Community Church

On Sunday the people of Greenbelt Community Church had a special guest on a great subject. Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, one of the leading scientific men in the world, and also one of the most devout churchmen, came to speak at the 11 a.m. service.

Wednesday at 10 p.m., the mid-week service was held for only those who cannot attend the Sunday morning service. At this service and for those who desire a midweek service, the Rev. John M. Lambeth, pastor, and those who live at 56 and Ridge Road are invited as the special guests of the church. After a short devotional service an informal reception will be held in the parlor. The officers and teachers of the church school are to serve as special host and hostesses on this occasion. All members and friends of the church are invited to be present.

The church choir will meet to-night for rehearsal at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Willieford, 814 Edmonston Road. Tomorrow the junior choir under Mr. Charles G. Willieford will meet for rehearsal in the music room of the school building.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Willieford and members of the church are invited to the garden party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Willieford, 56 Ridge Road. Men are invited to bring along their bow, shoe, ax or saw and women are to bring a covered dish. All are invited to this, the first event of the Community Church's spring series. On Sunday, May 10, to be Mother's Day, there will be a program and among other things for this day the church school will have its Annual Mother's Day service. The youngest mother present may expect a special treat, the greatest number of children and grandchildren.

Pottery Class Plans Picnic Expedition

The pottery class announces plans for a picnic-exedition this Sunday afternoon. The picnic will start at 3 p.m. from the head- quarters at No. 12 Keswick Road, and those who would like to go along are invited to call at this address. Kindly bring your own lunches, that is, sandwiches, etc.

Monte L. Taeaser, the instructor, who is an experienced potter, will take the class on a field trip to the city used in the class. This trip is intended only for those who have not become ac- quainted with pottery and those who wish to learn better about the making. Those who attend the pic- nic will have an opportunity to practice the making of pottery, and the class, will have an opportunity to work together on the project. Mr. Taeaser will explain the project to the students who are by the students may be seated in the classroom.

Mr. Taeaser has also announced that a site has been found for the location of the kiln. As soon as its construction is completed, classes will be held and glazed.

Transportation

The effect of such a program will depend greatly on intelligent cooperation of the students and handling of local transportation. Acceptance at the meeting Monday will provide an opportunity for the students to be engaged to the drivers for the future. Local students will be able to keep posted through the Cooperative of transportation plans to solve the transportation prob- lem.

GREENBELT COOPERATIVE

Post War Planning
Wins First Battle
In House Committee
By John Carson
Cooperation has won their first big victory in the drive to establish an efficient agency for post war labor. The Committee on Labor has reported favorably and unanimously the VA-RBL-Waiver resolution. It is now before the House for action. "If we can carry this through, all the strenuous efforts made by some political leaders in the House to bury it have failed in failure."

Cowper Johnson, chairman of the Committee on Labor, will ask the House Committee on Rules to grant a special rule for consideration of the resolution at a particular time, so that theCommittee can vote with them. The House, it is hoped, will pass the resolution, as it has been written, 65 to 1. It is the resolution that was referred to the Committee last Wednesday, and with the docket of the House, it would be the last order of business.

Cowper Johnson, chairman of the Committee on Labor, has been convinced beyond any question of the importance of the measure. The House Committee on Labor was asked what the vote would be, and, while that plan would save the entire effort, he already has - unless cooperation makes it clear to the Congressmen that this resolution must be passed.

Cooperation, and leaders in the labor organizations, as well as some leaders of labor organizations, began to write their Congressmen weeks ago and the force behind the resolution became impressive.

"We have never had so much support for a bill or resolution from able and intelligent people as we have had for this one," said a member of the House Committee. "This has been a remarkable showing. We have never seen anything like it."

It is that showing of interest which enabled Mrs. Norton to carry the unanimous vote of her committee into the House in support of the resolution.

When members of the Committee on Labor were asked what the next step should be, they said, "Carry on. Everyone interested in this resolution should write their Congressmen."

Mrs. Norton, has done and is continuing to do the same thing. Her four members should write their Congressmen. A letter to Mrs. Norton before the Committee on Rules must be sent by the Speaker and to the Democratic floor leader, or risk their political position. Mrs. Norton, convinced beyond any question that this resolution should be approved, raised her political position by opening a door for her committee to act and the committee acted without hesitation.

"Although the present enrollment of 5 year olds has thus been taken care of, there still exists the problem of handling those who will be 5 years old by January 1."

Mrs. Mary Jane Kinzer, tenant selection, sent word Monday that out of the 200 new homes already occupied, 90 children will be eligible for kindergarten in September. "On this basis," said Mrs. Kinzer, "that remaining 700 homes should handle 700 adp-ado children for this class, which, together with the expected 60 from General Cooperative Residences, will bring the total to nearly 500."

Kinzer suggested that a building project is in the works to house the children in conjunction with the home project.
