PERIMETER ROAD AND INTERNAL BUSINESS OCCUPY GHI BOARD

by Alexander Barnes

Occasional power outages during the intense thunderstorm on Thursday, July 9, interrupted an otherwise routine meeting of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc., board. The president, Nat Shinderman, spent a substantial amount of time outlining possible changes to be implemented by the corporation over the coming year. Director Alex Chavrid proposed another joint meeting with the city council to discuss items of mutual interest, specifically the school site, storm drain construction, and animal regulations. A motion by Tom White to reconsider the board's approval of a "middle" perimeter road location was defeated. And the usual dissatisfactions with the townhouse project were expressed.

The motion to reconsider the board's approval of a proposed perimeter road route was based on new evidence uncovered by White. The board had been informed that an effect of locating the road along the route they approved would be to lower the zoning density by increasing the number of single family units as opposed to higher density units. Citing the vice chairman of the Save Our Community Committee as his indirect source of information, White stated that the zoning had already been set by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Other members of the board had indications that this was not the case. The motion failed, supported only by White and Chavrid.

The board president's proposed changes came in the form of suggestions which he briefly explained. This began to lead to extensive discussion. Steve Polaschik pointed out that the group was beginning to act, not as a board, but as a committee. Following his comment, subsequent discussion of the suggested changes was kept to a minimum as the changes were referred to the appropriate committees.

Maintenance Rating

The first suggestion by Shinderman, which had elicited much response, dealt with the evaluation of maintenance. This had previously been done by having the repairman leave a card with the member. The member then fills the card out and mails it back to G.H.I. It was pointed out that when cards came back they were uniformly favorable. On the other hand, the manager pointed out that he was having no trouble receiving unfavorable reports from members who seem to have little hesitancy before putting finger to telephone dial. The matter was referred to the manager for further study.

Further suggestions by Shinderman were for a membership orientation meeting, meetings with members to review changes to GHI regulations, a site for auto repairs, and long-range plans for land swaps with the city. These matters, too, were referred to appropriate committees for their recommendations.

The problems with the townhouses elicited impatience from both board members and townhouse residents. Tom White spoke for many when he said, "Mr. Chairman, I find it very frustrating to be (continually) told there is nothing that can be done."

The manager reported that he was in daily contact with the builder, who kept promising that the work on the laterals would be started "tomorrow." The manager also said that the appraisals would be completed within a week to ten days.

Council Tables Most Actions, Okays Boxwood Stop Signs

by Al Skolnik

With two councilmen not available for last Monday's meeting, Mayor Pro Tem Edgar Smith decided, with the concurrence of remaining council members Elizabeth Maffay and Joel Katz, to postpone much of the 18-item agenda for a special council meeting to be held this Monday, July 20. Action on Monday night was limited to opening bids for the Cherrywood Lane box culvert, conducting a hearing on the levying of a special assessment to finance this improvement, and authorizing stop signs on Lastner Lane to slow down traffic.

Court of Appeals Vacates News Review Libel Award

In accordance with the U. S. Supreme Court decision of May 18, the Maryland Court of Appeals on July 7 issued an order reversing and vacating the $17,500 libel judgment against the Greenbelt News Review. The judgment had been awarded local developer Charles S. Bresler as the result of a Prince Georges Circuit Court verdict in January 1968, which was later affirmed by the Court of Appeals in May 1969.

The order also required that Bresler pay the newspaper the court costs incurred by the latter in defending the action.

Russian Folklore Feature Of Library Program

Russian folklore will be highlighted this Saturday, July 18, during the Folklore Program at the Greenbelt Branch of Prince Georges County Memorial Library. Children ages 8 - 12 are invited to attend the program, which will begin at 10 a.m. in the Meeting Room.

Among the major items that were postponed to the special meeting were (1) consideration of alternate routes for the perimeter road; (2) housing for the elderly project; and (3) the proposed senior high school site.

In connection with the location of the perimeter road through parcel 1, the city's Advisory Planning Board has recommended a middle route (Route #2 in the accompanying sketch.) The board noted that the most westerly route (Route #1) had advantages of economy, safety, and of best limiting the density of development, but does meet with serious objections from residents in nearby dwellings because of the proximity (of traffic noise etc.) to their homes. The APB said that the angle at which Plateau Place would intersect the proposed route also presents a safety factor.

The APB also turned down the most easterly route (Route #3) because of greater cost, reduced safety, and increased density of development. Thus, the APB felt that acceptance of the middle route offers the best compromise.

The GHI board of directors has recommended a compromise route, which follows the middle route in part but would cut over further to the west than the middle route did (see sketch).

City manager James K. Giese said that from an examination of the topography, it would appear that the GHI route is feasible. He saw both the GHI and APB routes as creating a problem in that a small parcel of land would be created south of Plateau Place which would be difficult for the owners to develop.

Cherrywood Lane Culvert

A short hearing was held on the proposal for the city to levy a special assessment to finance the cost of the city's construction of a four-cell culvert at Indian Creek in order to provide a crossing for Cherrywood Lane. This road construction would provide access to the industrial property owned by Greenbelt Associates, present owners of Springhill Lake Apartments. It is proposed that 100 percent of the cost be assessed against the benefiting property owners, Greenbelt Associates, including all engineering fees, administrative costs, and the costs of financing. The assessment would be for a 15-year period.

Giese said that this action of the city at no cost to itself would assist in opening the area for industrial development and thus increase the city's revenue base. Many communities do this, he said, and some even finance such improvements out of general revenues. Of course, he acknowledged, the property owners would also benefit since the city can secure the financing of the improvement at a lower interest rate than private parties.

Giese also said that the project would have little effect on the city's indebtedness limit, which is approximately $4 1/2 million (10% of its assessed valuation). The present debt is under $2 million and according to the bids opened on Monday night, the project will cost well under $200,000.

Some questions were raised as to the precedent set by this action, and Smith said that the record would be kept open until Monday's special meeting to get any additional views.

Lastner Lane Speeding

Concern expressed by the Boxwood Citizens Association over speeding on Lastner Lane led to a city manager recommendation, approved by council, that stop signs be placed on an experimental basis. See City Council, p. 2 c. 3

Alternative Routes Through Parcel 1 For Perimeter Rd.

Routes #1, 2, and 3 represent alternative routes for the perimeter road suggested by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The Greenbelt Homes, Inc. board of directors has suggested a route which is a modification of routes 1 and 2. The city's Advisory Planning Board has recommended route 2 (the middle route). According to the Greenbelt Master Plan, land west of the perimeter road would be for R-T (townhouse) development. The various alignments of the perimeter road would provide the following R-T density:

Route 1	15.2 acres	152 units
Route 2	24.5 acres	245 units
Route 3	42.6 acres	426 units

Land east of the perimeter road would be reserved for single-family development.

Volume 33, Number 34 Thursday, July 16, 1970

To the Editor:

May we take this opportunity to try to clarify some of the misunderstandings which have grown up around the proposed apartment building at the Greenbelt Shopping Center.

1. It is being called a highrise building — making people think it will stick out like a sore thumb above its neighbors. But it will not. Though it is planned to be seven stories high (64 feet high), it will be located in the valley some 20 feet below the adjoining four-story apartment buildings. So it will not be more than one story higher than them or the surrounding trees.

2. It is proposed to use parkland, and to many people this is using land with picnic tables, barbecue pits, etc. But the roughly 150 by 300 foot strip of land located at the rear of the present apartment buildings is completely undeveloped and is badly cut up by an open storm drainage ditch which runs diagonally through the property. The storm water would be redirected, piped and covered over, making it possible to use this otherwise unusable area. This land is across the stream from Candy Cane City and Braden Field and would not reduce these areas by one single inch.

3. Much of the opposition is due to an unreasonable fear that the building would be occupied by Negroes fleeing from Washington. But housing for the elderly is based on providing housing for people in their own communities. The elderly want to stay with their relatives, their friends, their organizations, their doctor, etc. They do not want to have to move away to new and unfamiliar communities. And the Greenbelt building will be filled with Greenbelt residents and parents of Greenbelt residents. Thus only a few Negro elderly are potential residents, and these will already be our friends and neighbors.

4. The word is going around that some members of City Council plan to avoid a decision by proposing that an official study be made of the problem of housing for the elderly. But everyone knows further study is unnecessary. The problem has been studied in Greenbelt for ten years. Both the need, and the co-op method of meeting the need, have been amply demonstrated in Greenbelt. A vote for a study at this time is simply a weak way to vote no.

5. Those people who have attended City Council meetings know who is sponsoring the building, but other Greenbelters may not. The sponsoring organization, Senior Citizens Housing Cooperative is a local organization open to anyone who invests $25 in a membership. Twin Pines Savings & Loan is permitting the organization to use its office as headquarters, until they get their own building.

There are two kinds of members in SCHC: (1) those of any age who want to help, and (2) those 62 or older who wish to live in the proposed building.

Present helping members are: Bruce Bowman, 14-Z-3 Laurel Hill; Kenneth Euker, 21-D Parkway; Jim Cassells, 125 Northway; Charles McDonald, 28 Woodland Way; George Reeves, College Park, formerly of 2-C Eastway; Charles Schwan, 7-A Crescent; Matt Vanderzon, 112 Northway; Leo Walder, 16 Lakeside.

Those members planning to live in the building are Regina Sappe, 14-G Laurel Hill; Bessie Gordon, 16 Lakeside; Joseph Griffin; 26-B Crescent; Rose Finkelstein, 16-A Crescent; Esse Bendow, 103 Tamarisk; Harold Taylor, 3-E Plateau; Marcella Grandfield, 24-C Crescent; May Griffin, 26 Crescent; James & Mary Welsh, 32-D Ridge and Mary Lowe, 33-J Ridge.

No membership drive can be made until we know where the building will be located.

sis at two intersections — Ivy Lane and Julian Court. Stop signs at other intersections were rejected because of the steepness of the hill, which Giese feared would create a hazard. Giese said that the city would adopt another suggestion of the Citizens Association to paint a center line down Lastner Lane.

Requests
The council received two petitions for action which were turned over to the city manager. One was a request from 14 Hillside Court residents that the playground behind that court be removed because it was attracting noisy children and teenagers. The other was a request from an apartment owner that the city take steps to correct a drainage problem at the rear of 51 Crescent which was flooding two basement apartments. The owner, Samuel S. Feldman, expressed willingness to share any reasonable cost.

6 suggestions for wives with radiators where furniture ought to be!

Suggestion 6.

1. If you're genuinely attached to hot water heat, switch to an electric hydronic heating system. Instead of radiators, it uses inconspicuous baseboard or wall units. And the boiler is about the size of a suitcase.

2. Install an electric warm air system. You can use the same ducts for both heating and cooling.

3. Consider one of the three kinds of furnace-less electric heat which offer room-by-room temperature control. Like flush-fitting wall units.

4. Or trim, attractive baseboard units.

5. Or invisible ceiling cables which radiate heat downward like the sun.

6. Cleverly disguise your radiators with slipcovers as shown above.

We will be happy to fill you in on suggestions 1-5. For a free heating survey and estimate of operating costs for your own home—and a complimentary copy of "20 Most Often Asked Questions About Electric Heat"—call our Residential Customer Department at 628-0389, 628-0506 or 628-0617. No obligation.

Electric heat is pure comfort.
