Pilski Favors Tax Differential Bill

Demonstrating how Greenbelt citizens are paying double taxation for common services, Mayor Richard Pilski on behalf of the city council urged the county council to enact county bill No. 61 at a public hearing on July 19. The bill, introduced by county councilman Francis W. White, would reduce the county property tax for citizens living in municipalities via the creation of special taxing districts. A specific tax credit process would be set up based on the amount each municipality spends for the overlapping service.

Pilski used as illustrations the police, public works, and recreation services provided by the city of Greenbelt. He noted that Greenbelters pay a city tax rate of 22.6c per $100 assessed valuation for police services while also paying 40c on the county tax rate for county police services.

"In other words," he said, "Greenbelt residents are paying more in property tax for the extremely limited county police services which they receive than for the support of their own police department. This is a totally unfair tax situation," he declared.

Similarly, Pilski noted that Greenbelt residents are paying 11.2c toward the cost of city public works operations, while paying a county property tax rate of 15.1c toward the cost of operating the county Department of Public Works. The only thing the city gets for the latter, according to Pilski, is that the county pays the electric bill for street lights at the intersection of Kenilworth and Greenbelt Road.

With respect to recreation, Pilski said that Greenbelt residents are getting back about $2 in direct county program benefits for every $3 paid in county taxes. At the same time, city residents are paying city property taxes for the Greenbelt recreation program, which Pilski termed "the finest in the county."

Pilski noted that many of the city recreation programs are enjoyed by county residents who contribute no taxes toward the program operation. "Well over half of our men's softball league players are non-residents," Pilski said.

PGC Appealing Permit Case

Prince George's County is preparing to go to court to defend the rescission of building permits the county contends were issued in violation of the state sewer moratorium, Executive William W. Gullett said at his July 18 press conference.

Gullett rescinded three permits June 30 after investigations uncovered a legal misinterpretation by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission attorney that allowed new garden apartments to hook into sewer lines designed to handle a single family residence.

His action immediately halted construction on 855 apartment units. At the same time, Gullett also promised further investigation into the situation and more permit pull backs.

A recent Circuit Court decision has allowed builders to resume the construction until a full hearing could permanently decide the status of the moratorium in Prince Georges.

But no further illegal building permits will be issued, according to Gullett, because WSSC has tightened its requirements for the issuance of building permits after he ordered them to do so.

SOCC Needs Contributions

Save Our Community chairman Thomas X. White announced today that prominent zoning attorney James Vance has been retained in the civic group's lawsuit against Prince Georges County and Greenbriar Associates. Vance will represent SOCC at the hearing set for August 23 at 10 a.m. in the County Courthouse, Upper Marlboro, before Judge William B. Bowie of the Seventh Circuit Court in Maryland.

At issue in the SOCC appeal is whether the County Council, sitting as the District Council in zoning matters, erred on August 10, 1971, in granting a special exception to Greenbriar Associates for three parcels of land east of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and north of Greenbelt Road. The special exceptions permit extra bedrooms to be built in the proposed 1193 garden apartments, over and above the amount provided for in the zoning ordinance.

SOCC alleges in its suit, that Council's decision was in error, contrary to law, unconstitutional, arbitrary, capricious and for various other reasons not in the interest of the residents of the surrounding area.

Chairman White is making an appeal to all citizens in the Greenbelt community to assist the Save Our Community Committee in its effort to promote sound decisions on zoning and land use. To help SOCC meet legal expenses, contributions may be deposited in the SOCC account at Twin Pines Savings & Loan, in the Greenbelt Center Mall, or may be sent to the Greenbelt Save Our Community Committee, 8 Woodland Way, Greenbelt, Md., 20770.

BOY'S CLUB NEWS

by Michael Foster

The Green machine broke down. Finally, after ten consecutive victories the District Heights Boys Club took the measure of Greenbelts 14 year old team by scores of 7-4 and 8-4 and clearly established themselves as the class of the league.

The Green Belters played as poorly in defeat as they played well in victory. The pitching broke down and the defense came apart. District Heights scored 14 of their 15 runs in just 2 innings, enjoying a seven run inning in each game, as Greenbelt could do nothing right.

The locals, who now show an 11-2 season record, play their regular season finale at Braden Field this Thursday evening.

The 13 year old team shared in the week's disappointments as they blew a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning and lost 7-3 to eliminate themselves from the Rockville Tournament.

No Paper Pickup

There will be no paper pickup again this week.

Hazards Cited At Stream Valley Park

The city has received a report from the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board recommending correction of dangerous conditions and improvements in the Northway-Lakewood Stream Valley Park. This report (#6-72) will be taken up at the next meeting of city council on August 14.

The Stream Valley Park, which functions mainly as a neighborhood play area and as a heavily-used link in the walkway between Lakewood-North End and the Center, consist of two sections: an upper, open, grassy area bordered by a stream, and a lower, narrow flood-plain through which the stream runs in a concrete channel.

The report noted the following hazards:

(1) All the bridges crossing the stream are dangerous in design and should be either modified extensively or replaced.

(2) A sanitary sewer near the south end of the park overflows from time to time and WSSC should be asked to correct the problem.

(3) The path from Northway to the park path ends abruptly in a barricade. A suggested solution to this problem is to remove the barricade and build a wide bridge with suitable guard rails across the stream at this point.

(4) Loose chunks of pavement in the creek are a hazard to children playing there.

Other Problems

Several other problems were noted which the report thought could be overcome by improved maintenance.

One was the muddy condition of the lower part of the park. It was suggested that chipped wood be placed around the log and play areas, the area be regraded, and the path raised where it is always covered with dirt.

Other problems concerned the poor turf of the grassy area and the poor condition of the ballfield. A suggestion was made to move the ballfield out from the end of the park, and turn it to face down the field; also, establish a turf management program for the field and plant grass along the stream bank to stop erosion. It was also thought that the field would be improved by reshaping the upper part of the pavement-filled section of the stream to form a depressed channel and a bevelled bank.

A final section of the report dealt with improvements in the park. These included recommendations for benches, landscaping, a bridge for access to the basketball park, play equipment, and protection for children crossing Crescent. It was suggested that a neighborhood play area be established in the triangle of land where the stream branches.

The report recommended that before any permanent structures are installed a plan be drawn up and presented to local residents for comment.

The report was careful to point out that it was not recommending an additional basketball court, football field, or other sports facility, nor development of parkland between cul-de-sacs or of the natural part of the stream. Nor did it want any obstruction of the grassy area, except small trees to prevent erosion along stream banks.

Labor Day Contests

Plan now to participate or see one of the rollicking hilarious contests involving all age groups. Contests to be held are: Foot-balloon Burst, Bubble Gum Burst, Diaper Derby, 3-legged Race, Sack-balloon Race, Pie and Watermelon eating.

Chairmen are needed to manage each contest. If you care to help, call Mike Burchick 474-6587.

Several Heating Proposals To Be Priced Out By GHI

by Al Skolnik

A somewhat clearer picture of the alternatives available to Greenbelt Homes, Inc. for rehabilitating its physical plant emerged from last Thursday's 3-hour meeting with the engineering consultants from The Architectural Affiliation (TAA). These alternatives boiled down to three, as visualized by the various proponents.

(1) Retain the present heating distribution system, but modernize with new oil boilers as needed, replace leaky hot water pipes, insulate the pipes, and install proper check valves. Supporters of this approach, such as Vincent Caruso, are convinced that the cost savings would be considerable.

(2) Convert the system to electrical heat. This is the TAA recommendation because, by so doing, they claim the corporation can get additional bonuses, such as heavy-imping up the electrical services, eliminating the moisture problem through insulation, and replacing the deteriorating asbestos shingles.

(3) Install high-efficiency, oil-fired, hot-water individual heating units. This is recommended by Hugh O'Donnell, especially for the brick homes.

Other proposals such as using gas were dismissed by TAA because of the critical national shortages in supply.

TAA Position

The TAA position is that by converting to electricity, GHI will cut the monthly heating bill in half largely because the manpower will no longer be needed to supervise and operate the central boilers. Instead, each home will have its own thermostat and pay its own fuel bill. E. Hamilton Niles, chief TAA representative, said that such individually-controlled heating will also contribute to keeping costs down.

Niles argued against attempting to modernize the present system because he felt that after making all the capital outlays necessary, GHI will still end up with an antiquated system just barely in working condition. At the same time, nothing will have been done to weatherproof the walls, to heavy up the electric service, or to take care of the exterior sidings.

The GHI board felt that before any decisions could be made it would need some good comparative cost figures on the three approaches. Suggestions were made that GHI should conduct demonstration projects utilizing the three approaches so that members would have a solid basis for making decisions.

TAA was asked to see what figures could be worked up. Several board members, however, also wanted to get input from other experts, and there was general agreement that the more figures the better.

The major problem generally is that under the mutual ownership contract, the corporation has a responsibility for maintaining the buildings in perpetuity, yet many components of the physical plant have only a few years of life left.

For example, Niles said, the frame asbestos shingles have a lifetime of 40 years. 30 years have already passed. The shingles are beginning to blister from water moisture and are already worn down in many cases. Thus, GHI is faced with the problem of replacing these shingles in the next ten years.

Niles emphasized that the corporation has much more than a heating problem. He thought that one of the weaknesses of the other approaches was that they concentrated on heating while ignoring the other problems.

However, some of the audience minimized the other problems. Caruso said that his house had no moisture problems and the asbestos shingles were in good shape. Lekh Batra was not sure that there was that great a need for heavy-imping up the electrical system and suggested a polling of members to determine their electrical appliance needs.

SWIM TEAM NEWS

by Mike "Turtle" Jones

The Greenbelt Swim Team held onto first place last Saturday by upending Brandywine 296-192 in a meet which broke half of the Brandywine pool records.

Top billing in the records department was shared by Bobby Mongelli and Sue Smith who each set records in freestyle, backstroke, and the medley. The other records were set by George Jones in butterfly and the medley, Jim Vanderzon in freestyle and backstroke, Kevin Shaughnessy in butterfly and breast stroke, Nicolette Durantine in freestyle and backstroke, Lynn Labukas in freestyle and backstroke, Nancy Douglas in butterfly, Jeff Douglas in breast stroke, and the girls freestyle relay team of Nicolette Durantine, Lynn Labukas, Mariette Vanderzon, Sue Smith, and Cindy Davis.

Greenbelt only failed to take first place in eight of the 44 events. In two of those eight, however, pool records were set by Brandywine in butterfly by M. Codoci, and in breast stroke by T. Tinsley.

Greenbelt's final home meet will be swum against ECC "Y" at 9 a.m. this Saturday. This promises to be a close meet and spectators are invited. Swimmers and officials should be at the pool by 8:30.

Free Diabetes Screening

Area residents may receive free chest x-rays and diabetes screening on Friday, August 4, at the Centerway Mall in the Center. It will be open from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Residents are urged to take advantage of this opportunity, offered at no charge by the Health Department.

Thanks

The Bagster-Collins Family wish to thank all the wonderful people in Greenbelt who participated in the search for Jonathan last Friday night. Thank you, Sergeant Carl Godwin, Officer Robert Smith and Officer Terrence Justin. We are grateful to the lady who reported him found and safe.

P.G. County Council Gets Anti-Pollution Bill

Council Chairman Winfield M. Kelly, Jr. presented an updated version of Prince Georges County's anti-pollution law to the county council June 30 that would give the county clean air and water provisions comparable to the vigorous ones on state books.

For the first time in county history, all emissions visible to human observers from any installation or building will be banned unless they come from wood-burning fireplaces in recreational or residential facilities.

The act requires builders to take "reasonable precautions" to prevent solid particles from becoming airborne, advising the use of water or chemicals for the control of dust; asphalt, oil and water on dirt roads used for construction access; and coverings for open vehicles carrying material that might pollute the air.

The Kelly ordinance bars open fires in the county except when no other practical method of disposing of the material is possible and no nuisance created. The provision absolutely prohibits burning within the Capital Beltway, within 200 yards of an occupied building or heavily traveled public road and the burning of material, such as tires, that creates dense smoke.

By July 1, 1973, the measure asks no burning take place within 500 yards of any occupied building or congested road.

Also all incinerators must be closed by July 1, 1973 to comply with the law.

Within the anti-odor provisions of the Kelly-sponsored bill, no fuel may be sold after the effective date of the legislation with more than one percent sulfur by weight. According to its own stipulation, the bill would become effective 45 days after its passage.

In the county's first statement on car pollution, the legislation makes it a misdemeanor to remove any air pollution device put into a vehicle.

If meeting any of the requirements of the bill provides a hardship or isn't "feasibly practical," the measure provides an appeals process through the Air Pollution Control Division of the Health Department.

The ordinance ups penalties for polluting the county's environment to no more than a $25,000 fine, 90 days imprisonment or both.

Environmental News

by Gabe Huck

On July 1 several new measures went into effect in Maryland concerning motor vehicles and the environment. The vehicle law was amended to say that excessive exhaust smoke (exclusive of water vapor) shall not be visible for more than ten consecutive seconds. "Excessive" may make the law a bit vague, but we all know what they're talking about. This means not only cars, but trucks and (gasp) buses. The police (city, county, state, park) are charged with enforcing this as they do other traffic violations; a simple warning may be given, although a summons and an equipment repair order are possible. If we are serious about the air ("Breathe deep, while you sleep!" as they sang in Hair), we'll first take care of our own vehicles. Next we'll realize that it is as important to report offenders here as it is to report a vehicle which habitually runs red lights. Both are out to get you! You can call the Prince Georges County Health Department (773-1400) the all-purpose complaint number (864-3874) or the state police (345-3101). Be sure to get the exact license number and a good description of the vehicle. Your complaint will be processed and the offender will be warned.

Another new addition to the same law relates to idling vehicles: "No motor vehicle engine shall be allowed to operate for more than five consecutive minutes when it is not in motion . . ." with a few exceptions such as traffic conditions beyond the driver's control. We hope that this applies to police vehicles also. These changes come in the same section of the law which applies to noise pollution from motor vehicles: "Every motor vehicle at all times shall be equipped with a muffler in good working order and in constant operation to prevent excessive or unusual noise and no person shall use a muffler cutout, bypass, or similar device upon a motor vehicle on a highway." Presumably, although you would never know it around Greenbelt, that applies to two-wheeled motor vehicles as well as four-wheeled ones. Presumably, and again you would never know it one block from the Greenbelt police department, it applies between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

A final change in vehicle laws relates to littering. It can now result in a point assessment against one's license. Like other traffic violations, a warning rather than a summons may be given if the officer feels that this will accomplish the same thing.

Contributions Asked For Kolodny Fund

A fund has been started to help provide for the education of the young daughters of Robert M. Kolodny who died on July 14. Contributions may be sent to the Robert M. Kolodny Memorial Fund, c/o Mr. Gilbert B. Kaplan, 6090 Moongong Court, Columbia, Md. 21045.

Gooden Birthday Honored

The City Council on June 12 honored Jerry Gooden, well-known and well-loved friend of all who have passed through the Center for the past 31 years. Working on the business scene during these years, Mr. Gooden celebrated his ninety-third birthday on June 10.

In recognizing Mr. Gooden, council members extended their best wishes on the occasion of his birthday and their hopes that "life will continue to be as rewarding and satisfying to him as it has been and that he will choose to remain a vital part of this community."

Mr. Gooden was also feted recently at a birthday party given by the Golden Age Club.

MULTIPLE LISTING SERVICE

Kash Realtor hopes that our Greenbelt friends will make a BEE line into our cool office and avail yourselves of the finest in real estate service. Before we WAX too eloquent on the subject, let us enumerate some fine possibilities.

HIVE got an idea that you'll be in CLOVER, living in this huge, handsome 5 bedroom air-conditioned split-level backing up to Greenbelt Park; many features abound in this fine modern home, and the price is a low $41,950; possession in 2 weeks if desired.

Feeling the STING of raised rents, accompanied by the realization that it's impossible to save? You'll save by buying a choice of 2 three bedroom frame townhouses, priced $14,200 to $14,500, and watching them go rapidly up in value. Quick possession on both, so hurry!

COMB the county and you'll not find a better value than this large 4 bedroom, 2 bath, Cape Cod with full basement and rec. room. Just VA appraised at $36,000. This is a real sleeper.

We hope there'll BEE no BUMBLING in the continuity of our service to our Greenbelt clients. We have a complete list of homes available in Prince Georges County, through our Computerized Multiple Listing Service. Also, our telephones are answered by licensed salesmen on a 24 hour a day basis. We want to serve you. Please call us ANYTIME to purchase a home, or to sell your home.

Your HONEY will love the possibilities offered by this 3 bedroom brick and frame rambler with basement on large lot at the end of a dead-end street in Lanham, near the space flight center. Could you BEE-lieve only $27,500, with large $20,000 loan which can be assumed, or 10% down conventional.

SWARM up to Kash Realtor and see this truly unusual colonial townhouse with an authentic Williamsburg addition, custom designed and built of the finest materials. Too many extra features to enumerate, and a prime secluded location, near the center. This home is truly priced to sell, so give us a BUZZ, and set up an appointment to see this unique home.

BEE-low the market; that's what these two 2 bedroom frame townhouses are; one at $10,000 total, the other at $10,500. These homes are nice, and we don't know when you'll have this chance again.

BEEES-KNEES (old prohibition term). Just our way of saying that we feel drunk with power at being able to offer a 3 bedroom brick end townhouse next to park, at such a low price! Just call us for details; early possession, too!

It's not BEE-neath our dignity to earnestly invite you to come in and see this unique newly redecorated free-standing home in Greenbelt. It has 3 bedrooms, spacious living room-dining ell, modern delux kitchen, double carport, garage, and gorgeous, wooded, private back yard; see this fast at $27,500.00.

Bernice Nelson Retires

"A public health nurse is all things to her patients. She is entirely different than anyone else who touches their lives," mused pioneer Greenbelt resident Mrs. Bernice Nelson in looking back over two decades of service as a public health nurse with the Prince Georges County Health Department.

Honored recently at retirement ceremonies, Mrs. Nelson received commendations for her outstanding service from Governor Marvin Mandel and from Prince Georges County Executive William W. Gullett. She will be missed most, however, by her colleagues and patients to whom she epitomizes the ideal public health nurse.

"In no other place in the world would you get the trust that is given to a public health nurse," Mrs. Nelson said in discussing the challenges of her chosen vocation.

"To work with an ill person to find ones own potential and personal growth and to feel one can and will make it is part of the challenge, too," Mrs. Nelson reflected. "We have to accept people with many limitations as whole people capable of making it if we can just help them to find the way."

And we are concerned with the whole gamut of health problems — from mental health to child, maternal, environmental health — and with a complex network of family, community and agency relationships.

When Mrs. Nelson took the radical step of entering nursing school in 1925 her family was dismayed because they did not feel it was a respectable profession. But to Mrs. Nelson public health nursing, which she entered later in life as a second career after years of motherhood, is the most demanding and exciting of all disciplines. She wishes more young people were being counseled and encouraged to enter the field today.

Back in 1952, Mrs. Nelson was one of 10 public health nurses employed by the County Health Department. The population numbered about 195,000. This compares with a staff of 175 nurses serving a population of 680,000. And for orientation, that first summer Mrs. Nelson covered the whole County!

Today her case load is upwards of 70 families living in Census Tract 20B, in the Suitland area.

"The young nurses today are of a high calibre and very aggressive. They come in and fight for what they think is right! I'd say our staff is ideal," Mrs. Nelson commented with pride, glad to know that despite her retirement her patients will continue to receive the finest in public health nursing services.

A resident of Greenbelt since 1937, Mrs. Nelson is currently second vice-president of the Greenbelt Woman's Club. Daughter Lorene, her husband James Hanna, and their children Ruth, Sarah, Clifford, Maria and Lloyd reside at 192 Greenhill. Son Robert, his wife Jackie and children Randy, Christine and Jimmy are living at 116 Hedgewood Drive.

MODEL SAILBOAT REGATTA

This Saturday and Sunday, July 29, 30, from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., you may watch over 40 competitors sail their model boats on Greenbelt Lake in the Annual East Coast 12-Meter Class Championship Regatta. Admission is free.

Greenbelt Children Show

The Janie and Carolyn's Children Show will return to the Center School Auditorium, for its third successful summer, on Wednesday, August 2nd at 7:30 p.m. This year's play, "The Golden Mask," is a humorous but suspense-filled mystery about the theft of the sorceress' golden mask which contains all of her magic powers. Her apprentice, Ethan, played by Michael Moretti, is sent by her to recover the mask, but he runs into many life-endangering dilemmas.

Other children of Greenbelt featured in the play include Rosie Lenchek, Alise Moretti, Chrissy Chavrid, Natalie Zanin, Collette Zanin, Beth O'Keefe, Mary O'Keefe, Eddie Cook, Timmy Gardes, Heather Peterson, Janice Halsey and many others.

Jaycees Youth Program

The Greenbelt Jaycees will again conduct their Youth Program for fatherless boys in the Greenbelt community. The Jaycees hope to provide a father-image through personal attention and concern for the boys.

Planned activities will include field trips to ball games, museums, public utilities, and hiking — things boys most enjoy.

Individuals knowing fatherless boys, ages 8-13, who would be interested in participating in the program please contact: Tom Everitt, 345-9641 or Clem Mitchell, 864-2801.
