Public Hearing on Proposed Changes in Zoning Ordinance

A public hearing will be held in Upper Marlboro on Tuesday, October 27, at 10:15 a.m. on proposed Comprehensive Design regulations for the Prince Georges zoning ordinance. These new regulations, proposed by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, would provide alternatives to the 16 conventional zones (R-80, R-30, R-T, C-1, etc.) in the existing ordinance. Instead, an applicant would have the option of seeking one of five proposed Comprehensive Design zones.

The five are Major Activity Center (M-A-C), Local Activity Center (L-A-C), Employment and Industrial Area (E-I-A), Residential Suburban (R-S), and Residential Urban (R-U). These zones would offer developers increased building heights limits and more floor space in relation to property size (Floor Area Ratio or FAR) in exchange for public facilities and excellence in site and building design.

In practice, use of these zones would require approval by the Planning Commission of the subdivision plat, the complete site plan showing placement of buildings, streets, landscaping features and architectural features being used as "trade-offs" to achieve a larger FAR, and a staging plan showing the succession in which the various parts of the development are to be built and put into use.

Design factors which would earn a developer larger FAR grants include: provisions of green space, recreation space, walkways separated from vehicular rights-of-way, buildings for public facilities, distinctive street and landscape design, preservation of trees and historic buildings, underground and multi-level parking, and submission of unified plans by different owners of adjoining lands.

Enactment of these regulations, or something very similar, has already been envisioned in the Master Plan for Bowie-Collington, which was approved by the Planning Commission in July and is now awaiting approval of the County Commissioners. Previous area master plans produced by MNCPPC set out specific proposed land use for each parcel of land in the planning area, but the Bowie-Collington proposal divides the area into neighborhoods and communities. Population density limits in each area would be accomplished through comprehensive design standards.

The MNCPPC has issued an 80-page booklet describing the new proposed regulations in detail. In the foreword to the booklet, the Commission declares that present zoning regulations often are not flexible enough to assure that developers carry through with good design proposals. Under the proposed ordinance, commitments made by a developer "would carry the force and effect of law," according to MNCPPC.

MNCPPC officials see this alternative approach to developing land as benefiting both developers and the county and its residents. A developer would benefit by receiving higher dwelling-unit density in exchange for including "public benefit" features in his development, such as consignment of a portion of his land for use as a school, library, or recreational facility. County residents would benefit because these facilities would be acquired without use of tax money.

Plans for a comprehensive design zone would be submitted in three stages, progressing from generalized to specific plans. The first plan submitted (the Basic Plan) would be reviewed at a public hearing and acted on by the county commissioners. The second plan submittal (Comprehensive Design Plan) would also be reviewed at a public hearing and acted on by the MNCPPC. The third plan submittal (Specific Design Plan) would be reviewed and acted on by the MNCPPC.

LOCAL TEENAGERS AVERT NEAR TRAGEDY

The quick thinking of Doug and Ronnie Smith averted a potential tragedy last Friday as a driverless camper-bus rolled down White Birch Court with two terrified little girls trapped inside. The girls had climbed into the vehicle, which was parked on a hill, and somehow managed to get it moving.

The boys, who were raking leaves in front of their home, raced after the camper. Fourteen-year-old Ronnie pulled one of the girls, who was on the verge of falling out, to safety. Fifteen-year-old Doug jumped into the vehicle and brought it to a halt as it ran on to a lawn.

Ronnie and Doug were highly commended for their courage by the residents of White Birch Court. "They are our heroes," said a mother who witnessed the scene. She felt that parents should warn their children against playing in parked automobiles.

Projected Cost for New SHL Recreation Bldg. Above Budget

by Elaine Skolnik

The Springhill Lake recreation building, a drainage problem on Lakeside, and anti-pollution measures were featured at the city council meeting on Monday, October 19. The council was without the services of Dick Pilski, who is recuperating at home from an operation.

Sewage Facilities Would Cost $716,000, Says WSSC

In a letter received this week by the city, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission estimated that the cost of providing sewage service to parcels 1 and 2 (land between Baltimore-Washington Parkway and Ridge Road) by pumping would be approximately $716,000. WSSC estimated that approximately 10,500 feet of relief sewers would be required to handle an estimated flow of 5.0 million gallons per day and advised that the existing sewers in Greenbelt were not designed to serve property outside its drainage area, such as parcels 1 and 2. Normal sewers to serve this area would drain in a different watershed to the Beaverdam Creek.

Anti-Drug Drive Gains Momentum

During the past week, Dan Minster, North End PTA president, addressed the Greenbelt Lions Club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, soliciting their support for the drive to combat the drug problem in Greenbelt.

Mrs. Linda Vaituzis, Vice President of the North End PTA has indicated that the following organizations have pledged their support for the drive: Center School PTA, St. Hugh's Home and School Association, Greenbelt Community Church and Springhill Lake PTA.

Minster has announced plans for forming a Greenbelt Joint Committee for Drug Control. The committee will be composed of delegates representing various interested organizations throughout the city. More details on the proposed committee will be presented at the Panel Discussion on Drugs at North End Elementary School, November 10, 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

The problem facing the city on the Springhill Lake recreation building is that the $60,000 (including architects' fees) allocated from the capital improvement bond issue approved by voters in November 1968 is not adequate. Preliminary plans prepared by the architects, Cohen, Haft & Associates, call for a building with 6,837 square feet, which at the current construction cost of $20 a sq. ft., would run to $137,000. These preliminary plans provide for a gym, multipurpose room (smaller than that of the Youth Center), classroom, meeting room, storage and offices, lobby, and game room lounge.

City manager James K. Giese mentioned several alternatives that were open to council. One would be to construct half a building, with temporary outer walls to allow for future expansion. The cost of this alternative would be about $68,000.

Another option is to forego gym and other athletic facilities and retain the game room, lounge, and multi-purpose room. The cost of this option might be kept within the budget.

Several people present expressed objections to piecemeal construction. Ben Goldfaden said that Springhill Lake as a permanent community deserved a total program and suggested appropriating additional funds in next year's budget to supplement the bond issue money.

Another uncertain element concerns the location of the recreation building. Current thinking has the building located at the southern corner of the par-3 golf course, where the club house is located at Cherrywood Lane and Springhill Drive. The owners of the property, Springhill Lake apartment managers (Greenbelt Associates), have indicated that they would sell the 11-acre tract to the city at a favorable price. The city has hopes of obtaining Federal "open space" funds to help purchase the property. However, if this assistance should not materialize, then the funds available for construction, as well as the location of the building, may be affected.

Councilman Joel Katz reminded council that Greenbelt Associates had promised to make land available for a recreation building, and he thought the city should pursue this path. Council decided to have a study session on these problems next Monday.

Lakeside Drainage

A recurring storm drainage problem on Lakeside Drive received considerable council attention. During the cold weather, ice forms at the curb lines to almost half the width of the road along several curves from about 25 Lakeside to Crescent as the result of inadequate water drainage from the high ground above. The problem is further exacerbated along the northern bank, where there are flowing springs and a lot of shade. Council decided to ask city engineers Greenhorn and O'Mara for their advice.

Antipollution Ordinances

Four ordinances prepared by the city manager relating to pollution were introduced for first reading. Two of the ordinances relate to outdoor burning — one prohibits burning entirely and the other one sets several more restrictive conditions than now exist for burning under permit. Another ordinance prohibits the dumping of material into the city's storm drainage system of waterways that would cause pollution to waterways. The last ordinance is a comprehensive anti-litter ordinance based upon a model ordinance prepared by the Institute of Municipal Law Officers.

In a related matter on environmental controls, council discussed — See CITY COUNCIL, p. 4, col. 2

An Act of Courage

The Board of Education's recent decision to seek an alternate site for the proposed Franklin Delano Roosevelt Senior High School was an act of courage in that it overturned a decision reached long ago. By its decision, the school board has shown its recognition of the real needs of the community. We wish to commend the chairman and members of the board on showing attentiveness to, and interest in, the opinions expressed by the city council and by citizens at the recent public hearing, and on conducting the hearing in a serious and conscientious manner.

Recognizing that differences of opinion exist, we may now hope that the site finally chosen will benefit the largest number of people. The new school may indeed become a true memorial to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, in keeping with the town he envisioned and brought to reality.

Students Get Time Off To Study Nov. Elections

Student absenteeism may be up around the time of the general election in November, but for a very good reason.

The Prince Georges County Board of Education passed a resolution to permit 12th grade students enrolled in social studies courses to take part in political campaigning, effective this year.

The Board unanimously passed a resolution presented by Dr. Carl W. Hassel, Superintendent of Schools, permitting seniors, who in the judgment of their social studies teachers are seriously interested in the political election process, to be excused from classes the Thursday, Friday, and Monday, immediately preceding the General Election on November 3.

Students will be required to obtain parental consent to be absent from school in addition to obtaining agreement from the candidate of their choice, or, in the case of a get-out-the-vote campaign, the approval of a political organization (e.g., League of Women Voters). Students will also be required to submit an activities schedule for the period they will be campaigning.

Following the elections, students will be required to submit a written essay to include a description of their activities and an analysis of what they have learned from the experience. The essay should be signed by a candidate or a campaign official as evidence that the student actually engaged in the campaign.

All students participating in the primary and general elections will be required to make up essential school work they may have missed while engaged in political campaign activities.

The Board's resolution was based on a proposal of the Maryland Committee for Children and Youth to include political campaigning as a part of the high school curriculum. This proposal was approved in principle by the State Board of Education on August 26.

Letters to the Editor

Commending School Board

Publicly I want to acknowledge my appreciation of the cooperation and plain hard work that citizens and officials in and outside of Greenbelt invested in the five-year effort to persuade the School Board to relocate the proposed senior high school.

The Prince Georges Board of Education deserves to be commended for its consideration of this city's needs, and it must be encouraged to seek similar citizen participation in the future. I have always believed that the Greenbelt school site controversy was a legitimate county issue and not merely a local matter. It is every community's right to be consulted on the location and facilities for its proposed schools, in a public hearing such as ours, held at a time and place convenient to the citizens. Other communities should now be freely granted the hearing we had to win a cruel five-year test of our patience and resolve, through two major petition campaigns, court action, endless entreaties to every governmental body, and unrelenting pressure on public officials.

Let the Greenbelt experience set the precedent for a new procedure of school site selection and facility development in Prince Georges County.

"Home Style" Clotheslines

I really must take umbrage with Mrs. Lathom. I'm sorry that "clothes flapping in the breeze" distresses her so; they give me a nice, warm feeling of "home style" living which epitomizes Greenbelt to me.

My husband and I lived in an apartment for several years before moving here. I loved the times we came over to visit-just to feel, sense, see and savor the neighborliness, the community feeling, yea... even the clothes flapping in the breeze. It was my kind of town then, and it is even more so now, after living here for two years.

I do agree with Mrs. Lathom that clotheslines and sheds should be where they are least likely to be seen by the most people. However, to insist that these be positioned on the garden side (by order of GHI) is pure nonsense. The garden side of many homes front on "green areas" or "park areas" and sheds and clotheslines placed on that side would be much more of an eyesore. It really isn't a situation in which a hard and fast rule could apply - it is an individual, or court section, problem (if it is a problem) and I, for one, would fight tooth and toenail against any rule demanding that I place a shed or clothesline on the garden side.

I'd like to write more but I don't have time right now. I must go and hang up some clothes - there's a stiff breeze blowing and I want to see them flapping!... on the service side.

Mrs. Rita Dean

Vote for Charter

November 3 is a vital day for Maryland's and Prince George's future. We urge you to vote and vote with thoughtfulness. Prior to voting for the candidates of your choice we urge you to vote for Charter Question A.

Prince George's County needs a Charter form of government to meet the needs of the state's largest county and cope with the future in a modern, organized manner. Many basic principles of good government are defined in the Charter. To change them would require the vote of the people, not just the vote of an official. Prince George's County needs Charter - but Charter needs you. Please vote on Tuesday, November 3 for Question A.

Joseph Mulvihill - SHL Civic Association
Michael A. Gendel - SHL Republican Club
Raymond Krasnick - SHL Democratic Club

A Welcome Decision

The decision of the Board of Education to look for an alternate site to parcel 2 for a senior high school is a welcome one. It represents another long step forward in the occasionally interrupted march of the people of Greenbelt to preserve the integrity of their community. Assuming that the revised master plan for the Greenbelt area is approved shortly, 1970 will have been a banner year.

Certainly, we owe a debt of gratitude to those outside Greenbelt who listened to the statements of our position and responded with understanding. These include the Governor and the Legislature, particularly our own delegation, the County Commissioners and the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. To these we can now add the Board of Education.

The list of Greenbelters who served the community cause is long. So is the period of their service. To avoid the risk of omitting anyone who made a substantial contribution, none will be named. Nevertheless, I - and I am sure many others - wish them to know that we appreciate what they have done for all of us. Their hard work, perseverance, study, ingenuity and advocacy have insured that Greenbelt will remain green yet a little longer. Emulation of their efforts as the need arises, can extend that period indefinitely.

City Notes

The city recently delivered a tax anticipation note to Suburban Trust Co. in the amount of $130,000 for the temporary financing of a box culvert over Indian Creek in Springhill Lake. The culvert, which will provide access to the industrial property in the development, will be paid for by the developers, against whom the city will levy a special assessment.

The contractor doing the repaving and widening of Southway Rd. has assured the city that, weather permitting, he expects to lay the base course for the roadway by October 24. The intersection of Southway and Ridge has already been excavated to the specified grade.

At the Youth Center a sample of concrete flooring was poured on October 20 to ascertain whether the color, a shade of gray, would be satisfactory. The rest of the flooring for the second story was to be poured before the week was over. The final surface will be tinted concrete.

The city crew prepared for paving the pathway alongside Braden Field by removing broken sections of pavement. The asphalt work, designed to widen the pathway, will be performed by Contee Sand and Gravel Co., which is also widening Laurel Hill north of Ridge Rd. At Laurel Hill the contractor was doing concrete work — pouring curbs and valley gutters. He expected to pour the base course of the asphalt paving before the week was out, but indicated that pouring of the final coat might be delayed until spring.

The city crew filled eroded spots in the unpaved section of Ridge Rd. near the water storage tank, painted underpass guard railings, and continued with a street line painting program. The Parks crew repaired picnic tables and removed debris from the Lake park that had been collected earlier during the Jaycees' clean-up day.

a suggestion by Stephen Polaschik that an ordinance be passed governing noise pollution. Among the noisy items referred to during the discussion were helicopters, operation of model airplanes and boats, inadequate car mufflers, motorcycles, and power motors. Giese said that he has already talked with Festival Committee officials and it was agreed that helicopter rides would not be repeated next year. City solicitor Emmett Nanna said that there is a state law governing noisy mufflers, which can be enforced by local police.

School Site

Council expressed its appreciation to the Prince Georges Board of Education for its "wise" decision in rejecting parcel 2 as a senior high school site and in instructing its staff to seek another site for the Franklin D. Roosevelt High School. Council pledged its assistance "in every way possible" to select and obtain a new site so that construction can proceed at the earliest date.

Council member Elizabeth Maf-fay, with other council members concurring, also expressed appreciation to Save Our Community Committee and to Rhea Cohen for their contributions in having the school location moved. SOCC, in turn, through Bill Lathom invited all to a fish fry and victory celebration at the Lake on Saturday, October 24. Lathom thanked council for its efforts and gave special commendation to the city research report prepared by Giese and his staff on alternative school sites.

Other Action

The council agreed to pay a supplemental architects' fee of $3,500 to Greenhorne and O'Mara in connection with the Youth Center addition, after learning that the contract called for renegotiation of the fee if the cost of construction is above that originally allowed.

The council accepted a low bid from International Harvester for the purchase of two small dump trucks with snow plows and one salt spreader at $10,311 ($500 over budget).

Correction

In an article published on October 1 concerning new dietary food supplements developed by local resident Richard Passwater, the News Review erred in describing as an "age retardant formula" a product called Factor 3-X, to be marketed beginning November 1.

The formula developed by Mr. Passwater to retard aging and improve the quality of life is expected to undergo a test program designed to make the product acceptable to the nation's food and drug regulatory agencies. There are no present marketing plans for this age-retarding formula.
