County Council Holds Line On Taxes Restores Education Funds, Adds Police

Prince Georges County Council, while holding the line on taxes, increased the county police force by 150 officers June 13 and restored to the Board of Education budget more than half the funds cut by the Executive.

Council member Lucille B. Potts cast the single dissenting vote against the budget as amended by council. The councilwoman from Camp Springs, setting education as her top budgetary priority, believes the school board budget should have gotten the first and major increases. Instead, she said, council calculated the schools' portion as money left over after numerous other items had been funded.

Voting against several diverse items added late in budget considerations, Mrs. Potts objected to the money tagged on to the police budget in view of the programs still left wanting on education's side.

The two major increases were voted as legislators approved a $401.9 million budget, upped from Executive William S. Gullett's proposed $362.6 million money package. Council restored $7.6 million to the Board of Education budget, money legislators believe will maintain the county's educational level and decrease class size in grades one through three by an average of three students.

The executive reduced the Board of Education's budget by $14.3 million to $186.3 million in hopes of trimming all fat and correctly projecting the number of school children attending Prince Georges public schools. The executive asked an eight-cent reduction in the $3.37 property tax rate.

Although not adding any new teachers, legislators succeeded in reinstating approximately 276 school-based jobs which would have been cut via retirement and attrition from the school system and another 99 teachers specifically needed to reduce the class size from 30 to 27 students in the lower three grades. The added teachers alone required a $4.7 million hike in the school board's recommended budget of $200.1 million.

Legislators specifically asked that certain categories, dealing with the gifted children's program, health aides, career development, guidance counselors, special education aides, the security force and new school equipment, be beefed up. The Board of Education actually has sole authority by law to designate which particular programs will be heavily funded. Council may only indicate funding figures for broad categories within the school budget.

School board officials agreed council's additional funding will allow the school system to operate at the same capacity it had last fiscal year.

On the police issue, council added 131 officers to the 19 Gullett recommended for fiscal 1975. Pointing to a 300 percent increase in crime in Prince Georges County since 1965 when the District of Columbia began adding to its force, council suggested the new men be phased in over the year as quickly as they can be trained. The county has a 793-man force to date.

In addition to bringing the tax levy back to its present level, council upped the real estate transfer tax from .5 percent to one percent to pay for the increased services. Most surrounding jurisdictions already levy at least a one percent tax on real estate transfers.

Council last year dropped the tax level by 20 cents. The tax levy will stay at $3.37 per $100 assessed property in fiscal 1975.

BULLETIN
A Greenbelt municipal budget of $1,438,100 for fiscal year 1974-75 calling for an increase of 11 cents in the property tax rate to $1.03 per $100 assessed valuation was adopted by city council Tuesday evening. The present tax rate is $0.92. Details of the adopted budget will be presented in next week's News Review.

cil agreed with the executive in granting most county employees a seven percent cost-of-living salary hike. Most studies pinpoint the metropolitan area's inflation rate at more than 10 percent annually. Police and firemen will get a five percent cost-of-living increase while more of their retirement contribution will be paid by the county. Council went along with the executive's proposal to up the county contribution to employee health plans from 60 to 70 percent of the premium.

Gullett later chided council for refusing to fund an administration bill to give rent rebates to elderly and handicapped living in apartments in Prince Georges county.

Transportation Dept. Holds June 25 Meeting

The Maryland Department of Transportation will host a series of meetings statewide to solicit comment on plans to implement the Maryland Environmental Policy Act. The local meeting will be held on June 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Riverdale, Maryland National Park and Planning Commission office on Kenilworth Ave. The meeting will provide opportunity for the public to comment on the proposed update of the Maryland Action Plan, a document detailing the process by which transportation facilities are developed in the State of Maryland.

The Action Plan was developed to comply with federal highway legislation. While it was intended to detail only highway planning processes, Maryland Secretary of Transportation Harry R. Hughes has expanded it to include planning for all modes — aviation, ports, mass transit, and highways. The Action Plan includes procedures emphasizing four basic areas: evaluation of social, economic and environmental impacts of transportation planning; consideration of the "no-build" alternative; use of an interdisciplinary approach in planning; and establishment of an open and interactive community participation process. The Action Plan was approved on October 2, 1973, by Governor Marvin Mandel and the Acting Regional Federal Highway Administrator, and is now being implemented.

CITY GETS GREEN LIGHT ON SHL SEWER HOOK-UP

The city's request that the State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (SDHMH) reconsider its denial of an exception to the sewage moratorium for the Springhill Lake Recreation Center was received favorably when council and SDHMH officials met in Baltimore on June 17.

The green light was given to the city for permission to hook up toilet facilities in the recreation building provided that the facilities in the existing clubhouse were disconnected for the time being. The trade-off was satisfactory to the city. City plans call for the clubhouse to be retained as an adjunct to the Recreation Center.

SDHMH originally denied the hook-up exception on the grounds that the Recreation Center did not meet the definition of a public service building. However, SDHMH Deputy Secretary Herbert Rosenbaum and other members of the department listened sympathetically while Greenbelt's Mayor Richard Pilski, council members Gil Weidenfeld and Charles Schwan, city manager James Giese and recreation director Hank Irving pleaded the city's case.

The city's main points were: (1) Springhill Lake is an enclave in which opportunities for good recreation for young people are sadly deficient because of its isolation from the core of Greenbelt, and (2) costs have gone up and, if the city were to wait until the sewer moratorium were lifted, the money set aside for construction would be eaten up.

Adult Education Classes

The Prince Georges County Public Schools Adult Education Program will provide tuition free summer classes for adults at 7 centers in the county. Instruction in Basic Reading and Math, High School Equivalency Test Preparation, English as a Second Language, and Citizenship will be offered. Also classes in Arts & Crafts, Business Education, Data Processing, Foreign Language, Home Economics, Industrial Arts and Physical Education will be offered. Also the summer session of the Adult Continuing Education Program.

Registration will be held on Monday, June 24, 1974, from 7 to 9 p.m. Classes will be in session from July 1 - August 8. There is a tuition fee. Telephone 627-5800, extension 248 for a complete list of class offerings and registration centers.

GREENBRIAR AWAITS ACTION ON DISCHARGE PERMIT, EASEMENT

by Elaine Skolnik

The Greenbriar on-site temporary sewage treatment plant continues to discombcbulate everyone, the latest victims being the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). According to the latest reports, the two agencies seem to be engaged in an Alphonse and Gaston act - each one is awaiting the other's action before making the next decision on the sewage plant.

EPA, which held a public hearing in Greenbelt on May 15 on the granting of a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination Permit, announced last week that it will take no action until NASA releases its final Environmental Impact Statement. It denied reports that it had either issued or refused the permit.

NASA officials, in turn, maintain that any decision of NASA to grant an easement permitting piping the effluent from the plant to a receiving stream on NASA property, will be qualified and contingent on EPA's approval. NASA has long held that it is a non-technical agency lacking expertise in the area of treatment plants and requiring the employment of a consultant. Furthermore, it notes that EPA has the statutory authority to make the decision; NASA has only discretionary authority.

Rent Control Proposals

Prince Georges Executive William V. Gullett has sent legislation to the County Council in an effort to make the county's knotty rent control law work.

Gullett's bill realigns the time frame in which landlords can calculate pass-throughs to the tenant and would require government approval of any combination of rent increases and pass-throughs exceeding 10 percent.

In a cover letter to Chairman Francis Francois, Gullett said the Prince Georges Landlord-Tenant agency and his office have been deluged with "hundreds upon hundreds" of telephone reports and correspondence detailing rent increases in the county averaging around 10 percent and in some cases, as high as 16 percent.

Gullett feels that a change in the formula by which pass-through costs are calculated is an urgent necessity. The changes he proposes would alter the base calculation from a quarterly to an annual period, thereby eliminating seasonal fluctuations which apparently can result in unnecessarily high charges under the present system.

A spokesman for the Landlord-Tenant Office said some landlords were figuring their pass-through charges for fuel costs based on quarterly figures for the high-consumption winter months. A similar situation could develop during the summer when electricity use is up during hot weather.

Gullett said the pass-through provisions, as written in the present laws approved in late March for a one-year life, appear to be hitting hardest at senior citizens and others on fixed incomes. That law allows a basic four percent rent hike plus pass-throughs. If the landlord doesn't wish to compute pass-throughs he can raise rent a flat six percent.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB

The Greenbelt Democratic Club has elected its officers for a one-year period. Serving as chairperson of the seven-member board is John Lally. Vice-chairperson and treasurer is Tom McAndrew. Other board members are: Sandra Barnes, Betty Allen, Ruth Bond, Tony McCarthy, and Rob White. The club will meet on Sun., June 23, 8 p.m., in the GHI Board Room Hamilton Place to discuss plans for the Labor Day Festival plus other fund raising and registration activities prior to the September primaries.

All citizens interested in becoming members of the Democratic Club are invited to attend and participate.

Greenbelters Seeking To Be Candidates

The last of three public hearings to interview interested candidates for Prince Georges County offices was held by the Prince Georges County Democratic Party Blue Ribbon Selection Panel on June 17.

Greenbelters seeking endorsement for the Maryland House of Delegates are: James Harvey, Marcia Krasnick, Richard Pilski, Tony McCarthy and Joseph Meadows. Two other Greenbelters are seeking positions on the county council. They are John Lally and Francis W. White.

The panel is expected to make its recommendation on June 24.

Officials for both agencies, however, do not see anything unusual about this situation, because in the words of one, "This is not a routine case. There is a lot of political and citizen pressure, and everyone is moving very cautiously."

NASA officials indicate that they are in the process of finalizing the Environmental Impact Statement. The report will then go to the Federal Council on Environmental Quality for publication in the Federal Register. The record will be open for 30 days for comment.

All signs point to a final Environmental Impact Statement that will reaffirm the earlier February Statement conditionally approving the granting of the easement. A finding that the receiving stream is free-flowing at the point of discharge — about 40 feet from the Baltimore-Washington Parkway — appears to be shaping up in light of the latest review of the stream by NASA personnel.

Testing Continues

In the meantime, testing of the Greenbriar temporary sewage treatment plant, which will serve the 1,193-unit condominium development, continues under the direction of Dr. John Cookson, Greenbriar consultant. Also on the scene are personnel from Ben Dyer Associates (Greenbriar engineers) and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC), and several operators who will be manning the plant after WSSC takes over. The agency will operate the plant, with the developer assuming all costs, upon satisfactory conclusion of the tests and permit approvals.

The shakedown of the plant's equipment, hydraulic pumps and electrical systems using clear water is expected to end the latter part of this week. Sludge seed will then be brought in, probably from the Piscataway Sewage Treatment Plant, to help get the processes started and acclimated. Sludge seed is an activated sludge containing micro-organisms that make up the biological systems that will degrade the organic materials to gases, inorganic ions and water.

Following a test period of about two weeks, the plant should be prepared to accept for testing, raw sewage which will probably be obtained from the Parkway Plant.

Some of the personnel slated to run the plant have already received classroom training and are on site during the current shakedown operations. Two of the operators have had experience at the Landover Mall temporary plant, and one is coming from the Western Branch Regional Plant. After the first occupants of the development move in, operators will be on duty around-the-clock.

The Greenbriar plant contains a laboratory for controlling the efficiency of its processes. Samples of effluent will also be brought to laboratories where trained technicians will perform a variety of specialized tests such as virus testing.

Solar Heat

To the Editor:

I have been working out of the area for the past few months, and have returned recently to find my Greenbelt neighbors and board members concerned and involved with the fuel crisis. Since the type of work I was doing was directly involved with new sources of energy as fuel substitutes, perhaps I can offer some first-hand enlightenment to my fellow citizens.

This past January I was asked to join a team of energy specialists who were one of four groups in the world contracted by the National Science Foundation to study the feasibility of heating communities by means of Solar Heat. This experiment was performed by InterTechnology Corporation of Warrenton, Virginia at the site of Fauquier High School. My contribution was to design the electronic automation equipment. The project director was Dr. George Szego, president of ITC and a recognized specialist on energy systems.

Although the work was done on a crash program basis, the results are very impressive. Not only did all four projects prove the practicality of solar heating, but the ITC approach proved that it can already be done simply and economically. The new ITC facilities in Warrenton will be heated by solar heat, and later will be converted to include COOLING as well. THAT IS ANOTHER PLUS FOR SOLAR HEATING. The basic system can be expanded to include an air conditioning and cooling capability, while still using the hot summer sun as its major source of energy, thus decreasing window unit electrical requirements.

Dr. Szego and his associates have been giving talks about their energy systems to interested communities around the country. One forward-looking community in Lincoln, Nebraska has already contacted ITC with respect to solar heating one of their libraries, having confidence that the ITC approach will not resort to exotic space-age techniques to drain their budgets.

It is my opinion that this is a reliable answer to rising fuel costs. In keeping with being the first planned community of its kind in the country, forward-looking Greenbelters should consider inviting Dr. Szego for an informative slide lecture and discussion. The Federal Government is already extremely interested in its possibilities, and might well consider financial assistance to a progressive community which would be willing to set the pace for the rest of the nation.

Protests Dropped Insurance

To the Editor:

In a recent letter to its members, the Twin Pines Savings and Loan Association informed us that they were forced to drop life insurance coverage for their borrowers in order to become members of MSSIC.

Just as it would be impossible now for Twin Pines to increase interest rates on old mortgages, it should also be impossible for the bank to eliminate a basic service that was part of the original agreement. It is one thing not to offer such insurance for future mortgages; it is quite different to default on prior agreements.

We hope enough Greenbelt residents get mad enough to successfully fight this arrogant ploy. Perhaps we should look for more reliable banks for our savings.

GHI Board Commended

To the Editor:

The GHI board deserves to be commended for its very careful consideration of the several options available to defer 1974 GNMA mortgage principal payments. On balance, each option was a good one for GHI, but each had different ramifications. The closeness of the final vote attests to the difficulty the board had in choosing among the four attractive alternatives. The board's performance in this instance is in keeping with "the very sound financial practices it has followed in its operations," which Woodward Kingman, GNMA president, noted in his letter of January 24, 1974.
