College Park Rotary Contributors To Scout Site Structure

A. F. Willingham of Bemlay, Kentucky, chairman of the Prince Georges County district committee of the Boy Scouts, has announced that the Boy Scout camp site south of Greenbelt. The Club has donated 2500 toward the purchase of lumber and other materials to go into the construction of the new Scout camp. With this structure possible, the Rotary Club is due to report its completed building will fill a long felt need of the community.

W. J. Willingham last fall signed a contract with the Prince Georges Board of Education for 50 acres of land to be occupied by the scouts, but it wasn't until January 4, 1941, that the Boy Scout Rotary Park made it possible for an administrative building to be built on the site. This building, the plans for which were furnished by the U.S. Re, Norfolk. Norfolk A, where the Soldiers have completed it will be 50 feet wide by 70 feet long with a fireplace at either end, and will be constructed of rough lumber covered with lath only if a comic give a rustic appearance. Frank S. Taylor of H. Rainier, Rainier A, has announced that the police will be under strict conditions. The building committee that has charge of the whole plan is to be headed by Dr. Willingham. The actual labor will be mostly voluntary, easy scouting executives and interested people have already dona ted their services "scholarly," thus making labor ab dress a small item.

G. C. S. Education Committee to Meet

The regular meeting of the Educational Committee of the G. C. S. was held at the home of Linda K. Thomas, 2-0 Woodlawn Ave., Thursday—January 16, at 8:30 P. M.

Among the items of business to be taken care of will be the determination of restrictions of expansion to meet the increased demand for Advisory Council meetings (formerly Neighborhood Nights). In the past few months some very successful group meetings have been held with the result that the groups increased in size and interest in these discussion groups have developed a demand for an expansion program to care for the broader interest in cooperative principles and policies.

Subjects consistent with the G. C. S. activities will continue to be the basis of discussions with ample opportunity for the introduction of new and interesting problems as they arise. Typical problems under consideration are the distribution of annual savings, the quality of merchandise handled, expansion of the business and so on. A list of those interested in the Junior Education Committee is up for discussion from time to time in these groups.

SPANSER WILHELM IN KIND SCHOOL

Due to the fact that many persons known to be interested in learning Spanish received the January 13 notice of proposed adult education courses too late to permit their attendance at the first meeting on the subject, a second registration meeting is planned for January 24.

The Director of Adult Education is investigating the availability of a Spanish teacher from the University and of some other sources, with an eye to making the course as attractive as possible. The exercise which is open to participation in Greenbelt classes.

The preliminary meeting held in the school on Monday, January 13 was attended by fourteen persons, in addition to a number of other citizens interested in learning Spanish who were not able to attend that particular night.

Hospital Hums with Activity Since Advent of New Year

Helen Foree, Assistant Superintendent of the Greenbelt Hospital, reports that it has been a very busy time since the first of the year. About 1400 persons have been admitted to the hospital for the month of January. The life expectancy of patients has been improved, and many of those who were critically ill have been discharged.

Service

The officers of the Citizens Association declare their highest commendation for the committee appointment system. Without exception the Selection Committee selected the citizens who are now on the committee, and the results of the selection are to be published in the paper. The citizens are to be congratulated on their excellent work.

At each hole of the course, the player will be given a list of three words and has the letter selected from the list. The first player who finds the word gets a score of 0. The second player gets a score of 1, the third player gets a score of 2, and so on. Only the clients on the course may be used in the list of words, and the list must be consulted in the order in which the player is standing. The player may use the dictionary as a guide. The score of a player is the sum of the scores of all the words he selects. The lowest score wins.

Good Evening, Mrs. Greenbelt

I'm having a lot of fun these days, reading the children's Christmas books. Do you ever do it?

When I was young, I systematically cut my teeth on Ballantine's "Beguine Grundel," Mollie's "Le B Syracuse Grandma's Chocolates," and "Les Miserables," when my grandmother had them. When I was older, I bought books instead, but I was given "The Scarlet Letter," "Tanglewood Tales," "Little Dorrit," and "Waltz House," and others of the same genre.

I loved them and still do - but it remained for my children to show how well. A world made real by Winnie-the-Pooh and Eeyore, by Heidi and Little Women, by the little ones for my companions now before I turn the light out - and I go imaging with Minnie and Pilgrim to find the Meckalows. Only when alone, I help build houses on deserted islands with Robinson Crusoe and the Swiss Family Robinson. And then - oh, glorious adventures. I go to visit the king of the Castle and the dirty Basin with epoxy hipless.

It's a wonderful world, with all its children's books. Maybe I don't have to tell you a thing, for you probably read, too. But one of them, who was still children, it seems to me that I am somehow still childish elsewhere.

I never had any of the so-called "children's dreamers," either. I'll have them when Ruth and Alma want to go. So far we have all escaped them. Peculiarly, Kate and Freddie, whose name I will bring to school when they start to school. It would be my way of doing things to have the whole line of almshouses.

Oh, well, at least I'll have plenty to read when I lie in bed with grey hairs and children pix and noises.

Better Butter Baking Rims

The MRS. GREENBELT

If "Papa Hayden" could have heard the enthusiasm of the Prince Georges County school children for his music, he'd have been glad, for they listened for the crashing chord with as much rapture as the world you ever got along without it. And you'd think the cost mighty low and maybe even overlooked your interest in your store, a mistake we won't try not to make again.

We promise to do our best to see to it that your new butter is the best butter you've ever had. We know it is.

We want you to be proud of us as we are proud of you.

A Message to Our Neighbors in Greenbelt

We thank you. It was hard work getting the new store opened and we're sure that soon it will be even better.

We start with the rumor runs out. We thought two hundred would be ample, but they were far too few. We underestimated your interest in your store, a mistake we must try not to make again.

We promise to do our best to see to it that your new butter is the best butter you've ever had. We know it is. We want you to be proud of us as we are proud of you.

The variety store employees.

Recipes

Orange Shortcake

- 2 cups Co-op flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/3 cup milk
- 6 large oranges

1. Sift flour, salt, and baking powder together. Cut in shortening. Make a well in center of flour mixture and milk and stir with fork until flour disappears. Cover dough with floured cloth, knead lightly for a few seconds. Roll out dough about 1/2 inch thick keeping a round shape. Bake in hot oven at 400 degrees in a 9 inch layer cake pan, for 15 to 20 minutes.

2. Peel oranges over a bowl to catch all juice. Reserve pulp sections and drain. Have 1 cup of juice.

3. Orange Sauce

    - 1 tablespoon cornstarch
    - 1 cup water
    - 1 cup orange juice
    - 1 egg yolk
    - 1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Mix cornstarch and sugar in to of double boiler. Add water, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved and clear (about 15 minutes.) Add milk. Add grated orange rind. Cook. Split the shortcake in half, cover with orange sauce sections between and on top. Serve with slightly cool orange sauce poured over.

Greenbelt's New Babies

Belated announcement is made of the birth of Lena Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Siegel of 26-8 Ridge Road, on December 27, in Washington.

Sydney Elbert, William Kinsley and Sara Hesterman were the proud possessors of a steak dinner, and all because of a bet made by Harry Fletcher. Mr. Fletcher offered to treat the whole car full of riders to a steak dinner if the expected baby should be a boy. As reported by the COOPERATOR, the baby was a boy, and Mr. and Mrs. Siegel paid out of the happiest bets of his life.

Our Neighbors

Mrs. William J. Hunter is leaving this Sunday with her son "Tony" for a 5 months visit in California. She will be visiting friends and relatives near Los Angeles.

Hitler Speaks

Our meditations take a political turn this week. It would seem that a very lucid editorial the following:

"...from a very lucid editorial the following:

Community Church Guild, the new women's organization of the world is listening. This speech had three principal points: First, Germany can lick the world. This is war to the death. One of these worlds must break every other. It is of the utmost importance that the speech also contained the usual line of falsehoods about the certain victory, and the advantages for the bombing of civilians, which was undertaken only by way of reprisal for British ruthlessness and the limitation of his desires to securing "the right for Germans to unite and to restore what was taken from them." But the third point is significant as a clear-cut statement of the worldwide scope of Hitler's plans. He rightly believes that the world cannot permanently go on with two systems as radically in contrast as his own and that of those who oppose him. The world in not wide enough and the oceans are not deep enough for that. His second point is no less noteworthy. Call it demagoguery, or socialistic, or whatever, it is a persuasive appeal for social revolution. To be sure, it is shot through and through with falsehoods. For example, what is the merit of a "work-economy" as contrasted with a "social-economy" if this works do not control their own work? Nevertheless, when Hitler stands forth as the champion of the workers and as the prophet of a new order in which there shall be no voluntarily idle few living on the fat of the land, while the voluntarily idle millions are in dire poverty, he is stating a "war aim" which has a dangerous persuasive scope. If it is time for the democracies to state their war aims in terms equally concrete?"
