Rescue Squad Saves Two Boys Buried In Mud on Northway Rd.

by Russell Greenbaum

Two young brothers, playing in the muddy foundation of a house under construction on Northway in Woodland Hills, suddenly found themselves imbedded in a quagmire on Friday afternoon, December 27. In a rescue operation that required an hour and 20 minutes to pull out one of them, the Greenbelt Rescue Squad extricated the brothers who suffered nothing worse than a sore throat.

The two boys, Robert Olds, aged 10, and Harold Olds, Jr., aged 8, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Olds of 4-U Laurel Hill rd., had not realized that the recent rains had turned the muddy ground into virtual quicksand, which pulled Robert down as far as his chest. Their calls for help attracted the attention of nearby residents, who phoned the police who, in turn, contacted the Rescue Squad. The boys' father was notified at work and came hurrying home under the impression that his sons were in serious danger, if not already dead.

While a crowd of about 100, including the boys' anguished mother, looked on, the men of the Rescue Squad immediately pulled out Harold, who was taken home for a bath by Paul Rousseau, a member of the Rescue Squad not on duty at the time but residing in the area. Due to the heavy suction of the mud, the rescuers had to build a platform of mortar boards and cinder blocks to work on Robert. The situation was further complicated by the fact that the ground in which he was buried was about ten feet below the level of the surrounding area.

Shovels were useless, and for a time the men tried to pull away the mud from the boy's body with their bare hands. This proved to be of no avail, and at one time there was a minor cave-in due to the pressure of the crowd of onlookers. Fire fighting hooks or pikes were also tried as a means of pulling out the boy but also did not work. Paul Williams of the Fire Department, which had sent a truck, thought of inserting the pikes in the mud underneath the boy and prying him out. This at last proved successful, and the boy, chilled to the bone and suffering from shock and exposure, was rushed to the County Hospital but was released a short time later.

Credit as the mainspring of the rescue operation was given to Joe D'Agostino, who bore cuts and bruises as a result of his efforts. Others assisting in the arduous work were Bill Hopkins, Henry Ogden, Ted McGowan, and Joe O'Laughlin, who was on duty as a policeman but is also a member of the Rescue Squad. The men, who did the rescue job, were so completely covered with mud that a fresh crew of the Rescue Squad was required to take Robert to the hospital.

Rumor Clinic Given

A Rumor Clinic, demonstrating the method whereby rumors are disseminated and become distorted, will be conducted at the joint meeting of the B'nai B'rith Men and Women of Prince George's County on Monday evening, Jan. 13, at 8:30 in the Jewish Community Center. Nathan Rich, well known youth work director and formerly in charge of B'nai B'rith Youth Organization activities in the area, will present the Rumor Clinic, which will be followed by a discussion. All are invited to attend, according to Mrs. Herman Jacobs, program chairman, and Mrs. Max Horlick, Anti-Defamation League chairman.

Christmas Displays

Merle Frady, 35-L Ridge was awarded first place in the homeowners Christmas decoration contest sponsored by the Greenbelt Garden Club and the city recreation department. Frady followed the religious theme using a large lighted cross.

Second place was awarded to Joseph C. Seward, 35-A Ridge. Seward also followed the religious theme. Third place went to Adelbert C. Long who displayed a lighted holly tree with figures of carolers at its base. Edward J. Brooks, 16 Lakeside, won fourth place. The first 4 prizes were $7.50 each.

The remaining prizes of $5 each in merchandise were won by Ralph A. Gregory, 10-W Southway, George M. Jones, 11-E Southway, Daniel J. Neff, 6-Q Hillside, Frank G. Bartholf, 14-Q Laurel Hill, Francis J. Eastner, 19-P Ridge, and Andrew Hanyok, 8-D Ridge.

The prizes were furnished by G.C.S., Greenbelt Realty, G.H.I., the Ben Franklin Store, the recreation department of the city and the Greenbelt Garden Club.

Special mention was awarded by the judges to St. Hugh's nativity scene with silhouettes. Special mention was also given to the lighted red cedar at the parkway entrance to Greenbelt. The lighted red cedar, Greenbelt's largest Christmas tree, was decorated by G.H.I. The city furnished the electricity.

The best decorated courts were the 13 and 14 courts of Laurel Hill and the 10 court of Southway.

Explorer Sale of Trees Termed Successful

Selling 575 of their stock of Christmas trees, Explorer Post 202 made a profit large enough to cover more than half the cost of sending ten boys on a three-week trip to Philmont, N. Mex., Larry Fink, adult committee member reported.

Without the extraordinary cooperation of many people, Fink noted, the venture could not have been so successful. He particularly cited the assistance of the city manager and his staff, who put up the lights, Greenbelt Consumer Services, and the many parents who worked with the boys. Mrs. Jean McCarthy served hot coffee to the group.

The 35 trees remaining unsold are to be donated to the Burning of the Greens.

Greenbelt Woman Flies To Hollywood; on TV

Bill Leyden, host of IT COULD BE YOU, TV production, surprised Mrs. Bernice Johnson of Covina, California, when he reunited her with her mother, Mrs. Catherine Lee, 4-H Laurel Hill. Bernice had not seen her mother in over two years, and IT COULD BE YOU had Mrs. Lee flown to Hollywood from Greenbelt for the reunion which was seen during the telecast of Dec. 20.

WHAT GOES ON

Friday—January 3—7:30 p.m.
Annual tree burning, Braden Field.
8 p.m.—First meeting of the "Churchmen's Club," social hall in Community Church.
Tuesday—January 7—8:15 p.m.

Auditions For Ballet

Sixty lucky Washington area children will be chosen to take part in "Nutteracker," when it is staged here by the New York City Ballet during the week of Jan. 20.

Auditions will be held by Miss Vida Brown of the New York City Ballet on Saturday, Jan. 4 at the Washington School of the Ballet, 3515 Wisconsin ave., N.W. starting at 2 p.m.

Children play a big role throughout this enchanting fairy-tale production. There is a good deal of pantomime and they will dance in both the first and second acts. For those fortunate enough to be chosen, it will be a thrilling opportunity to appear on the stage with America's foremost ballet company in one of its most exciting productions.

Children between the ages of 8 and 16 who have had at least one year of ballet training are cordially invited to audition. Hours are as follows:

2 p.m.-3 p.m. Boys, ages 9 to 12
3 p.m.-6 p.m. Girls, ages 8 to 12
6 p.m.-7 p.m. Girls, ages 12 to 14
7 p.m.-8 p.m. Girls, ages 15 to 16
Rehearsals will begin on Sunday, Jan. 5, 1958.

"Tree Burning"

Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department with the co-operation of the recreation department will sponsor our annual "Burning of the Greens" on Friday, Jan. 3 at 7:30 p.m. at Braden Field.

In order to get all the trees possible each boy or girl who brings a tree to these designated areas on Friday afternoon between the hours of 3-6 p.m.—J.C.C., North End School and Braden Field, will be given a pass to a special matinee on Wednesday, Jan. 8 at 1 p.m. at the Greenbelt Theatre.

The Fire Department will have on exhibition their new La France Truck.

Hal Silvers to Discuss Civil Defense Program

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Greenbelt Center and North End schools will hold their annual joint meeting on Tuesday night, Jan. 7. The principal speaker will be R. Hal Silvers, Director of Civil Defense for Prince Georges County. A feature of the meeting will be the first showing of a new film entitled "Education for Survival." The movie covers civil defense throughout Prince Georges County and runs for 18 minutes. After the film Silvers will answer questions on any phase of civil defense, including the controversial Gaither report.

The meeting will start at 8:15 p.m. at the North End School, on Ridge between Laurel Hill and Research. Refreshments will be served. The public is welcome.

GUN WARNING

Every Christmas brings a rash of BB guns and a warning on their use within Greenbelt city limits. The penalty for their use in Greenbelt is the possible confiscation of the gun and a $2 to $25 fine, states police chief Williams.

The following Public Notice of pending amendments to the city charter is being inserted in the NEWS REVIEW by the city of Greenbelt for a period of four successive weeks to comply with the home rule legislation passed by the state legislature of Maryland concerning the amendment of the charters of municipalities. During this period, voting residents of the city may prepare a petition asking for a referendum on the passage of the amendments. If 20 percent of the voters sign the petition, the referendum will be held within the following 50 days. Otherwise, the amendments automatically go into effect.

Public Notice

Pursuant to Section 11 E of the Constitution of Maryland under Sections 11 to 18, notice is hereby given to the citizens of the City of Greenbelt that the Council of the City of Greenbelt, Maryland has passed Resolution No. 22 to amend sections 34, 36, 38, 40, 43 and 56 of the Greenbelt city charter. A brief synopsis of these amendments are as follows:

In Section 34 the addition of the words "and department heads" requires that the City Solicitor and department heads must be appointed by the manager with the consent of the Council.

In Section 34, Line 17, the addition of the words, "except that if an employee who is aggrieved by his removal by the city manager shall file with the city clerk in writing within ten days after said notice of removal a detailed statement setting forth why he should not have been removed. The said employee shall be entitled to a hearing before the Council after which the Council may rescind or modify the action of the City Manager.

In Section 36, Line 7: The City Council may, and as part of the two amendments to Section 34, take part in the appointment of department heads to the extent of giving consent, and may take part in the removal of employees presenting detailed statement of aggrievements caused by dismissal by the manager, and the City Council may take part by rescinding or modifying the action of the city manager.

Section 38 having to do with purchases, expenditures for supplies, material, equipment or contractual services involving more than $1,000 shall be awarded after review and approval by the Council, and the powers to reject all bids and advertise again is transferred from the city manager to the City Council.

Section 40: The City Manager may, subject to appropriate adjustment in scheduled compensation and with consent of Council, permit employees to accept other employment not inconsistent with their duties to the city.

Section 43, Line 4: Provides that both the appointment and removal of the City Solicitor be with the consent of the Council.

Section 56 provides that any city improvement costing more than $1,000 shall be executed by contract approved by Council, and the Council has the power to reject all bids and advertise again.

THOMAS J. CANNING,

Mayor.

CONFUSING ROAD

Several drivers were going against traffic last Friday night on the new Kenilworth avenue near the Greenbelt junior high school according to police officer O'Loughlin who stopped them but did not give tickets. According to one city authority, it is quite easy to make the mistake of turning onto the wrong lane because the area is not well lighted.

20 YEARS AGO

A committee has launched a campaign for the establishment of the Church of Greenbelt, Dr. Worth M. Tippy announced Thursday night, Dec. 30. Members of the committee are: Mrs. O. M. Johnson, Mrs. George Barr, E. M. Halley, Lloyd M. Worley, Robert Dove, and Harry A. Falls.

The Editor's Notebook

By Harry Zubkoff

Several readers have asked me to give the general public a glimpse of the editor and the editorial writer as he really is—not the anonymous creature who sits in his ivory tower tossing down advice to the multitudes and gazing deeply into his crystal ball, but the real, living, tax-paying, church going, mortgage carrying, baby changing, wife loving (my own), whiskey drinking (anybody's), lovable me.

I have never noticed that knowing me has converted anyone to my point of view. On the contrary, people often look at me strangely upon learning that I'm the editor, and sometimes exclaim, "Well, maybe that explains it," or something equally obscure.

Certainly, being known as the editor doesn't do much for your social life. I love parties, I can eat, drink, exchange gay repartee, tell jokes and listen to tales of woe as well as the next man, but I seldom get a chance once people find out I'm the editor. Instead I find myself spending the late hours listening to belligerent critics tell me what's wrong with the paper, or trying to avoid high-spirited citizens (not public-spirited) who want me to undertake an editorial crusade on their behalf(s), without, of course, mentioning their names.

There is, of course, one good thing about writing editorials and that is the fact that, as with most papers, several of our staff members do it, and no one knows which ones I write. As any horse thief knows, they've got to find you with the horse, to hang you for horse stealing.

People often ask why editorials aren't signed. "I wish I knew who wrote that wonderful editorial," a reader will occasionally say. (Very occasionally, I might add. More often they snarl something like, "What's the matter, don't you guys have the guts to sign the trash you write?") But we have a policy of not revealing the identity of writers of editorials, and it makes sense. For one thing, opinions expressed in editorials are not those of the writer alone, but the products of editorial conferences, which involve a certain amount of give and take and modification. There are stories about editorial writers who went mad with power and somehow evaded the editorial conference and wrote long editorials denouncing motherhood, or the flag, or even their own newspapers (happened to us once), but these freak occasions are too rare to be concerned about. On the whole, we believe that an editorial carries more weight if it is recognized as the considered opinion of the management of this paper, rather than the opinion of a single writer.

Be that as it may, editorial anonymity is a handy thing to have around at times. It's nice when a large drunk or an overpowering female demands to know who wrote that lousy editorial on taxes, to say coolly, "It is the policy of our paper not to reveal . . ." and so forth.

And there's no law that says you can't dimple, blush, and snigger, "Aw shucks, ma'am," when someone gushes, "Oh, who wrote that divine . . .?"

So many people have asked me why Al Long and Russ Greenbaum "hate" each other so much, and how come I tolerate their feud in the columns of this newspaper, that I feel obliged to comment. To begin with, theirs is a feud in the best tradition of oldtime newspapering—a battle between two very prolific and witty writers. Both of them have the courage of their convictions, and neither would hesitate to risk the wrath of the entire community in the cause of truth and justice. In fact, each of them has done just that at one time or another. I daresay not many people could emerge unscathed from a literary duel with either one of them. Now then, with two such giants of the pen determined to outwrite each other, who is a mere editor to say them nay? I personally am standing by with awe.

I went to the movie last week right after the new management took over the operation, and was most pleasantly surprised to note that the place has had a general facelifting. The paint looks fresher, the lights look brighter, and the whole place somehow looks cleaner and more inviting. The only thing that hadn't changed, I guess, was the attendance. Not many people were there, but those who were also remarked on the changed appearance. So if you get tired of watching television, and who doesn't, why not try the movie for a change?

Recreation Review

By Warren G. Leddick

With the amount of leisure time the citizens of our country have today, each community tries to meet the need of supervised activities for everyone, young and old, male and female. Here in Greenbelt, our program is set up for the people of the community. Programs have been arranged to fit all age groups and sexes. This type of program cannot be achieved by your recreation department alone. You, the citizens who participate and the organizations who sponsor activities, make the programs what they are. The recreation department develops, coordinates and leads groups into and through programs aside from our own. At the present time we have over 50 different activities being carried on in the city for your recreation. Some are sponsored by the recreation department alone, while others are coordinated through the recreation department but sponsored by civic and church organizations.

I would like to thank the citizens of Greenbelt and the officers and members of the Community Church, St. Hugh's Church, J.C.C., Lutheran Church, Baptist Church, Methodist Church, Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Woman's Club, G.H.L., Co-op, American Legion, Boy Scouts, Coaches and Members of the Little League, the Junior High, Center School and North End School P.T.A., Garden Club and any others which I may have overlooked. A special vote of thanks to the Youth Advisory Board for their fine support and cooperative work in planning teen-age activities throughout the year.

Thanks to the staff of the News Review who make it possible for you to read about coming events and our available program.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL, and a Happy Year in Recreation.

WORKLOAD

To the Editor:

It would be interesting to get a report on the workload statistics of the dog-catcher, since we should have some experience by now. How many dogs have been caught to date, for example? Does the dog-catcher make rounds each day, or does he only report for duty when called? I've seen the same dogs roaming at large around town for quite some weeks, so I wonder what the procedure is. Dogs are not stationary animals so that you can't expect them to stick around until the dog-catcher arrives.

I would have checked with the City Manager to get this information, but I've been so busy shooting away dogs from my yard that I haven't had the chance.

Yours truly,
Stephen Polaschik

RECOGNITION

To the Editor;

Members of the Planning Committee of American Education Week wish to express their thanks to you for the recognition in your paper of this very special week.

There have been many favorable comments concerning the coverage in your paper. Only through the cooperative efforts of us all can we hope to better interpret the goals of our educational program.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth C. Kelly, Chairman
American Education Week

Back the Attack

By Police Chief Williams

The National Safety Council is asking all the help it can muster for the second "Back the Attack" campaign. The first year, so far, has been successful to the extent that the number of persons killed has decreased 3 per cent. Should this trend continue, more than 1,000 lives will be saved this year.

The public may feel that they cannot help cut the number of fatalities, but if the total number of accidents is reduced the fatalities will also be reduced. Alcohol, speed, darkness, and pedestrian errors continue to be major causes. Drinking drivers were involved in 30 per cent of all fatal accidents in 1956. Special studies during the Christmas holiday showed that 55 per cent of accidents involved drinking drivers. Thirty-eight per cent of fatal accidents involved speed too fast for conditions in 1956. More than half of all fatal accidents occurred at night. Forty-one per cent of the pedestrian victims were crossing between intersections.

Statistics may be boring to the public on the national level, so try to picture your chances in the State of Maryland. A person has been killed every 14 hours, and someone injured every 28 minutes so far this year. Still not impressed? Well, before you get home from work tomorrow someone will die in Maryland and at least 40 people will be injured. Do your part in reducing the accident rate!

CHURCHMEN'S CLUB

The Churchmen's Club of Greenbelt Community Church will meet for the first time at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 3, in the social hall of the Community Church. The program will feature a talk by Bernard Roberts, Moderator of the Washington Association of the United Church of Christ. Following the talk, a movie will be shown. There will be refreshments and group singing.

Polio Battle Still On In Rehabilitation

A total of $36,000 in emergency polio aid has been received in Prince George's county in 1957. This is in addition to the $24,000 raised here in last January's March of Dimes for financial assistance to victims of this disease. Percy L. Wolfe, chairman of the local polio chapter, disclosed these figures today after receiving a check for $9,000 from the headquarters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Wolfe said, "There are thousands of polio victims in Maryland who must have help in their rehabilitation if they are to live useful, meaningful lives. We reached a peak when Salk vaccine protection became a fact, but to accomplish our purpose we must fulfill our obligation of help to these already crippled by polio."

Wolfe went on to indicate that during the twenty years of its operation in Prince George's County the National Foundation has spent $222,985 in patient aid here in addition to money raised locally. This represents advances made by other county chapters in Maryland and elsewhere in the United States, Wolfe stated.

Fred C. Davis of Laurel, who is directing the 1958 March of Dimes in January, has indicated that a renewed effort is being made to get the county "out of the red." "We want Prince George's County to pay its own way," Davis said, "and this will be possible next year if we all work a little harder and give a little more generously."

STARR BAR-MITZVAH

All members of the Jewish Community Center are invited to attend.

Your Home

By Ann Levine

Have you ever entered a room, looked at a piece of furniture that at first glance resembled a sofa, and then after a moment said to yourself, "m-m, a bed!"

Only a few years ago it was as easy as that to spot a bed in the guise of a sofa. Today, it is not that easy with the new sleep furniture. The modern, Early American, and traditional sleep pieces of today do not look like sleep pieces at all; they can hardly be recognized from sofas.

The bedroom-by-night, living room-by-day type of furniture has solved many a problem for the apartment dwellers, and homeowners, too, can benefit by its application.

A few months ago I visited the apartment of a friend whose living room had as its focal point a make-believe, portable fireplace with electric logs. Flanking it on both sides were two very lovely matched chairs, upholstered in a dusty pink fabric; between these chairs and directly in front of the fireplace stood a very graceful cocktail table with the refreshments for the evening. A few hours later, after sitting on one of these chairs for the entire evening, I was astounded to learn that I had been sitting on a sleep chair and that my friend's living room could become a bed room with twin beds just by a twist of the wrist.

I have other friends whose families have grown faster than their ability to get into larger quarters, who have had to give up their bedroom to a child or to two of their children and whose sofa, and no one would ever know it, is really a bed.

Today, in furniture, there is no longer a defined category of modern or traditional. There is a tremendous range of design ideas, and these are then translated into various fashion categories, such as Early American, French Provincial, Italian Provincial, Casual, Functional, 18th Century, Oriental, and others.

Beds are also disguised as sectional pieces, and a very pretty grouping is made up of a three part sectional where the two ends open into twin bed arrangements with the center curved part a dum-
