GHI BOARD VOTES NOT TO CLOSE DISCUSSION ON LUTHERAN SITE

by Sandra Barnes

Dominating much of the discussion at the regular GHI board meeting on June 12 were two seemingly perennial topics: the Lutheran Church site and yard lines.

The board was generally split on whether GHI should seek to purchase or lease the Lutheran property or whether it should inform the church that it had no interest in the site.

Director Jim Smith felt the site should go to GHI or the city. Possibilities for GHI's utilization of the property are: 1) lease to the city for recreational purposes and for use by groups such as the Nursery School and Boy Scouts; 2) consider the site for additional townhouses (if more land could be acquired to constitute five acres); or 3) use it for such office or warehouse space as GHI might need at some future date.

Director John O'Reilly strongly stated that "the building was worth nothing except for the purpose it was intended . . . In no way can GHI acquire the property," he added. O'Reilly felt that if GHI were to purchase the land it would have to demolish the building and then have immediate plans for development of the site in order to avoid paying taxes on an empty lot.

Director Nat Shinderman pointed out that the Land-Use Committee felt the property was economically unfeasible. Smith, however, stated that he was informed that the Lutheran Synod might finance a loan to GHI.

Audit Committee chairman, Thomas White, stated his view that the "tax liability shouldn't scare us." He said he thought GHI had as its goal the consolidation of Greenbelt in order to prevent changing the character of the community.

Others felt the city should purchase the property since it would then be tax exempt. Proposed uses would be as parkland, a recreational area or, if the building were to be retained, as a meeting site for various organizations.

After much discussion board chairman Charles Schwan and others felt all GHI's possibilities had not been fully explored and the board voted 5-3 to keep the matter open.

Yard Lines

At issue was a request by manager Roy Breashears for the reaffirmation of existing methods for determining yard lines. Myriad questions arose such as: Would parts of yards be taken away from people? If so, at the time of sale or not? How would this affect the price? Was it fair to take away what a purchaser in good faith bought and thought was his? Should each house be surveyed to determine exact yard lines? Would fences and such be moved? Schwan broke the tied vote to delay reaffirmation of existing policies even though current regulations will

The Singing Cedars Give Lake Concert

On Wednesday, June 25, at 8 p.m., the Singing Cedars will present "This Is a Great Country," an evening of music depicting different eras and times of our country.

The two sounds of the Singing Cedars are the Male Chorus and the Big Band Sound. They have appeared on radio, stage, television and have made recordings. Their latest album, their third, has raised thousands of dollars for their charity, Research in Muscular Dystrophy.

Although the Singing Cedars are not professional entertainers, their special musical arrangements and unusually entertaining presentations are of strictly professional calibre.

Don't miss this free program. "They sing so kids can walk" is a phrase which has been applied to these entertainers, who give so freely of their time and talent because they all have a dedication to helping the thousands of children who are victims of Muscular Dystrophy.

still be in effect until there are official changes. The issue was then referred to the Landscape Committee for further study and a complete written report.

Other

The board debated whether it would be advisable to build a basketball court in an area where there has been some vandalism and where there had been a request for a court. GHI looked into the matter and discovered it would cost $700. A 4-4 tie resulted, with Schwan voting against construction. The board also declared it was the city's responsibility to build the court.

It was reported that GHI's youth program to hire young people during the summer is restricted by state laws which prohibit the hiring of anyone under 17 for many of GHI's maintenance jobs.

There will be a special board meeting June 26 to discuss the capital improvements program and the financing methods.

GHI presented its case before the Tax Appeals Court of Prince Georges County on June 16. The Committee on Committees is meeting weekly and expects to have a report in about 6 weeks.

The Police Blotter

A melee erupted at midnight, Saturday, June 14, when the DAV-sponsored carnival at the Center was closing up for the week. As the carnival workers were tearing down their rides and other equipment some young men approached from the area behind the statue and began to throw bottles at the workers. Fights broke out and resulted in five arrests, three on disorderly conduct charges and two on assault and battery.

One of the carnival workers fired a rifle over the heads of the crowd. No one was injured. But as a policeman was taking this person into his charge, other fights erupted and, as a result, the captive escaped. However, in searching the car in which he was riding with another carnival worker, the police found and impounded 75 rounds of ammunition, three rifles and one shotgun.

Two carnival workers were injured. One, a 17-year-old Berwyn Heights boy, who was working on just this carnival sustained a knife wound to his stomach, which required 13 stitches. Another was stabbed in the right forearm. A third person, not connected with the carnival, was struck above the right eye with a blunt instrument.

Greenbelt police, aided by state and county police, had the center area cleared within 45 minutes. Some off-duty officers were also called to the scene. Two persons were sprayed with tear gas streamers to break up fights. No motive was presented for the flare-up except that one or more of the young men, all over 18 years old, was dissatisfied with someone at the carnival the previous night.

During the week PFC Hall located a suspect in several 1968 breaking and entering cases at Springhill Lake. The suspect is now a patient at Clifton T. Perkins State Hospital. As a result of questioning, three breaking and entering cases were closed and it is anticipated that more will be closed.

A woman at Springhill Lake reported that her ex-boy friend forcibly entered her apartment, went to a closet and took a crepe dress he had given her three years previously. He then left.

Chief Lane notes that the expanding police department is still accepting applications for the force. Applicants may pick up the proper forms at the police station in the Municipal Bldg.

Council Eases Pool Admission Policies for Special Groups

by Virginia Beauchamp

At their June 16 regular meeting, members of the Greenbelt City Council, expressing relief at being able to look away at last from budgetary matters after last week's adoption of the city's annual budget, later in the meeting found themselves warily stepping around a new issue that gave promise of exploding like a hornet's nest. In approving an interim measure authorizing the city manager to permit use of the municipal swimming pool to individual juvenile "hardship cases," council postponed until their next regular meeting, Monday, July 14, making a policy decision on use of the pool by selected members of the central city poor. Only slightly earlier they had authorized use of the pool at a 50c daily admission rate for Greenbelt senior citizens age 62 or over. Their other major piece of business was approval of a revised contract for operation of a boating-bicycle concession at the lake.

The issue of pool memberships for non-resident indigent children arose in response to a letter from Eric A. Peterson, 46 Crescent Rd., who requested that he might be permitted to purchase a pool pass at the family rate for use by himself and six youngsters from Southeast Washington whom he has been tutoring and whom he entertains every weekend at his home in Greenbelt. Peterson, a bachelor, has been conducting his tutoring project for two years.

Defining the Issue

During the course of discussion following the reading of Peterson's letter, debate centered on defining what was at issue. To the city manager, the city attorney, and most members of council the matter was primarily administrative. They felt that as a procedural question the city could not play fast and loose with its own previously adopted definition of a "family" in relation to the use of the pool, which includes any permanent member of a household. City Manager James K. Giese suggested that individual citizens or organizations such as church groups might be willing to pick up the tab for these youngsters to swim.

On the assumption that the issue was primarily financial, Dr. George Cantwell offered personally to pay entry fees for one of these children. But other citizens saw the issue in different terms. Dr. Allen Lenchek described the situation as an opportunity for council "to do a little bit to help the worst problem the country has today." He argued that council should take action "because of the racial problem."

Established Policies

In contradiction to Lenchek's position, Mayor Edgar L. Smith insisted that the issue did not constitute a civil rights affair. The Greenbelt pool is an open pool, he noted, and any resident of Greenbelt may bring in anyone as his guest to use the pool. But the request presented in Peterson's letter (for a family membership) is contrary to established policies, Smith said. City Solicitor Emmett Nanna concurred. Council would be "on safer ground to just let them in free than to play around with family memberships," Nanna said.

But Joel Katz, President of the Springhill Lake Democratic Club, charged the city with evading the real issue. It is "quite important," he stated, "that the city go on record as welcoming these children as guests of the city."

As an interim solution, recognizing that the matter had not been previously heard nor advertised as being on the agenda for the June 16 meeting and recognizing also that to postpone action till the next regular council meeting would allow nearly half the swimming season to go by, councilman Francis W. White made the motion to allow the city manager discretion to deal with juvenile "hardship cases" and provide opportunities on a gratis basis for them to swim. Questions of general policy were in this way postponed by unanimous vote until the July 14th meeting.

Lake Concession

Council adopted with minor modifications the draft of a new contract for the lake concession with James E. McCulley, who has bought out the interest of the SCH Corporation, former operators of the concession. The contract, which will run until December 31, 1972, with the possibility of annual renewal thereafter, allows the rental of 12 bicycles as well as 12 rowboats, permits the concessionaire (with the approval of council) to alter the boat dock, requires a powered boat equipped with life saving equipment for patrolling, and stipulates that an adult supervisor, as well as a trained life guard, must be on duty at all times. The city will provide a public paid telephone. The city's share of gross receipts was set at 1½%.

On a suggestion by Hugh Jas-court, chairman of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, Council commended Dr. George Cantwell, former operator of the concession, on his devoted public service.

Other Actions

After considerable debate on the possible effects of traffic safety of prohibiting parking on the west side of Lakeside Drive between Maplewood Ct. and the beginning of University Square, council referred to the city manager and the chief of police the responsibility for making a recommendation on the question. Giese was also directed to bring to the next regular meeting of council a simple sketch of the proposed new animal shelter.

Council passed an ordinance establishing three polling places for municipal elections in districts coinciding with the Greenbelt portions of Prince Georges County precincts 3, 6 and 8 (original Greenbelt, North End, and Springhill Lake) and accepted an 80-foot section of Edmonston Rd. in Springhill Lake into the city road system. They agreed to an invitation by Ed Thornhill to take a walk with him through three unspecified areas of city woodland, presumably in a deteriorating state; announced plans to begin a formal clean-up drive within the city this summer; and approved an administrative transfer of funds from last year's budget between departments.

Salary Increase

They also approved a 10% salary increase for city employees, effective July 1 (as recommended in the new budget adopted last week), and appointed former city recreation director Richard Stevenson and Miss Betty Smyth, 6229 Springhill Court, a special teacher in the public school system, to terms on the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board.

June 30 was set as the date for a special committee-of-the-whole meeting of council to consider first plans for the capital improvement program.

Mosquito Control

The city's mosquito control program begins Friday, June 20, and will continue through the summer on every other Friday. Paid for jointly by the city and the county, the program is administered by state entomologists located at the University of Maryland.

The major ingredient in the fairly mild solution used is malathion, which is claimed to be far less toxic to birds and animals than DDT. The actual spraying is performed by crews of young men who are hired for the summer program.

Any inquiries concerning the program should be directed to the Mosquito Control Program, 454-3846.

I Am a Flagpole

To the Editor:

I am a lonely flagpole. For over two years I have stood here but never a flag has flown from here.

I am supposed to belong to all the GHI homeowners and renters. I represent, when the flag is flown, the patriotism of all the people in Greenbelt. I am only the flagpole. No good without a flag. The GHI board is the elected representatives of all the people. They ignore me completely. Management is not hired to put up a flag on a lonely pole.

The board, I am told, is where the power of the people rests. How about it, board? Are you all too good or above doing the task of showing passers-by that you love the flag and love your responsibilities to the community and to your country by flying the flag from me, a lonely and otherwise useless pole.

Don't shirk your place in the sun by trying to give management a task that is yours and yours alone.

Too busy. Sorry, I am very lonely without a flag to fly.

Thanks

To the Editor:

My children and I have received so many acts and words of kindness during Margie's long hospitalization and after her death that I am overwhelmed with gratitude. Thank you, dear friends.

City Notes

The outside contractor who will construct curbs and gutters in this year's street paving program has notified the city that he will begin work at the end of this week. The first project to be undertaken will be construction of curbs and gutters on both sides of Crescent Rd. from Southway to about 4 and 7 Cts. The city crew will excavate the sites beforehand, doing one side at a time and preceding the outside crew by about one day.

Another outside contractor is excavating a deep trench at the landfill site. This is a major job requiring special equipment. The last trenches to be dug took almost a year and a half to fill. The new trench is expected to last until the site is abandoned and turned over to the Board of Education.

The Public Works Dept. repaired three areas where major wash-outs occurred following last week's torrential rains. They rebuilt and paved over a run-off gutter on Westway adjacent to the Jewish Community Center. They also did repairs at Ridge and Ivy Lane and on Breezewood Drive on Springhill Lake.

Odds and ends concerning the city's recreation program also occupied the Public Works Dept. They fixed up the athletic clubhouse, to be used for the city's summer-day-camp program under an agreement with the Lions Club, owners of the property. They also installed a new door on the shed for the softball field, resurfaced a basketball court at 36 Ridge, and installed new swing chains and seesaw boards where needed throughout the city's playgrounds. In the immediate future they plan to replace the butterfly valve in the recirculating system at the swimming pool. Since such valves wear out frequently (at least once a year) the city now keeps one on reserve so that the swim program does not have to be curtailed while a new one is ordered.

What Is a Mother?

Members of Cub Scout Pack No. 202 make their impact on the literary world with some observations on the psychological and physiological composition of the modern mother.

She cooks and cleans and takes care of children. Only a mother has children. A mother is nice, gentle and pretty.

by Jay Voorhees

A lady!

by Pat Unger

She is a person who helps you and guards you in your life and gives you a home and teaches you and is kind to you.

by Mark White

My mother is a female. My father is a male. I like my mother very much. I like my father too.

by Danny Smith

Someone who is always there. Someone who takes care of you. Someone who gives you an allowance. Someone who helps with Scouts. Someone who makes you put the trash out. Someone to love you.

by Scott Weaver

A mother is nice,
As nice as spice;
But when I die
She will cry.
She is so dear,
I like her near.

by Michael Donkis

She is a nice person. A loveable person.

by Scott Lemos

She is somebody to cheer you up. A mother is sweet and kind. And gives me 10c when the ice cream man comes. And she helps you. And best of all she cares for me.

by Chris Sullivan

What does a mother do in the house? Clean it up. Why does the mother go to the store? Because she is hungry.

by Ricky Stewart

She is nice. She takes you places. She cooks for you. She helps you with things. She likes you.

by John Patton

A mother is very nice and very pretty. A mother helps you with your work. A mother gives you money. A mother does what you want to. A mother makes food for you. A mother buys clothes.

by Billy Patton

She is a mother with love and care and likes to celebrate the happy New Year.

by Ervin Riddle

Somebody who takes care of you. And loves you.

by Randy Nelson

My mother is nice. I like her. My mother is pretty. My mother likes children. She likes everybody. I like to scare her. And she likes animals.

A biting criticism of refrigerators that run out of ice.

The ice cube tray is notorious for its erosion of hands, fingernails, nerves and floors.

What's always forgotten is how it unnerves me. Your car.

You see, people seldom run out of ice in the morning. It's always at night. Late. On weekends. Usually when stores are closed.

Whoever has to make the trip is in a bad mood, and that's rough on a car.

So I suggest you look at a new frost-free refrigerator-freezer, with an automatic icemaker. The ice you want, you get. The ice you don't want—called frost—you don't get. Not only will this save your hands, fingernails and nerves, it'll save me. And because your new frost-free is larger, you'll make fewer trips to the supermarket. That's nice for me, too.

So let's head for an electric appliance dealer and talk frost-free. Or see the many makes and models—one even gives you ice right through the door at the touch of a glass—at the Electric Institute Showroom, Pepco Building, 10th and E Streets, N. W.

I could use the rest. Sincerely,

Your Car

Stop driving yourself. Get a family-size frost-free refrigerator-freezer.
