AN INTERPRETIVE REPORT

What Are The Greenbelt Concerns About FDR ?

by Al and Elaine Skolnik

Why are Greenbelt citizens concerned over the Franklin D. Roosevelt senior high school situation?

After all, hasn't the majority of the school board indicated its desire to open the school in September 1976 as scheduled?

Hasn't the majority of the school board agreed that all Greenbelt area students shall be assigned to the school?

Hasn't the majority of the school board indicated an intent that part of the school be operated as a comprehensive (regular) senior high school?

What then is the concern?

The big problem is that the various, last-minute, off-the-cuff, conflicting proposals for the use of FDR are producing the kind of chaotic conditions that may make it practically impossible for the school to open in September 1976 as a viable operation.

Need for Lead Time

All educators agree that adequate lead time — six months to a year preferrably — must be allowed for educationally sound planning, scheduling and programming. This is because the changes in staffing and school boundaries produced by the opening of a new school have a domino-like effect on most of the other senior high schools in the county. Up to a few months ago, planning for FDR was moving according to schedule. The school had been designed and constructed as a comprehensive school, and the school board staff was proceeding on the assumption that the curriculum and school boundaries would be drawn up in accordance with this concept.

Now at the last minute proposals have been submitted to the school board that envision conversion of FDR into a dual purpose school with half or so reserved for a technology center, with no fixed pupil attendance areas except for Greenbelt area students. For the first year, this means that of a proposed enrollment of 1,400 students, only 500 would come from fixed attendance areas, the others from open enrollment.

Open Enrollment Problems

No one knows how many students would voluntarily attend FDR since the county has no experience with an open comprehensive school. One school board official conjectured that with so much confusion surrounding the concept of FDR, parents might be reluctant to send their children voluntarily to a school where the concept is not pinned down.

What will happen if open enrollment does not produce the 1,200 students necessary to have a good comprehensive school? Greenbelters fear that students will be deprived of the kind of education that a full-scale academic curriculum can provide. On the other hand, if open enrollment produces the necessary students, racial balances may be tipped in other schools, necessitating further shifting of students in the county and additional transportation costs. In any event, with no time for surveys and study, an open enrollment policy means that confusion will reign to the last minute to the detriment of students.

Delays Foreseen

Just as serious is the proposal for a technology center. According to school board officials, the program for a technical school must first be planned by the county staff and approved and accredited in accordance with specific regulations set down by the Vocational Education Division of the Maryland Department of Education. Stringent guidelines govern the staffing, courses, number of students in a classroom, square-footage of classrooms, etc. in a technical school. Developing such a program takes time. This is true also of a comprehensive school, but in the case of FDR, planning for this concept has been an ongoing process during the period of construction. County principals have voiced their distress at further delays which they say will cause severe problems in programming, scheduling and staffing in their schools for the 1976-77 school year (See Joan Conway's statement on p. 2). A school administrator told the News Review that a firm decision is needed now or "it may be nip and tuck as to whether we can open FDR on time as a comprehensive school." He cautioned against "overnight planning" and "playing games with the lives of our children."

Legislators Seek Opinions

The elected State legislators from the 24th District, as part of their plan to work closely with the residents of their area, have called two public meetings. The first will be in Greenbelt on Sat., Jan. 10, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Greenbelt City Hall. The second, will be held on Sat. Jan. 17, at 10 am at the Bowie City Hall according to Senator Edward T. Conroy and Delegates Gerard F. Devlin, Leo E. Green and David G. Ross, all Democrats from the 24th Legislative District.

PUBLIC HEARING ON FDR SET FOR THURS, JAN. 22

by Barbara Likowski

On Thursday, January 22, Greenbelters as well as the rest of the county will have a chance to sound off on the latest twists and turns in school board thinking on the use of the $11-million Franklin Delano Roosevelt senior high school. A public hearing will be held in nearby DuVal senior high school starting at 7:30 p.m.

The groundwork for the public hearing was laid at the Monday, December 29 work session when the Prince Georges County Board of Education attempted to clarify previous action taken at the Thursday, December 18 school board meeting and to select various plans to be presented at the January hearing. At the Dec. 18 meeting, the intent of the board was apparently to merge school board member Nicholas Eny's resolution calling for "not less than one-half"-of FDR to be a techonolgy center with board member A. James Golato's proposal for "up to half" of FDR to be an advanced technology center. In addition, the Eny-Golato resolution included a proposal for closing Fairmont Heights senior high school and for establishing a middle school for Bowie, though there was confusion at the end of the meeting over what had been done

FDR, which is now nearing completion, had been designed and constructed as a comprehensive high school similar to High Point and Parkdale.

Open Enrollment

At the December 29 meeting the school board accepted an amendment by Eny to his resolution that would have FDR open "with no less than half" as a technology cen-ter and "half" as a comprehensive (regular) high school. With the exception of Greenbelt area students currently attending 9th and 10th grades, no affixed school attendance areas are to be made for FDR. Greenbelt students are to be assigned to the comprehensive portion of the school. All other students for that part of the school will be premitted to enroll on a "first-come, first-served basis" in grades 10 through 12 - in other words, a system of open enrollment

Enrollment for the technology center will also be on a "first-come, first-served basis" with pupils being permitted to enroll in grades 9 through 12. Transportation for both parts of the school will be provided by the county school system, providing it is economically feasible. Where public school transportation is not feasible, because of limited applicants from an area, those pupils will, however, be permitted to attend.

FDR is still slated to open in September of this year as was originally planned. The Eny amendment calls for the superintendent of schools to develop plans within 30 days (from Dec. 18 meeting) consistent with the resolution. For the 1976-77 school year plans will be limited "to those programs and course offerings requiring no or minor modification to the school's physical plant."

All references to the closing of Fairmont Heights senior high ber A. James Golato on Dec. 18 and would eliminate the necessity of busing some of the Bowie senior high school students out of Bowie. Plans for pairing FDR and DuVal and for forming a triad of FDR, DuVal and Parkdale will also be explained.

Board Member Positions

Board member Jesse Warr was the only school board member who voted against the Eny amendment. His opposition was mainly directed at the Golato proposal, pointing out that the board had maintained a policy of n ot giving any area special consideration. Warr also objected to the dual county busing which would be made necessary by the open boundaries proposal for FDR.

Board member Chester Whiting went on record as opposing the closing of Fairmont Heights and as backing the Golato proposal. Lesley Kreimer, the board member who represents the Greenbelt area, has stated that she favors making FDR comprehensive and does not favor a split school. When asked why she then voted for the Eny amendment, Mrs. Kreimer told the News Review "I went along with it as being one of several plans to be considered at the public hearing. Also the amendment retracted a good bit from the original. I would rather have had an opportunity to vote against the whole package."

Conflicting Provisions

As far as FDR is concerned, the merging of the Eny resolution with the Golato amendment leaves much confusion. While the first part of the proposal (whereas) states a need for furthering the needs of pupils who are not college bound and are career oriented, the second part as amended by Eny (resolved) states that the technology center be "heavily oriented toward the development of both skilled technicians and those prepara-tory to college-bound pupils seeking professional degrees in the sciences and engineering," Golato in his amendment referred to FDR as a "magnet prep school for college-bound students " This seeming ambiguity could conceiv-This ably make way for a school of either advanced technology or construction-trade, Unclear also is whether the technology center would comprise "no less than one half" or "up to one half" of the school. Eny envisions the former, Golato the latter.

Since course offerings for the 1976-77 school year are limited to those requiring no or minor changes in the physical plant, the true nature of the school will not be visible that year. Also the true costs of possible reconversions will not be apparent until further course offerings are made known and

Lack of Money

Conversion of part of FDR for a technical school could eventually require building alterations. The State has made clear that no money will be forthcoming for renovation work for 7 years. County council member Francis White told the school board "the financial problems that face our county this year, next year, and perhaps for a long time to come, would indicate that these proposals (to change the designed use of FDR) are not the most prudent . . . (the county) will not be in a position to fund an expanded school budget . . . these expenditures would have to be absorbed by funds from within your budget. I fail to see how you can afford to do this without serious impairment of education programs countywide . . . "

Quality Education

Educators have looked forward to the opening of FDR as a means of not only alleviating overcrowding but also of keeping pupil enrollment in individual schools within 90 percent of total capacity — a goal set down by the school board itself. Such conditions are deemed necessary for quality education to become school were eliminated, presupposing that that school will operate as usual.

Public Hearing

At the January 22 public hearing, other plans to be discussed include the original staff proposal which was designed to relieve overcrowding, especially at Bowie High School. This plan would, among other things, send Greenbelt and former DuVal students to FDR, while busing some Bowie students to DuVal and Largo Senior High School. Also to be presented at the hearing will be the plan utilizing the original Eny concept for FDR, and various proposals for the Bowie area using the middle school concept which would utilize underenrolled Bowie elementary schools to ease overcrowding at Bowie high school. The middle school proposal was made as an amendment to the Eny resolution by board memcosts estimated, Troubling Greenbelters further is the fact that aside from Greenbelt area children, there are not pupils assigned to either the comprehensive education school or the technology center. This can foreseeably cause confusion in course structuring, staff hiring, racial components, and the actual kind of school and the school spirit that results.

A suggestion was made by board member Norman Saunders that the school be opened as a comprehensive school, with a portion of the facility filled by moving the board of education offices from Upper Marlboro to FDR. This, Saunders said, would probably lower the total capacity of the school by about 300 students, Saunders requested a feasibility study by the school staff. Saunders, an advocate of the neighborhood concept, told the News Review he favored the Bowie plan as well as keeping Fairmont Heights open with much needed renovation and maintenance work accomplished. He opposed open enrollment for FDR because it could lead to tipping of racial balances in other schools.

a reality. Greenbelters feel that the opening of FDR in September 1976 as a comprehensive high school will thus enhance quality education throughout the county. It is further felt that additional refinements, innovations, and strengthening of programs can be considered after the school opens, to meet the needs of the students.

Principals Quoted

Following are excerpts from a statement submitted to the Board of Education on December 18, 1975 by Greenbelt resident Joan Conway. Because they involve comments by educators on the FDR school situation, they are being reprinted here.

Because principals have extensive contact with students, teachars and citizens, I have decided to interview those principals whose students may possibly attend FDR High School They were most cooperative. One consensus among the administrators appears to be that a sound decision regarding which students shall attend which schools must be made quickly .

Mr. Armand Biscontini, prin-cipal of Bowie Senior High School, reports that 14 temporary buildings are currently being used at Bowie. The capacity of the school is 2325; presently 2840 students are attending. The Pupil Accounting Office recommended that students residing in certain sections of Bowie be transported to DuVal Senior High School, with certain DuVal students going to FDR High School, There is a strong sense of com-munity in Bowle. It is a natural feeling that the students wish to remain at Bowie. The students have formed an allegiance to the school. However, Mr. Biscontini states, "We have stretched it (Bowie Senior High School) to the point where we have got to have some relief 'body-wise'! Time is fleeing and all of the schools affected will be in some form of mismanagement come September. The youngsters, however, are so used to being crowded that they say, 'Mr. B., what's a couple of 100 more?'" He feels that at Bowie, facilities have just been exhausted. When the youngsters come in in September, if curricula and master schedules are not developed in our schools, there will be milling around and this will create prob-. He feels a flexible delems. cision could be made now.

Mr. Henry J. Navy, principal of Largo High School states, "We want the decision made as soon as We have to register possible. these youngsters for next year, and plan for course offerings." He reported that certain students don't want to transfer from Largo to Parkdale, according to parents, al-though he hasn't heard directly from the students yet. However, in the past, when they were transferred from Parkdale. they didn't want to go to Largo. These feelings re natural and cause re-adjustments, but eventually problems are resolved He feels that Bowie needs relief. They're too big and they're growing all the time. 'Numbers is the thing that defeats us all," he added. He feels that "You can't have an $11,000,000 building and not have it utilized," Mr. Nary said, "The students need order and organization. It is not desirable to have students two or three weeks in the halls before you can get them into classes Mr. Francis Tracy, principal of High Point Senior High School, estimates that only about 46 students will be affected from his area and over half are still in junior high school. He recognized Bowie's problem. Any time a community is disrupted and transfers must be made, it affects people and it affects planning. However, "It would be very exciting to go into a new high school with many innovations and outstanding features, in spite of all the challenges." He hopes that a decision regarding FDR will be made soon for "We like to be problem preventers rather than problem solvers. Good planning enables us to do this." Dr. Alan Sager, principal of Parkdale High School was interested in what others had to say and said, "I can only underline much that has already been said. But I want a decision that will stick." He feels that this whole concept of a specialized school is just not feasible. Any change would require a considerable amount of expense and planning. "Wo have a number of schools that need remodeling. Let us save our ener-gies for those." Under the Pupil Accounting Office proposal, 500 students would be transferred from Parkdale to FDR and 200 students would be transferred from Largo and Northwestern to Parkdale. If a decision is made to create spe-cialized schools and if the boundaries are up in the air, there will be problems. Students will be upset if courses available in the old school are not available in the new one. He says, "In the best interests of everyone, the decision will have to be made by January. If not, edu-cational quality will be damaged."

PARENT DISCUSSION GR'UP

The next meeting of the Greenhelt Parent Discussion Group will be held at the Greenbelt Baptist Church (Greenhill & Crescent Rd) on Wed., Jan. 14 from 9:30-11:30 a.m. Coffee and baby sitting.

Open Letter to Greenbelt Parents

On January 22, the Prince Georges County Board of Education is scheduling a public hearing at DuVal High School at 7:30 p.m. to place before the public its various plans for the utilization of Franklin D. Roosevelt High School and to hear citizens' opinions.

Although all of the plans presently appear to include Greenbelt students, the various programs proposed continue to be a source of concern.

The Greenbelt Citizens Committee for Franklin D. Roosevelt High School is scheduling a meeting for Tues., Jan. 13, at 8 p.m. at City Council Chamber to bring citizens up to date on board actions and to get the input of Greenbelters on further actions of the Committec.

Please join us on the 13th to insure a true consensus of Greenbelt opinion, and please join us at DuVal on the 22nd.
