County Sees Parcels 1, 2 Zoning As Premature, Asks MNCPPC to Restudy

by Elaine Skolnik

The zoning hearing on parcels 1 and 2, which had been recessed on March 19, was continued for some two hours on June 2 before the Prince Georges County Council, sitting as the District Council, decided to send the petitions back to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission for updating. Council instructed the planners not to return the applications until the location and/or existence of the perimeter road was determined. It also asked for more information on the matters of traffic and sewage and water for the 150-odd acre property located between the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. property.

Doubts Great

From the start it was apparent that many county council members questioned the desirability of going on with the hearing. Zoning now would be "a case of prematureity at best," said councilman Francis Francois, referring to the lack of plans for sewage and to the lack of specific knowledge regarding the location of the perimeter road. "How can we grant zoning without knowing where the road is going?" he asked.

Francois noted that the District Council had previously directed a reexamination of the perimeter road after the removal of the senior high school from parcel 2. "Such a study," he said, "is underway."

The doubts were so great that the council did not even bother to hear the testimony of the city of Greenbelt and other civic organizations. Only two witnesses — both from MNCPPC — were heard. James Redman testified that the type of zoning for the tract and average density figures were dependent on the routing of the perimeter road. Several alternative routes were available, he said, with MNCPPC's figures based on the central route.

The MNCPPC had recommended 35.5 acres of vacant land to the south and west of the perimeter road for R-T (townhouses, up to 10 units per acre) and 88.6 acres north and east of the perimeter road for R-80 (single-family, 3 units per acre.) This is in accordance with the College Park-Greenbelt Master Plan. The City of Greenbelt favors reserving the land for single-family zoning.

Changed Situation

County councilman Francis White noted that the removal of the senior high school from parcel 2 produces two changes in the situation which council might feel warranted sending the petitions back to MNCPPC: (1) The configuration of the perimeter road is now subject to change; and (2) the problems of how this land would be ultimately sewered are now apparent as the result of the study made of the tract in connection with the location of the school. (The proposed 10 year sewer and water plan does not schedule parcels 1 and 2 for service within the foreseeable future — the next ten years.)

He was joined by council woman Lucille Potts, who noted that MNCPPC made an original recommendation based on one set of facts, but, "at this point in time, there have been enough changes that I would need a different assessment."

William Avrutis, people's zoning counsel, referring to material submitted by Greenbelt resident Rhea Cohen, also dwelled on the fact that there were no current plans for the perimeter road and that a zoning body may not properly grant zoning based on non-existent facilities. The need for MNCPPC to update is technical staff report was constantly reiterated, though one councilman, John Garity, felt that the hearing should be continued so as to give MNCPPC the benefit of comments and guidelines.

Applicants' Appeal

John R. Miles, attorney representing the owners of the tract, Charles Bresler and Theodore Lerner, reviewed the history of the zoning applications. He said that the owners have continually tried to conform to the desires of MNCPPC. In 1965 the applicant changed petitions from R-18 (21 apartment units per acre) to R-30 (14 apartment units per acre) to conform with the Area 13 Master Plan. Now, he continued, the applicant is willing to accept R-T and R-80 as called for by the present master plan.

"Now we hear," he said, "a last minute cry from the opposition against R-T and R-80. We feel that this zoning is compatible with row house zoning and is highly desirable. It would break up the monotony of row houses."

Miles said that sewerage was feasible for parcels 1 and 2, either by pumping over the Ridge line and tying into the existing system or by a gravity sewer to Beaver Dam. "Why did MNCPPC recommend R-T and R-80 zoning, if sewerage was not available?" he asked MNCPPC's principal planner, William Busby, who had been subpoenaed by the applicant. Busby replied that at the time of the recommendation, the Board of Ed-

PRAB FAVORS PENALTIES FOR WATER POLLUTION

The city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Committee has recommended approval of a city-proposed ordinance prohibiting the disposal of water pollutants into the city's storm drainage system. A few changes dealing with definitions were suggested, also a proposed addition to the enforcement section permitting the offender to be assessed the cost of damages and clean-up.

The ordinance, which will come up for first reading at the June 14 council meeting, would make it unlawful to dispose of any pollutants, mainly defined as oil and chemical properties, in such a way as to cause them to enter the storm drainage system within the city of Greenbelt. It would also require oil storage tanks or similar equipment to be maintained in good condition. Violators could draw fines up to $1,000 and imprisonment for up to 90 days.

In addition to the ordinance, the PRAB subcommittee stressed the need for certain supplemental measures to protect the lake. "The lake is Greenbelt's most vulnerable natural resource," the committee said. "Damage can be swift, extensive, dangerous and very costly to repair. As long as the lake collects the surface water from nearly every gutter in central Greenbelt, the lake cannot be well protected by legislation alone."

For the ordinance to be effective, the committee urged a public education campaign informing people, for example, that crankcase oil spilled into a gutter finds its way into the lake and Indian Creek. The proper disposal of such oil, the committee said, is to put the oil into a closed container and deposit it in the garbage can or to take it to any gas station to be added to the waste oil collected for reprocessing.

The committee also urged the city to include funds in the 1971 budget for an engineering feasibility study, either of filtering the surface water before it flows into the lake, or of bypassing the lake and carrying most of the run-off directly into Indian Creek. It also urged the city to maintain close control over siltation, a primary form of water pollution, by reenacting the county grading ordinance.

COUNCIL CHOPS $50,000 OFF BUDGET FOR 84¢ TAX RATE

by Al Skolnik

The city council passed a real "hold the line" budget Monday evening when it chopped $50,000 off the 1971-72 municipal budget. The final budget calls for expenditures of $1,132,600 and a Greenbelt property tax rate of $0.84 per $100 assessed valuation, only 4 cents more than the 1970-71 tax rate. This increase is in sharp contrast with the 19-cent hike first proposed in the budget submitted to council in April by city manager James K. Giese and the 14-cent increase projected by Giese just a fortnight ago.

The tax increase is the first in ten years. At the time the rate was $1.77 per $100 assessed valuation.

Helping to keep the tax increase to modest dimensions was a revaluation by council of revenues expected from the State-shared income tax. Giese had estimated revenues of $240,000 from the income tax for 1971-72, which the council upped by $9,200.

All told, council expects income from sources other than the real property tax to equal $655,200, to which it added $46,500 in surplus from previous years' operations. This leaves $430,900 to be collected through the real property tax. Applying this amount to an estimated assessable tax base of $51.3 million yields a tax rate of $0.84 per $100 assessed valuation.

Budget Up 5.7%

The adopted budget calls for increased expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1972 of 5.7 percent over the 1971 fiscal year appropriation of $1,071,350. A major factor in the increase is a 5 percent salary hike for city employees, together with increased fringe benefits and the costs of in-grade raises and reclassification.

Council achieved the $50,000 cut in the original budget in a variety of ways. First, it deleted the proposed additional employees in the public works crew and reduced overtime for a savings of $16,900. Giese said, however, that the city would not suffer since the closing of the sanitary landfill would release an employee for the special details crew.

Second, it cut out the resurfacing of Ridge-Northway to 73 Court for a savings of $10,500. It was explained that preliminary work on this project would be done in the coming year so as to permit the contract to be let in the next (1972-73) fiscal year. Council also deleted $1,500 for engineering plans for Youth Center access and parking.

Third, $2,200 was shaved off the police department budget by delaying the installation of a computer terminal until Federal aid is received. Also, $3,100 was shaved off the finance department budget by delaying until July 1972 employment of an accountant to be trained as a replacement for the city treasurer, who is retiring in December 1972.

Fourth, the recreation budget was cut by reducing the amounts for recreation personnel and instructors by $3,000 and for equipment by $1,950 (such as television for Youth Lounge, carpet for offices, and gym lights).

Other cuts included setting aside $10,000 instead of $11,000 for contingency reserves, and setting aside $1,500 instead of $3,000 for an improved life insurance program for city employees (on the grounds that further study will not permit the plan to go into effect before January 1).

Finally, council systematically went through the items providing material and supplies and wherever possible trimmed the amounts authorized to the current year's level.

The 1971-72 budget will be a real austerity one. It calls for no increase in city personnel and for a minimum amount of capital improvement work. Only $4,000 will be spent on gutters and concrete replacement. However, the council did at the last minute increase the amounts authorized for sewage and storm drains.

Council also agreed to make the following contributions to local recreation groups: Greenbelt Concert Band ($750); jogging ($100); Aquatic Boosters Club ($814); SHL Boys Club ($495); Greenbelt Little League ($1,500); Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club ($1,000); and Greenbelt Tennis Assn. ($25).

V MISCELLANEOUS

Local Bank Held Up

A bank robbery just outside the Greenbelt city limits spilled over into Greenbelt itself as the robbers fled. The Citizens National Bank branch, located about a block west of the Beltway Plaza and at the foot of the railroad viaduct, was held up at about 12:15 p.m. on June 3, according to news reports in the Metropolitan papers. The robber, who scooped up $730 from a window where he had passed through a note demanding cash, was later apprehended at the corner of 59th Avenue and Greenbelt Rd. as he fled on foot. Making the arrest was Thomas E. Cooke, an off-duty state trooper, who followed the fleeing man by car. The money was recovered.

A second man, who police alleged had been driving a get-away car, was later arrested in a parking lot in Springhill Lake, not far from the Junior High School.

Greenbelt officers participated in the search for the driver of the car, but they did not make the arrest.

Financing the Indoor Pool
To the Editor:

As reported in the NEWS REVIEW (June 3), a report was submitted to City Council which gave a rather negative impression regarding the financial feasibility of an indoor pool in Greenbelt.

This report is erroneous in three aspects. First, in regard to operational costs, the report contains a serious mathematical error. Secondly, a great deal of the report is based on the results of an indoor municipal pool in Rockville which has problems which, according to the report, "are a mixture of an indecisive city council and an overly luxurious and expensive physical plant." In addition, the Rockville pool is in competition with another indoor pool in the same area, a problem which an indoor facility in Greenbelt would not face. Thirdly, the report lacks a detailed study of the sources of income for the proposed facility. With all probable income considered, we feel that the pool could be operated at a profit.

A report has been submitted to City Council by the Greenbelt Aquatic Booster Club which will be presented at the June 14 meeting, regarding the feasibility of an indoor pool in Greenbelt. We urge all citizens and groups interested in a low cost swimming pool and health facility in Greenbelt to be there.

ucation was requesting sewage service to the school site on parcel 2.

Miles pleaded for approval of zoning so that the owners could proceed with plans for solving the sewer problems. "Let us know one way or another. If the good people of Greenbelt want to use parcels 1 and 2 for open space, let them buy it and buy it now. The owners have been carrying the cost on this land for eight years."

But Francois saw the situation differently. "The fact that this case has been pending for a long time indicates to me that the whole matter of zoning is premature."

White Statement

At the beginning of the hearing, White issued a statement that he felt justified in participating in decisions relating to Greenbelt zoning matters. When parcels 1 and 2 first came up on March 19, there was some question whether White might have a conflict of interest since he was Mayor of Greenbelt at the time the city council made its recommendations on the zoning petitions.

White said that the action of city council in making zoning recommendations was not similar to the action of the District Council in that the city's consideration did not in any way constitute a full hearing with a presentation by the applicant. "The public discussions leading to a recommendation on the part of city council were seldom held in an atmosphere of contest," he said. "The recommendations of the Greenbelt City Council were based upon, first, the master plan goal of the city; second, the recommendations of the city's APB, and, finally, the opinions of its citizens."

White concluded that the city discussions lacked many of the ingredients existing in District Council procedures, such as quasi-judicial determinations, with evidence introduced by professional staff and applicants, and cross-examinations by the people's zoning council and others.

He declared his belief that he could hear all the evidence and make a fair and impartial decision based on the evidence.

The only objection to his action came from Mrs. Cohen, who thought the public did not have sufficient time to comment on his statement. She also felt that the city's recommendations are made in an atmosphere of contest.

Second Paper Drive
Doubly Successful

Results of the June 4 paper drive, conducted by the city's Public Works Dept., were almost twice as encouraging as those for the first drive, which was held in May. City trucks carried some 20 and a half tons of newspapers and old magazines to sell for recycling. This figure compares with slightly over 11 tons collected in the first such venture.

No cost accounting of the enterprise has yet been completed, but in view of the response city officials feel encouraged to continue.
