Elderly Housing Wins In A Walk, 2 to 1

What was built up as a controversial subject dividing the community — elderly housing — turned out to have one-sided support in the Tuesday referendum. The vote in favor of proceeding with the elderly housing project was two to one, with 47% of the electorate voting. (See accompanying tally.)

All three precincts gave a favorable vote to the project, with a two-thirds majority prevailing everywhere. About 55 percent of the eligible voters in both the Center School and North End school precincts voted, while the turnout was 15 percent at Springhill Lake.

The turnout was surprisingly high for a single-issue referendum. The 1,278 votes cast represented 47 percent of the 2,733 registered voters. This was almost as high as the proportion—48 percent—who turned out for the last city council municipal election in September 1975, though the number of registered voters for that election was 3,053.

Forty-six absentee ballots were cast in Tuesday's election (29 for, 17 against).

Actually, the electorate was voting on the question of approving an amendment to the city charter permitting the city to enter into a mortgage contract with the State of Maryland for up to 40 years for the purpose of constructing and operating a federally subsidized housing project for elderly persons.

The "For" vote will now give the green light to the city to start serious negotiations with the State regarding the financing of the project. The city has already hired a consulting firm to determine the economic feasibility of the project and to establish criteria for and assist in the selection of an architect.

The consultants will also prepare necessary applications, monitor the preparation of plans and specifications, assist in the selection of the builder, and assist in the construction, financing, and establishment of a management plan.

The city council had voted unanimously in favor of the charter amendment on May 3, 1976. However, a group of citizens, arguing that such an important matter as elderly housing should be voted on by the public, petitioned the charter to referendum. The vote showed instead that the city council was closer to the public's pulse than the petitioners.

The site being given preference for the project is the 3-acre Ridge Road property. This land is now city-owned and will be replaced with other open-space property, chargeable against the elderly housing mortgage funds.

GOLDEN TRIANGLE PLAN AFFECTED BY HIGHWAY INTERCHANGES

Proposals for development of the commercially-zoned Golden Triangle are going through further revisions as the result of State Highway Administration plans to restructure the interchanges on the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and the Capital Beltway, according to information received this week by the News Review.

The Golden Triangle is a 57-acre tract bounded by Kenilworth Ave., Greenbelt Road (Rt. 193) and the Capital Beltway. Kenneth H. Michael, developer of the tract, has proposed plans to locate Capital Cadillac of D.C. on 8 acres of the tract. Revised preliminary plans are scheduled to be submitted to the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission next month. The city council will consider the matter on Monday, October 4.

New Ramp?

The new plan is said to relocate the auto dealership away from the east end of the Golden Triangle in order to accommodate a ramp that will be carved out of the east end just past the American Legion and the Beltway overpass. This ramp to the Beltway will allow traffic moving west on Greenbelt Road to enter the Baltimore-Washington Parkway going south into Washington.

Such a ramp would be needed if the State Highway Administration's (SHA) proposal to eliminate the entrance from Southway to the Baltimore-Washington Parkway south is approved. SHA claims that the existing interchanges are too close together to permit sufficient weaving distances, especially between vehicles entering the Baltimore-Washington Parkway from Southway and those exiting the southbound lanes to the Beltway west. Vehicles must slow down considerably to make these movements and this results in congestion. The proposal for a major overhaul is one of three alternatives for the Parkway. The other 2 involve no change to ramps or upgrading without relocation.

Original Golden Triangle plans called for two entrance roads off Greenbelt Road. One would enter opposite the Greenbelt Regional Park and then move in horseshoe fashion toward the east and come back out on Greenbelt Road near the proposed Pepco station adjacent to the Beltway. Now the latter entrance would have to be moved westward.

Unhappy APB

The city's Advisory Planning Board is not happy over these latest developments since they foresee additional traffic problems with three cutoffs from Greenbelt Road. There is also concern that the ramp will take valuable land off the city's tax rolls.

The Golden Triangle development plan has other problems. There is still no road access to the 2-acre city-owned Indian Springs property at the northern apex of the triangle. The new plan calls for 1.3 acres of landscaping and a pond along Greenbelt Road between the two entrances. The APB is concerned about who will be responsible for the pond since the tract will be developed in individual segments and there will be no overall ownership. The pond would be a storm water retention area.

Greenbelt Homemakers

At the library on Thursday, October 7, at 7:30 p.m. Fran Crisman and Dorothea Leslie will demonstrate how to make "Bread Dough Baskets and Rolls". Interested people are asked to make dough before they come. Ingredients are 1½ cups warm water and add 1½ cups salt. Stir until partially dissolved, add 4 cups all purpose flour. Mix thoroughly, knead on lightly floured surface for 2 minutes. Dough should be firm.

The next monthly meeting will be on Wed., Oct. 20, at 8 p.m. The program will feature "Whats New In Cookery". For more information on club activities call Mary Ann Baker 474-1706. Membership in all Homemaker Clubs is open to anyone.

ONE RAPE, ONE ASSAULT

In separate incidents last week one lady jogger was raped and one assaulted on the same evening at different locations in Greenbelt. A lookout has been issued for a white male, 17 to 19 years of age (see description below). The assault took place at 9:45 p.m. in the vicinity of Greenhill Road and the rape at 11:10 p.m. in the vicinity of 4 and 6 Courts of Ridge Road.

The Greenbelt Police Department cautions all women who jog evenings not to jog alone, or in remote areas, particularly at night.

Push Rent Rebates For Needy Elderly

"Senior citizens living on limited incomes need to be assured of how much money will be coming in each month, and how much will be going out in living expenses," declared Prince Georges council chairman David G. Hartlove, Jr. as he and a council colleague submitted legislation establishing the rent rebate program as an annual county grant.

Established three years ago, the rent rebate program returns 15 percent of a senior citizen's annual rent in the form of a cash grant from county government up to a $200 yearly maximum. The program has been the subject of yearly council legislation and deliberations, until now.

Hartlove, along with councilman Francis B. Francois, is proposing to make the program an annual and ongoing county project, eliminating the necessity of continuing council legislation—and easing the anxiety senior citizens endure each year as the bill is debated.

According to the proposal referred to council's Fiscal and Planning committee, those 62 or older and living on a limited net income of $8,000 or less are eligible for the rent rebate. Presently only senior citizens 65 or older with a net income of no more than $7,500 are included in the rent rebate.

The measure defines net income as gross income minus social security or railroad retirement benefits, or the first $3200 of any governmental pension program.

Moreover, the bill requires a senior citizen's net worth to total no more than $150,000 for eligibility. Net worth includes all cash, stock, bond and real property assets minus outstanding debts. The net worth provision is new to the rent rebate program and meshes with a similar stipulation in the state circuit breaker law.

GHI Paint, Electrical Regulations Approved

by Sid Kastner

The regular Greenbelt Homes, Inc. meeting on Thursday concerned itself with internal policy matters and some questions brought up by members. The final drafts of three sets of regulations - concerning parking, painting and electrical circuitry - which have been long under discussion, were presented to the board; action was taken on two of them.

The regulations on upgrading electrical capacity to GHI homes give the background of the problem, define the requirements and responsibilities of the three parties involved (homeowner, GHI and Pepco) and outline the steps involved in carrying out the improvement. The original electrical service installed in GHI homes had 60 ampere capacity on five circuits. With the increased use of modern appliances and air conditioners, etc., this capacity and small number of circuits is generally no longer adequate, and indeed has directly led to the recent moratorium on building additions which the corporation deemed necessary.

The only debate concerning these regulations was about whether the decision to heavy-up any particular home should be left to the homeowner, or should be imposed by GHI. Director Stephen Polaschik, and Ms. Hogensen of the Audit committee, took the latter view because of the safety issue involved; directors Virginia Moryadas and Ted Byerly felt this would be too authoritarian. The draft was therefore amended so as to include both GHI and the homeowner in the decision-making process, and then was formally accepted.

Paint Regulations

A draft of proposed painting regulations had earlier been presented to the board by the Aesthetics committee, as described in a previous issue of the News Review, and was sent back to the committee to clarify some points. The revised draft was now again considered and this time was accepted (according to Ms. Hogensen, who kindly informed this reporter of the outcome after he had arrived late). The regulations include a list of colors available for siding paint, in two brands; color charts can be seen also at the maintenance office by members desiring to paint.

Previous requests by two members for permission to install aluminum siding on their home at 31 Ridge Road, which had been approved by the board, now raised again a question of whether GHI should bear the cost of insulation to be installed within the siding. The manager proposed such a payment, not to exceed $1,000.

During the discussion it came out that the insulation was already being installed, whereupon director Moryadas said she would oppose payment, on principle. Also, Arthur Gropp of the Audit committee noted that the board was being inconsistent in approving the installation of insulation for these homes on Ridge, since it had turned down a similar case on Westway. Directors Volk and Smith agreed that a consistent policy had not been set up, but argued that experience needed to be gained in this area. The motion to approve expenditure for the insulation was passed with Moryadas opposed.

Addition

A member's request to build a 14 by 20 foot addition to his home was passed on to the board by the manager, because the moratorium on additions is still in effect, and because of objections by the member's neighbors. The latter feel that the proposed addition would block their views and their sunlight, while the member explained to the board that more living space was badly needed on the lower floor of his home.

It was evident that both sides were acting in good faith, and after a first motion to disapprove the request was put forward by director Wright - who later explained that he was only opposed to the particular addition plan - a compromise approach was adopted that would allow the manager to investigate alternative types of additions to the home, at the urging of Byerly and Volk.

Another member carried his complaint to the board about what he termed "negligence" on the part of the maintenance staff, in connection with the inspection procedure carried out on his home which is now vacant and up for sale. He complained that a leaking bathroom pipe had caused water to drip through the kitchen ceiling and discourage a potential buyer of his home, despite management's assurance of repair.

The manager defended the maintenance staff as having done everything possible, noting that they are currently overloaded with a backlog of work. While, on the other hand, director Moryadas questioned why the particular repair had not been carried out earlier in the 100-day inspection period. Chairman Smith ruled in the end that the corporation could not "bear any financial responsibility for the sale of the home".

Budget

Among other items briefly dealt with during the meeting, a schedule of coming discussions of the corporation's 1977 budget was drawn up for board members by the manager; these will consist of six meetings during October and November, the first to be held on October 12. A special membership meeting on the complete budget will then be set up.

Also, an interim progress report was presented by the newly formed Ad Hoc Committee on Resale Policy. This committee has been given the task of exploring alternative financing sources that can be made use of by the corporation's members when its mortgage is finally paid off at the end of 1977, just a year away. (The members of the committee are T. C. Byerly, Shirleyann Egenrieder, Rush Kester, Bob McGee, Charles Schwan, Nat Shinderman and Steve Sinden.) The main course of action the committee presently suggests is to directly contact representative of lending institutions (banks, savings and loans) to gain information on the position of these organizations with respect to GHI.
