the once-proud Snow family that has fallen from grace in a post-war Capitol. With his livelihood threatened, Snow is reluctantly assigned to mentor Lucy Gray Baird (Rachel Zegler), a tribute from the impoverished District 12. But after Lucy Gray’s charm captivates the audience of Panem, Snow sees an opportunity to shift their fates. With everything he has worked for hanging in the balance, Snow unites with Lucy Gray to turn the odds in their favor. Battling his instincts for both good and evil, Snow sets out on a race against time to survive and reveal if he will ultimately become a songbird or a snake.

The Magnificent Ambersons

Orson Welles’ acclaimed drama follows two generations in a well-to-do Indianapolis family. Isabel Amberson receives a proposal from dashing Eugene (Joseph Cotten), but opts instead to marry boring Wilbur. Time passes, and Wilbur and Isabel’s only son, George (Tim Holt), is loathed as a controlling figure in the town. When Wilbur dies, Eugene again proposes to Isabel, but George threatens the union. As George in turn courts the woman he wants to marry, a string of tragedies befalls the family.

Pollinator Plants Workshop Dec. 16

Come to a free workshop to learn how to make an easy mini-greenhouse out of an upcycled plastic milk or water jug and get a free kit to take home: a fully prepped jug sown with seeds of a native pollinator plant, to be left outdoors all winter. It will produce several hardy seedlings by spring.

The workshop is sponsored by the Chesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society (CHEARS). Habitats for plants are being lost to development, along with the birds, bees and butterflies that spread pollen from flower to flower as they feed, enabling plants to reproduce. These processes are crucial, as plants are the basis of our food/energy web, and every life form above them directly or indirectly depends on them.

The one-hour workshop, which will accommodate 20 participants, will take place on Saturday, December 16, at 1:30 p.m. in the Community Center, Room 103. Register ahead of time by emailing susanmarycahill@gmail.com, to reserve a spot and to help the workshop planner determine how many jugs to prepare.

Volunteers Needed

The Greenbelt MakerSpace is seeking volunteers to staff the tool library and organize classes and other events. People are asking for more open hours (currently only Saturdays 10 a.m. to noon). Help is needed for the tool library to expand. Sign up for shifts at signup.com/go/UNkLnqk or email staff@make125.org if interested in other times or jobs.

The Greenbelt MakerSpace is down the outside stairs on the west side of the Granite Building at 115 Centerway.

Community Church Christmas Festivities

Greenbelt Community Church will host an outdoor Christmas Festival on Sunday, December 10 from 3 to 5 p.m. Activities will include photos with Santa, Christmas crafts, games, cookie decorating, storybook readings, caroling and an audience-participation Nativity play. The festivities will be outdoors if the weather is good, or indoors if necessary. The church will also be collecting donations of new mittens, gloves, hats and scarves during the festival for their Mitten Tree Project, to be distributed to area schools for children in need.

On Saturday, December 16 at 7 p.m. a Christmas concert will feature classical and contemporary Christmas standards, as well as the premiere of a short play by Greenbelter Amy Hansen. The evening will also include rock 'n roll Christmas songs. Dancing in the pews is encouraged. Baked goods and hot beverages will be sold during intermission, with proceeds going to various charities supported by the church, located at 1 Hillside Road.

Many Drawn to Turkey Dinner At St. Hugh's on Thanksgiving

by Christine Rice and Christopher Irwin

Many gather from far and wide to enjoy Thanksgiving Day dinner and fellowship at St. Hugh of Grenoble Church.

- Photos by Chris Irwin

Christine Rice came from Marietta, Ga., to visit with her son and his family for Thanksgiving. After enjoying Fr. Walter Tappe's homily at Holy Mass where, she says, even her 7-year-old grandson said he learned something, she joined the nearly 100 people who were there to feast on the four turkeys, two hams, sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, green beans, stuffing, salad, dinner rolls, cranberry sauce and, of course, assorted pies arranged by the parish's Knights of Columbus.

"We were met by such hospitality," states Rice. "The coordination to put such an event on was amazing as each one who assisted serving us had such generosity of spirit. This called to mind the many things we should look at in our lives and say thank you to God for His many blessings."

Though no official count was made, longtime Greenbelt resident and Knights of Columbus member David Lockwood observed that the number of non-parish members in attendance was noticeable, and that this year's number rivaled that of last year. He further estimates that this year's celebration marks the 10th year that the Knights of Columbus has hosted the event.

Rice's experience would seem

to confirm the observation about the number of non-parish members. "My table fellowship was wonderful," said Rice. "I met Jean who had lived in the area and who was not a parishioner of St. Hugh's but commented on how, of all churches in the area, St. Hugh's has the most community outreach events that she can attend."

Rice also sat with Jerry and his son who were most thankful for the meal and commented on how delicious it was and what they liked best. Fr. Tappe made his rounds from table to table with his gentle kindness, a good shepherd, who brought his flock together in more ways than he is aware. "God bless him, as I thank God for him," said Rice, "sharing with us the Eucharistic, Thanksgiving feast, and allowing us to experience a bit of the wedding feast downstairs. A touch of Heaven."

About her overall visit to the parish, Rice concludes, "Father has called me an honoree parishioner of St. Hugh's and I see that he makes the whole community feel this way."

Greenbelt City Council Grieves Loss of Ric Gordon at Meeting

by Maurice Crawford and Michael Zeliff

The November 27 Greenbelt City Council meeting was filled with grief as members mourned the sudden passing of Councilmember Ric Gordon, who died the previous day. The meeting, which began with Mayor Emmett Jordan calling for a moment of silent reflection to honor the memory of former First Lady Rosalynn Carter then moved on to the sharing of a more local loss, appreciating and thanking Gordon for “doing the people’s work.” Members agreed to suspend rules and devote an abbreviated meeting to memories of their colleague. The remembrance began with a heartfelt video created by city staffers in tribute to his service to the city, sharing images of Gordon attending myriad events and functions.

Gordon was recognized for his passion and love for Greenbelt. Jordan saluted his tremendous impact on the city, recalling his determination to push the envelope and find ways of working with others. Councilmember Kristen Weaver said that his presence would be missed and suggested fellow councilmembers think about the things he did well and emulate him. Councilmember Silke Pope observed that we never know what the next day will bring and it is important to treat each other as if tomorrow will never come.

Other members reflected on Gordon’s ability to make others feel welcome, to make connections in the community and his willingness to help others. More than one councilmember recalled Gordon’s phone calls encouraging them to lend their support to efforts such as Cookies on the Bridge. Danielle McKinney, recently elected to council, shared how Gordon quickly made her feel part of the council “family,” and the other new member, Jenni Pompei, described Gordon as a “big cheerleader for each other.”

Former councilmember Judith Davis remembered just how happy Gordon was to serve on council. Jordan summarized these sentiments, noting how “incredibly difficult” the loss of Gordon will be to the city, county and state.

Community members in attendance attested to Gordon’s unceasing enthusiasm for his work as an elected official. He wanted to be everywhere that called for city representation, said one speaker. He was described as a shooting star, a comet, a connector among people. One participant felt that an important legacy of Gordon’s was the recent passing of the referendum granting the vote in city elections to residents of Greenbelt who are not citizens.

Councilmembers expressed condolences to Gordon’s wife, Carla, their children and other members of his family. They then moved to adjourn, agreeing that the long list of items in need of deliberation would wait until December 11.

file his intention to run. He was well loved and well known in the city, ever present at events and full of enthusiasm. His presence and activism in the community was how he met his wife, Carla Johns, whom he married in February.

Gordon organized Greenbelt’s first Pride Festival in 2022, adding a Pride Parade this year. He participated in numerous walks to school, voter registration and community rallies, food and school supplies giveaways, and other community events. On November 11 he hosted his third Thanksgiving and Things Giveaway, helping to provide food bags and more than 500 other items, such as clothes, books and household goods to Greenbelt families for the Thanksgiving season. He was an advocate of what he called “The People’s Work.”

Though Gordon had suffered from heart problems in the past and had emergency surgery in February, he had been full of his characteristic energy and enthusiasm and continued to participate in Greenbelt events over recent days, including the city’s annual Gobble Wobble on Thanksgiving Day. Shocked and devastated community members gathered at Roosevelt Center Monday evening to share stories, songs and tears.

Later on Monday evening, the council convened for their regularly scheduled meeting but no business was conducted as they remembered their colleague (see the article on this page).

Ric Gordon leaves behind his wife, Carla Johns-Gordon, four adult children and six grandchildren, as well as numerous supporters and friends in the City of Greenbelt and beyond. Visitations have been scheduled for Friday, December 1, 2 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. at Borgwardt Funeral Home, 4400 Powder Mill Road in Beltsville. The public is welcome to attend.

City's Bring Your Own Bag Ordinance Starts January 1

In May, the Greenbelt City Council adopted the Bring Your Own Bag ordinance, following similar actions taken in other Maryland jurisdictions. The Prince George's County Council voted in favor of a countywide Better Bag Bill. Both bills ban single-use plastic bags and aim to reduce litter in local waterways.

What Does This Mean?

Beginning January 1, 2024, Greenbelt retail establishments will no longer be allowed to provide plastic carryout bags to shoppers. If a customer requests a paper bag at the point of sale, the customer must pay at least 10 cents for each bag, with certain exceptions.

The Greenbelt Green Team plans a series of articles to help Greenbelt residents, businesses and shoppers understand the benefits of using reusable bags or taking no bag, how and when these bills affect them, as well as other related topics to clear up any confusion.

Follow stories in the coming weeks and months to learn more. Visit the city webpage for more details at greenbeltnmd.gov/BYOBAG or email Luisa Robles, sustainability coordinator, at lrobles@greenbeltnmd.gov.

Cookies on the Bridge Seeks Volunteers

It's time for some sweetness for the students. This is a call for volunteers who are looking for something fun and worthwhile to do: consider Cookies on the Bridge. On weekdays from 3:15 to 4 p.m., volunteers meet at the Spellman Overpass to offer cookies (and carrots) to students coming home from Eleanor Roosevelt High School. The goal is to ensure the safety of the students as they make their way home.

2nd Annual Krampus Festival Brings Holiday Cheer Dec. 9

by Mark Cheater

Horned goblins will invade Roosevelt Center on Saturday, December 9 at 6 p.m., but don't worry. It's the second annual Greenbelt Krampus Festival, when dark humor, fun music and holiday cheer await kids of all ages at a family-friendly event.

The Krampus tradition dates back hundreds of years to the Alpine towns of Europe, where people would dress up as goat-like creatures during the Advent season to scare naughty children. The Krampus would often carry wooden switches or chains to "menace" kids who had been bad, frequently accompanied by Saint Nicholas, who would hand out treats to the good children. In recent years, this tradition has been playfully revived, first in Europe and lately in the United States, with Krampus festivals and parades typically held around the first week of December.

Greenbelt held its first Krampus Festival last year, with a large and happy crowd enjoying music, treats and cider. The award-winning Greenbelt Honk! Situation (a community street band) provided the musical soundtrack, with a selection of fun "scarols" (mashups or playful parodies of holiday standards).

The event was such a success that organizers are hoping to make it an annual tradition, and the Honk! Situation is bringing back both old and new scarols this year, along with cider and treats. This year's event will also feature a Toys for Tots box for folks to donate new, unwrapped toys for distribution to disadvantaged youngsters.

Everyone is welcome, and the event is free – so bring the whole family and dress up as a goblin, or as St. Nick or a sugarplum fairy, or whatever costume suits. Whether naughty or nice, everyone is sure to have fun.

Mark Cheater is a Greenbelt Honk! Situation musician.

Challenges

The orchestra must address a few challenges as it grows. The first is sustaining a free orchestra, which can become expensive as the sections expand. This challenge was met through donations to the orchestra from an impressed audience who were happy to contribute after the performance. Gardner plans to use some of the donation money to cover the expenses necessary to become a nonprofit organization.

Another challenge for an amateur orchestra is to have the right number of each type of instrument. Ideally, orchestras should have a sectional balance where no one section overpowers the other. Gardner said that the orchestra could use more strings, especially double basses, more trombones and a second oboe. Moving forward, they also need a larger room for orchestra rehearsals.

The newly created orchestra demonstrated their talent and musicality during their debut concert and the Greenbelt community looks forward to listening to many more excellent performances. For more information about the orchestra, visit GreenbeltOrchestra.org.

Venture Crew Brings Third Winter Wonderland, December 9

by Sam Stewart-Ricketts

Venture Crew 746 will host a magical walk through the forest in Greenbelt on Saturday, December 9 from 5 to 8 p.m. The woods behind Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church will be transformed with twinkling lights, decorations and holiday performances. The church is located at 40 Ridge Road in Greenbelt. This is the third year that the Venture Crew has invited the community to this fundraising event supporting the organization's activities.

"Crew 746's Winter Wonderland is a growing family tradition in Greenbelt you don't want to miss," said Venture Crew advisor Liz Murray. "We hope the entire community will join us for hot cocoa, fire pits and fun holiday-themed activities the whole family will enjoy. In addition, Santa will make an appearance with his antique fire truck."

Venture Crew is a program for local teens emphasizing leadership and outdoor skills. Crew members plan, design and transform the forest into a festive outdoor display.

"We design the holiday experience, mulch the paths and use lashing skills to build an archway that supports lights and snowflakes," crew member Sebastian Zeller said. "We use our outdoor skills to create a holiday event for everyone to enjoy."

There is no entry fee to Winter Wonderland, but donations of any amount are welcome. A suggested donation of $5 per person or $15 per family of four is encouraged.

"The money we raise at Winter Wonderland supports our outdoor programs," Murray said. "We want to make sure that crew is open to all Greenbelt teens, even if they don't have their own camping equipment."

Venturing is a youth-led program all about building adventures with friends. Members choose and plan activities that matter to them and develop essential skills like leadership, event-planning, organization, communication, and responsibility while having a blast! The program is coed and open to youth aged 14 to 20 (or 13 and finished 8th grade). For additional information visit venturecrew746.org.

Lemieux Briefs GCDC Meeting On Plans for Goddard Bike Path

by Melissa Sites

Jeff Lemieux appeared at the Greenbelt Community Development Corporation (GCDC) annual meeting to present plans for establishing a bike path along Greenbelt Road from Hanover Parkway east, past Goddard Space Flight Center and beyond.

Lemieux represents Friends of the Greenbelt East Trail (FOGET), a 501(c)(3) nonprofit dedicated to improving conditions for bicyclists and pedestrians around Greenbelt. A major goal of the organization is to connect the WB&A Trail (Washington, Baltimore, Annapolis) with the Anacostia River Trail System, which would connect biking trails in the greater Washington, D.C., area to the Maryland trail system.

In order not to lose a lane of vehicle traffic, the proposed bike path would run along sidewalks, shoulders and the other side of guardrails, from Eleanor Roosevelt High School, past Goddard, past DuVal High School and on toward Glenn Dale Splash Park, which is where the WB&A Trail crosses Md. 193 (Greenbelt Road). A grant from Anacostia Trails Heritage Area (ATHA) enabled Lemieux to present visual renderings of what the path would look like. A map is available at proteusbicycles.com/articles/greenbelt-east-trail-pg257.htm. Lemieux considers himself retired, while his wife Laurie Lemieux still runs Proteus Bicycles in College Park.

The plan proposes a protected side trail for both walking and biking along the highway; bus stops that are safer for pedestrians; wider, safer sidewalks; and safer, squared-off corners replacing high-speed right-turn lanes such as the one at ICESat Road, the proposed new entrance to Goddard.

The Greenbelt East Trail has won support from a number of community partners, including the City of Greenbelt, GCDC, ATHA, Washington Area Bicyclist Association, the East Coast Greenway (a walking and biking route running 3,000 miles from Maine to Florida) and the Glenn Dale Citizens Association. In April, the National Park Service awarded FOGET a Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance grant providing expertise and technical assistance. The Greenbelt East Trail also has support from Prince George's County Councilmembers Ingrid Watson (District 4) and Eric Olson (District 3 and Transportation Committee chair), who requested an expedited feasibility study from the State Highway Administration (SHA).

Lemieux will continue to seek grant opportunities to support the development of new biking trails. Federal funding is available from such grant programs as Reconnecting Communities, Safe Routes to School, Transportation Alternatives, and Safe Streets and Roads for All.

For biking westward, instead of running along Greenbelt Road, an effective path leads across the Spellman Overpass, through Old Greenbelt, down Crescent Road and across Kenilworth Avenue to Ivy Lane, along Cherrywood Lane, and crossing under Greenbelt Road to connect to the Anacostia system of trails. Because it belongs to the City of Greenbelt, Lemieux considers Cherrywood Lane to be optimal for bicycle trail development, pointing out the difficulties of coordinating a number of different authorities when developing bike trails – not only the city, but Prince George's County Department of Public Works and Transportation, SHA and even Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Fred Gaspar, a longtime biking advocate, urged continued cooperation with homeowner's associations, especially those in Glenn Dale and the unincorporated areas along Greenbelt Road that are not included in Greenbelt or in other cities.

When asked how Greenbelters could continue to support the trail, Lemieux urged that everyone spread the word. "What we need in the short run is for people to go out and talk about this to others. Outreach is really my key objective until we see the feasibility study. Then we will need help with grants, engineering and construction," Lemieux said.

For more information about the new trail, visit Friends of the Greenbelt East Trail at greenbeltnasatrail.org.

Woman Shot, Two Greenbelt Schools Locked Down Monday

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

On Monday, November 27 at approximately 1:30 p.m., a 21-year-old woman was struck by gunshots in the 6200 block of Springhill Court. Several cars sped away from the area, which is in Franklin Park, making it difficult to ascertain if a suspect had fled in a vehicle. With no suspect at the scene to apprehend, and at least one armed shooter at large, two nearby schools, Dora Kennedy French Immersion (DKFI, K-8) and Greenbelt Middle School were placed on lockdown as a precautionary measure. Two to three officers were placed at each school and Maryland State Police also responded to lend support.

At 2:15 p.m., DKFI notified families that, "Due to police activity in the neighborhood, DKFI students and staff are temporarily not allowed to go outside the building." At 3:08 p.m., they notified the school community that campus movement had been restored.

The victim was transported by ambulance a short distance to Greenbelt Middle School where she was airlifted to hospital in critical condition. On Tuesday the victim, though seriously injured, was in stable condition.

Greenbelt Police officers are continuing to gather information about the shooting, including footage from nearby cameras. They request that anyone with information related to this incident contact the Greenbelt Police Department at 301-474-7200.

Juvenile Interrogation, Diversion

Greenbelt resident Louise Weissman asked what long-term solutions are being considered to address the recent spike in crime. In response, Williams spoke about the Juvenile Justice Reform Act from the Maryland General Assembly (SB 691), in effect for about a year, which requires police to notify the guardian of any juvenile in custody before interrogating them and also to provide the right to counsel. The Juvenile Justice Reform Act of 2022 impacted interrogation of juveniles and restricted the use of detention and confinement, shortened probation periods and encouraged diversions from court.

Some in law enforcement feel that the law requiring them to wait for a parent ties their hands from interrogation and the restrictions on their detention prevent them from keeping juveniles in custody. This is proving problematic, particularly amid a spike in juvenile crimes. Proponents of the change, however, have noted that youth are particularly susceptible to giving false confessions under interrogation. The bill also had a racial equity impact note that included data that juveniles under 13 who identified as Black or African American were almost four times likelier to have a Department of Juvenile Services (DJS) intake case when compared to whites, and the same group was almost 14 times more likely to have a DJS placement in custody or another committed program than whites.

Williams noted juveniles have the same right to counsel as adults, including the right to waive counsel. She said police are still able to investigate, as they have been doing with witnesses. Despite public backlash against the bill, Williams does not foresee its repeal.

Charging Juveniles as Adults

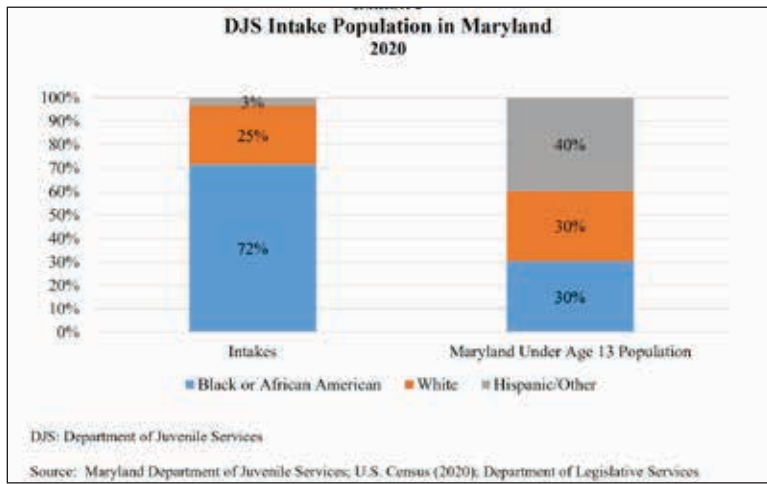

Weissman asked about a bill that was not passed last session related to charging juveniles as adults and placing them in adult jails. As the law stands now, a juvenile under the age of 18 may be charged as an adult and the prosecution would have to file a motion asking the court to charge the juvenile as a juvenile. The bill in question would reverse the process, charging the juvenile as a juvenile and placing the onus on the prosecution to file a motion to charge as an adult. Williams thinks the bill will be reintroduced this session. She noted concerns that DJS has been underfunded and unable to provide effective programs for rehabilitating the juvenile population. The hope is those programs will be funded.

Fines and Fees

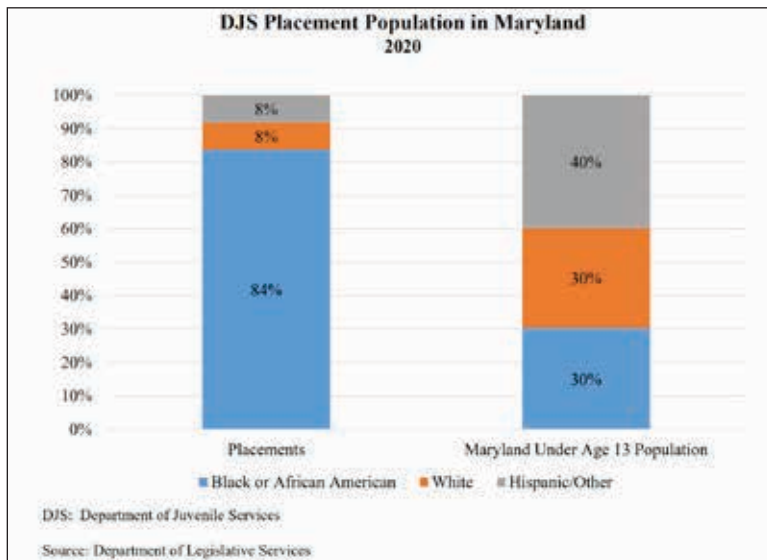

The other juvenile justice issue raised at the meeting concerned fines and fees. Offenders who are on parole or probation have fees that are sometimes costly, for things such as drug testing. Without a job, some fail to pay for frequent testing and thus have unsatisfactorily completed their parole.

Unit Rule

Williams will be introducing legislation around the unit rule. Currently in Maryland, criminal records with charges that did not result in a conviction are eligible for expungement, but only if all charges within a "unit" are eligible. Thus, for example, if a person is charged with multiple crimes, some serious and some misdemeanors, even if they were only convicted of the misdemeanors, they would not be able to expunge their record after completing any time and parole because they'd be linked to the more serious charges (not necessarily convictions), which are not expungable. The bill Williams is introducing is not increasing the types of crimes that are expungable but allowing expungable crimes to be removed from a record even if they were within a unit with non-expungable charges.

DJS intake population in Maryland, 2020 - Charts by Department of Juvenile Services

DJS placement populations in Maryland in 2020

A member of the audience, who asked not to be named, raised concerns about the impact of Williams's proposal upon domestic violence cases. Williams stated that all non-expungable charges, like first degree rape, would remain non-expungable.

In addition, the complete record and information about previous charges would still be available to the state prosecutors and law enforcement.

Protecting Judges

Williams, who sits on the Judiciary Committee, spoke about House Bill (HB) 536, a bill designed to protect the privacy of judges and their families by keeping their information private. The murder of Maryland State Judge Andrew Wilkinson outside his home in Hagerstown in October shocked the General Assembly and prompted action to protect judges from violence. The suspect in the murder is a man whose divorce and custody case went before the judge. HB 536 allows certain current and former judges and prosecutors and their immediate family members to request the removal of their personal information from the internet or other publications and to prohibit sharing of public records containing their home address or telephone number. Williams is confident that such a bill can be passed in the 2024 session.

Reproductive Justice

Jeff Brown, from the audience, questioned whether HB 705, a state constitutional amendment on reproductive freedom, would allow gender transitioning without parental support, as there were no age limits in the bill. Washington said he thought the constitutional amendment was about abortion as a woman's right and that he felt this belonged in our state constitution. However, the interpretation of the bill as allowing gender transitioning with no age limit would have to be left to constitutional scholars and he could not comment on that interpretation.

Williams said her understanding is that the bill would be put on the ballot as a referendum for the voters. For Williams, the issue is not just about abortion but reproductive justice. The choices families make may involve when to have children with a healthy pregnancy and how to bring them into a healthy environment. Williams said she thought the issue of gender transitioning was called gender-affirming care and there is legislation that has been introduced with regards to this that is separate from HB 705.

Martinez pointed out that this constitutional amendment is about families, parents and those in-involved in the care of children having the ability to make choices responsibly for those children. The bill does not meddle in the doctor's office regarding gender-affirming care.

Family Support

Greenbelt resident Erica Hernandez spoke about a bill to collect student parenting status information by Maryland's institutions of higher education. Nationally, one in five students in higher education is a parent so, in addition to paying tuition and other educational costs, these students are paying for child-care and providing for their children. The bill will collect student parenting information and report it to the Maryland Higher Education Commission for tracking student retention and graduation rates. Then, hopefully, this information will lead to more financial support for working people with children who are pursuing higher education.

Healey responded that she would support such a bill and, in fact, that she introduced a similar bill codifying Title 9 for pregnant and parenting students so that these students have an opportunity to continue their education.

Scholarship Program

Martinez presented the District 22 scholarship program that funds requests from $200 up (with no upper limit) for college, trade, graduate, professional and post-secondary programs in Maryland. The application is available online by contacting a District 22 Delegate.

The New Old Garden Club Offers Many Fun Activities

by Lesley Kash

Member-Vendor Alba Tirado sells exclusively native plants, popular at the May 2023 Plant Sale.

The Greenbelt-Beltsville Garden Club gathered for the first time in its new meeting venue, the Greenbelt Youth Center Community Room, on the evening of September 27. Old and new members shared conversation, potluck snacks and the customary plant swap/raffle. The featured lecture on asters and goldenrod by Uli Lormer, horticulture director of the Native Plant Trust, captivated the audience in the room and an equal number on Zoom.

History

In 1952, the Beltsville Garden Club was founded by 14 Beltsville residents, mostly scientists working at the University of Maryland (UM) and Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. The club's historic name honored long relationships with these and other Beltsville institutions and partners, among them Behnke's Nursery and the Duckworth School, the club's home and greenhouse starting in 1994.

Transition

With an ever-increasing number of club members living and gardening in Greenbelt, and the sad loss of Behnke's Nursery and the Duckworth School, the club appreciated a soft landing-place in Greenbelt.

The first step of this transition was a change of venue for the club's annual spring plant sale, where member-raised plants are sold to fund a scholarship to the UM School of Agricultural and Environmental Resources as well as speaking fees and other club activities. Moving this big, long-established, runs-like-clockwork regional event from High Point High School to Greenbelt's Roosevelt Center in 2021 was a logistical and public relations challenge. Then feedback from both vendors and long-faithful shoppers praised Greenbelt's convenience, especially the unaccustomed comforts of restrooms and restaurants. Vendors enjoyed serving a new cohort of neighborly shoppers, many of them novice gardeners who welcomed advice, encouragement and affordable plants. Last year's sale was even more successful, despite cold rain, and by 2023 the sale had become an established and anticipated annual event.

Many More Activities

In addition to regular monthly meetings, which are free and open to the public, the club organizes garden tours, nursery visits, luncheons and other horticultural experiences to educate and entertain club members. This year's tours included McCrillis Gardens, Glenstone Environmental Center, the William Paca House and Garden in Annapolis and the Smithsonian Environmental Research Center in Edgewater. The club's other customary annual social gatherings are the summer Peach Fest and a winter holiday party; both are celebrated nowadays in the Community Room and picnic shelter at Schrom Hills Park.

Parallel Garden Clubs

A distinct organization (though with several members in common), the similarly-named Greenbelt Community Garden Club is an historic club carrying on the Greenbelt pioneer tradition of local "victory" gardening, farming individual garden plots in three locations near Ridge Road. The two clubs have different missions but share a loving dedication to growing plants.

Everyone Is Invited

The Greenbelt-Beltsville Garden Club meets regularly on the fourth Wednesday of garden-season months. Bringing a snack to share or a plant-related item to swap is optional, and it adds to the fun.

ERHS Students Weigh In On PGCPS Clear Backpack Policy

by Me'iana Bell, Alexandra Herrera, Daevon Walker, Haylie Martin and Yamileth Navarro

This school year, Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) established a new safety policy requiring clear backpacks for high school students and an expansion of the policy to include middle schools is being considered for January. Students attending Eleanor Roosevelt High School have mixed opinions on the policy. Some consider it an invasion of privacy while others consider it a simple inconvenience.

Grace Zannou, a sophomore at Roosevelt, says, "I don't really mind the clear backpacks except for the lack of privacy, which I get is for safety concerns, but I do feel that our privacy is not being respected." Many students are unhappy with the new mandate and are still adjusting to the new rule.

The new backpacks were adopted after the last school year when there were 15 guns and 201 knives seized in county schools. In one violent incident in May, three teenage boys attempted to shoot a 14-year-old student on the bus. Superintendent Millard House II says, "There is no tolerance for weapons inside of our schools or on grounds and our school buses." He hopes the clear backpacks will help keep weapons off school grounds.

Blessing Bate, a senior, gave her opinion on the new clear backpack policy, stating, "I don't like this new enforced rule but it is for the better of schools in PGCPS."

Not all students share these views. Junior Andrew Beckmann says, "Wearing a clear backpack is pointless, you can always hide something in your pockets."

Still, most students do carry a clear backpack, though not all of them. A junior without a clear backpack was asked why he chose to not wear one and he stated, "I don't like the look of it and if there are metal detectors on the way, why even wear one at that point?" Gerardo H. also feels uncomfortable wearing one and adds, "It was also hard trying to find a clear backpack, especially the week before school started; most were out of stock everywhere."

Students are not the only people who are skeptical about the policy. Mentioned in a Diamond-back article, Cladudia Barragan, a

Students file into their high school building in September, some with the mandated clear bags.

Prince George's County resident who monitors students in high school, says, "I don't think that having the metal detectors and clear backpacks is going to resolve issues with weapons." She explains that this is not the solution to the problem, while adding, "The money is going to run out.

PGCPS provided the following statement to the Greenbelt News Review:

Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) implemented new security efforts this school year to include the phased-in installation of security enhancement equipment at all high schools and a clear backpack mandate for students in grades nine through 12 and in the Non-Traditional Programs.

The district will review security data at the end of the first semester in January to determine how the strategies have impacted school safety. PGCPS will notify the school community if the clear backpack mandate will be expanded to middle schools.

Despite our questions, PGCPS representatives would not provide details of which metrics and data they'll use to assess any impact on school security or how the installation of metal detectors at middle schools this fall might affect that data. They would not comment on whether student feedback or levels of compliance would be included in their analysis and decision to expand to middle schools or not.

At the end of the year it's going to be a failure."

Though the new backpack policy at Roosevelt has faced criticism, it is a new beginning and a new normal in the community. The main office has a limited supply of clear backpacks for students who have been unable to purchase one.

The People's Work

In Loving Memory of Councilman Brandon "Ric" Gordon

It is with heavy hearts and a deep sense of loss that the Franklin Park Team bids farewell to a remarkable individual, Councilman Brandon "Ric" Gordon, whose unwavering commitment to the Franklin Park community and the City of Greenbelt has left an indelible mark on our hearts.

Ric was not merely a public servant; he was a dedicated advocate for the well-being of his neighbors and the greater Greenbelt community. His passion for giving back was evident in every endeavor he undertook, as he tirelessly worked to enhance the lives of those he represented. Whether spearheading community projects or engaging with residents, Ric's enthusiasm and genuine concern for others shone through.

One of Ric's greatest joys was the opportunity to connect with his Franklin Park neighbors on a personal level. He believed in the strength of community bonds and sought to create an environment where every individual felt heard and valued. His approachability and warm demeanor endeared him to many, fostering a sense of unity that defined the spirit of Franklin Park.

Ric's dedication and exemplary service did not go unnoticed, as evidenced by the numerous awards he received for his outstanding contributions to community service. These accolades were not just acknowledgments of his accomplishments but were reflections of the positive impact he had on the lives of countless individuals.

Beyond his public service, Ric was a loving husband to his wife, Carla Johns-Gordon. Their partnership was a source of strength for him, and together they exemplified the values of love, support and shared commitment to the betterment of their community.

In honoring Councilman Brandon "Ric" Gordon, let us remember that the "People's Work" continues as we strive to uphold his legacy of compassion, community, and service, ensuring that his vision for a better, more connected Greenbelt endures for generations to come. He will live on in the hearts of those he touched, and the community he worked so hard to uplift will forever be grateful for his selfless service.

Sincerely,
 Franklin Park Team
