Co-op Resumes Regular Advertising In News Review; Starts This Week

This week's issue of the Greenbelt News Review carries advertising on a regular basis from the Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc. for the first time since early 1956.

The resumption of advertising by the co-operative followed a week of active discussions between GCS and News Review representatives, culminating in an all-morning meeting on Wednesday, October 28.

The groundwork for the agreement was laid by a conciliatory plea to the GCS board by Al Skolnik, representing the Greenbelt Co-operative Publishing Association, publishers of the News Review, assisted by the mediatory services provided by Ben Rosenzweig, GCS congress member from Greenbelt, and Robert C. Hull, GCS board member from Greenbelt.

Both Skolnik and GCS general manager Sam Ashelman expressed satisfaction at the accord achieved. "I think it is fair to say," said Skolnik, "that both GCS and the News Review have come to the realization that the needs of Greenbelt are a much more important consideration at this time than the continuance of any old grievances. I am particularly thinking of the fact that Greenbelt will need the cooperation and goodwill of all groups and interests if it is to meet successfully the problems that will arise as it seeks to expand and attract homebuilders and develop the commercial property."

Advertising Details

While not all the details of the advertising program have been worked out, Ashelman assured the News Review that GCS would advertise in an amount equivalent to ten column inches a week. This amount may vary from week to week in accordance with the needs of the co-op. GCS officials visualized some weeks where as much as 20 inches might be placed and others where there might be no advertising at all.

"We would like to retain as much flexibility as possible," said Ashelman, "so that our advertising and public relations staffs can map out an advertising program that would most satisfactorily meet our needs." Current thinking among GCS officials is a series of institutional ads, featuring various facets of co-op's business and community activities, combined with some merchandise ads, featuring the introduction of new products.

Skolnik expressed the pleasure of the newspaper at this arrangement. "Our main problem is to be assured of a fixed amount of advertising over a period of time. We don't mind going in the red on one issue if we know that we will make it up on the next. This arrangement with co-op will permit a more orderly budgeting of our operations."

Lamb from Iceland Available at Co-op

A new food import in the form of fresh-frozen lamb from Iceland will go on sale in the Washington market at the CO-OP supermarkets for the first time this week. Quick-frozen at the point of slaughter, the lamb is somewhat smaller than our domestic product and carries less fat.

Standards of meat inspection by the government of Iceland are among the highest in the world, a Co-op spokesman has pointed out.

Arrangements to bring the lamb from Iceland's producing cooperatives were made through the International Cooperative Alliance.

BOYS CLUB CANDY SALE

The Greenbelt Boys Club announces a door-to-door candy sale to raise funds for athletic uniforms. The drive will begin Saturday and continue for the next two weekends. Chocolate almond candy will be sold in 1-lb. tins.

VETERAN'S DAY

The Americanism committee of Greenbelt Post No. 136, The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary Unit will join together in the observance of Veteran's Day, with services to be held at the Center Memorial, Wednesday, November 11, at 10:45 A.M.

Commander Charles Link of the American Legion and Mrs. Helen Kurth, President of the American Legion Auxiliary, extends an invitation to all to join with them as a reminder that the challenge of all who have lived and died for our ideal of freedom still stands.

Citizens Petition For Traffic Light

The traffic problem at the Greenbelt entrance to the Washington-Baltimore Parkway was brought to the attention of the city council at its regular meeting on Monday night in a petition signed by 106 residents scattered throughout the community. The petition was prepared by Mrs. Shirley Levine of 37-G Ridge, who wrote that she was spurred by a recent article in the News Review by Editor Harry Zubkoff.

The petition requested that a traffic light be utilized to correct the traffic jam during the morning rush hours. However, City Manager Charles McDonald and the council doubted that a traffic light would really alleviate the situation. Councilman Bruce Bowman suggested that traffic police be used during the high traffic peak, which he estimated was between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m. (However, Chief Jim Williams of the Greenbelt police told the News Review that the peak was only about 15 minutes duration - between 7:30 and 7:45 a.m.)

McDonald explained that the present Parkway entrance is only temporary and would be relocated with the building of the Circumferential Expressway cloverleaf. He said it was basically a traffic engineering problem.

The council decided to write to the county commissioners to explore the use of county police to help the situation. McDonald noted that county police assigned to cover the traffic congestion at Greenbelt Rd. and Rhode Island Avenue served there only a short time.

Lastner to Speak

Frank Lastner, County Commissioner and former mayor of Greenbelt, will be the guest speaker at the Lion's Club dinner meeting this coming Monday evening, November 9, at 6:45 p.m. in the Community Church.

SODALITY MEETING

A meeting of the executive committee for St. Hugh's Sodality will be held on Wednesday, November 11, at 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Marie Boisvert, 7-C Crescent.

Co-op Open House

To celebrate the growth of the cooperative movement in the Washington area, the Potomac Co-operative Federation, the regional association of consumer cooperatives, is sponsoring a gala open house at the new Co-op Warehouse-office in Beltsville next Sunday, November 8, from 2 to 6 p.m. A variety of feature attractions will be offered to appeal to both children and adults.

Among the events particularly designed for the delight of the children will be the presentation of two scenes from the current Adventure Theatre hit, "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves." These will be presented at 3 and 4 p.m. During the entire open house period, furthermore, a number of actors from the Adventure Theatre will be on hand, in stage makeup and costumes, to mingle among the visitors and talk to the children. Favorite characters from "The Wizard of Oz," "The Purple Fan," and "The Emperor's New Clothes" will all be present.

Also certain to please the children will be an exhibit by the Potomac Federation of Cooperative Schools - a model kindergarten in which the children will actually be allowed to play. Adult supervision will be provided.

Clowns, free refreshments and gifts, free rides - including a ride on a fire engine - are also on schedule for the children.

But the adult members of the family will not be lacking for entertainment either. The member groups in the Cooperative Federation will be offering exhibits and demonstrations of their work. Among those planning to prepare displays are Group Health Association, Greenbelt Consumer Services, Nationwide Insurance, Community Arts, Twin Pines Savings & Loan, Rapidan Camps, the Pan American Cooperative Gift Shop, the Greenbelt News Review, and Greenbelt Homes, Inc. A tour of the new warehouse and office will also be offered.

Each family attending the open house will be given a gift of Co-op label food items, and there will be numerous drawings for handsome prizes.

Council Accepts $114,986 Fire House Bid; To Meet on Next Two Buildings

by Russell Greenbaum

Following a two-week interval during which city council members met in a series of closed sessions on the building program, including a meeting with the architects, the council at its regular meeting Monday night unanimously accepted the low bid for the new fire department and rescue squad building. The council then turned its attention to the other two buildings in the program and scheduled a special meeting no later than next Monday on this subject.

A motion to approve the $114,986 bid by James L. Partello, Inc., of Hyattsville, had been tabled at the previous regular council meeting. Councilman Dave Champion, who forced this action in seeking a review of the entire building program, made the motion to remove it from the table. He also read a prepared statement in which the council members had resolved their differences as Mayor Alan Kistler had predicted. Champion said he realized "that if there was compromising to be done that the greatest portion rested on me."

Champion Statement

Champion said that he now accepted the explanation of other council members that their election campaign support for a reappraisal of the building program referred to a reappraisal of the original $132,745 bid on the firehouse. He asserted that he considered their statements "valid to a degree" but that he meant much more than that in his own public statement.

The councilman vigorously denied any intention of causing any significant delay in the construction of the firehouse. He reported that it was planned to complete the review of the program in one week but that Mayor Kistler had been unexpectedly called out of town on business for much of that period.

Champion warned that it would be more difficult to cut costs for the Youth Center building and the city administration building than in the case of the firehouse. Whereas the fire department deleted items with the hope of obtaining them at a later date, substantial cuts could only be made in the other two buildings by sharply reducing the size of the buildings. He noted, for example, that furnishings are not figured in the cost of the youth center building, since it is expected that they will be donated by various civic groups.

Councilman Champion criticized the procedures and methods of planning the building program in the past and charged there was "general indifference to obstacles that from time to time appeared." He said his basic purpose in seeking to review the entire program was that the end result would be "three buildings, not two, two and a half, or even two and three quarters."

Prior to the final vote, Champion said he had changed his mind about requesting a penalty clause in the construction contract since his investigations had determined that Partello was a capable builder and always met his deadline dates. The contractor has stated that construction time would be 200 days.

Youth Center

The immediate question on the youth center building now facing the council is the estimated cost. A revised estimate presented by the architects, Saterlee and Smith, has set the price at $143,000. Champion questioned whether even this figure could be trusted in view of the 20 percent error on the high side in the original estimate of the cost of the firehouse.

The architects, who hired a separate firm to make the estimates, admitted embarrassment over the error and reported that another independent estimate is being made on the youth center and should be ready by November 5. Champion moved that the architects, who stopped work on the final plans two weeks ago, resume work if the new estimate is available for council review within a week. The motion passed by a 4-1 vote, with Mayor Kistler dissenting on the ground that further delay in the preparation of the plans was unnecessary.

The special meeting called to discuss the new estimate (which may merely confirm the other estimate) will also discuss a proposed site for the city administration building. No price for this building has yet been estimated.

Post Office Moves To New Location

On Monday morning, November 9, the Greenbelt post office will open its doors in newly remodeled quarters at 111-A Centerway, which old timers in Greenbelt will recall as the site of the original food store. For years the post office staff has been hampered by cramped quarters and obsolete equipment.

In their new quarters, which will be more than twice as large as the old, all new lock boxes have been installed as well as the latest type formica covered, bank type, counters. The new and elaborate flag pole in front of the building will make it easy to identify from the road. Loading facilities in the rear will accommodate the largest trucks. The Post Office Department plans an equipment survey with the view to furnishing the local employees with new furniture and fixtures throughout. Interested patrons are invited to inspect the office during the first few days after its opening.

The Consumers Realty and Equipment Corporation, the real estate holding company for Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., which owns the business center, remodeled the building for post office use.

Women's Club News

The Greenbelt Women's Club meets Thursday, November 12, 8 p.m. at the Community Church, for a joint meeting with the Greenbelt Garden Club. The guest speaker will be Mrs. Floyd Smith and her topic will be "Outdoor Christmas Decor". Should be a timely and interesting meeting as the Holiday Season will soon be with us.

The Community Affairs Department of the Women's Club will hold their monthly meeting Tuesday, November 17 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Clayton S. McCarl. This Department has been busy working on the United Giver's Fund, the Polio Clinic and a rummage sale. The latter proved to be quite a success and was held for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund.

All members of the Women's Club of Greenbelt are urged to attend the County Meeting November 12, at 10:30 a.m. at St. John's Lutheran Church, 5820 Riverdale Road, East Riverdale, Md. Guest speaker is Mrs. Julia Montgomery of Ferris & Company. Her topic is on stocks and bonds as an investment.

Veterans Day - November 11

Veteran's Day . . . November 11, 1959 . . . is more than a day set aside to honor those men and women who have served their country in time of war. This holiday, which formerly was known as Armistice Day, was indeed an appropriate occasion for paying tribute to all those valiant Americans who answered the call to arms during World War I. This observance should be an occasion for demonstrating that American veterans personify the unity of this great nation. To the forces of evil in the world this army of men and women who have served their country in time of war must become a symbol of America's willingness and ability to close ranks and fight to uphold the dignity of the individual. Veteran's Day should display to the world the national unity which is the strength of our great nation, and should be a reminder to all Americans that this country has an obligation to maintain constant vigilance and intensified military preparedness if we are to continue to meet the challenges of the future.

"The price of Liberty," said Thomas Jefferson, "is eternal vigilance." But there is another price, paid by many of the veterans of our wars, which still collects installments from crippled bodies, tortured souls and disabled skills. If anyone asks, therefore, how to observe Veteran's Day, the best way would be to visit the nearest VA hospital, there to realize once again the obligation we owe to those who purchased our freedom with their health and vigor.

THANK YOU
 We wish to express our sincere appreciation for the prayers, messages of hope, and the numerous other acts of kindness, offered in behalf of our little Andy, Jr., during his recent serious illness. The many, many, thoughtful manifestations of interest and concern preclude our thanking you individually; thus we hope to reach all of you via this message.
 Incidents of this nature only serve to strengthen our convictions, formed during almost 17 years of residence here, that it is a pleasure to reside in Greenbelt, where the citizenry consistently demonstrates a sympathetic understanding of the problems of others.
 Gratefully,
 Mr. and Mrs. Andy O'Connell

PROMPT ACTION
 To the Editor:
 A fine red-berried pyracantha (firethorn) shrub was recently stolen from GHI property on the street side of the garages in the 5 Court of Eastway Road. It had been planted by GHI several years ago and at the time it was stolen it was about 2½ feet high. The value of a plant of this size is over $4, according to a salesman at a nearby nursery.
 On being notified of the theft, GHI promptly replaced the stolen plant with an orange-berried pyracantha.
 I wish to thank the management of GHI for their prompt action.

A new Minister for the church has not yet been appointed but the appointment should be made very soon. Preaching the sermon on Sunday, November 8, may be the new Minister or Dr. Robinson, District Superintendent for the Baltimore Conference.

Kids Behave This Year
 The old saying that no news is good news held true for the Greenbelt police over the past Halloween weekend. Chief of Police Jim Williams reported that it was the quietest Halloween in three years, with not a single complaint registered on Friday night, which was "trick-or-treat" night. Chief Williams said that the previous year was also quiet and that he wanted to congratulate Greenbelt youngsters for their excellent behavior and their respect for property, during this traditional period of pranks.

SHOP TALK
 Who ever thought a locally-owned business in Greenbelt would be able to have direct buying privileges all around the world?
 One of Co-op's biggest advantages is its relationship with cooperatives in other countries. They say it pays to have connections and maybe this proves it. The world's finest products can be brought right to YOUR door here in Greenbelt, with prices far below anything possible elsewhere. The far-flung "connections" of Co-op let the buyers spot values and buy right at the point of origin. The result? You'll find furniture from Denmark or lamb from Iceland right here in the Greenbelt Co-op at remarkable savings.
 Yes, they do have lambs in Iceland. Some of the world's finest, as a matter of fact. They are very lean and brought to market while very young. This makes them unusually tender and flavorful eating.
 The first special lamb purchase arranged by Co-op directly with Iceland arrives this week. And, while you may have tasted lamb this fine before, it's been a long time since it cost so little. Imagine walking into a supermarket these days and buying lamb chops for as low as 59c a pound! You can this week . . . at Co-op.

Parking Problems Face New City Councilmen

The perennial problem of parking in the city of Greenbelt, which has given past city councils nightmares, has now beset the new council early in its career. The problem of parking at the commercial center and in the GHI courts was faced head on by the council at its regular meeting Monday night.

The issue of parking in the center arose in connection with a notification to the city from the legal owner of the Coop supermarket building that a hearing is to be held on November 18 before the county commissioners to seek a special exception to C-2 zoning to permit expansion of the bowling alley in the basement of the building. Earlier approval had been obtained to rezone the area from C-1 to C-2, but an exception is still required to allow the expanded bowling alley, which is almost completed.

It was City Manager Charles McDonald who brought up the matter that the expected increase in business makes additional parking space essential. He informed the council that obviously no occupancy permit has yet been issued to the bowling alley and that it would be contrary to county regulations for the county building inspector to issue this permit without requiring additional parking space.

McDonald and other council members agreed that the expansion of the bowling alley is desirable but that parking facilities in the center were already strained. Councilman Dave Champion moved that the county commissioners be notified that the council will object to the exception unless it has been ascertained that all legal requirements relative to providing additional parking have been met.

Mayor Alan Kistler raised a point of ethics in that the previous council had approved the change to C-2 zoning with full knowledge that a bowling alley was planned but had not then raised the question of additional parking. He felt that a more appropriate action would be for the city to inquire what action the county would take on parking. Champion's motion, however, passed in a 3-2 vote, with Kistler and Councilman Tom Canning, the only two holdovers from the previous council, opposing the motion.

The other parking problem is the old one of the lined spaces in the courts of GHI homes. Mrs. Marie Schwarz of 51-J Ridge complained that another resident of the court was consistently using her parking space. She said she lived alone with two young children and that she was frequently forced to park in the street and escort her two youngsters plus a load of groceries to her residence.

She asked the council who was responsible for enforcing proper parking. City Manager Charles McDonald informed her the original ordinance, which would have permitted police enforcement, was nullified because a one dollar parking permit had been established. Although the city police cannot ticket cars parked in the wrong spaces, McDonald said that the police can be asked to assist by requesting the party to move.

Mayor Alan Kistler acknowledged that court parking was a longstanding difficult problem that has not yet been solved satisfactorily. He promised that the council would give its full attention to finding a solution. Mrs. Schwarz thanked the council and then left hastily, explaining she had to rush to get her space before it was taken.

Nettie and Morris Steinman, 2-G Northway, experienced many adventures on their ten-day cruise to Haiti and Cuba. When they boarded the Nieuw Amsterdam, they discovered their luggage missing. After a frantic search, the steward found the absent luggage in the hull of the liner, Maasdam. And just in the nick of time! The Maasdam, tied up in the next dock, was scheduled to leave for a 47-day trip to the Mediterranean. Breathing easier, the Steinmans spent the next few days enjoying the many activities offered seagoing vacationers. Morris was guest of honor at a surprise birthday party.

While in Havana, they toured the city. Unaware that picture-taking of Castro men was prohibited, Morris kept the camera clicking. While riding through the streets of Old Havana, they suddenly heard a chorus of screams and shouts. Their cab was stopped by bearded Castro men, who pointed guns at the shocked Steinmans. Everybody talked at one time, in Spanish - in English. Finally order was restored when Morris gave up his roll of film. Nettie wasn't quite sure the incident was closed, when Castro walked within a few feet of her in the Hotel Riviera. "The trip was fabulous," says Nettie, who recommends that everyone should enjoy the delights of a cruise at least once in a lifetime.

Oscar Potash, Pharmacist at Co-op, is now a notary public.

This year in the Center a window painting contest was resumed once again with all the merchants cooperating.
